States which are doing much along the line of horse breeding have within the past few years passed laws which require that stallions which are to be used as sires shall not only be examined and pronounced clean and sound from the standpoint of physical health, but that a certificate showing that they are pure bred and properly registered shall be displayed near the stalls in which they are kept. This is merely a safeguard that every horse raiser who uses them is entitled to. These same laws also provide that where a grade sire is used this fact shall also be plainly stated on a poster placed in his stall, while a certificate of sound health and physical condition is required, the same as with registered horses.

The chestnut blight, which is said to have been introduced into America in chestnuts imported from Japan, is fast killing chestnut trees in all directions from New York city, where it first got a foothold. The blight is caused by a fungus that gets under the bark in places where there is a cut or break. The tree is girdled under the bark, and often the damage is not detected until the tree is nearly dead. Owing to the way in which the blight works, there is no spray which can reach it. Experts in the federal agricultural department who have been waging a campaign against the pest recommend the felling and burning of all chestnut trees within a zone of twenty miles about the infected area as the only method which will be adequate to hold it in check.

A Philadelphia surgeon has lately discovered that the inside membrane of hens' eggs can be successfully used as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations. The new skin formed by this method is finer than the old, but strong and healthy.

For folks who hibernate in latitudes where the mercury is likely to slip down to 20 or 30 below zero there is absolutely no investment that gives more generous or immediate returns than that put into a thirty-five cent soapstone. In the comfort which it yields it pays for itself every night it is used.

It is an interesting fact shown in immigration statistics that, while the vast majority of Italians who emigrate from their native land to the western world come to the United States, just as large a per cent of the Spanish peasants go to South American countries. During the past year 230,000 people left Spain, 8,000 of these arriving in Buenos Aires in a single fortnight.

That this "watermelon stealin'" business is getting to be serious is shown in the discussion of the subject by a speaker before the recent meeting of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association held in St. Louis. Some one has suggested giving each melon a paper jacket, which would prevent the melons from being exposed to view and thus reduce the temptation to steal them.

If you would live long drink generous amounts of sour milk or buttermilk. Scientists have discovered that the family of bacteria that produce lactic acid—that is, cause the souring process in milk—have the power to destroy or neutralize another group of germs that are said to be responsible for the imperfect digestion of food in the intestines, which in turn is said to be the chief cause of old age decline.

Illinois produced last year more corn than any other state in the Union, but the largest average yield per acre—38.3 bushels—was grown in Connecticut, not usually considered in the list of corn producing states at all. It is evident that the farmers of those rocky little New England homesteads are on to some secrets of corn raising that the owners of the big farms of the central western states would do well to get next to.

Baguio, in the Philippine Islands, is said to be the wettest place in all the territory at present under the control of the United States. Meteorological records kept there show that in four days of last July 88.14 inches of water fell, thirty-four inches of this enormous amount falling in a period of twenty-four hours. This place is the health resort of the island, and the "water" cure is said to be a favorite method of treatment.

Surveys are being made for a scenic highway around Crater lake, in southern Oregon, which is conceded to be one of the world's wonder spots, but which as yet has been visited by comparatively few people on account of its inaccessibility. A proposed automobile road from Medford, a station on the main line of the railroad, some sixty miles away, and the building of the scenic drive around the lake will afford to lovers of the beautiful in nature an opportunity of viewing one of her masterpieces.

Between meridians 100 degrees and 120 degrees, which includes practically all of the dry country of the western half of the United States, it is estimated that there are 300,000,000 acres of fertile land capable of producing a crop of twenty bushels per acre of winter wheat every other year. This means that if one-third of this vast area were producing on the above basis the increase in the country's wheat crop as a result would be 1,000,000,000 bushels yearly, which is a good deal more wheat than the country has ever produced in a single crop.

Folks who are paying 30 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of coffee wonder why there was not a drop in price when the import tariff tax was removed some time ago. The reason there was not is due to the fact that the Brazilian coffee trust, backed by the government, slapped on an export duty equal to our import tax which had just been removed. As a still further aid in maintaining prices the output of coffee is so regulated that in times of big crops enough of the surplus is removed from trade channels so that the price can be kept up on the remainder.

A reader of this department who lives at Reed City, Mich., in a recent letter calls attention to the interesting fact that as a result of investigations which have been carried on it is now contended that fruit raising can be carried on in Michigan over a much wider area than was formerly supposed. In support of this statement our correspondent calls attention to the fact of the clearing of one 3,000 acre tract not far from where he lives, all of which is to be set to fruit trees as soon as cleared. He also speaks in high terms of a fruit and land show that was held a short time since in Grand Rapids, where choice fruit put up in the western box fashion was on display. In this connection it may be added the Michigan fruit grower has a distinct advantage over his western competitor in nearness to good markets. When he will take as much pains in the careful spraying of his trees and in the packing of his fruit he will receive correspondingly satisfactory prices for his stuff.

A SENSIBLE MAN.

A good friend the writer has known for many years and who at sixty-six years of age has yielded to the very commendable desire to take life a little easier and enjoy some of the fruits of his labors for the past thirty years or more on a quarter section farm has hit upon a very sensible solution of the best way to let go of the strenuous life he has been living. Rather than quit work entirely and rust out or die of azoturia, or whatever it is called in the case of genus homo, he has purchased a ten acre place on the edge of town, which has a very comfortable house and outbuildings, a fine little orchard, a nice garden patch, pasture for a cow or two and room enough to grow some corn and praties. He figures that working this much ground will keep him out of mischief, give him something to think about and provide enough exercise to give him a good appetite and keep him in good physical condition. By following the course he has we believe our friend has solved in a very satisfactory as well as sensible manner the question of retiring from active and heavy farm work. Many a man who has earned a competence for the eventime of life would not only be a good deal happier, but live many years longer, were he to carry out the same plan.

THE OLEOMARGARINE TAX.

A bill is being thrashed out in the agricultural committee at Washington which has in view placing a uniform tax of 2 cents per pound on all oleomargarine or butterine, whether colored or not. While there is considerable opposition to the bill on the part of some dairy associations, others have in effect given approval to the bill, provided it is accompanied by severe penalties for those who would ply the business of selling colored oleomargarine for butter and getting butter prices for it. There is little question that the present tax of 10 cents a pound on colored oleomargarine works a decided hardship on the man of limited salary or wage who has many mouths to feed. If he wants to buy butterine, knowing what it is, it hardly seems fair to impose a virtually prohibitive tax on this necessity in the interest of a class who are probably already the most well to do of any.

GIVES VENTILATION.

The use of muslin in place of window sash is now an accepted practice with practically all up to date poultry keepers. Not only does the muslin admit sufficient light, but, what is more essential than this, makes possible a perfect circulation of air. This insures the health of the flock, which in turn is a prime condition for egg production. A lady reader of these notes who has her poultry houses equipped in the above fashion reports twenty-six eggs from her flock of less than a hundred hens on a day recently when her thermometer on the back porch registered 36 below zero. Muslin is cheaper than window glass and is also better for the biddies. Another who has tried muslin in place of the upper window sash reports that dampness on the floor has disappeared since the change was made.

POTASH FROM SEAWEED.

Investigations which have been made by the department of agriculture with a view to finding practical sources for the securing of commercial potassium seem to have demonstrated that an ample supply of this valuable fertilizing element is to be got from the beds of kelp or giant seaweed which are found over considerable areas along the Pacific coast shore line. This weed extracts the potassium salts from the sea water, and when the weeds are dried the potassium exudes to the surface in the shape of potassium chlorid. The dried plants contain from 25 to 30 per cent of the chloride, and it is estimated that if properly handled these beds would produce annually for an indefinite period of time 1,000,000 tons of potassium chloride, worth $10,000,000.

A TRAINLOAD OF STEERS FREEZE.

An incident of the period of severe cold in January, which reached a climax in a temperature of from 25 to 42 degrees below zero through the northern tier of states, that will probably not be recorded again in a generation, was the freezing to death of eighteen carloads of fat steers that were snowbound for fifty-six hours on the C., R. I. and P. railway between Neola and Council Bluffs. It is said that as the animals began to freeze they remained standing, and when the discovery of their plight was made the entire trainload, totaling some [illegible] head, were stark and stiff and still on their feet. If the steers were worth $70 a head the damages that will have to be paid by the railroad will be $25,200.

BURNING STUMPS.

The following method is recommended for treating stumps prior to burning them: Bore a hole in the center of each stump to a depth of a foot with a two inch augur, fill the hole one fourth full of powdered saltpeter and the remainder with coal oil, filling a second time with coal oil when the oil first applied is absorbed. This job should be done in the spring, and in the fall it is said the stumps will burn, roots and all. Under this method it is claimed that the saltpeter dries the sap, while the oil penetrates the wood thoroughly and tends to make the combustion complete.

Consult Your Banker

Are you being solicited by anyone to buy stock in anything; to go into a "sure-thing" speculation?

Have you about made up your mind to take the money you have worked hard for and saved and "invest" it in some scheme that vaguely promises to pay anywhere from 8 to 800 per cent?

If your mind is working in this direction you owe it to yourself and to those dependent upon you to consult your banker before it is too late.

The American public is annually fleeced out of more than two hundred million dollars by the get-quick-rich grafters.

Ask your banker before you buy. He can easily ascertain the standing of any company of good business repute.

Official Paper of Pennington County

We hope the hat Roosevelt has in the ring is a "crusher" so that it will recover the smash it received in the North Dakot primaries.

Make this your business—when you are away from home visiting relatives or friends in some other state let them know about the country in which you live. Boost, Boost continuously it will pay you.

The News had intended innaugurating a voting contest last week for the purpose of getting an expression from the voters on various questions, but owing to lack of space was unable to do so. We still believe there is plenty of time before the convention, and for this reason a blank ballot will be found on another page. We thoroughly agree with Roosevelt on the proposition that the people should rule, and believe that the American people are competent to choose their own officials, be they local, state or national, and for this reason we trust that all of the of the voters will take such an interest in this contest that a fair and full expression may be had from Thief River Falls and Pennington county.

First we have the announcement from Colonel Roosevelt that his hat is in the ring, and the next report is from North Dakota and is to the effect that LaFollette has carried the state by 15,000. Teddy must have been sitting on the hat.

We are submitting this week to our readers a ballot, for the purpose of getting a vote and sentiment of the people of this city and surrounding country. Kindly read the ballot over carefully, place an (X) after the purpose or candidate you prefer and mail it to us.

Thief River Falls from present indications is going to enjoy a lively and prosperous summer in the building line. The basements of two large buildings have been dug during the winter and as soon as favorable weather is assured, work of constructing them will begin.

WHOM DO YOU FAVOR?

For the purpose of getting a line on the sentiment of the people of Thief River Falls, Pennington County and vicinity, The News has decided to follow in the footsteps of a great many other newspapers and give the voters an opportunity to express themselves on the presidential preferential primary, and also to express an opinion as to who would best serve the itnereats of the people in the respective offices of President of the United States and Governor of the State.

BALLOT

(Put an (X) after the proposition or candidate you favor.)

Are you in favor of continuing the Taft administration in office. Yes.......... No..........

Are you in favor of continuing the Eberhart administration in office. Yes.......... No..........

Are you in favor of allowing the people to vote upon presidential candidates at the caucuses? Yes...... No.....

Cut out the above and mail it to the News office, or if so desired the vote may be handed in in person. We should be pleased to have anyone taking an interest in this matter call at this office at any time and a supply of ballots will be furnished should a canvas of any neighborhood be wished. The results will be published next week, and we trust that all will avail themselves of the opportunity to vote, and that enthusiasm will be displayed, as we believe that the coming elections are of vital importance to the country, and the fuller and fairer the discussion of candidates and issues the more satisfactory will be the result.

No one should vote more than once.

APRIL-FOOL' DAY.

The first day of April is so called from the old custom of sending any one, on this day, upon a bootless errand. This strange custom of April-Fool's Day exists throughout Europe and in those parts of the United States where traditions of the mother-countries prevail. In France, the unlucky party who may be fooled is called a "fish"; in Scotland, a "cockoo"; in England and the United States, an "April-fool."—Cyc.

The other day a merchant in a nearby town saw a farmer receiving goods at the station from a Chicago mail order house, says an exchange. The goods were in his line and the same had been carried in his store for years. He approached the farmer and said: "I could have sold you every article you have there for less money than you paid the Chicago house and saved you the freight besides." "Then why on earth didn't you say so?" answered the farmer. "I have taken the local paper for years and have never seen a line about your selling these goods. The Chicago house sent advertising matter to me, asking for my trade and they got it." Eleven Towns.

We know of several instances where this is the case.

We learn that the secretary of state has submitted a tentative apportionment of delegates for the state convention based on one delegate for every 250 votes cast for state officers and 5 delegates at large from each county, with the exception of Pennington, in which case only five delegates at large are allowed. Undoubtedly the secretary of state is correct in his submission of this plan, as he is merely following the precedent established in the cases of Mahnomen and Koochiching counties. However, as this scheme is so manifestly unfair, Pennington having cast 65 per cent of the vote at the last election, we hope the voters will bring the matter to the attention of the state central committee in so forceful a manner that recognition will be had. As the matter now stands it gives Red Lake 13 votes and Pennington 5. We suggest an equal division at least, giving 9 votes to each county.

This may be of great interest to people of this city, there are a large number of "youngsters" prominading the streets when the proper place for them is in bed. The parents should be more pains-taking with the children and know their whereabouts all the time. The following is commented on by the Osakis Review.

Mary McFadden, the bright "News and Comment" paragrapher in the Duluth News Tribune, condenses a whole lot of truth and good sense in a short paragraph. Miss Mary says: "Neither the police force nor the school teachers can bring up children properly unless assisted by intelligent parental training. But the upbraiding of many Duluth children would seem to be entrusted to the harried guardians of the peace and the overworked teachers. It is a mother's business and a father's business to keep an eye on the influences their children are likely to encounter away from home and school. The whereabouts of the boy or girl from the time school is out until bed time is a matter of grave importance not only to society in general, but to the parents in particular.

Why Go to Canada?

This is a question that may be asked daily. You, who are contemplating moving, are making a big mistake, for the simple reason that Pennington county has greater opportunities than those offered by Canada. We were informed of this fact last week by the best of authority, from Winnipeg, who said: "People of this vicinity who think of moving to Canada can not see the great advantages which surround them. They hear a booster from Western Canada talking of the wonderful opportunities and think, 'my, what a wonderful country it must be,' and they have a "hankering" to leave a good thing to go where they suppose they can do better". Some make good but nine times out of ten they regret it. Here are a few reasons why: In Western Canada you are a great distance from market; it costs considerably more to live; you run a greater chance of "frosting," as the season is shorter; the land is no better and in a number of instances is not as good, but sells at a higher price.

Pennington county has thousands of acres of land that are not cultivated, and its soil is fertile. Land can be purchased at $10 to $50 per acre on the average;—land that will produce results. The idea alone of living in God's country and among God's people is worth a great deal. We wish that our readers would consider this matter and we believe that you will all agree with us.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

HEAD OF TRAINING SCHOOL

President Merica of Wyoming State University to Succeed Whittier at Red Wing.

Charles Oliver Merica, president of the University of Wyoming, has been appointed superintedent of the Minnesota state training school for boys at Red Wing to succeed F. A. Whittier, resigned. The appointment is announced by the state board of control, and is effective Aug. 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year. Mr. Whittier is not appointed to another position under jurisdiction of the board, as has been reported he would be.

President Merica was recommended for the Red Wing position by Judge Ben Lindsey, the famous judge of the Denver juvenile court, and by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. Approval of his appointment was given by Governor Eberhart. He has been one of the great educators of the country who has got "close to his students," has probed deeply into the problem of handling delinquent children, and state officials believe he will revolutionize the administration of affairs at the Minnesota state training school.

GIRL BRUTALLY MURDERED

Minneapolis Young Woman Slain Near Her Residence.

With people near by to hear despairing cries for help, but no one ready and willing to render assistance, Alice Matthews, twenty-one years old, gave up her life at Minneapolis in a desperate attempt to save her honor. Her mutilated body was found in the street less than half a block from her home by a neighbor.

Her lips were swollen from a blow on the mouth, her neck and throat were torn and scratched, her clothing was in tatters and everything bore mute evidence to the terrific struggle she made against her brutal assailant.

The police have practically no clue to work upon. There is nothing to indicate who committed the crime.

RULING FAVORS RAILWAYS

St. Paul Attorneys Claim It Affects Minnesota Case.

The ruling of the interstate commerce commission at Washington, directing that railroads adhere to the principle that the through rate must not exceed the sum of the local rates, was received with enthusiasm by St Paul railroad attorneys, who see in it approval of the contention set up by the railroads in the Minnesota rate cases, that states cannot fix rates without necessarily affecting the rates in other states, or on interstate business. Attorneys for the state in the case admitted that the ruling of the commission seemed favorable to the argument advanced by the roads' counsel.

M'NAMARA MADE EXAMINER

Duluth Man to Take Testimony in White Earth Cases.

Orders appointing Charles E. McNamara of Duluth special examiner to take testimony in seventy-eight of the pending White Earth land cases have been filed in the United States district court at Fergus Falls. The cases are brought to set aside deeds to White Earth lands on the ground that the persons giving them were full bloods and that the deeds are, therefore, void. The testimony will be taken on the reservation and at Detroit the coming summer. The examiner will report his findings to the United States court at Fergus Falls.

HAMMOND NOT A CANDIDATE

Minnesota Democrat Refuses to Enter Gubernatorial Race.

Representative W. S. Hammond of the Second Minnesota district is not an aspirant for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and has no intention of entering the race for that office. He is content with his place in the house and will be a candidate for re-election as the representative of the Second district.

Mr. Hammond made this statement: "I am not a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in any sense. I intend to be a candidate for reelection to congress in the September primaries."

CARMEN LOSE FIRST ROUND

Law Forbidding Discharge of Union Men Held Unconstitutional.

Judge Watts, in district court at Crookston, held the law forbidding the discharge of men because they are affiliated with unions as unconstitutional and writs of habeas corpus were granted in the cases of Superintendent Knebel and Master Mechanic Smith of the Northern division of the Great Northern road.

County Attorney Hagen will carry the case to the supreme court and further prosecutions under a different section will be started.

ALLEGES COMBINE TO CONTROL COAL SUPPLY

Resolution in House Asks for Inquiry at Duluth.

An investigation of an alleged combination to control the supply of coal to cities at the head of Lake Superior in Minnesota and Wisconsin is proposed in a resolution introduced in the lower branch of congress by Representative Steenerson of Minnesota.

Mr. Steenerson declared that the situation as to the retail supply of coal at the Head of the Great Lakes is in a deplorable condition and that some action by the federal authorities is imperative to guard the rights of the consumers in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Representative Steenerson's resolution provides for the appointment of a committee of five members of the house to take charge of an investigation of conditions in the coal traffic at the Head of the Great Lakes. The resolution sets forth that it has been charged that there exists a combination of coal dealers and coal operators in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, which declines to serve coal in certain cities.

The committee is instructed under the resolution to inquire into any such violations of the law and to determine whether any such combination has declined to supply coal to the authorities of any city government which planned to deal in coal for the accommodation of the public.

A man living in Cincinnati is making rapid recovery from a chronic and very painful case of rheumatism as a result of subjecting himself to a bee sting or two daily. He has been taking this treatment some three weeks and is decidedly improved and no longer has to use a cane. Physicians are watching this and other similar cases with a good deal of interest. The benefit of the sting method is said to be due to the introduction into the system of formic acid, the principle which makes the sting so sharp and painful.

The milking of a cow more or less than 600 times during the year and finding out at the end of that time that she has failed to pay her feed bill by a margin of $5 or $10 ought to result in something more than surprise in her owner, for this is a round price to pay merely for the purpose of associating with a bovine on such intimate terms and under the conditions mentioned.

A family of boys that the writer knows well and whose friendship he prizes highly are being brought up sensibly, as we think. There is dignity and devotion on the part of the mother, an example in the father which does not cancel her admonition and, besides this, the judicious application of kindness and an eighteen inch ruler. This combination will produce good citizens if anything will.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

It is reported at the state capitol that Judge James H. Quinn of Fairmont has been picked by Governor A. O. Eberhart for an appointment to the state supreme bench. Judge Philip E. Brown of Luverne, who took his seat as an associate justice in January, has been in poor health and has talked of resigning. He has given the governor some intimation, but it is said that he has not made a final decision.

State Superintendent C. G. Schulz, as a member of the board of regents of the University of Minnesota, presented twenty-three graduates of the Crookston school of agriculture with diplomas. President Vincent wired congratulations from Chicago and expressed deep regret at being unable to attend the exercises. Dean James of the University of Minnesota addressed the class.

Investigations of health affairs on the White Earth Indian reservation were left to the executive committee of the state board of health at a meeting of the board at St. Paul. It was thought best to consult the commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington before any action is taken by the state authorities and Dr. H. M. Bracken was delegated by the committee to confer with him.

The election at Warren resulted in 154 votes for license and 149 against. Eighteen blank ballots were cast. There is a dispute between the "wet" and "dry" factions, each claiming a victory, as the charter's meaning is easily construed in different ways in regard to the license issue.

The newly elected village council of Long Prairie has raised the saloon license from $500 to $1,000. This will decrease the number of saloons from eight to three.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Rev. James Alexander Paige, eighty-eight years old, resident of Minnesota since 1883 and a minister for sixty years, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. Page was born in Ware, Mass., graduated at Princeton and from the theological seminary in 1852. In 1861 Mr. Paige became a voluntary chaplain for the soldiers around St. Louis and in 1862 was commissioned hospital chaplain at St. Louis by President Abraham Lincoln.

Osmyn B. King, a pioneer citizen of Minneapolis, member of the first city council and one of the founders of the Park Avenue Congregational church, is dead. Mr. King was born in Suffield, Conn., June 15, 1831. He came to the Falls of St. Anthony in 1856, not long after the government reduced the Fort Snelling military reserve so as to permit settlement on the west side of the stream.

Charles P. Russell, a pioneer merchant of Eyota, Olmsted county, is dead at the age of seventy-five years. Mr. Russell entered business in Winona in 1855 and in 1865 moved to Eyota, where he had since resided. For ten years he was president of the First National bank in Eyota, resigning on account of poor health. He was a prominent Democrat and served in the legislature in 1878.

Dr. Albert Plummer, father of Doctors Henry S. and William A. Plummer of the Mayo staff, passed away at his home in Rochester. Dr. Plummer was seventy-two years of age. He served as an assistant surgeon in the Tenth New Hampshire regiment during the Civil war and was a member of the state legislature in 1882 and 1883.

Dr. George M. Coon, a physician who had won a high place in the medi- profession of St. Paul, is dead. Dr. had served as deputy coroner of ey county and as surgeon in the national guard. He was a past commander of the Knights Tem- Shriner of Osman temple and r of the Elks.

McCarron, a resident of eapolis since 1856, is dead. He was seventy-nine years old. Mr. McCarron enlisted in the Tenth Minnesota Volunteers in 1862 and was a member of Morgan post, G. A. R.

William Lochman, seventy-nine years of age, a pioneer wholesale dry goods merchant of Minneapolis and a business man widely known over the Northwest in early days, is dead in the Mill City.

William Holt, eighty-seven years old, thought to be the oldest Mason in the United States in point of length of membership, and a resident of Minneapolis since 1865, is dead.

Rev. Olaf Bodien, for nineteen years pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church of Minneapolis, is dead.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

A supposed tramp who jumped the rods of a freight train was killed at Royalton. The train crew was held and the train delayed, as well as the passenger train, while the death of the unfortunate man was being investigated. There was nothing on his person to identify him.

Verne Smith, thirty years, committed suicide in his home at White Bear by taking seven grains of strychnine. Smith had been unable to secure work for some time and had grown despondent.

A miner named Erick Wilson, employed at the Webb property in Hibbing, was killed by a cavein. He was thirty-five years old and single.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

With all the pomp and solemnity that a mighty nation can pay its heroes of war the last of the dead of the Maine were laid away in Arlington cemetery near Washington. Side by side with the bodies of those brought back from Havana harbor after the war with Spain they were consigned to the earth of the Old Dominion, while a nation paid its last measure of honor to the "unidentified" of that great catastrophe that brought on a war, changed the map of the world and extended the empire of the United States into the corners of the earth.

A valuable discovery of soluble potash salts has been made in the Mohave desert, Southern California, by field representatives of the bureau of soils and geological survey. The potash was found in a partially dried up lake. The government experts who found it declare there are indications of millions of tons of potash.

Beginning with Easter no persons will be married at the Episcopal cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul at Chicago unless they present a certificate of health from a reputable physician to the effect that they are normal, physically and mentally, and have neither an incurable nor communicable disease.

Woman suffrage and the election of United States senators by direct vote were defeated in the Massachusetts senate by close votes. The vote against suffrage was 17 to 14 and that against direct votes for senators 19 to 14.

LABOR NEWS.

Fifty railroads, comprising practically all of the lines east of Chicago and north of the Norfolk and Western, refused to grant an increase in wages demanded by their locomotive engineers. The demand, presented Jan. 22, was for an increase amounting to about 19 per cent a year. The railroads' refusal is based on the assertion that they are financially unable to bear the increased expense.

All the demands of the 200,000 miners in the bituminous coal fields of Western Pensylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois for a 10 per cent increase in pay and shorter working hours were voted down by the operators. As a final effort to prevent a prolonged shutdown of the mines after April 1 and possibly a strike the whole dispute was then referred to a subcommittee.

Two thousand persons were made idle, the Appleton cotton mills were forced to shut down and sections of machinery in the mills of the Merrimac corporation were stopped by a strike which the Industrial Workers of the World are endeavoring to extend to all the 20,000 operatives of Lowell, Mass.

The great Lawrence (Mass.) strike, which brought in its train increased wages for 275,000 textile workers in New England, has been officially declared off, having accomplished its purpose in the opinion of the leaders.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

Mobile and Ohio passenger train No. 4, northbound, was held up and the express safe blown open and robbed seven miles south of Corinth, Miss., by four heavily armed masked men. It is reported the safe contained considerable money and valuables. One report is that $60,000 in currency was obtained.

With people near by to hear her despairing cries for help, but no one ready and willing to render assistance, Alice Matthews, twenty-one years old, gave up her life at Minneapolis in a desperate attempt to save her honor. Her mutilated body was found in the street less than half a block from her home.

BOY CONFESSES TO MURDER

Calmly Tells How He Killed Unarmed Man in Cold Blood.

In the village lockup at Grasston, Kanabec county, a sixteen-year old Minneapolis boy told how he had killed an unarmed man in cold blood. He related how, interrupted in the robbery of a Kanabec settler's cabin by the approach of the settler, he drew a revolver, waited the approach of the settler, deliberately shot him down on the cabin threshold, rifled the pockets of the dead man and left the cabin. He told the story unconcernedly, as a sixteen-year old boy might tell of killing his first rabbit.

The boy was Eugene Thomas, who had given himself up to the authorities in Minneapolis. The man he killed was R. N. Winters, who lived in a settler's cabin near the village of Mora.

Men who heard Thomas' narrative, the county attorney and the sheriff, men whose business is dealing with crime, said that the story of the boy, a confession of approximately [illegible] words, is a document which has no counterpart in the history of the state.

SEIZE GEMS AS SMUGGLED

Officers Take Jewels From Minneapolis Bank Vault.

Jewelry said to be worth in the neighborhood of [illegible] was seized by customs officials in the vaults of the Northwestern National bank, Minneapolis, where the jewelry was on deposit in a private box. It is alleged to have been fraudulently imported.

It was impossible to learn the name of the firm owning the jewels. It is understood, however, that the firm is charged with doing a large business in the illegal importation of jewelry and that developments may involve several men of wealth and prominence in St. Paul, as well as Minneapolis.

George C. Douglas, fifty-five years of age, a bachelor farmer who resided about six miles east of Pequot, in the vicinity of Pelican lake, where he owned considerable property, was found murdered in his home, his body bruised and skull broken open.

A Minneapolis man named William Pearson, who has made his home a mile from Douglas, went to Pequot and gave himself up, saying, it is alleged, that he had trouble with Douglas and that the old man was dead. The prisoner is about forty-five years old and reached Pequot last November. It is alleged he and Douglas had trouble before.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Three Hundred Forty and 31-100 ($340.31) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas J. [illegible], a widower, Mortgager, to First State Bank of Thief River Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 10th. day of December, 1908, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota on the 18th. day of December, 1908, at 11:30 o'clock A. M., in Book 3 of Mortgages, on page 413; and which said Mortgage now appears of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, (said Pennington County being formerly a part of the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota) in book 31 of mortgages on pages 116-117, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

Lots two (2) and three (3) of block fourteen (14) of Porter's Addition to Thief River Falls, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington County, Minnesota, being formerly in and a part of Red Lake County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County and State of Minnesota at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington County and State, on the 11th day of May 1912, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $340.31, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

PASTOR RUSSELL SPEAKS ON MARS HILL

"Unknown God" Again Declared In Athens and Corinth.

In the Words of St. Paul, He Declares That For a Long Time God "Winked" at Polytheism and Image Worship, "but Now Commands All to Repent."

PASTOR RUSSELL

Corinth, Greece, Mar. 10.—The I. B. S. A. Missions Investigation Committee is here. Pastor Russell, its Chairman, delivered an address in our largest Auditorium. Rev. Bosdayannes served as interpreter. Pastor Russell's text was, "God hath appointed a day in the which He will judge the world." (Acts xvii, 31.) He said:—

Enroute to your city I visited Athens. As I stood upon Mars Hill and made a short address my mind reverted to the account of Saint Paul's preaching there, and I have chosen some of his words on that occasion as my text. As St. Paul made no impression there it is quite improbable that I made any.

True, it is not today fashionable in civilized communities to worship images; and yet in another sense it is still fashionable. There is still much idol worship throughout the civilized world, but in a different form from that of old. No longer do we bow before wooden images, but before inward images, the images of our minds, our mental aspirations—with some, wealth and fame; with others, ease and pleasure, and with still others, the creed-idols of our forefathers, miserable misrepresentations of the true God.

The Day of Judgment.

Saint Paul on Mars Hill preached Jesus and the resurrection—Jesus as the Redeemer from the death sentence, making possible the resurrection of the dead by satisfying the demands of Divine Law against the sinner—the resurrection as the means through which the blessing of the Savior's death will reach Adam and all his children.

Addressing the Gentiles, the Apostle explains that for a long time God had "winked" at Polytheism and image worship, "but now," he says, "God commandeth all men everywhere to repent." How did God "wink" at sin and idolatry? And does He still "wink" at it? And why did He change and when did He begin to command repentance?

We answer: For four thousand years idolatry prevailed and God took no notice of it. He did not "wink" at the idolaters' dying in their ignorance, and say to the devils, "Take these poor creatures who know no better! Roast them to all eternity!" Nothing of the kind! Our forefathers merely imagined that and by false reasoning convinced themselves, and twisted texts of Scripture which they did not properly understand in support of this theory.

Let us note carefully what the Apostle says respecting God's appointed Day for the judging of the world. He says that the command to repent now goes forth to all men everywhere, "because God hath appointed a Day, in the which He will judge the world." The Apostle does not refer to that Day as already begun, but as merely appointed or arranged for in advance. He means that in arranging that "Jesus, by the grace of God, should taste death for every man," God was arranging that every man might have a judgment or a trial, to determine whether or not he will be worthy of this blessing which Jesus' death provides him an opportunity to secure.

"The Mystery of God."

The purpose of the nineteen centuries between the time when Jesus died as man's Redeemer and the time when He will take His Throne, as the Restorer of Adam and his race, is spoken of as a "mystery," because the great work of grace herein accomplished is measurably hidden from the world.

The Scriptures tell us who may understand this "mystery," and when it will be finished. They say, "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him, and He will show them His Covenant." They tell us that "In the days of the voice of the Seventh Angel, when he shall begin to sound, the Mystery of God shall be finished," which He hath kept secret from the foundation of the world. (Revelation x, 7.) Saint Paul refers to this mystery, saying that it was "hidden from past Ages and Dispensations," and "is now revealed to the saints." (Colossians i, 26, 27.) He explains what it is that we should be fellow-heirs, and of the same Body with our Redeemer. Eph. iii, 6.

We should notice this wide difference between the reward promised the Church and that proffered the world. The difference is as to nature. The reward for the world will be earthly, human nature, with everlasting life in an earthly Paradise or Eden—world-wide. Mankind never lost a spiritual or heavenly condition through Adam's disobedience, nor in any other manner. He never had such a condition or nature that he could lose it. He was made man, "a little lower than the angels." This which he lost Jesus paid the redemption price for at Calvary; and these things that are the very things which Jesus and His elect Bride will restore to mankind during the thousand years of the Messianic Kingdom. "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."

THE FORMALIN TREATMENT.

Within a short time it will be necessary to plant the early potatoes. If a nice smooth crop is desired at digging time the seed should be disinfected before planting. This may be done by adding half a pint of 40 per cent formalin (also called formaldehyde) to fifteen gallons of water in a medium sized barrel and suspending in this in a gunny sack for a period of about two hours the potatoes intended for seed. After soaking the desired length of time the sack should be suspended above the barrel and the solution allowed to drain back in. When the potatoes have dried for a short time they should be cut and planted. The amount of the disinfecting solution mentioned should be sufficient for the treatment of from twenty to twenty-five bushels of seed. For the benefit of those who may not be acquainted with the fact it may be said a disinfecting of the seed in the manner just described will not mean scab free potatoes unless the land on which the seed is planted is free from scab spores. This means that a patch of land that produced scabby potatoes last season should be put to some crop other than potatoes, while the latter should be put on new ground or that which has grown some other crop than potatoes for the past year or two. Treating seed oats with the formalin solution will also prevent smut. This is best done by spreading the seed out on the granary floor and applying the solution with a sprinkler. The oats should then be shoveled over and a second application given and shoveled over again. The aim should be to have each kernel of grain moist, but not wet. The seed grain should be treated the day before using and the pile covered with a canvas or gunny sacking for the night. The seed should be dry enough to separate well before planting. As with the potatoes, to grow a clean crop the seed grain should be sown on land which did not produce smutty grain last season.

BLOWING UP MUDHOLES.

Blowing up mudholes is a rather unique method of road improvement that is being tried with very satisfactory results in Kansas. On one of the roads in Fairview township, Stafford county, Kan., was a mudhole a quarter of a mile long that was impassable even for light buggies. The trustee having the work in charge had read of deep plowing with dynamite and decided to employ this rather radical method of getting rid of the mudhole. At intervals of every 100 feet along this road he drilled holes and inserted in each a stick of dynamite and then touched them off. He not only got rid of the mud in this way, but the explosion broke up the hard pan beneath, which was responsible for the mudhole. This made drainage possible. He then filled up the holes and graded up the road, and from that time on it has been one of the best in that section. So successful was this method that it is to be tried on other mudholes in the same county. Incidentally this plan not only gives good results in getting rid of mudholes on roads, but would work equally well with ponds that are the result of an impervious hardpan.

THE OX WARBLE.

In a few weeks now numerous lumps or swellings are likely to appear on the backs of the cattle, and especially is this true of those which last season had the range of woodland pastures. The swellings referred to are caused by the presence of the grubs of the cattle botfly or gadfly. The eggs of these insects are thought to be deposited on the legs of the cattle and are taken into their mouths when the animals lick themselves. While in the digestive tract they develop into grubs and make their way through the tissues of the body into the backs of the animals, causing the lumps mentioned above. Here they should be destroyed, for if left undisturbed they will finally emerge, fall to the ground and bury themselves in the soil, where they undergo a transformation and reappear as flies, ready to lay more eggs to make more trouble for the cattle. The grubs may be squeezed out of the backs of the animals, but it is painful to them. Some make an opening in the skin with a very sharp knife blade and then squeeze them out, when a few drops of kerosene will put the little pests out of commission.

DRINK ALL YOU WANT.

The department of chemistry of the University of Illinois has recently completed a series of exhaustive experiments whose object was to find out whether drinking of water at meal time was beneficial or detrimental to health. Students in the chemistry department were divided into several squads, the individuals in which drank water in varying degrees with their meals, from none whatever up to an excessive amount, two or three pints. Careful note was taken of the health of the different squads, as indicated in general feelings, vitality, endurance, etc. The conclusions of those conducting the experiments completely upsets the long established notion that the use of water is injurious. On the contrary, it was found that the liberal drinking of water while eating promoted digestion, the dilution of the gastric juices being especially beneficial. In all particulars did the experiments conducted show that the liberal use of water was healthful.

The successful poultry raiser must possess to a certain extent that which has been called genius—"the capacity for taking infinite pains."

A piece of beef which is to be sliced for use cold will be much more satisfactory and slice more easily if it is roasted the day before it is to be used.

Last season was a mighty bad one for grasshoppers in several sections, and if the coming season should be as dry as last they are likely to be a still worse pest.

Unleached wood ashes contain from 5 to 7 per cent of potash and are an excellent fertilizer. As is well known, the ashes from hard wood are much richer in potash than those from soft wood.

When one rides through a dairy section it does not take very much imagination to decide whether the farmers are making money or not. The appearance of their places is sufficient evidence.

The uses of concrete are multiplying very rapidly. Not only has it largely taken the place of plank for sidewalks, barn floors and posts, but it is giving very satisfactory results as a substitute for wooden railway ties.

Eggs are quite as likely to absorb odors from the things the hen eats as milk is to take on smells from the things the cows consume in the stable. And either smelly milk or eggs are not calculated to whet one's appetite.

Hogs are not usually recommended as a fertilizer for corn, but one of the best fields of corn that the writer remembers having seen as a boy was one in which some 200 350-pound porkers that died of hog cholera had been planted.

The middle of January a carload of potatoes from Scotland was unloaded at Portland, Me., to supply local needs. This is said to be the first time in her history as one of the leading potato states that Maine has had to import potatoes for her own use.

It is not only desirable for a girl to know how to sew well from the standpoint of being competent and self sufficient, but from that of economy as well. Fortunately it is neither degrading nor unladylike for a woman to know how to clothe herself.

A northern poultry keeper who has been getting good results from a flock of forty pullets has made the meat of one rabbit a part of their daily bill of fare. Besides, they get wheat in the morning, oats or speltz at noon, cracked corn at night, while water and milk, bone and ground oyster shell are provided every day.

Baby beef is the cheapest and most profitable to raise, and the first 200 pounds of growth in a shoat is produced considerably cheaper than the last 100 pounds if he is brought to a weight of 300 pounds. Almost invariably early gains are quickest and cheapest, and this is just as true of poultry and sheep as it is of hogs and cattle.

If the flock of hens is to be confined the coming season it will be a good idea to shut off a portion of their yard or a tract adjoining and sow rape. If this is allowed to get a good start it will furnish the hens a supply of the finest green food all summer and they will be still nibbling at the stalks after they are killed by the frost of early winter.

If there was ever a spring when the argument ought to be strong in favor of setting out a wood lot it is the present one, following a winter season when the very sight of soft coal is enough to give the householder who has been buying it and the good wife who has been using it and cleaning up after it a veritable nightmare. Medium sized wood lots set ten or a dozen years ago are now giving their owners a most refreshing substitute for this nastiest of fuels.

They have found out in experiments conducted in Rothamstead, England, on the royal agricultural farms that if soil is heated to a temperature of 212 degrees F. it will kill certain forms of destructive amoebic life and make it possible for the soil to yield double what it has been wont to do. This is good news, but just how the fellow who cannot now, as things are, buy a new range for his wife or a spring bonnet, make necessary fence repairs or repair the hog house or dairy barn can install and operate a steam heating plant to parboil the amoebae on his many acres we have not been quite able to figure out.

If one is short of seed potatoes it will be all right to use the small tubers, but it is not a good plan to follow this practice year after year. The best seed, if one can choose, is medium sized and preferably selected from a patch in which the average yield was large.

Several apple trees on the writer's ranch have been badly pestered with the green aphides for some years past. This spring he plans to spray with a solution of lime sulphur just as the buds of the trees are swelling, and this will wind up a whole lot of the aphids. Those that survive this will receive an early dose of "black leaf."

Provided he is broken to it early enough, there seems to be no method of giving the herd bull the exercise he needs that is as simple and satisfactory as that of working a tread power. Two or three hours of such exercise a day will take the devilment out of him, keep him courteous and quiet and result in a decided increase in vigor of his offspring.

The gradual and steady advance in land values is quite accurately shown in the rapid increase in the rental value of farm lands. In one locality with which the writer is acquainted a renter has agreed to pay $8 per acre rental for a farm of eighty acres which he rented two years ago for $5 per acre and which six years ago he could doubtless have rented for $3.

"Sterilization" is a term about which we hear much these days. Its meaning is known to many, yet there may be some readers who have not a definite idea of what the process is. Briefly, a liquid or substance is said to be sterilized when it has been heated for a stated length of time at a temperature of 180 degrees or more. This heating process kills all bacterial or other life —typhoid or tubercular germs in milk or water, trichinae in pork and the like.

The piling of manure in small lots as it is hauled afield may have some points in its favor, but from the standpoint of realizing the largest possible good from the fertilizing elements contained it is plainly a poorer method than scattering from the spreader. Handled in this way, the soluble portion of fertilizers that the manure contains soak at once into the soil, while if the manure is put in piles there is a loss by chemical changes and the escape of gases.

Where the dairyman can receive as much from the sale of his cream as from the sale of his milk to a cheese factory there should be no hesitation as to which course he should follow. The sale of the cream leaves the skim milk at home, and it is this that contains most of those elements the removal of which from the farm means a depletion of soil fertility. On the contrary, the cream sold contains but a very small portion of these elements.

Some one contends that a balky horse can be distinguished from the fact that the tips of its ears will point inward The writer had a balky horse once, but usually had his hands so full getting the brute to go that he entirely overlooked this turn of the ears. However, on reflection we do believe the critter's ears did sort o' turn inward.

Uniform kindness in the treatment of horses enables the driver to depend upon them in all sorts of ways that save time and lessen labor. This is especially noticeable in harnessing and unharnessing. The driver accustomed to a team which has his confidence will save hours every month, which under opposite conditions would be wasted.

When you are inclined to poke fun at an Oregonian because of the long rainy season and the droughty summers he gets some comfort out of the fact that he is not afflicted zards, 30 degrees below zero spells, cyclones and the like, and he has other bird company during the winter months besides crows, sparrows and bluejays.

For the soil depletion that is wrought on farms let out by stingy landlords to careless tenants on the yearly rental system both parties to the contract and the system itself are jointly responsible. With human nature as it is a farm is bound to run downhill if it is leased a year at a time, for the landlord will skin the tenant and the tenant will skin the land.

When the farmer who owns from a quarter to a half section farm has put his land free from incumbrance, has a nice fat bank account and moves to town he should be the last man in the world to put up a holler because he has to bear his fair share of the taxes that are imposed to meet the cost of the extra privileges that he enjoys. In all too many cases, however, his complaint is the longest and loudest.

It is a pretty good idea to take ten or fifteen minutes after your new fire insurance policy is made out to look it over carefully. A farmer we read of some time ago failed to do this and did not find out until after his barn was struck by lightning and destroyed by the fire which it set that his insurance policy forbade the installation of a feed cooker in the barn. He had violated one of its express provisions and couldn't recover a cent.

One can have early cucumbers in the following manner: Thrust the seed into pieces of sod and set these in the hotbed or in a box or pot in a sunny window. Water as needed, and when the danger of frost is over the soil pieces containing the roots of the plants may be put in their permanent place. The plants will have such a start that they will outgrow the bugs and give an early return of crisp cukes for the table.

One of the delights, as the writer looks at it, in connection with life in the west is the practically universal use of wood instead of coal for cooking and heating purposes. This getting rid of the infernal dirt and soot from the use of bituminous coal is a most refreshing change, while the odor of the burning pine or fir wood is fragrant compared to the sulphurous fumes let loose in the combustion of soft coal.

There is no virtue of any sort whatever in doing rough and dirty work without gloves when one can get just as much work out of the way and wear them. The human hide may be cheaper than buckskin or pigskin, but after a fellow has been at dirty and rough work about so long his hands have more the appearance of the paws of some wild beast. Considering the portion of the income they earn, a fellow's hands would seem to merit a little better protection and grooming.

A method of preserving fresh cut corn without the aid of a silo is followed by some farmers in northwestern Minnesota with considerable success. Briefly the method followed is to stack the corn as fast as cut in such a way as to leave the butts of the stalks exposed and make the pile of stalks as nearly air tight as possible. The top of the stack is protected by a canvas cover while feeding and does not seem to be damaged by freezing any more than ensilage in a silo. The cost per ton of putting corn up this way is said to be less than half that of converting it into ensilage, and for the man who cannot afford a silo and has not roots which would furnish a succulent ration during the winter season the method would seem to be worth trying.

SOME HOG FEEDING POINTERS.

In bulletin No. 123, issued within a few weeks by the Nebraska experiment station, the results are given of hog feeding experiments extending over several years. While some eight or ten different combinations of corn and alfalfa were tried, the most profitable consisted of corn and alfalfa hay fed from a rack. Nearly as good as this from the standpoint of cheap pork production was nine parts corn and one part chopped alfalfa hay and nine parts corn and one part alfalfa meal. In every case the corn fed was ground, and all feeds were moistened in the trough before being eaten. Interesting single facts brought out were that one bunch of hogs fed a ration of half corn and half alfalfa gained but fifty-five pounds in three months, while another bunch weighing the same at the start and fed nine parts corn and one part alfalfa gained 148 each on the average. Another important fact demonstrated was that the cost of feed to produce a 225 pound hog was $3.35 per hundred pounds, while keeping the hog until it weighed 325 pounds increased the cost per hundred pounds of gain to $3.57.

GIVE IT A TRIAL.

To any reader of these notes who would like to have a part in this "back to the land movement" and who now has a lucrative position or other employment we would suggest the putting of this longing to the test on a small scale where possible before giving up the salary job. This may be done in a good many instances by renting a half acre or so and putting it in to onions, cabbages or beets, if one is near a beet factory. Doing a good share of the work in connection with the raising of such a crop would enable one to know whether the desire to be near the soil was a passing fancy or an abiding like for the great outdoors and labor with and on the soil. If one will try out such an experiment as this and still hankers for the agricultural or horticultural life it would seem to be pretty safe to make the trial. At least the one who had the preliminary experience suggested would hardly be taken unawares in the experiences which would come to him.

A COMMON MISTAKE.

The writer is personally acquainted with instances not a few where those investing in a new section of the country have bitten off more than they could chew financially. That is, they have been so anxious to tie up so much land at the start for the purpose of making as much as possible on their investment that they have been desperately pinched and handicapped in all their inter operations, including repairs and improvement, equipment and the meeting of simple running expenses. If one expects to sell a property a few weeks or months after the time of buying the statements made would not apply in so large a degree, but where there is likelihood that one may keep possession a year or more it is very necessary that the precaution suggested should be heeded. Doing so will not only make it possible to avoid operating at a great disadvantage, but perchance the ultimate loss of all that one may have invested.

SURE OF ONE THING.

Will the coming season be wet or dry? Absolutely no one can tell more than forty-eight hours ahead notwithstanding all the high sounding and pompous claims of long distance weather prophets, who when it comes down to brass tacks know no more about the future of weather conditions than a codfish does 'bout Caesar. But there is one thing that the farmer does know from his own experience or that of others—namely, that if the season should be dry, as the past two or three have been, his chances of getting even a fair crop will be greatly increased if he gives the soil thorough and careful preparation before the seed is sown or planted. There is no moonshine or monkey business about this, and it doesn't depend upon planetary conjunctions, sun spots or anything else.

The fellow who has had a fine bunch of hogs wiped out by cholera naturally wonder how soon it will be safe for him to go to raising hogs again. If the premises have been very thoroughly cleansed and renovated this might be attempted within a comparatively short time. Where such precautions have not been taken hogs have been known to contract the disease when introduced into infected quarters a year later and in rarer cases two or three years. If one wishes to continue in the hog business after a dose of the cholera it is better to completely disinfect the old pens and remove to a new location or build new pens entirely.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON

VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 1912 NUMBER 14

Co. Commissioners Meet

March 28th, and 29th, Transacted Considerable Important Business, Also ordered Bond Resolutions Published

March 28th, 1912

Pursuant to agreement of all the members, the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, Minnesota, met in special session at the office of the County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls, Minn. at 10:00 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of considering the matter of the issuance of certain Pennington County Drainage Bonds and such further business as may legally come before said Board.

Meeting called to order by the Chairman at 10:00 o'clock A. M.

Members present, Aubol, Wold, Hedeen, Larson, Shaw.

Members absent, None.

The following amended proposals to purchase Pennington County Drainage Bonds was submitted by C. L. Dobner of Thief River Falls, Minn.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Gentlemen:—

For the $112,500.00 Pennington County Ditch Bonds to be issued during 1912 and payable over a series of years, I will pay you par and accrued interest and a premium of $562.50, bonds to bear interest at 5½ per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, at the Merchants Loan & Trust Co. at the City of Chicago, Illinois.

This bid is made subject to the furnishing me with the numbers of the ditches to be bonded and the full description as to when the bonds will be payable.

Furthermore this bid is made subject to you furnishing me with certified copies of all proceedings relative to the issuance of the above mentioned bonds, and subject to the approval of my attorneys as to the legality of the issue.

Any misrepresention made by the County Auditor of Pennington County relative to the financial condition of said County will render this bid null and void.

I agree to furnish blank bonds ready for signature, free of charge and I further agree to assume all fees of my attorneys in connection with the approval of the aforesaid bonds.

This bid is subject to the delivery of said bonds on or before the first day of July 1912; at the office of the Merchants Loan & Trust Co. Chicago, Illinois.

Respectfully submitted.
Dated this 28th. day of March, 1912.
C. L. Dobner.

We hereby accept the above bid this 28th day of March A. D. 1912.

A. H. Fasel Chaiman County
County Auditor Board.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Gentlemen:—

For the $33,000.00 Pennington County Ditch Bonds to be issued during the year 1912 and payable over a series of years, I will pay you par and accrued interest and a premium of $165.00 bonds to bear interest at 5½ per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, at the Merchants Loan & Trust Co. at the City of Chicago, Illinois:

This bid is subject to you furnishing me with the numbers of the ditches to be bonded and a full description as to when the bonds will be payable.

Furthermore this bid is made subject to you furnishing me with certified copies of all proceedings relative to the issuance of the above mentioned bonds, and subject to the approval of my attorneys as to the legality of the issue.

Any misrepresentation made by the County Auditor of Pennington County relative to the financial condition of said County, will render this bid null and void.

I agree to furnish bonds ready for signature, free of charge, and I further agree to assume all fees of my attorneys in connection with the approval of the aforesaid bonds

This bid is subject to the delivery of said bonds on or before the first day of July 1912, at the office of the Merchants Loan & Trust Co Chicago, Illinois

Respectfully submitted.
Dated this 28th day of March 1912
C. L. Dobner

We hereby accept the above bid this 28th day of March A. D. 1912.

Board of County Commissioners,
Pennington County, Minn.
Attest: By Ed. A. Aubol
A. H. Fasel, Chairman County
County Auditor. Board

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Aubol who moved its adoption duly seconded by Commissioner Larson;

Resolved, That the bids of C. L. Dobner of Thief River Falls, Minn. for the issue of $145,500.00 Drainage Bonds be and the same are hereby accepted, and the proper officers are hereby instructed to execute the necessary papers to secure the bonds.

Whereupon the resolution was duly declared adopted.

Bond Resolutions.

Commissioner Daniel Shaw offered the following preamble and resolutions and moved their adoption:

Whereas, in pursuance of, and in full compliance with, the general laws of the state of Minnesota applicable thereto, such steps have been duly and legally taken that those certain public drainage ditches known as Judicial Ditch No. 18 and County Ditches No. 32, 41, 43, 44, 45 and 49 have been duly located and established within this county of Pennington in the State of Minnesota, and in such relation thereto as to effect lands therein within the terms of the legislative acts applicable thereto, it has been definately ascertained and determined, in accordance with the provisions of the law applicable thereto, that the expense incurred, and to be incurred in locating, establishing and constructing said ditches respectively within this County of Pennington, exceeds the following sums and amounts, to-wit: In case of Judicial Ditch No. 18 the sum of Forty-eight Thousand ($48000.00) Dollars: in the case of County Ditch No. 32, Seventeen Thousand ($17000.00) Dollars; in the case of County Ditch No. 41, Eleven Thousand ($11000.00) Dollars; in the case of County Ditch No. 43, Ten Thousand Five Hundred ($10500) Dollars; in the case of County Ditch No. 44, Thirteen Thousand ($13000.00) Dollars, in the case of County Ditch No. 45, Two Thousand ($2000.00) Dollars and in the case of County Ditch No. 49 Eleven Thousand ($11000.00) Dollars, and whereas it is necessary that the county of Pennington issue its bond under and by virtue of the authority granted to said County by Chapter 230 of the Laws of 1905, and acts amendatory thereof, and chapter 278 of the General Laws of said State for 1911, in the aggregate sum of One hundred twelve thousand five hundred ($112500.00) Dollars, for the purpose of paying the expenses aforesaid for each of said ditches respectively.

Now, Therefore Be It Resolved, by the County Board of the County of Pennington in the State of Minnesota, that the sum of One hundred twelve thousand five hundred ($112500.00) Dollars is necessary to defray the expense incurred and to be incurred, in locating, constructing and establishing said drainage ditches within and for this County.

DRAINAGE DITCH BOND
Know All Men By These Presents,

That Pennington County, in the State of Minnesota, acknowledges itself indebted, and for value received, promises to pay the bearer the sum of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS lawful money of the United States of America, on the 1st day of February, 19—, at the office of the Merchants Loan & Trust Company in the City of Chicago, Illinois, with interest thereon from date until paid at the rate of Five and ½ (5½%) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of August and February of each year, at the same place, upon presentation and surrender of the annexed coupons as they severally become due.

This bond is issued by the County Board of the County of Pennington, in the State of Minnesota, for the purpose of defraying and is for an amount necessary to defray in part the expenses incurred in locating, constructing and establishing a Judicial Ditch, within said County or in such relation thereto as to effect lands therein within the provisions of the law applicable thereto, and is issued by authority of, and in strict accordance with, the provisions of Chapter 230 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year 1905, as amended and modified by Chapter 469 of the General Laws of said State for the year 1909 and other acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 278 of the General Laws of said State for the year 1911.

(In the bonds issued for said County drainage ditches No. 32, County Drainage Ditches Nos. 41 and 43, County Drainage Ditch No. 44, County drainage Ditch No. 45, County Drainage Ditch No. 49 the foregoing paragraph shall read as follows:)

"This bond is issued by the County Board of the County of Pennington in the State of Minnesota, for the purpose of defraying, and is for an amount necessary to defray in part the expenses incurred in locating, constructing and establishing a County Drainage Ditch wholly within said County, and is issued by authority of and in strict accordance with, the provisions of Chapter 230 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year 1905, as amended by Chapter 469 of the General Laws of said State for the year 1909, and other acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto and under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 278 of the General Laws of said State for the year 1911."

IT IS FURTHER CERTIFIED AND RECITED THAT all acts, conditions and things required by the laws and constitution of the State of Minnesota, to be done precedent to and in the issuance of this bond, have been properly done, have happened and been performed in regular and due form and time as required by law; that the ditch on account of which this bond is issued is a public ditch duly and legally located and established for the promotion of the health, convenience and generl welfare of the public and that the total indebtedness of said County, including this bond, does not exceed any statutory or constitutional limitation.

THE FAITH, CREDIT AND RESOURCES of the County of Pennington are hereby irrevocably pledged for the punctual payment of the principal and interest of this bond at maturity.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, The County of Pennington, Minnesota, by its County Board, has caused this bond to be signed, sealed and recorded by its County Auditor, and countersigned by its County Treasurer, this 2nd day of February 1912.

LOST THE CASE

Two Important Decisions Were Rendered This Morning.

Two important land office decisions were made today in both of which the contestants for valuable land near Thief River Falls, lost out. The cases were those of James Lee vs. Peter A. Skjaping, and John Lee vs. Peter Olson. The defendents located on two valuable quarters of land two miles from Thief River Falls, in February, on land which was opened for settlement April 15th, and could be filed upon May 15th. They made improvements and were the first to file. The Lee brothers went on the land shortly after midnight the morning of April 15th, and claimed better improvements, etc. The ruling however, was in favor of the first men to locate, and who had evidently, in the opinion of officials, made the best improvements. E. O. Hagen represented Skjaping and Olson.

The Castle Square Entertainers.

In the Castle Square entertainers we are able to offer a first-class quartette of popular entertainers who have proved themselves to be one of the most popular companies we have ever booked. It is doubtful if another organization of four people can be found in the Lyceum field with such versatility and excellence. Their program is a decided novelty. In fact, the novelties and humor the "Castles" have injected into their program have assisted them materially in building their present reputation. The company comprises a first-class popular male quartette, a horn quartette, a string quartette, two pianists, an instrumental soloist, a bass soloist, a tenor soloist and a dialect monologist. They are therefore prepared to give a program of unusual variety and interest.

Mr. Le Roy Hulbert, tenor, is a versatile musician and entertainer, playing mandolin, banjo, cornet, concert horn, octavin, and piano. His burlesque on the piano, also his imitations on that instrument, create an instantaneous hit.

Mr. J. E. Sturgis, second tenor and vocal soloist, plays clarionet, violin and concert horn. His voice is of exceptional quality.

Mr. Henri A. Keates, baritone and violin soloist, also pianist of marked ability, is a musician of rare qualities and versatility, also playing cello, concert horn and other instruments.

A. A. Kurtz, bass soloist and violinist, possesses a phenomenal voice which he uses with artistic effect, both in solos and in quartette numbers.

This is the 5th number of the Lyceum course and will appear at the Auditorium April 4th.

Make Big Change.

Some time ago the Kiewel Brewing company completed the erection of a very comodious cold storage near the Great Northern depot Trygve Randers, Auditor for the company was in the city the first of the week and stated that they will put in a bookkeeper also an agent. Peter White who has been with the company for some time will make this city his headquarters and will travel out of this city

Earl Fox, who will be the bookkeeper, was formerly employed by the Great Northern at Crookston and comes well recommended

RICH GAS FLOW

New Well in Santa Fe Field, Near Ardmore, Discharges 22,000,000 Feet Every 24 Hours.

No doubt a large number of people of this city are greatly interested in the development of oil in the vicinity of Ardmore, Oklahoma, as they have taken shares in a reserve in that county. Many are in doubt that it is a good investment, but according to the Daily Oklahoma there is nothing to be in doubt about. This rich well was brought in within a distance of two miles from the tract of land which Messrs Woolsey & McClennan are selling. Call on the gentlemen at the Evelyn Hotel and have them explain things to you.

Ardmore, Oklahoma March 27.—Special: What is said to be the greatest gas well in Oklahoma was brought in yesterday in the Santa Fe field adjoining Oil City and was tested. It produces twenty two millions of feet of oil every twenty four hours and is a stronger well than that brought in by Dings and Ledbetter a year ago in the same field by seven millions of feet.

The well is the property of the Idaho Oil and Gas Company. This company is composed of capitalists in Idaho and Dr. F. W. Skillern of this city.

W. M. Babcock brought a new oil well in yesterday in the same field. Mr. Babcock is from the south Texas fields. He said his well had the appearance of being a good one and that a test would be made this week.—The Daily Oklahoma.

March 23rd, 1912.

Mr. R. J. Bell,
Oklahoma City, Okla.

Dear Sir:—

I have been asked to give what information I am in possession of concerning the Wheeler Oil Field.

The Wheeler Field is located from 15 to 20 miles west of Ardmone Oklahoma. The greatest development that has been done in this field has been done by the Santa Fe. Railway Co.,—which company has been rather secretive in its methods, giving just as little information as possible to the public. The company has expended in its development of this field, considerably more than a half million dollars. This development has been in progress for the past four years. More than one hundred wells have been drilled, and nearly all of them have been productive of results. Oil and gas both are found, and the best evidence of the character oil from the wells, which is pretty good proof that this company intends to provide a means of transportation for the oil to market.

I have tried to be as conservative as possible in this statement; and believe that an investigation of the field will prove that my statments are ultra-conservative.

Yours truly,
Lee Cruce,
Gov. of Oklahoma

Nothing was left undone to make this banquet the greatest affair of the season and it certainly was greatly appreciated by all who attended. The committee consisting of W. J. Brown, F. J. Stebbins, A. M. Arpin, Dr. G. A. Penney, Dr. O. F. Mellby, and Oscar Sponheim were tireless, in their efforts to make this the greatest affair of the season, which they certainly did. They deserve great credit for the royal way in which they entertained, not only the home members but the outsiders who expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the banquet.

Thief River Falls people should be proud of having such a progresssive organization of this kind in this city, as they will no doubt believe in the improvement of the roads leading into the city. This will not only benefit the city people but will be of great assistance to the many farmers who make this their market place.

Girls Beware!

Some of you young girls want to be more careful how you are out on the streets all hours of the evening unprotected. I notice some of you are meeting the trains and your chief aim is to flirt with any strange man who comes along. You may think it is a smart thing to do but remember you are putting yourselves in a dangerous position. Some of you may have to pay a high price for your foolishness.

Fathers and mothers ought to look after their daughters to see where they are and who their company is.

Stockholm Paper Comments on Appointment of New Minister to the United States—Committee Appeals to Norwegians to Pay Amundsen's South Pole Expenses—Danish Navy Is Presented With Biplane.

NORWAY.

One would surmise that it would cost a great deal more than $18,000 to discover the South pole, but such seems to be the case. It is announced that Roald Amundsen's debts on account of his South Polar expedition amount to about $18,000. A special committee has now been appointed in Christiania and its members have sent out an appeal to Norwegians to subscribe this amount so as to be able to cable Amundsen at Hobart that his debts have been paid. It is understood that a little later on a national subscription for the benefit of the explorer will be started in Norway.

The old gentleman has seen some rough days and has lived under nine different kings.

The expedition will be equipped from Copenhagen and will start out June 1. A suitable steamer has been secured and its name is "Godthaab" (Good Hope). From Stockholm comes word that W. A. F. Ekengren, secretary and charge d'affaires to the Swedish legation at Washington, D. A Stockholm paper makes the following comment: "It can truly be said that Sweden has made a singularly happy choice in this appointment. During the comparatively short time that he has been in the diplomatic service he has possessed ability and tact, characteristic of the diplomat, and he stands high in diplomatic circles in Washington. Wilhelm August Ferdinand Ekengren was born in 1861 and is the oldest son of V. A. Ekengren of Stockholm. For a number of years he was connected with the Swedish consulate in New York and thereupon served in the Swedish foreign department for four years. He was also located in China for some years, where he was an agent for the Swedish government on an exceedingly important matter. About six years ago he was appointed secretary to the Swedish legation at Washington and last fall when Count Ehrensvard resigned as minister in Washington, Herr Ekengren was appointed Sweden's charge d'affaires in the American capital. A DAMAGING REPORT OF FOREIGN MISSIONS Present Teaching of Missions Merely Morals—Not Christ.

Religion Has Been Cut Out and Education Substituted—$30,000,000 Multiplied a Thousand Times Would Accomplish Little Respecting the Conversion of the World—Nothing Short of Christ's Kingdom Can Do It.

PASTOR RUSSELL

New York, March 31.—The International Bible Students Association secured the Hippodrome in which to hear the Report of its Committee on Foreign Missions Investigation. The spacious auditorium was crowded. Prof. F. H. Robison, Secretary of the Committee, announced that the Report had been submitted to the Association and was in the printer's hands, to appear in pamphlet form illustrated at the small price of five cents per copy, postpaid—free to the poor. The conclusion of the Report is in the nature of a Summary, which he read. Some of its salient points are:—

Christianizing endeavors seem pretty generally to have ceased! Present missionary endeavors are almost exclusively along the line of secular education and medical aid.

There is less need of Academic and Collegiate education, such as the missionaries forward, than for Common Schooling.

The Orientals are often perplexed at the Missionary competition and opposition between Christian denominations.

Orientals are not heathen-savages, but their educated classes include splendid specimens of noble manhood, the moral and intellectual peers of Europeans and Americans.

The very suggestion of the world's conversion is ridiculous to the peoples of the East—including the Missionaries. * * * The interest on $30,000,000, or the principal multiplied a thousand times, would accomplish little except along the lines of secular education—nothing as respects the world's conversion.

Pastor Russell's Hippodrome Address.

Text: Ask of Me and I will give Thee the heathen for an inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth.—Ps. viii, 2.

This text has been before the Pastor's mind continually during his world's tour.

(1) Why call the people of India, China and Japan heathens, since they are not barbarians but civilized? We follow the Bible, which uses the word heathen, Gentiles and nations interchangeably, and applies these terms to all except the Jewish nation and the Christian Church. The reason for this is that only Israel spiritual and Israel natural have thus far entered into covenant relationship with God.

The Pastor's second question was, To what extent is our Western civilization superior to that of the East?

He admitted that much could be said on both sides; that in some respects each had superiority over the other. Now, however, the people of the East are tacitly admitting the superiority of the West by gradually adopting our standards for schools, government, etc.

The Pastor's third question was:—

To What Extent Is Christian Civilization Blessing the World?

He considered it beyond question that a blessing had come to the world through the teachings of Jesus and the Apostles—to all who accept the Gospel message in truth and sincerity. These enjoy intelligently a peace of God such as others cannot know.

But aside from these footstep followers of Jesus, the Pastor queried whether the remainder of mankind under Christian civilization were happier than those under heathen religions, such as Buddhism. What he had seen of India, China and Japan led him to believe that the 700,000,000 of these lands are more contented, more happy than are the peoples of Europe and America, even though they possess little of the wealth of the world.

What Is the Reason For This?

Pastor Russell's answer is, It is because the teachings of Jesus and the Apostles, in line with the teachings of Moses and the Prophets, the teaching of human equality, begets a love of liberty and a contention for it. They get enough from Christ's teachings to arouse and awaken them, but not enough to sanctify them. This was the intimation of the Great Teacher, "Think not that I am come to send peace upon the earth; I tell you, Nay, but a sword."—Matthew x, 34.

"I Will Give Thee the Heathen."

At the beginning of this Age our Redeemer prayed for the Church, saying, "I pray not for the world (the heathen), but for those whom Thou hast given Me, that they may all be one." It has required this entire Age to find this elect company, and they will be made one by the glorious change of the First Resurrection.

Then will come the time when Jesus will pray for the world, as intimated in our text, and then the world will be given to Him. Since the sacrifice of Himself eighteen centuries ago, He has been gathering His Church, His Bride, to be His joint-heir in the Kingdom, which, according to Bible prophecy, will soon be established for the blessing of the world.—Acts iii, 19-21.

A hog can be starved to eat almost anything, but this is poor economy, for it retards development.

The egg trust, whatever that may signify, has had some pretty hard licks of late from the cackling Biddies of the country.

It is a fact that the pigs of large litters are usually more uniform in size and fatten more quickly than those of small litters. Here is where the good breeding sow comes in.

Ontario, Ore., is the center of a district which produces much alfalfa seed, 250,000 pounds of which are said to have been shipped to eastern markets within the past three or four months.

The revival of the good old custom of co-operative killing of beef and sheep among neighbors would solve one of the causes of the high cost of living, so far as farmers are concerned.

The increased use of aluminium in utensils and in other forms is shown in the growth in the output of the metal from less than 100,000 pounds in 1883 to more than 50,000,000 pounds in 1911.

The repulsive looking scaly legs in chickens can be improved in appearance a whole lot by rubbing them at intervals of a few days with a salve made of equal parts of lard, sulphur and kerosene.

A farmer living near Polo, Ill., has a cow that gave birth to a calf the other day having two heads with eyes and mouth perfect and identical and with two backbones running the entire length of the body.

It should be mighty small consolation for the man whose boys or girls are going wrong that he has stowed away in the bureau drawer or writing desk blue or red ribbons won on blooded stock at the county or district fair.

It will be in mighty good taste for the fellow who trusts to luck and doesn't test his seed corn this spring in some accurate way to cuss providence or the weather next November when he is husking fifteen or twenty bushels per acre.

The manure spreader should be the most generally used tool on the farm, but this is no reason why it should be left unprotected in the storms and wintered in the snow bank. A shed for the spreader would be the best economy.

Thoroughbred boys and girls should stay or be kept at home nights unless there is an excellent reason why they should be somewhere else. They are at least entitled to the same care in this regard that the pure bred domestic animals receive.

Midstate brewers (or, more correctly, the National Brewers' association) are said to have secured control of the bulk of the hop growing business in western Oregon. The high prices of a year ago seem to have been more than the brewers were willing to stand for.

Lots of folks, both men and women, get into the miserable habit of whining and complaining a good deal over little troubles or annoyances, overlooking the while blessings that should obscure these little troubles completely were a right standard of values employed. It is just as easy to cultivate the habit of looking on the bright side as looking on the dark and a whole lot more enjoyable for the folks one has to live with.

The mere fact that many men and women who were denied the privileges of an education in their youth have still made a success of life should not be used as an argument by the boy or girl of today for neglecting opportunities for schooling that may be had free of cost. One cannot but wonder in the case of these so called self made people how much more they might have achieved along desirable lines had they been able to have such advantages as are open to practically everybody today.

A great service might be performed by the merchants of many a town for the womenfolk living in the rural community tributary to them if they or some other organization in the town would provide comfort and rest rooms which the former could use on their visits to town. In all too many towns there is no place whatever, aside from store or shop, where the farmer's wife or daughter can go while waiting for her husband or father. This would be a thoughtful provision for townfolk to make and would be a courtesy that would be greatly appreciated.

A pug nosed, bowlegged canine, with a gait like a hippopotamus, that the writer saw the other day had just been bought for $600. His pedigree was the only thing that saved his face, for not one person in ten would have taken him as a gift and given him feed and shelter.

Many people would be greatly benefited if they would throw their medicine bottles into the back alley and substitute for tonics and what not plenty of fresh, pure air, breathed deeply, sufficient sleep and rest and proper exercise, with a generous allowance of pure water and rich milk.

It is not strange that the Florida, Mississippi or California winter appeals strongly to persons who have reached sixty and whose blood is thinner and flows a good deal slower than in days gone by. With means at their disposal they are perfectly justified in leaving the latitude of blizzards and 30 below zero weather.

The jackknife test for determining the vitality of seed corn may be all right some seasons, but the fellow who relies on it entirely this season in view of the generally poor condition of the seed will likely have quite a bit of time on his hands next husking time to whittle sticks or most any old thing else with this same jackknife.

That dairying is well worth while, even out in the drier country, is indicated in the report of a Ward county (N. D.) farmer, who has fed and clothed a family of thirteen children on the income from seven dairy cows and who claims he has made more profit off this little dairy herd than many of his neighbors have growing grain on two sections of land.

Those having horses they intend to ship to Canadian markets will save themselves both expense and delay in shipment by having the horses inspected by the proper veterinary authority before putting them aboard cars. In case the inspection is not made in this way they will have to be taken from the car at the international line and the job done there.

Farm fertilizers are a very desirable byproduct of dairy operations, but cows should not be kept as manure producers alone when their milk is not meeting their board bill. Weed these no accounts out by the use of the Babcock test and get in place of them cows that will give enough milk to pay for their feed and leave a margin of profit, besides the manure byproduct.

The value of Alaska's mineral production for 1911 is estimated at $20,370,000. Of this amount $17,150,000 was of gold. This total takes no account of timber, fish, furs or other products. In view of the marvelous wealth of this possession it is interesting to recall that when Seward purchased Alaska from Russia in 1867 at $7,200,000 he was considered pretty near loony.

A mighty nice illustration of a common failure to adapt means to ends is noticed in the case of the farmer who sells prime hogs for as low as $4.50 to $5 and then goes to the meat market and shells out from 20 to 22 cents a pound for bacon, from 18 to 20 cents for ham, 15 cents for pork chops and 15 cents a pound for lard. And there have never been finer hams and bacons than those our grandfathers used to smoke.

"Baby beef" is a term that is properly applied to the carcass of a calf that is kept fat and growing from birth and marketed at about eighteen months old. Not only is such beef the finest that can be produced—juicy and tender—but it is coming to be pretty well recognized among cattlemen that it is also the most profitable beef that can be produced where feeding and market conditions are at all favorable. With the advent of the silo in the corn belt to take the place of summer pasture the conditions are just right to raise such beef to advantage.

States which are doing much along the line of horse breeding have within the past few years passed laws which require that stallions which are to be used as sires shall not only be examined and pronounced clean and sound from the standpoint of physical health, but that a certificate showing that they are pure bred and properly registered shall be displayed near the stalls in which they are kept. This is merely a safeguard that every horse raiser who uses them is entitled to. These same laws also provide that where a grade sire is used this fact shall also be plainly stated on a poster placed in his stall, while a certificate of sound health and physical condition is required, the same as with registered horses.

The chestnut blight, which is said to have been introduced into America in chestnuts imported from Japan, is fast killing chestnut trees in all directions from New York city, where it first got a foothold. The blight is caused by a fungus that gets under the bark in places where there is a cut or break. The tree is girdled under the bark, and often the damage is not detected until the tree is nearly dead. Owing to the way in which the blight works, there is no spray which can reach it. Experts in the federal agricultural department who have been waging a campaign against the pest recommend the felling and burning of all chestnut trees within a zone of twenty miles about the affected area as the only method which will be adequate to hold it in check.

A Philadelphia surgeon has lately discovered that the inside membrane of hens' eggs can be successfully used as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations. The new skin formed by this method is finer than the old, but strong and healthy.

For folks who hibernate in latitudes where the mercury is likely to slip down to 20 or 30 below zero there is absolutely no investment that gives more generous or immediate returns than that put into a thirty-five cent soapstone. In the comfort which it yields it pays for itself every night it is used.

It is an interesting fact shown in immigration statistics that, while the vast majority of Italians who emigrate from their native land to the western world come to the United States, just as large a per cent of the Spanish peasants go to South American countries. During the past year 230,000 people left Spain, 8,000 of these arriving in Buenos Aires in a single fortnight.

That this "watermelon stealin'" business is getting to be serious is shown in the discussion of the subject by a speaker before the recent meeting of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association held in St. Louis. Some one has suggested giving each melon a paper jacket, which would prevent the melons from being exposed to view and thus reduce the temptation to steal them.

If you would live long drink generous amounts of sour milk or buttermilk. Scientists have discovered that the family of bacteria that produce lactic acid—that is, cause the souring process in milk—have the power to destroy or neutralize another group of germs that are said to be responsible for the imperfect digestion of food in the intestines, which in turn is said to be the chief cause of old age decline.

Illinois produced last year more corn than any other state in the Union, but the largest average yield per acre—38.3 bushels—was grown in Connecticut, not usually considered in the list of corn producing states at all. It is evident that the farmers of those rocky little New England homesteads are on to some secrets of corn raising that the owners of the big farms of the central western states would do well to get next to.

Baguio, in the Philippine Islands, is said to be the wettest place in all the territory at present under the control of the United States. Meteorological records kept there show that in four days of last July 88.14 inches of water fell, thirty-four inches of this enormous amount falling in a period of twenty-four hours. This place is the health resort of the island, and the "water" cure is said to be a favorite method of treatment.

Surveys are being made for a scenic highway around Crater lake, in southern Oregon, which is conceded to be one of the world's wonder spots, but which as yet has been visited by comparatively few people on account of its inaccessibility. A proposed automobile road from Medford, a station on the main line of the railroad, some sixty miles away, and the building of the scenic drive around the lake will afford to lovers of the beautiful in nature an opportunity of viewing one of her masterpieces.

Between meridians 100 degrees and 120 degrees, which includes practically all of the dry country of the western half of the United States, it is estimated that there are 200,000,000 acres of fertile land capable of producing a crop of twenty bushels per acre of winter wheat every other year. This means that if one-third of this vast area were producing on the above basis the increase in the country's wheat crop as a result would be 1,000,000,000 bushels yearly, which is a good deal more wheat than the country has ever produced in a single crop.

Folks who are paying 30 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of coffee wonder why there was not a drop in price when the import tariff tax was removed some time ago. The reason there was not is due to the fact that the Brazilian coffee trust, backed by the government, slapped on an export duty equal to our import tax which had just been removed. As a still further aid in maintaining prices the output of coffee is so regulated that in times of big crops enough of the surplus is removed from trade channels so that the price can be kept up on the remainder.

A reader of this department who lives at Reed City, Mich., in a recent letter calls attention to the interesting fact that as a result of investigations which have been carried on it is now contended that fruit raising can be carried on in Michigan over a much wider area than was formerly supposed. In support of this statement our correspondent calls attention to the fact of the clearing of one 3,000 acre tract not far from where he lives, all of which is to be set to fruit trees as soon as cleared. He also speaks in high terms of a fruit and land show that was held a short time since in Grand Rapids, where choice fruit put up in the western box fashion was on display. In this connection it may be added the Michigan fruit grower has a distinct advantage over his western competitor—namely, nearness to good markets. When he will take as much pains in the [illegible] spraying of his trees and in the packing of his fruit he will receive correspondingly satisfactory prices for his stuff.

THE FORMALIN TREATMENT.

Within a short time it will be necessary to plant the early potatoes. If a nice smooth crop is desired at digging time the seed should be disinfected before planting. This may be done by adding half a pint of 40 per cent formalin (also called formaldehyde) to fifteen gallons of water in a medium sized barrel and suspending in this in a gunny sack for a period of about two hours the potatoes intended for seed. After soaking the desired length of time the sack should be suspended above the barrel and the solution allowed to drain back in. When the potatoes have dried for a short time they should be cut and planted. The amount of the disinfecting solution mentioned should be sufficient for the treatment of from twenty to twenty-five bushels of seed. For the benefit of those who may not be acquainted with the fact it may be said a disinfecting of the seed in the manner just described will not mean scab free potatoes unless the land on which the seed is planted is free from scab spores. This means that a patch of land that produced scabby potatoes last season should be put to some crop other than potatoes, while the latter should be put on new ground or that which has grown some other crop than potatoes for the past year or two. Treating seed oats with the formalin solution will also prevent smut. This is best done by spreading the seed out on the granary floor and applying the solution with a sprinkler. The oats should then be shoveled over and a second application given and shoveled over again. The aim should be to have each kernel of grain moist, but not wet. The seed grain should be treated the day before using and the pile covered with a canvas or gunny sacking for the night. The seed should be dry enough to separate well before planting. As with the potatoes, to grow a clean crop the seed grain should be sown on land which did not produce smutty grain last season.

BLOWING UP MUDHOLES.

Blowing up mudholes is a rather unique method of road improvement that is being tried with very satisfactory results in Kansas. On one of the roads in Fairview township, Stafford county, Kan., was a mudhole a quarter of a mile long that was impassable even for light buggies. The trustee having the work in charge had read of deep plowing with dynamite and decided to employ this rather radical method of getting rid of the mud hole. At intervals of every 100 feet along this road he drilled holes and inserted in each a stick of dynamite and then touched them off. He not only got rid of the mud in this way but the explosion broke up the hardpan beneath, which was responsible for the mudhole. This made drainage possible. He then filled up the holes and graded up the road, and from that time on it has been one of the best in that section. So successful was this method that it is to be tried on other mudholes in the same county. Incidentally this plan not only gives good results in getting rid of mudholes on roads, but would work equally well with ponds that are the result of an impervious hardpan.

THE OX-WARBLE.

In a few weeks now numerous lumps or swellings are likely to appear on the backs of the cattle, and especially is this true of those which last season had the range of woodland pastures. The swellings referred to are caused by the presence of the grubs of the cattle botfly or gadfly. The eggs of these insects are thought to be deposited on the legs of the cattle and are taken into their mouths when the animals lick themselves. While in the digestive tract they develop into grubs and make their way through the tissues of the body into the backs of the animals, causing the lumps mentioned above. Here they should be destroyed, for if left undisturbed they will finally emerge, fall to the ground and bury themselves in the soil, where they undergo a transformation and reappear as flies, ready to lay more eggs to make more trouble for the cattle. The grubs may be squeezed out of the backs of the animals, but it is painful to them. Some make an opening in the skin with a very sharp knife blade and then squeeze them out, when a few drops of kerosene will put the little pests out of commission.

DRINK ALL YOU WANT.

The department of chemistry of the University of Illinois has recently completed a series of exhaustive experiments whose object was to find out whether drinking of water at meal time was beneficial or detrimental to health. Students in the chemistry department were divided into several squads, the individuals in which drank water in varying degrees with their meals, from none whatever up to an excessive amount—two or three pints. Careful note was taken of the health of the different squads, as indicated in general feelings, vitality, endurance, etc. The conclusions of those conducting the experiments completely upsets the long established notion that the use of water is injurious. On the contrary, it was found that the liberal drinking of water while eating promoted digestion, the dilution of the gastric juices being especially beneficial. In all particulars did the experiments conducted show that the liberal use of water was healthful.

Commissioner's Proceedings.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 28th, 1912.

On the call of the County Auditor, pursuant to Chapter 230 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1905, and acts amendatory thereof, the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County met in special at the office of the County Auditor, in the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at 1:00 P. M., Thursday March, 28th. A. D. 1912, for the hearing and considering the Engineer's and Viewer's report on the ditch petitioned for by L. C. Fevig and others, and designated as County Ditch No. 57, and for a hearing and consideration of the Engineer's report and Viewer's report on the ditch petitioned for by Ole Bratland and others, and designated as County Ditch No. 51.

Meeting called to order by the Chairman at 1:00 o'clock P. M.

Members present; Aubol, Wold, Shaw, Larson, Hedeen.

Members absent: None.

The matter of the petition of Ole Bratland and others for County Ditch No. 51 was taken up, and the arguments of all persons interested considered, after which on motion made and carried, the report of the Viewers was referred back to them for correction as to the assessments against certain tracts of land; As two of the original viewers of the said ditch were not present the Board appointed G. K. Haavi and Edward Iverson, two disinterested parties to assist K. O. Gigstad (Viewer) to make the necessary corrections, and to file their amended report as soon as possible.

The matter of the petition of L. C. Fevig and others for County Ditch No. 57 was duly taken up, and the arguments and objections of all persons interested were heard.

On motion duly carried the report of the Viewers was referred back to them for correction as to the assessments against certain tracts of land.

The Viewers were present and proceeded to make the necessary corrections in their report as agreed upon, after which on motion made by Commissioner Hedeen and seconded by Commissioner Wold and carried unanimously the petition and the report of the Engineer and Viewers thereon were accepted and the following order establishing County Ditch No. 57 in Pennington County was made.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF PENNINGTON.—SS.

In the Matter of the Petition of L. C. Fevig and Others, for a Public Ditch in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, Designated and Numbered as County Ditch No. 57.

The above entitled matter came on duly to be heard by and before the County Board of the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, at a Special Meeting of said Board duly called for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition for said ditch in the above entitled matter on the 28th day of March A. D. 1912, at 2:00 o'clock P. M. of said day; and it appearing by proper evidence that due notice had been given of the pendency of said petition and of said time of hearing thereon, and that C. H. Martz, the Civil Engineer appointed by this Board to survey the route of said ditch, has completed his work and duly filed his report thereon in the office of the County Auditor of said County and that the Viewers appointed by said Board to view and report upon said work have duly completed their labors and made and filed their report in due form of law in the office of said County Auditor, the said County Board did, at the time above specified, proceed to hear said petition and said viewer's report thereon; and said Board having duly considered said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the construction of said ditch and all other matters pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

FIRST: That the said Civil Engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

SECOND: That the Viewers appointed herein duly completed their labors and have made and filed their report thereon according to law.

THIRD: That the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of said work are greater than its total cost, including damages awarded.

FOURTH: That the damages and benefits arising from the construction of said ditch have been duly awarded and assessed, and that said work will be of public utility and promote the public health and that said reports of said Engineer and Viewers are complete and correct.

FIFTH: That notice of this hearing of said petition and of said Viewers' report and said Engineer's report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice have been duly made and filed in the office of the County Auditor of said County, and that all other proceedings in the matter have been made and taken in accordance with the provisions of law.

NOW, THEREFORE, As conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the County Board of the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, at said Special Session of said Board, held at the time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed ditch will be of public utility and conducive to public health and public benefit and convenience, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch according to the report and the specifications of said Civil Engineer made and filed herein; and do hereby establish and confirm the report of the Viewers made and filed herein.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the Viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the County Treasury of said County on warrants to be drawn and attested by the Auditor of said County and signed by the Chairman of this Board, and delivered to the persons entitled thereto as provided by law.

Given under our hands this 28th. day of March A. D. 1912.

By the Board,
ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman of County Board, of Pennington County Minnesota.
Attest: A. H. FASEL,

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 29th 1912.

Pursuant to call the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, Minnesota, met at the office of the County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at 1:00 P. M. for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition of Jos. A. Dahl and others for the formation of a new school district, and for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition of Nels Burtness and others for the change of boundaries of school district No. 26, and such further business as may legally come before said Board.

Meeting called to order by the Chairman at 1:00 o'clock P. M.

Members present; Aubol, Wold, Hedeen, Larson, Shaw.

Members absent: None.

In the matter of the petition of Jos. A. Dahl and others for the formation of a new common school district, the said Board having heard all persons interested and the evidence and arguments for and against the granting of said petition, and duly considered the same, did by motion unanimously carried make the following orders:

The petition of Jos. A. Dahl and others, for the formation of a new common School District out of the territory therein described, came on to be heard by the County Board of Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the office of the County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls, in said county, on Friday the 29th day of March 1912, at 1:00 o'clock P. M., and said Board, having at said time and place heard all persons interested and the evidence and arguments for and against the granting of said petitions, and duly considered the same, finds as follows:

First: That said petition was presented to this Board on the 9th day of Feb. 1912, was signed and acknowledged by a majority of the freeholders qualified to vote for school officers residing in the territory therein described, and was duly approved by the County Superintendent of Schools of said county.

Second—That notice of said hearing on said petition was duly given by the publication of the order of this Board for said hearing in the newspaper known as The Sunbeam, published and printed in said county, for two weeks prior to said day of hearing, and by the posting of copies of said order in three of the most public places in the territory described in said petition for at least ten days before said day of hearing; and by the service of said order by mail upon the clerks of each existing school district affected as being in whole or in part within the territory described in said petition, to-wit: the Clerk of School district No. 65 and the Clerk of School District No. Ung. and the Clerk of School District No at least ten days before said day of hearing.

Third—that it is expedient and proper that the territory hereinafter described be formed into a new common School District for the reasons following, to-wit:

Red Lake River not passable.

Fourth—that the present existing school districts in said county that will be affected by the formation of said new school district out of the territory hereinafter described are as follows, to-wit: School District No. 65, from which the following territory will be detached and taken The whole of Sections Thirteen (13) Fourteen (14) and Fifteen (15) and that part of Sections Ten (10) Eleven (11) and Twelve (12) lying south of the Red Lake River, all in Township One Hundred Fifty-Two (152) Range Thirty-nine (39), in which territory children of school age live; School District No. Ung. from which the following territory will be detached and taken

The whole of Sections Twenty-two (22) Twenty-three (23) Twenty-four (24), all in Township One Hundred Fifty-two (152) Range Thirty-nine (39) in which territory children of school age live; School District No.— from which the following territory will be detached and taken in which territory children of school age live.

Fifth—That the number of persons residing in the territory hereinafter described and formed into a new school district is Twelve (12).

WHEREFORE IT IS ORDERED. That said petition be, and the same hereby is granted; and that the territory consisting of those tracts of land in said County of Pennington, described as follows, to-wit: The whole of Section Fifteen (15) Fourteen (14) Thirteen (13) Twenty-four (24) Twenty-three (23) Twenty-two (22) and that part of Sections Ten (10) Eleven (11) and Twelve (12 lying south of the Red Lake River, all in Township One Hundred Fifty-two (152) Range Thirty-nine (39) be, and the same hereby is, formed and constituted into a new common School District, and named and designated common School Ditsrict No. Three (3) of the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota; and that the title to all school houses and school-house sites within the said territory, be and the same hereby are, vested in the said common School District No Three (3) hereby formed and constituted.

Dated March 29th 1912.

The County Board of Pennington County, Minnesota.
By ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman.
Attest: A. H. FASEL,
County Auditor.

In the matter of the petition of Nels Burtness and others for the change of boundaries of School District No. 26, the said Board having heard all persons interested and the evidence and arguments for and against the granting of said petition, and having duly considered the same, did by a motion unanimously carried make the following order:

The petition of Nels Bratness and others for the change of Boundaries of School District No. 26, and of School District No Ung., in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, came on to be heard by the undersigned County Board of said county at the office of the County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls, in said county, on Friday the 29th day of March 1912, at 2:00 o'colck in the afternoon of said day; and said Board having at said time and place heard all persons interested and the evidence and arguments for and against the granting of said petition, and duly considered the same, finds as follows:

First—that said petition was presented to this Board on the 9th day of Feb. 1912, was signed and acknowledged by a majority of the freeholders qualified to vote at school meetings residing in each of the School Districts above specified; and was duly approved by the County Superintendent of Schools of said County.

Second—That notice of said hearing of said petition was duly given by the publication of the order of this Board for said hearing in the newspaper known as Thief River Falls News published and printed in said County, for two weeks prior to said day of hearing, and by the posting of copies thereof in three of the most public places in each of said districts above specified for at least ten days before said day of hearing; and by the service thereof by mail upon each of the clerks of said School Districts above specified, at least ten days before said day of hearing.

Third—That it is expedient and for the best interests of said School District that the boundaries of said district be changed as hereinafter set forth, for the following reasons, to-wit: That the granting of the petition will materially strengthen the financial status of District No. 26 by including such parts of the unorganized school territory as should have been included therein at the first organization of said district.

Fourth—That the number of persons who reside in each of said School Districts is as follows, to-wit:

School District No. 26, is Eighteen (18).

Sixth—That by the change of the boundaries of said School Districts as hereinafter provided, of said children will be taken from said School District No. unorganized and transferred to said School District No. 26.

WHEREFORE IT IS ORDERED: that said petition be, and the same hereby is, granted; and that the boundaries of said district be, and the same hereby are changed so as to include the following described tracts of land now being and lying in an unorganized territory, to-wit: The Northeast quarter (NE¼) and Lots Four (4) and Five (5) and Six (6) of Section Thirty-five (35); The Northeast quarter (NE¼) the Northwest quarter (NW¼) the Southeast quarter SE¼) and the North One Half (N½) of the Southwest quarter (SW¼) the Southeast quarter (SE¼) of the Southwest quarter (SW¼) and Lots One (1) and Two (2) of Section 8Thirty-six (36) all in Township One Hundred Fifty-four (154) Range Forty-three (43).

Dated March 29th 1912.

The County Board of Pennington County, Minnesota.
By ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman.
Attest: A. H. FASEL,
County Auditor.

A Petition signed by W. E. Wood and others praying that a new common school district be formed out of territory now being and lying in school district No. 51, was presented to the Board, and said Board being satisfied that said petition is reasonable, did by a motion duly carried make the following Order:

WHEREAS, A Petition was, on the 28th day of March 1912, presented to the County Board of Pennington County, Minnesota, purporting to be signed by a majority of the freeholders qualified to vote for school officers residing in the territory hereinafter described, and approved by the Superintendent of Schools of said county, praying that a new Common School District be formed out of that certain territory in said county composed of those tracts of land described as follows, to-wit: The NW quarter Sec. 23 all of Sec. 22, North Half of Sec. 27; Lots 4-5 and 6 and the East Half of North west quarter, and the NW¼ of the NW¼, the NE¼ and N½ of the SE¼ of Section 28; all of Section 21; Lot 5 and N½ of the NW¼ of Section 20; that part of Lot 6 lying and being in the NE¼ of the SW¼ of Section 20; the SE¼ of Section 17; the SW¼ of Section 16; the E½ of Section ; Lots 4-5 and 8 and the SE¼ of the SW¼ of Section 10; Lot 2 and the S½ of the NW¼ and the NW¼ and Lot 3, and the SW¼; the SW¼ of the SE¼; and Lots 6 and 7 in Section 15; Lots 5-6 and 7 in Section 14; the SE¼ of the SE¼ of Section 28, all in the Town of Smiley, in said County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, for the reasons following, to-wit:

That said District as now constituted is too irregular and for that reason it is impossible to locate the School House in a central place convenient to all school children in said district and that one third of said school children are now compelled to travel two miles to reach the school house as now located, and for that reason it has become Necessary to maintain two schools in said district and stating that the number of persons who reside in said territory is eighty-eight; the names of all children of school age who reside in said territory and the present existing school districts in which each of said children lives; and that said territory lies within the boundaries of the following School Districts in said county, to-wit: School District No. 51 in which 43 of said children live.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, That said petition be heard at a meeting of this Board to be held at the office of County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls in said county, on Thursday the 2nd day of May 1912, at 2:00 o'clock P. M., at which time and place this Board will hear all persons interested, and their evidence and arguments, for and against the granting of said petition.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That notice of said hearing be given by the publication of this order for two consecutive weeks prior to said [illegible]

The successful poultry raiser must possess to a certain extent that which has been called genius—"the capacity for taking infinite pains."

A piece of beef which is to be sliced for use cold will be much more satisfactory and slice more easily if it is roasted the day before it is to be used.

Last season was a mighty bad one for grasshoppers in several sections, and if the coming season should be as dry as last they are likely to be a still worse pest.

Unleached wood ashes contain from 5 to 7 per cent of potash and are an excellent fertilizer. As is well known, the ashes from hard wood are much richer in potash than those from soft wood.

When one rides through a dairy section it does not take very much imagination to decide whether the farmers are making money or not. The appearance of their places is sufficient evidence.

The uses of concrete are multiplying very rapidly. Not only has it largely taken the place of plank for sidewalks, barn floors and posts, but it is giving very satisfactory results as a substitute for wooden railway ties.

Eggs are quite as likely to absorb odors from the things the hen eats as milk is to take on smells from the things the cows consume in the stable. And either smelly milk or eggs are not calculated to whet one's appetite.

Hogs are not usually recommended as a fertilizer for corn, but one of the best fields of corn that the writer remembers having seen as a boy was one in which some 200 350-pound porkers that died of hog cholera had been planted.

The middle of January a carload of potatoes from Scotland was unloaded at Portland, Me., to supply local needs. This is said to be the first time in her history as one of the leading potato states that Maine has had to import potatoes for her own use.

It is not only desirable for a girl to know how to sew well from the standpoint of being competent and self sufficient, but from that of economy as well. Fortunately it is neither degrading nor unladylike for a woman to know how to clothe herself.

A northern poultry keeper who has been getting good results from a flock of forty pullets has made the meat of one rabbit a part of their daily bill of fare. Besides, they get wheat in the morning, oats or speltz at noon, cracked corn at night, while water and milk, bone and ground oyster shell are provided every day.

Baby beef is the cheapest and most profitable to raise, and the first 200 pounds of growth in a shoat is produced considerably cheaper than the last 100 pounds if he is brought to a weight of 300 pounds. Almost invariably early gains are quickest and cheapest, and this is just as true of poultry and sheep as it is of hogs and cattle.

If the flock of hens is to be confined the coming season it will be a good idea to shut off a portion of their yard or a tract adjoining and sow rape. If this is allowed to get a good start it will furnish the hens a supply of the finest green food all summer and they will be still nibbling at the stalks after they are killed by the frost of early winter.

If there was ever a spring when the argument ought to be strong in favor of setting out a wood lot it is the present one, following a winter season when the very sight of soft coal is enough to give the householder who has been buying it and the good wife who has been using it and cleaning up after it a veritable nightmare. Medium sized wood lots set ten or a dozen years ago are now giving their owners a most refreshing substitute for this nastiest of fuels.

They have found out in experiments conducted in Rothamstead, England, on the royal agricultural farms that if soil is heated to a temperature of 212 degrees F. it will kill certain forms of destructive amoebic life and make it possible for the soil to yield double what it has been wont to do. This is good news, but just how the fellow who cannot now, as things are, buy a new range for his wife or a spring bonnet, make necessary fence repairs or repair the hog house or dairy barn can install and operate a steam heating plant to parboil the amoebae on his many acres we have not been quite able to figure out.

A SENSIBLE MAN.

A good friend the writer has known for many years and who at sixty-six years of age has yielded to the very commendable desire to take life a little easier and enjoy some of the fruits of his labors for the past thirty years or more on a quarter section farm has hit upon a very sensible solution of the best way to let go of the strenuous life he has been living. Rather than quit work entirely and rust out or die of azoturia, or whatever it is called in the case of genus homo, he has purchased a ten acre place on the edge of town, which has a very comfortable house and outbuildings, a fine little orchard, a nice garden patch, pasture for a cow or two and room enough to grow some corn and praties. He figures that working this much ground will keep him out of mischief, give him something to think about and provide enough exercise to give him a good appetite and keep him in good physical condition. By following the course he has we believe our friend has solved in a very satisfactory as well as sensible manner the question of retiring from active and heavy farm work. Many a man who has earned a competence for the eventime of life would not only be a good deal happier, but live many years longer, were he to carry out the same plan.

THE OLEOMARGARINE TAX.

A bill is being thrashed out in the agricultural committee at Washington which has in view placing a uniform tax of 2 cents per pound on all oleomargarine or butterine, whether colored or not. While there is considerable opposition to the bill on the part of some dairy associations, others have in effect given approval to the bill, provided it is accompanied by severe penalties for those who would ply the business of selling colored oleomargarine for butter and getting butter prices for it. There is little question that the present tax of 10 cents a pound on colored oleomargarine works a decided hardship on the man of limited salary or wage who has many mouths to feed. If he wants to buy butterine, knowing what it is, it hardly seems fair to impose a virtually prohibitive tax on this necessity in the interest of a class who are probably already the most well to do of any.

GIVES VENTILATION.

The use of muslin in place of window sash is now an accepted practice with practically all up to date poultry keepers. Not only does the muslin admit sufficient light, but, what is more essential than this, makes possible a perfect circulation of air. This insures the health of the flock, which in turn is a prime condition for egg production. A lady reader of these notes who has her poultry houses equipped in the above fashion reports twenty-six eggs from her flock of less than a hundred hens on a day recently when her thermometer on the back porch registered 36 below zero. Muslin is cheaper than window glass and is also better for the biddies. Another who has tried muslin in place of the upper window sash reports that dampness on the floor has disappeared since the change was made.

POTASH FROM SEAWEED.

Investigations which have been made by the department of agriculture with a view to finding practical sources for the securing of commercial potassium seem to have demonstrated that an ample supply of this valuable fertilizing element is to be got from the beds of kelp or giant seaweed which are found over considerable areas along the Pacific coast shore line. This weed extracts the potassium salts from the sea water, and when the weeds are dried the potassium exudes to the surface in the shape of potassium chloride. The dried plants contain from 25 to 30 per cent of the chloride, and it is estimated that if properly handled these beds would produce annually for an indefinite period of time 1,000,000 tons of potassium chloride, worth $40,000,000.

A TRAINLOAD OF STEERS FREEZE.

An incident of the period of severe cold in January, which reached a climax in a temperature of from 35 to 42 degrees below zero through the northern tier of states, that will probably not be recorded again in a generation, was the freezing to death of eighteen carloads of fat steers that were snowbound for fifty-six hours on the C., R. I. and P. railway between Neola and Council Bluffs. It is said that as the animals began to freeze they remained standing, and when the discovery of their plight was made the entire trainload, totaling some 360 head, were stark and stiff and still on their feet. If the steers were worth $70 a head the damages that will have to be paid by the railroad will be $25,200.

BURNING STUMPS.

The following method is recommended for treating stumps prior to burning them: Bore a hole in the center of each stump to a depth of a foot with a two inch augur, fill the hole one-fourth full of powdered saltpeter and the remainder with coal oil, filling a second time with coal oil when the oil first applied is absorbed. This job should be done in the spring, and in the fall it is said the stumps will burn, roots and all. Under this method it is claimed that the saltpeter dries the sap, while the oil penetrates the wood thoroughly and tends to make the combustion complete.

LABOR NEWS.

No anthracite or bituminous coal will be taken from the mines of the United States by union miners as a result of the suspension which went into effect April 1, due to wage troubles. More than 400,000 miners, about 150,000 in the anthracite field, and 250,000 in the bituminous, will take a vacation, which probably will last only a few weeks. The miners will leave pumpmen and others at work to protect the mines from flooding or other trouble during the shutdown. The bituminous miners will be out only long enough for the wage agreement, reached in Cleveland, to be ratified by the miners by a referendum vote.

Fifty railroads, comprising practically all of the lines east of Chicago and north of the Norfolk and Western, refused to grant an increase in wages demanded by their locomotive engineers. The demand, presented Jan. 22, was for an increase amounting to about 19 per cent a year. The railroads' refusal is based on the assertion that they are financially unable to bear the increased expense.

The bituminous mine workers dispute, involving 300,000 men, is practically settled. It is announced that a subcommittee representing the miners and operators virtually has reached an agreement which is thought to be satisfactory to both sides. The miners waived all of their demands, except a few, chief of which was for an increase of 5 cents a ton for lump coal.

Two thousand persons were made idle, the Appleton cotton mills were forced to shut down and sections of machinery in the mills of the Merrimac corporation were stopped by a strike which the Industrial Workers of the World are endeavoring to extend to all the 20,000 operatives of Lowell, Mass.

Sixteen of nineteen silk mills in Hudson county, N. J., were closed because of a strike of 7,000 silk weavers who demand an increase of wages. The strike leaders say they will close up every mill in New York and Pennsylvania, if necessary, to win this strike.

Fifty thousand workmen will be idle and building operations in Chicago probably will be suspended as the result of a strike of 14,000 union carpenters. Members of all allied trade unions are expected to lay down their tools in sympathy with the carpenters.

Fifty representatives of the Brotherhood of Engineers, headed by Warren S. Stone, have voted to submit to a so called strike vote the question of increase and standardization of wages as refused by the Eastern railroads.

More than 15,000 persons in New England are idle on account of labor difficulties.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

Starving and exhausted Claude Swanson Allen, namesake of a United States senator, came out of a laurel thicket in the Blue Ridge and gave himself up to the posse which for nearly two weeks has hunted him. Complacent and apparently almost happy, he sat in the little brick jail at Hillsville, Va., a stone's throw from the Carroll county courthouse where on March 14 the Allens vengefully killed the judge, the prosecutor, the sheriff, a juror and a bystander.

One person was killed and nine were injured when the police fired into a mob that attacked the police station at Rock Island, Ill., as a result of the riotous conditions that have prevailed for two days. Attacks on the mayor and his retorts had stirred the people to a frenzy. Many arrests were made and later a mob attacked the police station. Missiles were hurled through the windows by the angry populace and the police fired into the crowd.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

GOVERNORS FILE A BRIEF

Permitted to Present Argument in the Federal Supreme Court on the Minnesota Rate Cases.

The right of a sovereign state to regulate business, including railroads, within its borders, was the burden of a brief which Governor Harmon of Ohio, Hadley of Missouri and Aldrich of Nebraska were permitted to file in the supreme court of the United States as friends of the court.

The plea of the governors, all of whom have been active in railroad legislation and litigation, was in the appeal from United States Circuit Judge Walter H. Sanborn's decision in the Minnesota railroad rate cases involving the right of a state to regulate commerce within its borders.

The three governors were empowered to act as a committee on state rights at the conference of governors at Spring Lake, N. Y., last September and were then authorized to seek to intervene in the Minnesota rate case. The brief was submitted in connection with the "state rate case," up for oral argument.

ROOSEVELT IN TWIN CITIES

Addresses Large Audiences in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Former President Theodore Roosevelt addressed an audience of 10,000 people at the St. Paul Auditorium, was hurried at breakneck speed in an auto to Minneapolis, where he addressed an audience of 4,000 in the Auditorium, then was hurried to his train and left for Chicago.

The former president was greeted in the Twin Cities with the old time crowds and if there was less of the old time noise and demonstration, there was still enough of both to greatly encourage his managers in Minnesota.

Roosevelt's St. Paul speech dealt with the question of presidential preferential primaries. He urged the people of Minnesota to get such a law through the legislature.

In Minneapolis Roosevelt explained his position on the recall of judicial decisions.

STOP SHIPMENT OF COAL

Duluth Dealers Are Holding Anthracite for Home Trade.

Duluth proportionately has larger stocks of all kinds of coal than almost any other city in the country, outside of the producing points. It was reported that the mine operators have sent a request to all larger cities in the country for consumers to cut down their consumption of coal wherever possible. While the need of economy exists in Duluth also there is no danger of any residents of that city suffering from the cold until next winter at least.

Duluth has sufficient bituminous coal on the docks to last until June 7, if it is carefully conserved. Duluth dealers have quit shipping hard coal out of the city and what is left will be kept for the local trade.

REFUSES TO CALL SESSION

Minnesota Governor Will Not Convene Legislature.

Governor A. O. Eberhart of Minnesota will not convene the legislature in extraordinary session for the purpose of enacting a direct preferential presidential primary law, holding that the people of the state do not [illegible] with favor upon extra sessions. His refusal to convene the legislature in special session has been conveyed to the signers of the petitions requesting him to do so, sent to him a few days ago by I. A. Caswell of St. Paul, chairman of the Roosevelt state campaign, and George S. Loftus, James A. Peterson and William T. Coe, all of Minneapolis, representing the La Follette forces of the state.

PLEADS GUILTY TO MURDER

Minnesota Youth Given Indeterminate Sentence in Reformatory.

Eugene Thomas of Minneapolis, aged seventeen, who was indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of K. N. Winters, a homesteader near Mora, pleaded guilty to the charge of murder in the second degree and was given an indeterminate sentence in the reformatory in St. Cloud.

Flood Waters Receding.

The destructive flood at Albert Lea occasioned by the sweeping out of Fountain lake dam is receding. It now is possible for people to reach the Rock Island passenger depot without the aid of boats, but the freight house still is isolated. The eastern part of the city, which was submerged, is covered with wreckage.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Advocates of county option are pointing with pride to the fact that Isanti county is the first "dry" county in the state and that five other counties are "dry" except for one village in each. The village council of Isanti, following the victory of the "wets" by two votes in the village, decided that it would be hazardous for the village to be the only place in the county where intoxicating liquor could be secured, so voted against licensing any place.

Frank A. Day, former Democratic chairman for Minnesota, was married at Seattle to Miss Helen Mills of Bremerton, Wash. Miss Mills has been a teacher at Bremerton and is well known in Minneapolis, where she attended the state university. She also did settlement work in Minneapolis, in association with Miss Crosby of Unity House.

Edgar Weaver of Mankato, Governor Eberhart's home town, announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. Mr. Weaver has been talked of among Republicans as a gubernatorial possibility and his announcement was not altogether unexpected in political circles.

Thirty minutes after receiving the breach of promise suit of Ada M. Cox, a stenographer, against William Rufus Edwards, a wealthy St. Paul lumberman, in the Ramsey county district court, the jury returned a verdict awarding Miss Cox $15,208. She sued for $25,000.

A state good roads association was organized at Tracy to further the national highway project and to secure uniform construction throughout the state and work with the various county boards.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Hocking Rosebach, nineteen years old, killed himself in his room at St. Paul while the police were attempting to break into his room to arrest him on the charge of threatening the life of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. M. Vong, and his aunt's sister, Miss Mary Larsen. Coroner Jones declared the boy was partially insane and said the shooting was the result of disappointment because Miss Larsen had rejected his suit.

Anton Weber, aged fifty-five, janitor of the Lowry building at St. Paul, was crushed to death when his coat caught between the cage grating and the floor of an elevator as the car was descending between the first and second floors of the building. Arthur Weber, aged nineteen, son of the dead man and an elevator operator in the building, was a passenger on the car and witnessed the death of his father.

The eighteen-year-old son of Christ Steels was instantly killed while at work with a gasoline engine on the home farm in the township of Alden, Freeborn county. He turned on the gas and as it did not run he lighted a match and applied the flame to the outlet. An explosion occurred, hurling a piece of the engine with such force that it crushed the head of the young man. Death was instantaneous.

The body of Robland Judish, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Judish of Browns Valley, was found dead in a cabin in Roberts county, S. D., two miles west of Browns Valley. A bullet wound near the left eye was the cause of death and the authorities are confident that murder was done.

A shooting affray occurred in Aldrich, a village ten miles east of Wadena. Postmaster A. B. Gray is alleged to have shot James Lynch in the side, inflicting a wound which may prove fatal. The men had not been on good terms for a long time and frequently had been involved in trouble, it is said.

Soo line passenger train No. 1[illegible], bound from Fargo, N. D., to the Twin Cities, left the rails near Belgrade and thirteen persons were injured. Of these only A. Linderh[illegible], a wealthy stock buyer of Belgrade, and the two children of Mrs. Harry Howder of Courtenay, N. D., were injured.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Dr. Everet W. Fish, a popular speaker and editor, who a generation ago established and published "The Great East and West" in St. Paul, dropped dead in Rochester, N. Y. He had been associated with the late Ignatius Donnelly and for a year after Mr. Donnelly's death in 1910 conducted the newspaper and then went east.

John M. Blair, inspector for the state railway and warehouse commission, with offices in Minneapolis, is dead. He was fifty-six years old. Mr. Blair was a native of Winona county and lived in Minneapolis six years.

John Whitney, aged eighty-three, a veteran of the Civil war, is dead at Browns Valley. He was known as "Grandpa Whitney" to the entire community. He served in a Minnesota regiment.

Joseph Congl[illegible] is dead at Minneapolis at the age of sixty-seven. He was born in Toronto and had been a well known contractor in the Twin Cities for twenty-eight years.

After an illness from [illegible] lasting one week, James [illegible], outside watchman at the state capitol, is dead at St. Paul. He was seventy years of age.

POLICE DETAIN NEIGHBOR

Being Questioned Regarding Murder of Minneapolis Girl.

Rev. W. E. Lee, pastor of Riverside chapel at Minneapolis, gave Mill City police a clue which resulted in the detention of Frank J. Quartemont, of the commissary department of the Soo road, in connection with the murder of Alice Matthews on March 24. Rev. Mr. Paul explained that he took this action after two requests had been made of him by members of his congregation, who told him they were afraid to give the information.

Quartemont, who is a neighbor of the Matthews, is married, having a wife and three children. He is a powerful man, thirty-four years old, about six feet tall and weighs about 200 pounds. He strenuously denies any connection with the murder.

Upon the identification and location of a mysterious young girl who said she lived a block from the Matthews home and attended Riverside chapel, detectives said, hung the next incriminating bit of evidence they expect to develop in connection with the murder of Miss Matthews.

FAVORS STEENERSON BILL

Committee Will Endorse Measure Regarding Indian Lands.

Despite objections that have been made by Representative Graham of Illinois, chairman of the congressional committee that has been probing White Earth affairs, and Judge Burch of the department of justice, the indications are the house committee on Indian affairs will make a favorable report on the Steenerson bill providing that patents shall issue in all land cases at White Earth, where contests have not been entered by the government. A partial report on the bill has been made by the subcommittee consisting of Representatives Carter and Ferris of Oklahoma and Miller of Minnesota. A final report will be made immediately upon the receipt of a communication from the secretary of the interior.

Secretary Fisher forwarded a letter to the committee last week, in which he asked that action on the bill be suspended pending a conference on it with officials of the department of justice.

SAVES CHILDREN; MAY DIE

Nursemaid Rushes From Nursery With Clothing in Blaze.

Mary Kelly, a nursemaid, is dying at St. Mary's hospital, Minneapolis, a sacrifice to save the twin babies of her employer. Practically no hopes are held out for her recovery. Her entire body is a mass of severe burns.

The girl, twenty-seven years old, whose parents live near Sparta, Wis., was minding John and Jeanette, the nine-months-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Donahue. With Mrs. Donahue and the babies she was in the nursery of the Donahue home. John was in her arms. Jeanette lay on the bed. While she was facing away from a burning gas jet, the flames caught the back of her dress. Before she realized it the blaze spread.

Not a spark touched the babies or Mrs. Donahue. Had the girl remained indoors, the fire might have been extinguished but she cried she wanted to save the babies.

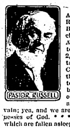
WHY CHRIST AROSE FROM THE DEAD

What His Resurrection Proved and Guarantees.

Pastor Russell's Easter Sermon Delivered in Academy of Music Before a Congregation of 2,500—Shows Some Inconsistencies of Present Beliefs.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 7. — Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle preached in the Academy of Music today to nearly 2,500 hearers. His topic was, "Why Christ Arose from the Dead." His text was: "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain and your faith also vain; yea, and we are found false witnesses of God. * * * Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." (I Cor. xv. 14, 15, 18.) He said:

The faith once delivered to the saints by Jesus and the Apostles in respect to the resurrection of the dead has been very generally lost. Christian people profess a belief in the resurrection, because they find it stated in the Bible, yet they are continually in difficulty in their endeavor to make the Scriptural teaching on the subject square with some of the unscriptural theories received into the Church and incorporated into many of the creeds.

St. Paul warned the Church against these human philosophies, and called them "science, falsely so-called," which make void the Word of God. These errors have been instrumental in dividing the faith of God's people into 600 different denominations, with 600 different professions. If God's people could all come back to the simplicity of the Bible's teaching, all of these differences would speedily disappear. God's Word would be seen to be beautiful and harmonious and satisfactory to the consecrated intellect.

The Bible Resurrection Reasonable.

Really the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead has been repudiated by all denominations, not willingly, not intentionally, but perforce, as it were. An opposite theory received and entrenched in the minds gives no place for the doctrine of the resurrection as the Bible presents it. Consequently we have twisted the doctrine of the resurrection and recite, "I believe in the resurrection of the body."

Yet, even this perverted view of the resurrection is not satisfactory to those who hold it. They wish many a time that the doctrine of the resurrection was not in the Bible, so much difference does it cause. For instance, how inconsistent it seems that they should say, "I believe in the resurrection of the body," and then say, as many do, Dying is but going home, getting rid of the mortal flesh, and being freed from its limitations. If it is a blessing to die and get free from the limitations of the body, how could it be a blessing to be reincarcerated in the body, and be obliged to keep it through all eternity?

There is nothing inconsistent in the Bible presentation of the resurrection. Not from the Bible, but from men, comes the suggestion of the resurrection of the body. The Bible invariably refers to the resurrection of the soul. It is the soul that dies; as we read, "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Adam was created a living soul, but his living soul came under the death sentence because he disobeyed God. It was his soul that was redeemed from death, not his body. "I will redeem thy life (look up the word life to see if it is from the Hebrew word meaning soul, and if so, add the word soul after the word life, in parenthesis) from destruction.—Psalm ciii, 4.

To accomplish this redemption we read that Christ Jesus "poured out His soul unto death." He made "His soul an offering for sin." Moreover, we are particularly told that it was the soul of Jesus that was raised from the dead: "I will not leave Thy soul in sheol." St. Peter quotes this statement as prophetical of the resurrection of Jesus that His soul was not left in hades. With what body do they come? Is a totally different question. Some of the dead souls, in the resurrection, will come forth with spirit bodies, and others with human bodies, according to the Bible. But the important point is that it is the soul, the being, that comes forth. If the soul dies, as the Bible declares, then manifestly the soul should be resurrected.

Bible Made Void by Tradition.

The difficulty with us has been that we "have made void the Word of God" by our "traditions." We received from the Grecian philosophers a tradition which Socrates and Plato both advocated, namely, that when a human being dies he does not really die. The soul, it is claimed, cannot die, but whenever the soul gets out of the body, the body dies. How strange it seems that we all accepted this philosophy without a word of Scripture, but with hundreds of Scriptures to condemn it!

It behooves us to take a decided stand either with the Grecian philosophers and their theories, or with the Bible. The two are in conflict and whoever attempts to hold both is in confusion. If the dead are not dead, then no human being is dead; and if no one is dead, how could there be a resurrection of the dead?

The County Board of Pennington County, Minnesota.
By ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman.
Attest: A. H. FASEL,
County Auditor.

"In the matter of the petition of Ole K. Stromme to be set off from school district No. 51 to said adjoining district No. 221 the following order of hearing was made:

Exhibit No. 4.

In the matter of the petition of H. Bjornson to be set off from school district No. 44 to said adjoining district No. 66, the following Order of hearing was made:

WHEREAS, a petition signed by Ole K. Stromme a legal voter, freeholder and resident of School District No. 51 in this County, with the approval of the County Superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the following described lands, situate in said District, to-wit: The Southwest quarter of Section Twenty-eight, Township One Hundred Fifty-three, Range Forty-two, said lands adjoin School District No. 221 and asking that he, with his said lands, may be set off from said District No. 51 to said adjoining District No. 221 for the following reasons:

That he is over three miles distant from the school house in said district No. 51, to which he now belongs, and that the school house in said district No. 221 is only one mile and a half distant from the home of the petitioner, and that it would for this reason be more convenient for your petitioner to belong to said District No 221; and that the roads leading to the school house in District No. 221 are in good condition, whereas the roads leading to the school house in District No. 51 are in poor condition and almost impassable, was presented to the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, Minnesota, at a session of said Board held on the 28th day of March A. D. 1912 for the action of said Board thereon.

NOW, therefore it is ordered that said petition will be heard by this Board at the session thereof commencing on the 2nd day of May A. D. 1912 at the office of the County Auditor in said County.

And it is further ordered that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given, by posting a notice thereof in one public place in each of the School Districts to be affected by said petition, and a copy thereof shall be served upon the Clerk of each said School District, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing.

ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman of Board of County Commissioners, Pennington County, Minn.
Attest: A. H. FASEL,
County Auditor, and Ex-Officio Clerk of Board.

WHEREAS a petition signed by H. Bjornson a legal voter, freeholder and resident of School District No. 44 in this County, with the approval of the County Superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the following described lands, situate in said District, to-wit: The S½ of the NW¼ and Lots 3 and 4 of Section 3, Township 153, Range 41 W, containing 155.72 acres; Also the SW¼ of Section 3, Township 153, Range 41 W, containing 160 acres; said lands adjoin School District No. 66, and asking that he, with his said lands, may be set off from said Ditsriet No. 44 to said adjoining District No. 66 for the following reasons:

The distance from my residence to the school house in district No. 44 is more than 2¼ miles, but to the school house in district No. 66 it is a little over 1½ miles; the road is therefore more than one half mile shorter from my residence to the school house in said District No. 66 than it is to the school house in said District No. 44, and at the same time better and in a more passable condition all the time, was presented to the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, Minnesota, at a session of said Board held on the 28th day of March A. D. 1912 for the action of said Board thereon.

NOW, Therefore it is ordered that said petition will be heard by this Board at the session thereof commencing on the 2nd day of May A. D. 1912 at the office of the County Auditor in said County.

And it is further ordered that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given, by posting a notice thereof in one public place in each of the School Districts to be affected by said petition, and a copy thereof shall be served upon the Clerk of each of said School Districts, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing.

ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman of Board of County Commissioners, Pennington County, Minnesota.
Attest: A. H. FASEL,
County Auditor, and Ex-officio Clerk of Board.

On motion duly carried the Petition of H. C. Iverson and others for a new common school district was laid over until the next meeting of the Board.

On motion duly carried the County Board adjourned sine die.

FIRE HAZARD

Waste Caused by Careless Handling Of Refuse Can be Materially Reduced With Care.

At this season of the year, Nature is about to put on her most beautiful garb. The people generally realize the necessity of putting their premises in order. The figures furnished by fire statistics of 1911 emphatically indicate the necessity of CLEANING UP. $150,000 would not make good the fire loss in Minnesota in 1911 caused by carelessness in connection with the annual clean-up.

This cleaning should extend from cellar to garret, from house to outbuildings, alleys and yards. A flying spark lodging, a lighted match or a live cigar or cigarette stub thrown carelessly into rubbish in or outside of buildings has caused many disastrous fires. The chore boy may carelessly throw a match or cigar or cigarette stub into the rubbish surrounding barns or in barns; the clerk may throw either into the rubbish of the basement of business blocks where paper, excelsior and other packing materials are often allowed to accumulate; the thoughtless passer-by may throw a cigar or cigarette stub through the grating in the sidewalk into the dust and filth below. Perhaps we cannot prevent the people from carelessly throwing matches or cigars, but we can prevent the accumulation of combustible and inflammable materials, if we will.

In this cleaning up of premises the attic should not be forgotten. In them dust and spider webs accumulate and all sorts of inflammable stuff is stored away. Attics are too often without ventilation. Thus, when the fierce summer sun beats down upon the roof, the attic becomes a veritable furnace and spontaneous combustion occurs in the rubbish, dust, oily rags, highly varnished pieces of furniture, etc.

Spring is the painting season and a caution as to the handling and storing of rags used in wiping varnished or oily surface or wiping paint from the painter's hands is timely. The only safe place for such greasy rags is in the stove. If kept for any length of time to be used again, they should be stored in a substantial, covered iron receptacle.

Many fires are started each year by the careless burning of the rubbish accumulated in the yards and alleys during the winter. The burning of this rubbish is too often left to the children, which annually not only costs a large number of lives or serious injury, but result in the total destruction of many thousand dollars of property.

The people of Minnesota are beginning to take an active interest in the idea of prevention of fire waste and there is no greater opportunity for them to do effective work along this line than in thoroughly cleaning their premises both inside and out and the proper handling of the refuse accumulated therefrom.

City and Village authorities and boards of health are requested to co-operate with the Minnesota State Fire Marshal Department in reducing the annual loss caused by the careless handling of refuse at this season of the year.

Again we say, "CLEAN UP."

C. E. KELLER,
State Fire Marshal

Obituary.

The many friends of Carl Jeremiah Nelson were bereaved to learn of his death last Saturday night. Last week we announced that he was very ill at the Warren hospital, and his parents were informed that he could not live. It was his wish to be brought home, and while on the train he passed away.

Carl was confined to his bed suffering an attack of appendicitis for three months, and it was found necessary to operate and he was taken to the Warren hospital where he underwent the operation. Carl was 18 years of age and a great favorite among his class mates as was well proven by the many beautiful floral offerings. His class, the juniors of the high school attended the funeral in a body, marching to the grave. Left to mourn his loss are his mother, father and two sisters to whom his host of friends extend their sympathy.

A phone message reached Erie Tuesday afternoon containing the sad news of the serious illness of Mrs. Albert Trnke who recently moved from this locality to Beaulieu Mahnomen county. Her son-in-law Frank Srnsky and daughter, Mrs. Emma Barret, left at once for that place

There are so many improvements being made in eastern Pennington county this spring it is impossible to keep track of all of them. If our friends will only remember that we want all the news and help us out by phoning or dropping us a line when they know of any news of interest their efforts will be appreciated.

Sheriff LaBree passed thru Erie Wednesday on his way to Neptune on business connected with his office.

A wolf was seen within a few rods of this office yesterday. After a few shots in that direction from some of our local sportsmen he began to realize his danger from stray bullets.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY,

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON

VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1912 NUMBER 15

SAYS VALLEY BEATS 'EM ALL

No Seeding Has Been In Southern States On Account of Snow Falls and Spring Rains.

S. Rosenthal Says That Weather, Roads and General Conditions Beat South.

We are situated on the edge of the Red River Valley, but nevertheless we believe in boosting for it, as it has all the advantages one could wish for. A valley man gives an exchange the following:

S. Rosenthal returned this morning from a two weeks' trip to Chicago and French Lick, having stopped at Chicago and taken his sons, Maurice and David, with him to the spring. He states that the spring is farther advanced here than anywhere he has been. No seeding has been done in Indiana, Illinois or Kentucky, where there was a heavy snowfall, followed by spring rains, which has retarded all work.

He says he has not seen such fine auto roads during his entire trip as he did from Ulen to Crookston this morning. He said he saw automobiles skipping all over the country after he struck the Red River Valley, while farther south the roads are impassable for mud. Saturday night it snowed a couple of inches and the ground was covered throughout Wisconsin.

Mr. Rosenthal also says general business conditions here are better than anywhere he has been and that everywhere he went the people knew of the prosperity and big crops of the Red River Valley the past two years, when many sections were complaining.

Delay Seed Corn Planting.

There never was a time when the seed-corn situation was more serious than it is this spring. A large amount of weak seed-corn is sure to be used this year; and, if such seed finds its way to a cold, half-prepared seed-bed, a considerable portion of this weak seed will not germinate.

On the other hand, if time is taken to put the seed-bed in a thoroughly-prepared condition, the delay of a few days, or even a week, will do a great deal to assist the germination of weak seed. Most farmers know very well how weak seed-corn has germinated when used for fodder corn. This apparant difference in the germinating power can be attributed only to the much better condition of the seed-bed in which it is planted. Where seed-corn must be used that is known to be slightly weak in vitality, it would seem wise to delay planting a week or more, and to employ this delay in a better preparation of the seed-bed.

Again, the acreage of corn is sure to be reduced to a marked degree through the scarcity of seed; but no one can estimate the loss and the hardship if a late frost should catch the nicely-started corn crop. In view of the known condition as to seed and the ever-present possibility of a frost, don't be in a hurry to plant corn this spring.—O. M. Olson, Extension Div. Minn. Col. of Agr.

Some More.

Good vaudeville has been secured by the Lyceum Management for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Wells, in their rural playlet entitled, "The Boy Who Wore the Blue." This is an act that will make you laugh, as they present real good comedy. The usual Saturday afternoon matinee at 2:30 for the children will be put on with a complete vaudeville act.

For Thursday night the management has secured a special feature film entitled, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," taken from the original play. It's good because it's a Tannhauser.

COMMITTED SUICIDE

Highlanding Farmer Kills Self With Shot Gun—Death Was Instantaneous.

Derangement of Brain Said to Have Been Cause of Act—Leaves Wife and Two Boys.

Last Friday night Joseph Schlehofer, a farmer of Highlanding, committed suicide by shooting himself just above the heart with a shot gun. Friday morning he took a spell while at the breakfast table and began to laugh, and in a short time began crying, after which he apparently seemed to be in his right mind. He and his wife were working on a barn during the morning and in the afternoon went over to a neighbor's to get help to put up the rafters of the barn. Everything went well until evening came on. The wife was at the barn when the act was committed. He pressed the muzzle of a single-barrel shot gun to his heart and fired, the charge entering the body just above the heart, causing instantaneous death.

Joseph Schlehofer was 31 years of age, and was born in Bohemia in the year 1881. He came to this section of the country when the reservation was opened, seven years ago, and was a prosperous farmer in the township of Highlanding up to the time of his death. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and two boys, both of whom are very small, besides a large circle of friends, who extend their sympathy to the bereaved ones.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon under the auspices of the Western Bohemian Fraternal Association, which order marched to Greenwood, where interment was made.

The Wrestling Match.

At the Lyceum last Saturday night was a match which was pulled off in a hurry. Carl Busch met defeat by Loren Curtis, of Halstad, the first fall taking 3 minutes and 10 seconds and the second 57 seconds. At this match it was up to Curtis to see how fast he could throw Busch and also to show the fans that he was a real clever, fast wrestler and knows the game.

Busch was far the heaviest man, but lacked the cleverness and talent of the wrestling game. Curtis in the first fall applied a half Nelson and scissor hold to his big bulky opponent, and in the second he used a hammerlock, which finished the match very quickly.

The reason Curtis worked so fast was the fact that he is in line for a match with Chas. Gustafson, to be staged in this city April 18th, which will be the hardest match ever put on in this city. The local fans are looking ahead to a splendid match on this date.

Chas. Gustafson is the middleweight champion wrestler of Canada, and has wrestled with Young Miller, of St. Paul, champion middleweight of the world, twice, winning the first match at Winnipeg and losing the second at St. Paul.

Curtis is by far the best man that has wrestled in this city of his own weight during the past month and has proven himself a favorite among the local enthusiasts. You had better make up your mind to attend the coming big match. It will take place at the Auditorium April 18th. An invitation is extended to the ladies.

A special stage is being made, size 22x22 and there will be no danger of it being too small, as was the case at the last match. Preliminaries start at 9 o'clock, main bout at 9.45 sharp.

The Farcical Comedy Play Which Will Be Presented By The Senior Class April 19th, 1912.

A comedy in three acts, at the Auditorium on Friday, April 19th, by the High School Seniors. This class play was produced last year by Hamline University and St. Thomas College and proved a remarkable success. It is a laugh from start to finish. The greatest farcical comedy ever written. The High School plays have always been successes and this one will be no exception to the rule.

The University School for Nurses.

Three years ago the University of Minnesota organized the first school for nurses under direct University control in this country or, indeed, in any other country. The first class has just completed the three years' course of instruction; and a reception was given to the graduates at Shevlin Hall early in March. Members of the faculty of the College of Medicine and Surgery were present and friends of the graduating class were invited. The class pins, which serve as the symbol of graduation from the University School for Nurses, were conferred upon them by Dean Wesbrook.

Although the period of graduation does not correspond with the University Commencement, it has been arranged that diplomas will be conferred upon graduates of the School when other degrees are given at the commencement occasion in June.

Sincerely yours,
R. O. Beard, Chairman,
Committee on School for Nurses.

DISTRICT CONVENTION

Republicans Will Hold Convention at Thief River Falls May 15th at the Auditorium.

Secured Through Efforts of Wilhelm Michelet—14 Counties to Be Represented.

The knowing of the fact that the Republican District Convention will be held in this city May 15th, 1912, is without a doubt something of great interest to the people of this city and country tributary to us. This convention was secured through the efforts of U. S. Commissioner Wilhelm Michelet.

There will be 14 counties represented at this convention, and if each county sends all of the delegates which it is entitled to, there will be a total of 154.

This city not only has the ability of handling a convention of this sort, but they have a large and commodious place in which to hold the meeting. The railroad accommodations are the best in this section of the country—delegates can come in the evening and leave the next morning or afternoon over the Soo or Great Northern. It is certain that this city will derive great benefit from this convention.

The Republican District Convention for the Ninth Congressional District of Minnesota will be held at the Armory in the City of Thief River Falls on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1912, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing two delegates and two alternates to the Republican National Convention to be held at Chicago on June 18, 1912, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for president and vice-president, and for the transaction of any other business that may properly come before the convention.

The county conventions to elect delegates thereto will be held in the respective counties on Monday, May 13th, A. D. 1912, at places to be designated by the several county committees.

Representation in this convention will be made upon the following basis: Each county shall be entitled to one delegate for each two hundred and fifty votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for state officers in the year 1910 in such county, and each county shall be allowed in addition thereto five delegates at large. The several counties in the district will be entitled to the following number of delegates in said convention:

Becker	12
Beltrami	11
Clearwater	8
Clay	13
Kittson	8
Marshall	12
Mahnomen	6
Norman	10
Otter Tail	18
Polk	20
Pennington	10
Red Lake	8
Roseau	9
Wilkin	9
Total	154

By order of the Ninth District Republican Committee.

John Petterson,
Chairman.
Fred Dennis,
Secretary.
Dated April 8, 1912.

New Land Firm

A new land firm has just recently been organized in this city under the name of the Thief River Falls Land Company and is now in condition to make farm loans and are also ready to list all farms and city property which parties may wish to sell.

Members of the firm are old residents of this city and prominent and active business men, Rasmus Oen, president; F. H. Gambell, vice-president, and Henry Wilken, secretary. Their office is over the First National Bank, the room formerly occupied by the book binder. The firm is very reliable and people who have land for sale will profit by seeing this firm. The gentlemen would be pleased to have you call on them.

READY FOR BUSINESS

Lieberman Brothers Will Have Their Store Open for Business This Week.

Will Be Located in the Old Palace Cafe and Hornseth Stand.

It was announced some time ago through our columns that Lieberman Bros., of Grand Rapids, had made arrangements to locate here and open an exclusive gents' and children's clothing store. The first part of last week their stock of goods arrived and they are now busily engaged in getting it in shape. We are informed by Chas. Lieberman that the firm would open their doors for business Saturday or possibly before.

Their location is where the Palace Cafe and Hornseth confectionery were formerly located, on La Bree avenue and Second street. This firm comes to our city highly recommended by the papers at Grand Rapids. They have several stores throughout the Iron Range, all of which are doing a good business.

The building in which they have located during the past week has been undergoing considerable repairing and shelving has been put in, and when the stock is unpacked and put in place the store will have a very attractive appearance. We were informed by the manager that they had come here to locate permanently and their main object was to give the public their best attention. A call at the store any time will convince you that they are here for business.

Mrs. Nick Rohr.

Died at the hospital at Crookston Sunday afternoon, April 7th, of heart failure. Mrs. Rohr was 28 years of age and was born in Sweden in the year 1884. The family resided 8 miles southeast of this city. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and two small children, besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Johnson, and four brothers and five sisters.

The funeral services were held from the Catholic church yesterday morning at 10:00 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Adolph Dingman officiating, and the remains were laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery north of this city. The bereaved family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Andrew Loberg, who is digging wells in the vicinity of Little Oak in Deer Park township, was in town Thursday evening.

A bright baby girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bjerk on Monday, April 1.

Misses Inez Patterson and Dora Barrette will go to International Falls tomorrow morning to be the guests of Miss Barrette's sister for a few days.—Bemidji Pioneer.

Miss Ida Kalland completed last week a very successful term of school—her first attempt, by the way—in district 106 in Sanders township. A fine program was rendered at the school house on the evening of the last day.

Cornelius Howland, a farmer living south of town, was taken to Thief River Falls the first of the week and adjudged insane. He was taken to Fergus Falls Tuesday by Sheriff LaBree, assisted by Sam Thompson, a neighbor. Mr. Howland came here a year ago from Iowa. He is a single man. He is said to have gone insane over religion.

WHOM DO YOU FAVOR?

For the purpose of getting a line on the sentiment of the people of Thief River Falls, Pennington County and vicinity, The News has decided to follow in the footsteps of a great many other newspapers and give the voters an opportunity to express themselves on the presidential preferential primary, and also to express an opinion as to who would best serve the interests of the people in the respective offices of President of the United States and Governor of the State.

Notice is Hereby Given That

Whereas, A Petition was on the 28th day of March, 1912, presented to the County Board of Pennington County, Minnesota, purporting to be signed by a majority of the freeholders qualified to vote for school officers residing in the territory hereinafter described, and approved by the Superintendent of Schools of said county, praying that a new Common School District be formed out of that certain territory in said county composed of those tracts of land described as follows, to-wit: The NW¼ of Sec. 23 all Sec. 22, N¼ of Sec. 27, Lots 4, 5 & 6 and the E½ of the NW¼, and the NW¼ of the NW¼, the NE¼, and N½ of SE¼ of Sec. 28; all of Sec. 21; Lot 5 and the N½ of the NW¼ of Sec. 20; that part of Lot 6 lying and being in the NE¼ of the SW¼ of Sec. 20; the SE¼ of Sec. 17; the SW¼ of Sec. 16; the E½ of Sec. 10; Lots 4, 5 & 8 and the SE¼ of the SW¼ of Sec. 10; Lot 2 and the S½ of the NW¼, the NW¼ of the NW¼; Lot 3, the SW¼; the SW¼ of the SE¼ and Lots 6 & 7 in Sec. 15; Lots 5, 6 and 7 in Sec. 14; the SE¼ of the SE¼ of Sec. 28, all in District No. 51 in the Town of Smiley, in said County and State, for the reasons following to-wit: That said District as now constituted is too irregular and for that reason it is impossible to locate the school house in a central place convenient to all school children in said district and that one third of said school children are now compelled to travel over two miles to reach the school house as now located, and for that reason it has become necessary to maintain two schools in said district, and stating that the number of persons who reside in said territory is 88; the names of all children of school age who reside in said territory and the present existing school districts in which each of said children lives; and that said territory lies within the boundaries of the following School Districts in said county, to-wit: School District No. 51 in which 43 of said children live, School District No. in which of said children live, and School District No. in which of said children live, and School District No. in which of said children live, and School District No. in which of said children live:

It is Therefore Ordered, That said petition be heard at a meeting of this Board to be held at the office of the County Auditor, in the city of Thief River Falls, in said county, on Tuesday, the 2nd day of May, 1912, at 2:00 o'clock P. M., at which time and place this Board will hear all persons interested, and their evidence and arguments, for and against the granting of said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That notice of said hearing be given by the publication of this order for two consecutive weeks prior to said hearing in Thief River Falls News; by the posting of copies thereof in three of the most public places in each of the above named school districts affected thereby, at least ten days before said day of hearing; and by the mailing of copies thereof to the clerk of each of the above named districts affected thereby at least ten days before said day of hearing, according to law.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, That on the 30th day of April, 1912, at 1:00 o'clock P. M., at the office of the County Auditor, in the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., within and for Pennington County, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Ditch No. 57 of Pennington County, established by the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date March 28th, 1912, viz: For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each, and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the Engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified, in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent. over and above the estimate cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the Auditor of said County, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows:

67,423 cubic yards of earth to excavate and remove.

The estimated total cost of the work is $10,099.31.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the Auditor of said County, for not less than ten per cent. of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated April 3rd, 1912.

The record price for tame hay on the Kansas City market was registered the other day, when $23.50 per ton was paid for a carload of hay shipped from Rupert, Ida.

Roughly speaking, it takes a depth of from twelve to fifteen inches of snow to make one inch of water. Again, one inch of rainfall will moisten the earth to the depth of about twelve inches.

Switzerland has 2,100 dairies, which employ on the average four people each. Of the total number of dairies 1,400 are engaged in the production of Emmenthal cheese, a brand that constitutes a large share of the cheese exports of the little country.

Probably the highest price ever bid for a calf was $6,000, which a Wisconsin breeder bid at auction the other day for a month old calf of the famous Dolly Dimples, a prize winning Jersey that is owned on the Ames stock farm near Boston and rated as one of the most valuable cows in the world.

The Japanese sugar cane, which has lately been introduced into some sections of the south, gives promise of being a valuable forage crop. While it will produce more sirup than any other cane, its chief value is for forage, as the stalks are small. However, the variety is hardy, grows to twelve or thirteen feet in height and produces many stalks to the hill. It yields from fifteen to twenty-five tons of green forage per acre.

The Black Giant is the name of a breed of poultry that is making a good record in several eastern states, few if any having as yet been brought west of Pennsylvania. The cock birds weigh nine or ten pounds and the hens from seven to eight. Unlike some other black feathered breeds, they are yellow skinned and have black legs free from feathers. The breed is hardy and easily kept. The Black Giants are favorites in several eastern markets for caponizing and usually top the market in this class.

One breeder of Jersey cattle whom the writer is personally acquainted with is following a plan in the improving of his herd of some forty or fifty fine cows that has much to commend it. Recently there was shipped to him by the owner, on terms that were mutually satisfactory, a prize winning $1,000 Jersey bull, with which some thirty of his cows are to be mated. This arrangement will cost the owner of the herd mentioned a snug sum, but there is little question that it will pay him a handsome return on the investment.

During the closing days of 1911 grapes were taken from cold storage in some eastern markets that had been shipped from California six weeks before and held there during the interval. They were found in prime condition—practically as good as when put in storage—but the other important feature connected with the experiment was that when put on the market finally these grapes brought more than twice as much as they would had they been sold at the time of shipment from the west. The experiment is likely to have quite an effect upon the grape growing business.

Dynamite is queer stuff, and there are a whole lot of things about it that are difficult to understand. Unlike a good many other substances, there does not seem to be much uniformity in the laws which govern its ignition and explosion. Often the slightest jar or the application of heat to it is sufficient to set it off. In a case related to the writer the other day a chunk of the stuff fell off a wagon on which it was being hauled and a few minutes later was run over by a disk pulverizer without exploding. Again, a chunk of it put in a fire will burn quietly without exploding. We would not advise making this experiment however.

The Functions of White Seal Beer as a Table Beverage

It stimulates appetite, without which you will often fail to consume a sufficient amount of food, and that you do eat will not be properly digested. A keen appetite is essential.

It is food in itself—a wholesome, nutritious, predigested, liquid food, containing in correct proportions the nutritive and digestive elements of rich barley malt and choicest hops.

It furnishes the power for digestion and conquers dyspepsia, thus rendering a meal both enjoyable and beneficial.

It is the great promoter of sociability at meal time, which is one of the objects to be kept in view in indulging the appetite.

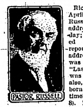
SAUL OF TARSUS SAW THE GLORIFIED JESUS

Another of Many Proofs That Jesus Is No Longer a Man.

Brooklyn's Famous Pastor Discourses on Words of St. Paul, "Last of All Jesus Was Seen of Me Also, as One Born Prematurely"—Third of a Series of Sermons on the Resurrection.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Richmond, Va., April 21.—Pastor Russell gave two addresses here today; he had crowded houses. We report one of his addresses, which was from the text: "Last of all He was seen of me also, as of one born before the time" (I Cor. xv, 8). He said:—

St. Paul was discussing the resurrection of the dead. He realized that on that great fact rested the weight of the Gospel Message. It was easy enough to prove that Jesus had died, but to an incredulous world it was difficult to prove that He had risen from the dead; and whoever could not believe that great fact could not believe the other great facts which stand or fall with it.

"Last of All He Was Seen by Me."

Prosecuting his argument, the Apostle marshaled the whole chain of witnesses except the women who first saw the Lord on the morning of His resurrection. He says, "He was seen of Cephas (Peter); then by the remainder of the twelve; then of above five hundred brethren at once; later, He was seen of James, then of all the Apostles," when He ascended. Then comes the text: "Last of all, He was seen of me, also."

There is something pathetic in this reference to his own glimpse of Jesus. It called up the period of his bigoted persecution of the Church. It reminded him of his responsibility in connection with the death of St. Stephen, and of the madness which he had manifested in pursuing Christians even to Damascus, haling them to prison. Again, he saw the great, blinding light from heaven, above the brightness of the noonday sun, his fall to the earth, and heard the voice speaking to him, saying, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?"—Acts ix, 1-9; xxvi, 12-19.

Why Jews Objected to Jesus.

The objection which all Jews had to Jesus, and what they considered absolute proof that He was not the Messiah, was His apparent inability to accomplish the things foretold by the Prophets. They said, It is foolish to think of a man without an army and without wealth, claiming to be a king. It is still more foolish for Him to claim that He is the Messianic King, who is to be above all kings, and before whom every knee shall bow and every tongue confess.

To them it seemed that when He was crucified a demonstration had been given that He was not the Messiah. Was not the Messiah to live forever? Must it not, therefore, be true that any man whom the Jews or the Romans could crucify must have been an impostor? They considered the matter proven to a demonstration.

St. Paul's Honesty Strengthening.

The honesty of Saul of Tarsus led him to be just as honest after he got his eyes of understanding open as he had been previously with them closed. The situation changed immediately in his mind; instead of a human Savior and Messiah and an earthly King, God had prepared a Heavenly One, partaker of the divine nature, glorious, "far above angels, principalities and powers."

I like to think of St. Paul as exemplifying possibly a large class of [illegible] opposers of the Truth. I like to t[illegible] that all they will need to bring hop[illegible] into line with God's arrange[illegible] them [illegible] and to make them loyal ser[illegible] ments [illegible] righteousness will be the [illegible] vants of [illegible] which will shine forth re[illegible] great light [illegible] soon, when the due [illegible] splendently [illegible] for Messiah to take [illegible] time shall come [illegible] power and reign [illegible] to Himself His gr[illegible] shall have been [illegible] when His elect [illegible] with Him. I [illegible] completed and glori[illegible] words of the [illegible] like to remember the [illegible] respecting [illegible] Lord through the Prop[illegible] shall the [illegible] that glorious Epoch: "The [illegible] and the [illegible] eyes of the blind be opened [illegible] then [illegible] ears of the deaf be unstopped [illegible] that [illegible] shall the lame man leap as an [illegible] and the tongue of the dumb sing."

One Born Before the Time.

Many have remarked at the peculiarity of St. Paul's statement that he saw the Lord as one prematurely born. But, if at first the statement was dark and puzzling, now it is luminous and enlightening. His thought is this: The time for giving ocular demonstration of the Lord's resurrection had gone by; the next manifestation of Him was to be to His saints, and after that to the world. Thus we read: "We shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is."

Strictly speaking, then, the experiences of Saul of Tarsus were out of the ordinary. No one else than he, not even the saintly, were to see the Lord before their resurrection change in the end of this Age. When, therefore, he saw Jesus he saw Him before the time—more than eighteen centuries before the time. Moreover, he saw Him as one born before the time—as one resurrected before the time.

A hog can be starved to eat almost anything, but this is poor economy, for it retards development.

The egg trust, whatever that may signify, has had some pretty hard licks of late from the cackling Biddies of the country.

It is a fact that the pigs of large litters are usually more uniform in size and fatten more quickly than those of small litters. Here is where the good breeding sow comes in.

Ontario, Ore., is the center of a district which produces much alfalfa seed, 250,000 pounds of which are said to have been shipped to eastern markets within the past three or four months.

The revival of the good old custom of co-operative killing of beef and sheep among neighbors would solve one of the causes of the high cost of living, so far as farmers are concerned.

The increased use of aluminium in utensils and in other forms is shown in the growth in the output of the metal from less than 100,000 pounds in 1883 to more than 50,000,000 pounds in 1911.

The repulsive looking scaly legs in chickens can be improved in appearance a whole lot by rubbing them at intervals of a few days with a salve made of equal parts of lard, sulphur and kerosene.

A farmer living near Polo, Ill., has a cow that gave birth to a calf the other day having two heads with eyes and mouth perfect and identical and with two backbones running the entire length of the body.

It should be mighty small consolation for the man whose boys or girls are going wrong that he has stowed away in the bureau drawer or writing desk blue or red ribbons won on blooded stock at the county or district fair.

It will be in mighty good taste for the fellow who trusts to luck and doesn't test his seed corn this spring in some accurate way to cuss providence or the weather next November when he is husking fifteen or twenty bushels per acre.

The manure spreader should be the most generally used tool on the farm, but this is no reason why it should be left unprotected in the storms and wintered in the snow bank. A shed for the spreader would be the best economy.

Thoroughbred boys and girls should stay or be kept at home nights unless there is an excellent reason why they should be somewhere else. They are at least entitled to the same care in this regard that the pure bred domestic animals receive.

Midstate brewers (or, more correctly, the National Brewers' association) are said to have secured control of the bulk of the hop growing business in western Oregon. The high prices of a year ago seem to have been more than the brewers were willing to stand for.

Lots of folks, both men and women, get into the miserable habit of whining and complaining a good deal over little troubles or annoyances, overlooking the while blessings that should obscure these little troubles completely were a right standard of values employed. It is just as easy to cultivate the habit of looking on the bright side as looking on the dark and a whole lot more enjoyable for the folks one has to live with.

The mere fact that many men and women who were denied the privileges of an education in their youth have still made a success of life should not be used as an argument by the boy or girl of today for neglecting opportunities for schooling that may be had free of cost. One cannot but wonder in the case of these so called self made people how much more they might have [illegible] along desirable lines had they been [illegible] able to have such advantages as are op[illegible] to practically everybody today.

A great [illegible] service might be performed by the merch[illegible] of many a town for the womenfolk [illegible] living in the rural community tributar[illegible] to them if they or some other organ[illegible] in the town would provide con[illegible] and rest rooms which the former c[illegible] use on their visits to town. In all [illegible] too many towns there is no place wh[illegible] aside from stores where the [illegible] farmer's wife or daughter c[illegible] waiting for her husband or father [illegible] townsfolk to a thoughtful provision for [illegible] courtesy that make and w[illegible] would be greatly appreciated.

A Philadelphia surgeon has lately discovered that the inside membrane of hens' eggs can be successfully used as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations. The new skin formed by this method is finer than the old, but strong and healthy.

For folks who hibernate in latitudes where the mercury is likely to slip down to 20 or 30 below zero there is absolutely no investment that gives more generous or immediate returns than that put into a thirty-five cent soapstone. In the comfort which it yields it pays for itself every night it is used.

It is an interesting fact shown in immigration statistics that, while the vast majority of Italians who emigrate from their native land to the western world come to the United States, just as large a per cent of the Spanish peasants go to South American countries. During the past year 230,000 people left Spain, 8,000 of these arriving in Buenos Aires in a single fortnight.

That this "watermelon stealin'" business is getting to be serious is shown in the discussion of the subject by a speaker before the recent meeting of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association held in St. Louis. Some one has suggested giving each melon a paper jacket, which would prevent the melons from being exposed to view and thus reduce the temptation to steal them.

If you would live long drink generous amounts of sour milk or buttermilk. Scientists have discovered that the family of bacteria that produce lactic acid—that is, cause the souring process in milk—have the power to destroy or neutralize another group of germs that are said to be responsible for the imperfect digestion of food in the intestines, which in turn is said to be the chief cause of old age decline.

Illinois produced last year more corn than any other state in the Union, but the largest average yield per acre—38.3 bushels—was grown in Connecticut, not usually considered in the list of corn producing states at all. It is evident that the farmers of those rocky little New England homesteads are on to some secrets of corn raising that the owners of the big farms of the central western states would do well to get next to.

Baguio, in the Philippine Islands, is said to be the wettest place in all the territory at present under the control of the United States. Meteorological records kept there show that in four days of last July 88.14 inches of water fell, thirty-four inches of this enormous amount falling in a period of twenty-four hours. This place is the health resort of the island, and the "water" cure is said to be a favorite method of treatment.

Surveys are being made for a scenic highway around Crater lake, in southern Oregon, which is conceded to be one of the world's wonder spots, but which as yet has been visited by comparatively few people on account of its inaccessibility. A proposed automobile road from Medford, a station on the main line of the railroad, some sixty miles away, and the building of the scenic drive around the lake will afford to lovers of the beautiful in nature an opportunity of viewing one of her masterpieces.

Between meridians 100 degrees and 120 degrees, which includes practically all of the dry country of the western half of the United States, it is estimated that there are 300,000,000 acres of fertile land capable of producing a crop of twenty bushels per acre of winter wheat every other year. This means that if one-third of this vast area were producing on the above basis the increase in the country's wheat crop as a result would be 1,000,000,000 bushels yearly, which is a good deal more wheat than the country has ever produced in a single crop.

Folks who are paying 30 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of coffee wonder why there was not a drop in price when the import tariff tax was removed some time ago. The reason there was not is due to the fact that the Brazilian coffee trust, backed by the government, slapped on an export duty equal to our import tax which had just been removed. As a still further aid in maintaining prices the output of coffee is so regulated that in times of big crops enough of the surplus is removed from trade channels so that the price can be kept up on the remainder.

A reader of this department who lives at Reed City, Mich., in a recent letter calls attention to the interesting fact that as a result of investigations which have been carried on it is now contended that fruit raising can be carried on in Michigan over a much wider area than was formerly supposed. In support of this statement our correspondent calls attention to the fact of the clearing of one 3,000 acre tract not far from where he lives, all of which is to be set to fruit trees as soon as cleared. He also speaks in high terms of a fruit and land show that was held a short time since in Grand Rapids, where choice fruit put up in the western box fashion was on display. In this connection it may be added the Michigan fruit grower has a distinct advantage over his western competitor—namely, nearness to good markets. When he will take as much pains in the care and spraying of his trees and in the packing of his fruit he will receive correspondingly satisfactory prices for his stuff.

A SENSIBLE MAN.

A good friend the writer has known for many years and who at sixty-six years of age has yielded to the very commendable desire to take life a little easier and enjoy some of the fruits of his labors for the past thirty years or more on a quarter section farm has hit upon a very sensible solution of the best way to let go of the strenuous life he has been living. Rather than quit work entirely and rust out or die of azoturia, or whatever it is called in the case of genus homo, he has purchased a ten acre place on the edge of town, which has a very comfortable house and outbuildings, a fine little orchard, a nice garden patch, pasture for a cow or two and room enough to grow some corn and praties. He figures that working this much ground will keep him out of mischief, give him something to think about and provide enough exercise to give him a good appetite and keep him in good physical condition. By following the course he has we believe our friend has solved in a very satisfactory as well as sensible manner the question of retiring from active and heavy farm work. Many a man who has earned a competence for the eventime of life would not only be a good deal happier, but live many years longer, were he to carry out the same plan.

THE OLEOMARGARINE TAX.

A bill is being thrashed out in the agricultural committee at Washington which has in view placing a uniform tax of 2 cents per pound on all oleomargarine or butterine, whether colored or not. While there is considerable opposition to the bill on the part of some dairy associations, others have in effect given approval to the bill, provided it is accompanied by severe penalties for those who would ply the business of selling colored oleomargarine for butter and getting butter prices for it. There is little question that the present tax of 10 cents a pound on colored oleomargarine works a decided hardship on the man of limited salary or wage who has many mouths to feed. If he wants to buy butterine, knowing what it is, it hardly seems fair to impose a virtually prohibitive tax on this necessity in the interest of a class who are probably already the most well to do of any.

GIVES VENTILATION.

The use of muslin in place of window sash is now an accepted practice with practically all up to date poultry keepers. Not only does the muslin admit sufficient light, but, what is more essential than this, makes possible a perfect circulation of air. This insures the health of the flock, which in turn is a prime condition for egg production. A lady reader of these notes who has her poultry houses equipped in the above fashion reports twenty-six eggs from her flock of less than a hundred hens on a day recently when her thermometer on the back porch registered 30 below zero. Muslin is cheaper than window glass and is also better for the biddies. Another who has tried muslin in place of the upper window sash reports that dampness on the floor has disappeared since the change was made.

POTASH FROM SEAWEED.

Investigations which have been made by the department of agriculture with a view to finding practical sources for the securing of commercial potassium seem to have demonstrated that an ample supply of this valuable fertilizing element is to be got from the beds of kelp or giant seaweed which are found over considerable areas along the Pacific coast shore line. This weed extracts the potassium salts from the sea water, and when the weeds are dried the potassium exudes to the surface in the shape of potassium chloride. The dried plants contain from 25 to 30 per cent of the chloride, and it is estimated that if properly handled these beds would produce annually for an indefinite period of time 1,000,000 tons of potassium chloride, worth $40,000,000.

A TRAINLOAD OF STEERS FREEZE.

An incident of the period of severe cold in January, which reached a climax in a temperature of from 35 to 42 degrees below zero through the northern tier of states, that will probably not be recorded again in a generation, was the freezing to death of eighteen carloads of fat steers that were snowbound for fifty-six hours on the C., R. I. and P. railway between Neola and Council Bluffs. It is said that as the animals began to freeze they remained standing, and when the discovery of their plight was made the entire trainload, totaling some 360 head, were stark and stiff and still on their feet. If the steers were worth $70 a head the damages that will have to be paid by the railroad will be $25,200.

BURNING STUMPS.

The following method is recommended for treating stumps prior to burning them: Bore a hole in the center of each stump to a depth of a foot with a two inch augur, fill the hole one-fourth full of powdered saltpeter and the remainder with coal oil, filling a second time with coal oil when the oil first applied is absorbed. This job should be done in the spring, and in the fall it is said the stumps will burn, roots and all. Under this method it is claimed that the saltpeter dries the sap, while the oil penetrates the wood thoroughly and tends to make the combustion complete.

Official Paper of Pennington County

Have you cleaned up your yard yet?

Spring looks as though it had come to stay.

Corner lot base ball during the past week has been a common sight.

Our want column is a sure business getter. Try a want ad, only 5 cents a line.

Read over the Want and For Sale column. You may derive considerable benefit from it.

Every exchange we have chanced to look over has something about its home town organizing a base ball team. Let's get busy ourselves.

On account of it causing a delay in the "makeup" of our paper, we have decided to run all Want and For Sale ads under one head, which appears on another page.

The Republican District Convention will be held in this city May 15th, at the Auditorium. We certainly will be able to accommodate the delegates in first-class manner.

The Appeal to Reason, a Socialistic organ that had many subscribers in all parts of the country, has suspended publication. It was hardly a socialistic organ from the sense of the less radical element belonging to that organization, but decidedly of the red flag order. It did little but excite many of its readers to deeds in which rich red blood flowed freely, and its suspension is heralded with much satisfaction by those who believe in law and order.

The above was taken from the Virginian, at Virginia, Minnesota. The Appeal to Reason, according to the local organization, still comes to this city regularly. If it had been true that it suspended publication, what a blessing it would be to the public.

RIVER RISES.

During the past week Red Lake River has been gradually rising and at this writing is far above its normal stage. It is sufficient now to run the water power light plant and the power is as good now as it was in former years, and without a doubt the city will be able to use it continually, the new plant lying idle without any expense to the city.

Considerable time has been spent watching the fish and we find that they are still plentiful although a large number have died off during the winter for want of air, and no doubt there will be lots this summer or as soon as the lake begins to break up, which, if the weather continues as at present, will be but a short time.

Andrew Lasda, who has the new homestead farm on section 22, town of Kratka, came up from Minneapolis last Saturday and will make his home on the farm. He will do a lot of breaking this season.

James O'Brien is moving his farm residence this week and will put a new addition and a cement foundation to it.

Pete Hedeen came up from Nelson last Saturday to look after his Kratka farm. Although his family are at Nelson, Mr. Hedeen will be here a large portion of the time looking after his farming and County Commissioner work.

Our snow has all left us and the land will be ready for seeding by Monday, and some of the farmers are starting the harrows this week. Don't wait for spring, for it is here, and the early sown grain is always the best. Rush your wheat into the ground as soon as possible.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

PRIMARY PLAN IS BEATEN

Republican State Central Committee Tables Motion for Voluntary Presidential Ballot.

The Republican state central committee, in session at St. Paul, tabled a motion to adopt the Caswell plan for a voluntary presidential primary on a vote of 23 to 7.

The date for the delegate state convention was set for Thursday, May 16, at the Minneapolis armory.

May 13 was selected as the date for the county conventions. The old basis of representation of five delegate at large for each county and one delegate for each 250 votes, based on the vote at the last state election, was chosen.

July 2 was named as the date for the convention to select a state ticket. It will be in the St. Paul Auditorium. June 28 was named as the date for the county conventions to name delegates to the state convention.

May 15 was selected as the date upon which to hold the congressional conventions to pick delegates to the national convention at Chicago, June 18.

FLYING AUTO IN COLLISION

Seven St. Paul Firemen Hurt, Two Probably Fatally.

As a result of the collision of the new automobile squad wagon of the St. Paul fire department and a runaway team Michael McGarry and Nicholas Savage are dying, all hope of recovery having been abandoned.

Frank Green, another member of the squad, who was seriously injured, will recover. Lieutenant James Niles and Hugh Connolly both left the hospital and are rapidly recovering from their injuries at home.

Thomas Kelly was only bruised in the accident. George Swicklo and Ed Bayers, driver, are much improved and both will recover.

The "flyer" was running at a terrific clip in answer to a fire call when the collision occurred. A runaway team swung directly in front of the squad wagon. Eyewitnesses declare that the apparatus made two complete somersaults and landed on the sidewalk.

One of the horses of the wagon was disemboweled and the other dashed up the street unhurt. The wagon was totally wrecked.

The front of the squad wagon was torn to pieces and the apparatus was damaged generally.

EVIDENCE IS INSUFFICIENT

Grand Jury Refuses to Indict Minneapolis Murder Suspect.

Frank J. Quartemont of Minneapolis, assistant superintendent of the commissary department of the Soo line, held for several days in connection with the murder of Alice Matthews in the Mill City on March 23, has been released from police custody. Quartemont had been held on a warrant charging murder in the first degree.

The grand jury reported a "no bill." Quartemont refused to make a statement after his release.

The action of the jury was predicted. Deductions were made from the fact that the police introduced no witnesses before the grand jury other than those who had been interviewed by newspaper reporters and who knew but simple circumstantial evidence relative to Quartemont. Even this circumstantial evidence fizzled out.

CALLS TRACHOMA A MENACE

Dr. Bracken Fears Whites May Get Disease From Indians.

Children in the schools in the northern part of the state are in danger of contracting trachoma from the Indians of the White Earth reservation, according to Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health. At a meeting of the executive committee of the board to be held shortly he will discuss precautionary measures.

"Indians no longer wards of the government, who send their children to the public schools, may be the cause of white children getting it," Dr Bracken said.

GIRL CRUSHED TO DEATH

Fatally Hurt While Operating Elevator in Duluth Hotel.

Miss Alino Sackso, eighteen years old, was crushed to death by the elevator in the St. Louis hotel at Duluth. She was running the car. The girl's cries gave the alarm. A cool headed guest rushed to the cage and stopped it. The girl's body, pinned by the automatic door, then fell out.

She was so terribly mangled that she died on the way to the hospital.

Fatal Fall From Truck.

Henry Heltes[illegible], seventeen years of age, was [illegible] killed at St. Paul while trying to catch a ride on a hook and ladder truck which was returning from a grass fire. It is believed that he [illegible] off the truck and under the wheels or that he was struck by a passing automobile.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Minnesota's free employment agencies found situations for 2,986 persons during the month ending March 31, according to the report made by Hugh Jennings, superintendent of employment bureaus, to Labor Commissioner W. F. Houk. Of these the Minneapolis bureau placed 1,531, the St. Paul bureau 826 and the Duluth office found places for 629. The average cost to the state was 25 cents for each situation found.

Judge Hascal R. Brill of the district court of Ramsey county holds that marriages entered into outside Minnesota for the purpose of evading limitations imposed by the state's divorce laws are void. The decision was made in the case of Mrs. James S. Carey, Jr., against her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Carey were married in December at Hudson, Wis., within a month after Carey had been divorced in Minnesota.

F. H. Peterson of Moorhead, who served eight years in the state senate from Clay county, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congress from the Ninth district. His opponent is Halvor Steenerson of Crookston, the incumbent. His platform as announced declares for the initiative, referendum and recall, parcels post and other measures.

The Southern Minnesota Better Development association was organized at Mankato by representatives of forty cities and towns. According to the recommendations of the committee on organization, as adopted by the convention, the association will embrace thirty-one counties across the state south of the Minnesota river up to Dakota county.

George R. Hawes, mine rescue engineer, has begun organizing the miners in the iron country with a view to eliminating underground disasters. They are being instructed in fighting fires and other forms of death in the mines. Oxygen helmets are being provided, through the use of which deadly gases may be resisted for hours.

Returning from a conference with medical experts of the United States Indian bureau in Washington Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, declared that the condition of the White Earth Indians, where trachoma and tuberculosis are prevalent, is a constant menace to the entire state.

The midsummer meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be held at International Falls June 20 and 21. The dates were selected at a meeting of the executive board of the association held in Minneapolis. As yet no program has been made up, but the topics will be wholly agricultural.

Arbor day is to be celebrated throughout Minnesota on Friday, April 26. Governor Eberhart issued the Arbor and Bird day proclamation calling on all citizens to help in the work by planting trees and beautifying lawns and public grounds.

The total collections for the United States customs department of Minnesota for the month of March were $145,392.91, as against $60,708.82 for the same month in 1911.

Alderman Charles D. Gould has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for mayor of Minneapolis.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

J. C. McClure is dead in the Red Wing hospital, where he had been a patient for several months. Mr. McClure was born in Virginia March 1, 1834. He came West with his parents and settled first in Indiana and Illinois. He had been a resident of Red Wing since 1855. For many years Mr. McClure practiced law in Red Wing. He also served in the Minnesota legislature.

Charles G. Hoyt, aged sixty-four, a pioneer miller of Minneapolis and a member of the Tennant & Hoyt company of Lake City, died at the latter place after an illness of a week following a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Hoyt located in Minneapolis in 1854.

Dr. Oscar H. Hall, a prominent homeopathic physician of St. Paul, after a lingering illness, is dead. He was a veteran of the Civil war.

Miss Fannie Jones, veteran Minneapolis saleswoman, who was employed by one firm nearly half a century, is dead after a prolonged illness.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

At an adjourned term of the district court of Freeborn county the Glenville riot cases remaining on the calendar were dismissed on motion of the county attorney. Nearly a year ago Dr. J. P. Freeman of Glenville, while leaving his store in the evening to go to his home, was seized by several men, thrown to the ground and tarred and feathered. One case brought to trial resulted in a verdict of not guilty.

Left standing in the baby carriage the six months old daughter of L[illegible] and W. Helgman of St. Paul was blown under a team of horses and trampled so badly that she died from the injuries in about an hour.

Frank Tuttle, fourteen years old, son of Charles Tuttle of Stewartville, was drowned in the Zumbro river while riding on an ice cake.

DENMARK.

King Fredrick has received a most sympathetic letter from the premier of Iceland in which he, on behalf of the people of Iceland, expresses his joy that the king's health has reached a point where it may be said that he is out of all danger, at least for the present. It is reported in Copenhagen that this evidence of the good will of the people of Iceland has pleased the Danish monarch exceedingly much. It will be remembered that it was not so very long ago that the relations between Denmark and its Far Northern dependency were not of an exceptionally friendly nature. In view of this fact this expression of sympathy on the part of the Icelanders is hailed with delight all over Denmark.

The various societies organized for the country's defense held a joint meeting in Copenhagen not long ago when a lecture was delivered by Lieutenant Ewald on "The Importance of Strengthening Our National Defense." This question, stated the speaker, was getting to be uppermost in the minds of all Scandinavians, not only in Denmark, but in Sweden and Norway as well. Lieutenant Ewald presented stereopticon views and held forth the strength as well as the weakness of the Danish navy and made a plea for a greater and more powerful navy.

The high school play, "The Private Secretary" will be presented to the public April 19th, at the Auditorium. You must be sure to attend as it's a good comedy play.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hoiden moved to Thief River Falls, shipping their household goods Monday and themselves leaving Tuesday. They intend to re-engage in the restaurant business in their new location.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

Real Estate Deal: George Elder last week sold the Mrs. Douglas farm, 2½ miles north of this city to Emil Griebstein. The farm consisted of 152½ acres and is along Thief river. This is one of the finest farms in this section of the state, and it was sold for $50.00 per acre.

Monday morning Chas. Newbery left for his farm east of this city. Mr. Newbery stated that he had about 75 acres to seed, after which he would break the balance of his land. He has a large steam engine and six plows with which he will do the work.

The following from the Greenbush Tribune gives the sentiment of the people in that city in regard to our accommodations, etc.: "Those from here attending the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra concert in Thief River Falls Friday evening were T. A. Torgerson, Bert Severson, Ben Dalby, Jack Von Rohr and E. R. Umpleby. The music furnished by the orchestra was very good, as was also the vocal music. Thief River has a splendid building for such events, and no doubt the outsiders would attend special attractions like the orchestra entertainment if it were possible to get back without spending so much time, and were sure of hotel accommodations if they were obliged to lay over."

Roosevelt Leads.

Very few people of this city took advantage of the ballot which we have run for a couple of weeks. But those who have been so kind as to express their sentiment, favor Roosevelt. The vote for President is as follows:

Roosevelt,	7	Taft,	1
LaFollette,	4	Clark,	1

Under Debs' name on one ballot there was very plainly written, "Recommended for the gallows." This person believed in expressing his opinion about Debs.

For Governor the vote is as follows.

Eberhart	5
Gordon	2
Lee	2

In favor of continuing Taft administration in office—No, 11; Yes, 2. To continue Eberhart administration in office—No, 4; Yes, 9. In favor of allowing the people to vote upon presidential candidates at the caucuses—No, 3; Yes, 8.

Married

At the home of the bride's parents in the town of Norden occurred the marriage of Miss Laura Parbst to Joseph G. Feragan on Easter morning, April 7th. William A. Parbst and Mary Anderson acted as witnesses for the occasion.

Miss Parbst is well known in this city, as she formerly lived here and attended the Central School some years ago. Her many friends wish her much happiness during her wedded life. Mr. Feragan has for some time been a resident of this county and has many friends in the town of Norden who wish him happiness. Rev. A. L. Larson, of the Zion church, officiated.

Miss Edith Pederson went home to spend her Easter and visit her mother.

HAVE A BANQUET

Employes of Langseth Mercantile Co. Give One in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Hamre.

Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock, led by Reverend and Mrs. Rosєland, the party was escorted to the Hotel Ogahmah, where the banquet took place; The dining hall of the hotel was very fittingly decorated for the occasion.

The 18 employes of the Langseth Mercantile Company gave this banquet in honor of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Hamre, the object being to show the good feeling and hearty co-operation that existed between Manager Hamre and the employes. The occasion was one of the grandest of its kind ever in this city.

Rev. Roseland acted as toastmaster and proved to be well versed in that line. Mr. Hamre responded with a few well chosen words expressing his appreciation of the confidence placed in him and the honor accorded him at this function. Toasts were given by Mr. Brown, Mr. Storholm and Mr. Thompson, all of which were decidedly well presented.

The supper was served by the Ogahmah people, Mr. and Mrs. Brummond, in 7 courses and in a manner that would be hard to equal anywhere in this section of the country. The music was furnished by "Mine Host," which was very appropriate.

The evening was very pleasantly spent and all expressed themselves as having had a delightful time. The party disbanded at about midnight. This affair will remain fresh in the memory of the guests for some time.

ERIE

From the Eleven Towns.

On account of increase in his practice and other personal reasons, Dr. Bowers has closed his hospital at Gully and is remodeling the building to be used for a hotel.

Frank Vorlicky, who has been working in the Times office at Thief River Falls for the past three months, has returned home and will assist his father with the spring work.

On account of his farm work coming on, Bennie Rustad has been compelled to leave Nelson's mill and Gilbert Hanson, of Hilda, has been secured to complete the job. It will probably take a month to finish up.

Dr. Hieber was called out Monday night to attend a sick child of Even Knutson ~~living~~ north of Highlanding, but the local line in that vicinity being on the bum has prevented our getting any further particulars.

A recent letter from C. L. Stucy advises us that he has already shipped his blacksmith outfit and will be here himself within a few days. Those who subscribed to assist in building a shop should pay in, so the lumber can be purchased and drawn as soon as the roads are in a condition to do so.

Supt. E. Mostue was up this way Wednesday and Thursday investigating the new school districts to be established in Star township. He was accompanied by his nephew, Arne L. Mostue, of Norway Lake; who is looking over the remaining vacant land in Star with a view of filing if he finds one to suit him.

Miss Anna E. Miller, who last fall took a trip to Florida for the benefit of her health, returned Monday and has resumed her position as foreman and assistant P. M. in this office. Miss Miller says that notwithstanding the beautiful winter weather of the South, she is glad to get back to Northern Minnesota. That nowhere in the South does one find the blue sky and exhilarating atmosphere of this part of the country. And in her opinion these two factors are more conducive to the simple joy of living than any conditions that the South has to offer.

RIVER RISES.

During the past week Red Lake River has been gradually rising and at this writing is far above its normal stage. It is sufficient now to run the water power light plant and the power is as good now as it was in former years, and without a doubt the city will be able to use it continually, the new plant lying idle without any expense to the city.

Considerable time has been spent watching the fish and we find that they are still plentiful although a large number have died off during the winter for want of air, and no doubt there will be lots this summer or as soon as the lake begins to break up, which, if the weather continues as at present, will be but a short time.

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

PRIMARY PLAN IS BEATEN

Republican State Central Committee Tables Motion for Voluntary Presidential Ballot.

The Republican state central committee, in session at St. Paul, tabled a motion to adopt the Caswell plan for a voluntary presidential primary on a vote of 23 to 7.

The date for the delegate state convention was set for Thursday, May 16, at the Minneapolis armory.

May 13 was selected as the date for the county conventions. The old basis of representation of five delegate at large for each county and one delegate for each 250 votes, based on the vote at the last state election, was chosen.

July 2 was named as the date for the convention to select a state ticket. It will be in the St. Paul Auditorium. June 28 was named as the date for the county conventions to name delegates to the state convention.

May 15 was selected as the date upon which to hold the congressional conventions to pick delegates to the national convention at Chicago, June 18.

FLYING AUTO IN COLLISION

Seven St. Paul Firemen Hurt, Two Probably Fatally.

As a result of the collision of the new automobile squad wagon of the St. Paul fire department and a runaway team Michael McGarry and Nicholas Savage are dying, all hope of recovery having been abandoned.

Frank Green, another member of the squad, who was seriously injured, will recover. Lieutenant James Niles and Hugh Connolly both left the hospital and are rapidly recovering from their injuries at home.

Thomas Kelly was only bruised in the accident. George Swickle and Ed Bayers, driver, are much improved and both will recover.

The "flyer" was running at a terrific clip in answer to a fire call when the collision occurred. A runaway team swung directly in front of the squad wagon. Eyewitnesses declare that the apparatus made two complete somersaults and landed on the sidewalk.

One of the horses of the wagon was disemboweled and the other dashed up the street unhurt. The wagon was totally wrecked.

The front of the squad wagon was torn to pieces and the apparatus was damaged generally.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Minnesota's free employment agencies found situations for 2,986 persons during the month ending March 31, according to the report made by Hugh Jennings, superintendent of employment bureaus, to Labor Commissioner W. F. Houk. Of these the Minneapolis bureau placed 1,531, the St. Paul bureau 826 and the Duluth office found places for 629. The average cost to the state was 25 cents for each situation found.

Judge Hascal R. Brill of the district court of Ramsey county holds that marriages entered into outside Minnesota for the purpose of evading limitations imposed by the state's divorce laws are void. The decision was made in the case of Mrs. James S. Carey, Jr., against her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Carey were married in December at Hudson, Wis., within a month after Carey had been divorced in Minnesota.

F. H. Peterson of Moorhead, who served eight years in the state senate from Clay county, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congress from the Ninth district. His opponent is Halvor Steenerson of Crookston, the incumbent. His platform as announced declares for the initiative, referendum and recall, parcels post and other measures.

The Southern Minnesota Better Development association was organized at Mankato by representatives of forty cities and towns. According to the recommendations of the committee on organization, as adopted by the convention, the association will embrace thirty-one counties across the state south of the Minnesota river up to Dakota county.

George R. Hawes, mine rescue engineer, has begun organizing the miners in the iron country with a view to eliminating underground disasters. They are being instructed in fighting fires and other forms of death in the mines. Oxygen helmets are being provided, through the use of which deadly gases may be resisted for hours.

Returning from a conference with medical experts of the United States Indian bureau in Washington Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, declared that the condition of the White Earth Indians, where trachoma and tuberculosis are prevalent, is a constant menace to the entire state.

The midsummer meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be held at International Falls June 20 and 21. The dates were selected at a meeting of the executive board of the association held in Minneapolis. As yet no program has been made up, but the topics will be wholly agricultural.

Arbor day is to be celebrated throughout Minnesota on Friday, April 26. Governor Eberhart issued the Arbor and Bird day proclamation calling on all citizens to help in the work by planting trees and beautifying lawns and public grounds.

The total collections for the United States customs department of Minnesota for the month of March were $145,392.91, as against $60,708.82 for the same month in 1911.

Mr. Hamre responded with a few well chosen words expressing his appreciation of the confidence placed in him and the honor accorded him at this function. Toasts were given by Mr. Brown, Mr. Storholm and Mr. Thompson, all of which were decidedly well presented.

The supper was served by the Ogahmah people, Mr. and Mrs. Brummond, in 7 courses and in a manner that would be hard to equal anywhere in this section of the country. The music was furnished by "Mine Host," which was very appropriate.

The evening was very pleasantly spent and all expressed themselves as having had a delightful time. The party disbanded at about midnight: This affair will remain fresh in the memory of the guests for some time.

If You Could Watch Ten Years

If you could watch a prepared roof for ten years—see the effect of snow and hail and ice and heat and frost and wind and fire, you'd certainly know whether that was the roof you wanted or not.

You can do it. In ten minutes time you can determine the effect of ten years of severe wear on any prepared roofing. We've embodied six tests—tests which correspond to ten years of the hardest kind of wear—in a book. It is yours for the asking at our dealer's. The information it contains will enable you to absolutely settle the question of which prepared roofing will last longest and require least repairs.

When you make the tests, include a sample of

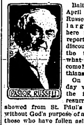
JESUS NOW A SPIRIT NO LONGER FLESH

It Was His Soul That Died, His Soul That Was Resurrected.

Pastor Russell, in Baltimore, Exploded a Theory Which Has Been Held Tenaciously by Many Theologians—Second of a Remarkable Series of Sermons on the Resurrection.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Baltimore, Md., April 14.—Pastor Russell addressed large audiences here to-day. We report one of his discourses from the text, "With what body do they come?"—I Corinthians xv, 35.

On last Lord's day we discussed the fact of the resurrection, and showed from St. Paul's words that without God's purpose of a resurrection those who have fallen asleep in death would have perished as brutes.

You will recall also that we demonstrated that it is not the body, but the soul, that is promised a resurrection—that it was our Lord's soul that went to sheol, to hades, to the death state, and that God raised Him from death on the third day. We noted a difficulty into which all Christendom was plunged by the theory that it is the body that is to be resurrected.

What Went to Heaven?

The ordinary thought in Christian minds in respect to Jesus' death and resurrection is that when He seemed to die He did not die; that he, the being, the soul, could not die; that, instead, He went to heaven, and then on the third day came back to get the body which had been crucified; that He took it to heaven forty days later marred with the print of the nails in His hands and feet, the thorns upon His brow and the spear mark in His side. What a ghastly thought!

Our Methodist friends have not yet changed their statement of the matter, namely, "He ascended up on high, taking His fleshly body with Him, and all that appertained thereto, and sat down on the right hand of God." This medieval statement correctly admits that the fleshly body was not the Lord's, but that He, the soul, took it with Him as luggage. The statement, "And all that appertained thereto," presumably refers to sandals, walking stick, etc.

All this is of a piece with the theory that the saints when they die go to heaven, and then, later, come back and get their bodies "and all things appertaining thereto"—the inconveniences, presumably, that they have been rid of for centuries! How many trunk loads of "things appertaining thereto" may be taken by some is not stated.

What Say the Scriptures?

The Bible presentation of this subject is every way reasonable, consistent and harmonious. St. Paul points out that "There is a natural body and there is a spirit body." He does not mean, and he does not say, that the spirit body is a human body glorified. Quite to the contrary. He declares that "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God"—no matter how glorified it might be. A human being would be so totally different from a spirit being that, as St. Paul says, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be"—in our change—and the Scriptures do not even attempt to give an explanation.

The Bible merely declares that as we now bear the image of the earthy (Adam), we shall, by the glorious resurrection change, be given a share in the nature and likeness of the Second Adam, our glorious Lord: "We shall be like Him, and see Him as He is"—and, be it noted, we must change from flesh and blood conditions to spirit conditions by resurrection power, in order that we may see Him as He is.

He Appeared and Disappeared.

Two lines of difficulties now present themselves, one of which can be answered, and the other cannot. The unanswerable difficulty is where a natural minded man undertakes to reason the subject out. St. Paul explains this, saying, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."

The Apostle proceeds (verses 36-50) to tell us that all men are natural men, except such as have been begotten by the Holy Spirit. All natural men will, in their resurrection, receive earthly or human bodies, while all spiritual ones, New Creatures in Christ, will receive spirit bodies.

Coming to the point of what is to be resurrected, we note that our Lord appeared in a body of flesh, and showed the disciples the print of the nails and the hole made by the spear. But we, perhaps, failed to note that only twice did He thus appear, and but for a few moments each time. His other six or seven appearances during that forty days were also very brief, and in various bodies—once as a gardener, another time as a traveler, His third time as a stranger on the shore, and to Saul of Tarsus as a spirit being of more than angelic brightness—"shining above the brightness of the sun at noonday."

Now we see more distinctly why our Lord did as He did. His disciples were natural men and therefore could not appreciate spiritual things. The Lord adopted the only reasonable way of helping them to understand that He was no longer dead—that He had risen from the dead.

Unleached wood ashes contain from 5 to 7 per cent of potash and are an excellent fertilizer. As is well known, the ashes from hard wood are much richer in potash than those from soft wood.

When one rides through a dairy section it does not take very much imagination to decide whether the farmers are making money or not. The appearance of their places is sufficient evidence.

The uses of concrete are multiplying very rapidly. Not only has it largely taken the place of plank for sidewalks, barn floors and posts, but it is giving very satisfactory results as a substitute for wooden railway ties.

Eggs are quite as likely to absorb odors from the things the hen eats as milk is to take on smells from the things the cows consume in the stable. And either smelly milk or eggs are not calculated to whet one's appetite.

Hogs are not usually recommended as a fertilizer for corn, but one of the best fields of corn that the writer remembers having seen as a boy was one in which some 200 350-pound porkers that died of hog cholera had been planted.

The middle of January a carload of potatoes from Scotland was unloaded at Portland, Me., to supply local needs. This is said to be the first time in her history as one of the leading potato states that Maine has had to import potatoes for her own use.

It is not only desirable for a girl to know how to sew well from the standpoint of being competent and self sufficient, but from that of economy as well. Fortunately it is neither degrading nor unladylike for a woman to know how to clothe herself.

A northern poultry keeper who has been getting good results from a flock of forty pullets has made the meat of one rabbit a part of their daily bill of fare. Besides, they get wheat in the morning, oats or spelts at noon, cracked corn at night, while water and milk, bone and ground oyster shell are provided every day.

Baby beef is the cheapest and most profitable to raise, and the first 200 pounds of growth in a shoat is produced considerably cheaper than the last 100 pounds if he is brought to a weight of 300 pounds. Almost invariably early gains are quickest and cheapest, and this is just as true of poultry and sheep as it is of hogs and cattle.

If the flock of hens is to be confined the coming season it will be a good idea to shut off a portion of their yard or a tract adjoining and sow rape. If this is allowed to get a good start it will furnish the hens a supply of the finest green food all summer and they will be still nibbling at the stalks after they are killed by the frost of early winter.

If there was ever a spring when the argument ought to be strong in favor of setting out a wood lot it is the present one, following a winter season when the very sight of soft coal is enough to give the householder who has been buying it and the good wife who has been using it and cleaning up after it a veritable nightmare. Medium sized wood lots set ten or a dozen years ago are now giving their owners a most refreshing substitute for this nastiest of fuels.

They have found out in experiments conducted in Rothamstead, England, on the royal agricultural farms that if soil is heated to a temperature of 212 degrees F. it will kill certain forms of destructive amoebic life and make it possible for the soil to yield double what it has been wont to do. This is good news, but just how the fellow who cannot now as things are buy a new range for his wife on a spring [illegible], make necessary fence repairs or repair the hog house or dairy barn can install and operate a steam heating plant to perfect the amoebae on his many acres we have not been quite able to figure out.

Urine makes an excellent fertilizer for house plants, but it should be diluted by an equal volume of water before using.

In the feeding of a baby animal, human or otherwise, milk should not be expected to take the place of water. Milk is the food, water the drink.

The experience gained last year should guide us in meeting the duties of life this season. As years come and go let us separate the grain from the chaff and store up the golden harvest in the granary of old age.

Make all of the needed improvements on the farm before planting time. See that the fences, gates, barn, etc., are in good repair. Whitewash and paint will be a good investment in making the farmstead attractive.

It is said to be impossible to make a whistle out of a pig's tail, but a fellow living in Philadelphia has discovered a process whereby he converts cotton waste into artificial rubber. The imitation is said to be excellent and to wear well.

Some people have an idea that the only way to make dairying profitable is to have every possible contrivance that one can think of. This is hardly right or just. Many a man has been a successful dairyman with a limited equipment.

It is always well to discount from 100 to 300 per cent the yields that are reported and pictured in some seed catalogues that are being distributed about now. Oats are not going to yield, as promised, 150 bushels per acre, nor corn 120, nor potatoes 700 bushels.

Those fellows down in Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma who have been pretty badly blocked with snow the past few weeks put up with the inconveniences of the situation very good naturedly, for in this same snow they see the moisture necessary to the maturing of a crop the coming season.

Two neighbors living near Hazard, Ky., have had a long drawn out legal battle over an eight dollar hog, which was settled after having been twice in court by a decision in a third trial, in which the jury agreed that each litigant should bear his own share of the costs, which altogether amounted to a trifle over $500. Besides this, each party paid his own attorneys. It is needless to say that the cause of all this trouble was long ago converted into pork steak and bacon.

Husbandmen have been making hay for centuries, but it was not until a few months ago that a Mississippi valley farmer who evidently thinks as he works devised a plan for keeping loads of hay on hayracks from tipping over. He [illegible] curved boards running parallel with the sledge runners and fastened a short distance to either side and at a height of about a foot and a half from the ground. If the load tipped to either side these supports would rest on the ground and prevent a spill.

A north Iowa county has arranged a corn growing contest for the present season that has several features which make it worth reporting. A real estate association having offices in several towns in the county has offered prizes for the best five acre tracts of corn raised in the county during the season. The winner of the first prize will get $[illegible] and the other four amounts ranging from this down to $20. Further interest has been added to the contest from the fact that since the prizes were [illegible] farmers in different parts of the country have agreed to [illegible] of the prizes [illegible] among the winners. It will be interesting to know just what the good effects of this contest will be to the corn raisers of this county this year.

A pug nosed, bowlegged canine, with a gait like a hippopotamus, that the writer saw the other day had just been bought for $450. His pedigree was the only thing that saved his face, for not one person in ten would have [illegible]

Many people would be greatly benefited if they would throw their medicine bottles into the back alley and substitute for tonics and what not plenty of fresh, pure air, breathed deeply, sufficient sleep and rest and proper exercise, with a generous allowance of pure water and rich milk.

It is not strange that the Florida, Mississippi or California winter appeals strongly to persons who have reached sixty and whose blood is thinner and flows a good deal slower than in days gone by. With means at their disposal they are perfectly justified in leaving the latitude of blizzards and 30 below zero weather.

The jackknife test for determining the vitality of seed corn may be all right some seasons, but the fellow who relies on it entirely this season in view of the generally poor condition of the seed will likely have quite a bit of time on his hands next husking time to whittle sticks or most any old thing else with this same jackknife.

That dairying is well worth while, even out in the drier country, is indicated in the report of a Ward county (N. D.) farmer, who has fed and clothed a family of thirteen children on the income from seven dairy cows and who claims he has made more profit off this little dairy herd than many of his neighbors have growing grain on two sections of land.

Those having horses they intend to ship to Canadian markets will save themselves both expense and delay in shipment by having the horses inspected by the proper veterinary authority before putting them aboard cars. In case the inspection is not made in this way they will have to be taken from the car at the international line and the job done there.

Farm fertilizer is a very desirable byproduct of dairy operations, but cows should not be kept as manure producers alone when their milk is not meeting their board bill. Weed these no accounts out by the use of the Babcock test and get in place of them cows that will give enough milk to pay for their feed and leave a margin of profit, besides the manure byproduct.

The value of Alaska's mineral production for 1911 is estimated at $20,870,000. Of this amount $17,150,000 was of gold. This total takes no account of timber, fish, furs or other products. In view of the marvelous wealth of this possession it is interesting to recall that when Seward purchased Alaska from Russia in 1867 at $7,200,000 he was considered pretty near loony.

A mighty nice illustration of a common failure to adapt means to ends is noticed in the case of the farmer who sells prime hogs for as low as $4.50 to $5 and then goes to the meat market and shells out from 20 to 22 cents a pound for bacon, from 18 to 20 cents for ham, 15 cents for pork chops and 15 cents a pound for lard. And there have never been finer hams and bacons than those our grandfathers used to smoke.

"Baby beef" is a term that is properly applied to the carcass of a calf that is kept fat and growing from birth and marketed at about eighteen months old. Not only is such beef the finest that can be produced—juicy and tender—but it is coming to be pretty well recognized among cattlemen that it is also the most profitable beef that can be produced where feeding and market conditions are at all favorable. With the advent of the silo in the corn belt to take the place of summer pasture the conditions are just right to raise such beef to advantage.

States which are doing much along the line of horse breeding have within the past few years passed laws which require that stallions which are to be used as sires shall not only be examined and pronounced clean and sound from the standpoint of physical health, but that a certificate showing that they are pure bred and properly registered shall be displayed near the stalls in which they are kept. This is merely a safeguard that every horse raiser who uses them is entitled to. These same laws also provide that where a grade sire is used this fact shall also be plainly stated on a poster placed in his stall, while a certificate of sound health and physical condition is required, the same as with registered horses.

The chestnut blight, which is said to have been introduced into America in chestnuts imported from Japan, is fast killing chestnut trees in all directions from New York city, where it first got a foothold. The blight is caused by a fungus that gets under the bark in places where there is a cut or break. The tree is girdled under the bark, and often the damage is not detected until the tree is nearly dead. Owing to the way in which the blight works, there is no spray which can reach it. Experts in the federal agricultural department who have been waging a campaign against the pest recommend the felling and burning of all chestnut trees within a zone of twenty miles about the infected area as the only method which will be adequate to hold it in check.

THE FORMALIN TREATMENT.

Within a short time it will be necessary to plant the early potatoes. If a nice smooth crop is desired at digging time the seed should be disinfected before planting. This may be done by [illegible] of 40 per cent [illegible] fifteen gallons of water in a [illegible] barrel and suspending in this in a gunny sack for a period of about two hours the potatoes intended for seed. After soaking the desired length of time the sack should be suspended above the barrel and the solution allowed to drain back in. When the potatoes have dried for a short time they should be cut and planted. The amount of the disinfecting solution mentioned should be sufficient for the treatment of from twenty to twenty-five bushels of seed. For the benefit of those who may not be acquainted with the fact it may be said a disinfecting of the seed in the manner just described will not mean scab free potatoes unless the land on which the seed is planted is free from scab spores. This means that a patch of land that produced scabby potatoes last season should be put to some crop other than potatoes, while the latter should be put on new ground or that which has grown some other crop than potatoes for the past year or two. Treating seed oats with the formalin solution will also prevent smut. This is best done by spreading the seed out on the granary floor and applying the solution with a sprinkler. The oats should then be shoveled over and a second application given and shoveled over again. The aim should be to have each kernel of grain moist, but not wet. The seed grain should be treated the day before using and the pile covered with a canvas or gunny sacking for the night. The seed should be dry enough to separate well before planting. As with the potatoes, to grow a clean crop the seed grain should be sown on land which did not produce smutty grain last season.

BLOWING UP MUDHOLES.

Blowing up mudholes is a rather unique method of road improvement that is being tried with very satisfactory results in Kansas. On one of the roads in Fairview township, Stafford county, Kan., was a mudhole a quarter of a mile long that was impassable even for light buggies. The trustee having the work in charge had read of deep plowing with dynamite and decided to employ this rather radical method of getting rid of the mudhole. At intervals of every 100 feet along this road he drilled holes and inserted in each a stick of dynamite and then touched them off. He not only got rid of the mud in this way, but the explosion broke up the hardpan beneath, which was responsible for the mudhole. This made drainage possible. He then filled up the holes, graded up the road, and from that time on it has been one of the best in that section. So successful was this method that it is to be tried on other mudholes in the same county. Incidentally this plan not only gives good results in getting rid of mudholes on roads, but would work equally well with ponds that are the result of an impervious hardpan.

THE OX WARBLE.

In a few weeks now numerous lumps or swellings are likely to appear on the backs of the cattle, and especially is this true of those which last season had the range of woodland pastures. The swellings referred to are caused by the presence of the grubs of the cattle botfly or gadfly. The eggs of these insects are thought to be deposited on the legs of the cattle and are taken into their mouths when the animals lick themselves. While in the digestive tract they develop into grubs and make their way through the tissues of the body into the backs of the animals, causing the lumps mentioned above. Here they should be destroyed, for if left undisturbed they will finally emerge, fall to the ground and bury themselves in the soil, where they undergo a transformation and reappear as flies, ready to lay more eggs to make more trouble for the cattle. The grubs may be squeezed out of the backs of the animals, but it is painful to them. Some make an opening in the skin with a very sharp knife blade and then squeeze them out, when a few drops of kerosene will put the little pests out of commission.

DRINK ALL YOU WANT.

The department of chemistry of the University of Illinois has recently completed a series of exhaustive experiments whose object was to find out whether drinking of water at meal time was beneficial or detrimental to health. Students in the chemistry department were divided into several squads, the individuals in which drank water in varying degrees with their meals, from none whatever up to an excessive amount—two or three pints. Careful note was taken of the health of the different squads, as indicated in general feelings, vitality, endurance, etc. The conclusions of those conducting the experiments completely upsets the long established notion that the use of water is injurious. On the contrary, it was found that the liberal drinking of water while eating promoted digestion, the dilution of the gastric juices being especially beneficial. In all particulars did the experiments conducted show that the liberal use of water was healthful.

A note which the writer hardly knows whether to classify under the head of agricultural or political is the distribution of packets of vegetable and flower seeds by congressmen just a few days before the circulation of their nomination papers [illegible]

A rather interesting [illegible] has been noted on a trolley line which runs through a section in which rabbits abound—namely, that the rabbits seem to be attracted by the bright lights of the cars at night, with the result that a number are killed every trip. Not long since a jack rabbit met a like fate.

During the past winter altogether too much grain was shipped to market in the raw state instead of the finished animal products of the farm. This movement was due to the high prices for the grain and relatively low prices offered for steers, sheep and hogs. From the standpoint of fertility of the soil it is an unfortunate situation.

A very interesting trait common to both dogs and their wild cousins, wolves, is the disposition which each shows to put up an unearthly and prolonged howl when a bell is rung in their hearing or a whistle given a prolonged blast, and a further interesting fact is that often they will respond in nearly the same key as that of whistle or bell.

Thin and sickly offspring at lambing or farrowing time are an unfailing evidence of a scant or unbalanced ration and improper quarters for both ewe and sow in the weeks prior to the birth of their young. It is merely a working out of the law of cause and effect. The wise breeder will appreciate this fact and will make these conditions of food and housing the best possible.

A little Iowa girl, Lois Edmonds, baked a loaf of bread not long ago. This was nothing extraordinary, as hundreds of other girls and mothers did the same thing the same day, but this particular loaf happened to be the best out of 1,400 loaves that were baked by as many other Iowa girls. Her reward for this achievement was a trip to Washington, with all expenses paid. In the same company with this prize bread baker were ten Iowa boys, winners of corn growing prizes in as many districts of the state.

The $1,000 silver cup offered by the International Harvester company at the land and irrigation exposition held recently in New York city for the best thirty ears of corn produced in the United States was awarded to W. H. Dorin of Halifax county, Va., on thirty ears of Boone County White. The excellence of this exhibit is appreciated when it is understood that it won out in competition with the best corn in the United States and against an entry of thirty ears by L. D. Clore of Indiana, who won first place in the national corn show last year.

The building of a really profitable dairy herd on the farm will result in the removal of the so called "drudgery" in connection with cow milking. It is the miserably small yield per cow and the consequent small cash return which cause many a man to object to dairying. He really does not object to the work or kind of work, but objects because he feels it does not pay. You do not hesitate a moment on doing any honorable job which you know will pay. When improvement in any line is begun objectionable features begin to remove themselves in proportion to the advancement made.

On one of the Wisconsin state experimental farms some investigations have been made as to the relative cost of storage room in a silo and in a haymow. The cement silo on the farm costs $293 and has a capacity of 100 tons, which makes the storage cost per ton a trifle less than $3. The mow in the average barn costs about $10 per ton storage capacity to build. With two tons and a half of ensilage worth one ton of good hay it is seen that there is a margin in favor of the silo as compared with the haymow of $2.50 for each two and a half tons of silage, or a dollar on each ton of silage.

Figures gathered show that there were consumed in the United States during 1911, 7,670,000,000 pounds of sugar, or an average of 81.78 pounds per capita. This is an increase of .53 of a pound over the consumption of the fiscal year 1907 and an increase of nearly ten pounds per capita over the sugar consumption of 1901. Of this total it is estimated that 1,105,000,000 pounds were of beet sugar of home production, while home grown cane sugar constituted 700,000,000 pounds. This shows a rapid increase in the production of beet sugar, which prior to 1907 never had exceeded the volume of cane sugar.

Since peaches produce fruit on the new wood and are very rapid growers they will stand heavy annual pruning. In a general way new growth on young trees should be cut back one-half or more, while there should be a vigorous thinning of shoots that are too close to interfere. If the pruning job is delayed until the buds swell and show plainly, the pruning may be made to take the place in part of a thinning of the fruit. If the soil in which the trees are growing is rich and they show a decided tendency to produce "nothing but leaves" the late winter or spring pruning should be omitted and the trees pruned instead in late summer. This, as in the case of overthrifty apple trees, will tend to check wood growth and produce fruit buds for the following season.

ABOUT GROWING ONIONS.

For those of our readers living in the northern states, where spring will be on directly, and who would like to try raising onions, we have a few suggestions that may be helpful. First, the ground on which the crop is to be [illegible] plowed and harrowed and floated as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring. Best results will be had if the seed bed is well firmed and in the finest tilth. The seed should then be drilled in to a depth of half an inch in rows from fourteen to sixteen inches apart, depending upon the variety. The seeder should be tested on a board floor in order to ascertain how many seed will be dropped in a given distance. If they can be sown so that they will be on the average about an inch apart, it is well. Before the seed is sown, however, it should be tested as to germinating power and more or less seed sown to make up for this. The best seed is none too good, and in the long run money will be saved by paying two or three dollars extra, if need be, to get fine pedigreed seed. In the section in which the writer has lived the red globe onion is very popular, but this matter would be determined by the preference of the buyers in the nearest market centers. In northern latitudes, where the growing and ripening season is none too long, the seed should be sown just as soon as the soil can be worked. The onions should be cultivated as soon as the rows can be seen, should be hand weeded once or twice and thinned to about two inches apart in the row. If a dry spell should come on, especially after a driving rain, care should be taken to give thorough cultivation, as this may mean the saving or losing of the crop. If commercial fertilizers are desired, and there is no question that it pays to use them, they may be applied at the time the seed is sown, while a second application may be made after the onions are two or three inches high. If a very dry spell should come in July the field should be kept thoroughly cultivated, so as to preserve a dust mulch. It costs about $60 per acre to raise and harvest a crop of onions, and one can count on from 40 to 60 cents a bushel f. o. b. shipping station. In the matter of yield one may reasonably expect from 500 to 600 bushels if the stand is good and growing conditions have been favorable.

SHOULD INVESTIGATE.

The writer is receiving many inquiries these days from readers living east of the Rocky mountains who are tired of the frightfully cold winter just past and are looking for a home place where the winter season is milder and where it doesn't take quite all a fellow can earn during the summer season to keep him and his family from freezing to death during the winter. We sympathize with our readers keenly in this matter and are advising them to take a trip to the west country, get acquainted with it first-hand, learn both its drawbacks and advantages and then, after a calm and sober balancing of points good and bad, settle in a section where one will feel most at home. Where one has considerable money to invest it is well to take plenty of time in making one's investigation of the property to be bought, and, as said in a recent department of these notes, it is always a good idea to limit one's mouthful in an investment way to what one can masticate nicely.

1,126 POUNDS OF BUTTER.

An Ohio Guernsey cow by the name of Spottswood Daisy Pearl has lately completed a year's milking record during which she gave 18,602.8 pounds of milk testing 5.14 and yielding 957.38 pounds of butter fat. On an 85 per cent fat basis this means a butter yield of 1,126 pounds, or considerably more than half a ton. It is interesting to note the raw products that were put in the hopper of this animated milk manufactory. In January, three months after freshening, she received daily five pounds of wheat bran, one and a half pounds cornmeal, four pounds brewers' grains, two pounds gluten meal, one and a half pounds cottonseed meal, two pounds old process oilmeal, one pound corn and cob chop, thirty pounds silage and ten pounds of hay. During succeeding months much the same ration, strong in concentrates, was given, but varying somewhat according to roughage available for the season. The grain ration was given in three feeds and was thoroughly soaked beforehand.

THE VALUE OF ONE SUGGESTION.

Once on a time a Minnesota farmer attended for the first time a farmers' institute in which a speaker recommended the use of the Babcock test. He forgot a good deal of what was said, but this stuck in his crop. He acted upon the advice and began testing his cows. He found on the showdown that there were just two out of the whole lot that were paying their keep. The rest he sold to the butcher and as he ran across them bought cows of large milking capacity that also showed up with a good test. That was twelve years ago. In the interval he has continued to improve his herd by purchase and breeding until today he has one of the most profitable as well as finest herds of Guernsey cows in the state. What this man has done others can do, and it is high time they were getting busy and weeding out the loafers.

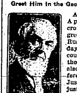
HOW JESUS PREACHED TO SPIRITS IN PRISON

Who They Are and the Cause of Their Imprisonment.

Pastor Russell Explodes the Theory That Jesus Preached to Dead Humans in Prison—Crowded Audiences Greet Him in the Georgia Capital.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Atlanta, Ga., April 28.—Two crowded audiences greeted Pastor Russell here today. One of his discourses was from the text, "Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened in the spirit, by which (two experiences—death and resurrection) He preached unto the spirits in prison" (I Peter iii, 18, 19).

This text has been made the basis for some very peculiar presentations. The difficulty in every case seems to be the failure to remember that the Bible always and everywhere teaches that the dead are really dead, that they know nothing, and that, therefore, it would be impossible to preach to the dead.

Spirits Once Disobedient.

The spirits to whom the message was given had proven themselves disobedient, says St. Peter. He even tells us the time of their disobedience—"in the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing."

Turning to Genesis vi, 1-5, we find there the cause of the disobedience of these angels who for a time had been permitted to see what they could do for the uplift of humanity, or, rather, permitted to demonstrate that the downward tendency of sin is incurable except in the manner which God has already arranged for through Messiah and His glorious reign of 1,000 years.

Instead of those angels helping mankind out of sin, they helped themselves into sin; and by so doing they increased the depravity amongst humanity until the astounding record is that "the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thought of his heart was only evil continually." The particular sin of those angels was that when they were granted the privileges of materializing—of taking human bodies—for the sake of helping and instructing mankind—they misused this power and took to themselves wives.

We are particularly told that the offspring of this improper union were giants, both physically and mentally superior to the fallen human family—"men of renown." The race thus in several centuries became so corrupt that apparently only Noah and his family were left uncontaminated.

It was then and there that God imprisoned these spirits ("angels, who kept not their first estate"), and are therefore called fallen angels, devils, demons. They were not imprisoned in some far-off world called hell, nor are they engaged there in stoking fires.

The record is that God cast them down, that they might not longer associate with the holy angels, but must be reserved in tartarus—our earth's atmosphere.—Jude 6; II Peter ii, 4, 5.

When imprisoned or cut off from the privilege of materialization, many of the fallen spirits continued their active opposition to God, after the manner of Satan. Hence they are spoken of as his angels, his messengers, and he is spoken of as Beelzebub, their Prince.

How Jesus Preached in Death.

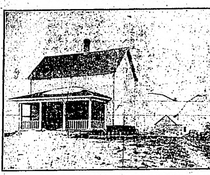
Here arises another question: If Jesus was really dead, as the Scriptures declare; if "He poured out His soul unto death" and made His soul an offering for sin," and His soul was not raised from the dead until the third day after His crucifixion, how could He in the meantime preach to spirits in prison, or to anybody else? We reply that He could preach in the same way that the Apostle refers to, saying, "Abel, being dead, yet speaketh" (Hebrews xi, 4); and again, in the same way that the blood of Abel is said to have cried to God—figuratively. Of one thing we are sure, namely, that Jesus gave no oral address while He was dead. He preached in the way we sometimes refer to when we say, "Actions speak louder than words."

It was the great object lesson which the fallen angels saw that constituted to them the great sermon that gave them a ground for hope. They admired Jesus' loyalty and faithfulness to God, but doubtless believed Him to be foolish; they never expected Him to arise from the dead.

But when they perceived His resurrection on the third day to glory, honor and immortality ("far above angels, principalities and powers"), His sermon to them was complete, namely, that "the wages of sin is death," but "the gift of God is eternal life" (Romans vi, 23). And as they realized thus the Power of God and the Love of God for His human creatures, the Apostle's words imply that this constituted to them a message of hope.

Doubtless there is much significance also in St. Paul's remarks, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge angels?" (I Corinthians vi, 3). We do know that the holy angels need no judging, no trial; hence the Apostle must refer to a trial, or judgment, or testing of these spirits in prison who were disobedient in the days of Noah.

Wakefield Farm at Waubun.



This is a sample of a mixed-blood farm of the better class on the White Earth reservation. Of the 2,448 mixed-bloods on the Hinton roll a big majority are engaged in farming, and the proportion of those who own their own lands is about as large as in most white communities. The passage of the Clapp act in 1906 gave the mixed-bloods a chance to sell off a portion of their lands and improve the rest. Previous to that time they did not do much farming. The above place was bought with the proceeds of a pine allotment.

Some of the mixed-bloods who sold their land squandered the money and are now either renters or laborers. They are all self-supporting, however, and some of them are busy making a new start, having learned the value of having money in the hard but very efficient school of experience.

MORMONS TO BE EXPELLED

Swedish Riksdag Will Take Action to Rid Country of Proselyters—Norwegian Women Now Eligible to Hold Certain Offices—Danish King Pleased by Receipt of Sympathetic Message From Premier of Iceland.

SWEDEN.

Sweden has at least awakened to the fact that something radical must be done to check the proselyting of Mormon missionaries. It has now come to light that more than 100 Mormon missionaries have been proselyting in the country during the past year and Mormon agents who are regularly stationed in different parts of the country are to be expelled by act of the riksdag. The riksdag, it is understood, has had a long discussion over the question and has recently agreed on the Mormon expulsion and will grant a good sized fund for a thorough anti-Mormon campaign. During the past year or two Mormon missionaries have been making many converts and the result has been that many of these people have emigrated to Utah. It is not only against the doctrine of polygamy, which of course is entirely forbidden in Sweden, but also against the idea that Mormon missionaries are inducing people to leave the country that the Swedish government takes direct issue with.

Edward Ekstrand, assistant to the district superintendent of motive power for the Swedish government railway, is at present making a tour through Eastern and Western cities with a view of studying at close range the American railway system, as well as to visit railway shops at all the important railway centers. When in Chicago recently Mr. Ekstrand said: "Most of our railroads in Sweden are government lines. Our locomotives are smaller than the American locomotives. We use, however, the same vacuum brakes and some airbrakes. It is more than a thousand miles the long way of Sweden, and some lines run across country. I have visited several of the larger locomotive plants in America and soon expect to visit the Pennsylvania shops." Mr. Ekstrand spoke very highly of the American railway system, but thinks that there are too many railway accidents in the United States.

Dowager Queen Sofia has postponed her trip to Germany until the latter part of this month. The aged queen has suffered from an attack of influenza recently and she dared not undertake the journey at the time she had planned. Her chief delight is to visit the many institutions that she has endowed with substantial sums of money from time to time. The dowager queen is a very wealthy woman, but of a very philanthropic mind and perhaps as good hearted a queen as ever lived. For the protection of children she donated 1,000 crowns the other day. She is besides supporting several orphanages and charitable organizations, including the great Sofia Home, which is one of the largest hospitals in the country.

In order to avoid any possible misunderstanding at the Olympic games Secretary James E. Sullivan of the American committee some time ago requested the Swedish Olympic committee to forward full particulars in relation to the rules for the weight throwing contests (right and left hand). He has just received a letter from the Swedish committee stating that in these contests all the competitors will make their efforts with one hand and then the other. The best efforts will be added together to determine the competition.

Last year Swedish machinery to the extent of 40,820,780 crowns was exported to foreign countries, showing an increase over the previous year's exports amounting to several million crowns. De Laval's cream separator takes the lead in these exports. Petroleum and benzine machines have also been popular abroad, there being 6,151,381 crowns' worth of these machines exported.

The French Olympian games committee has decided to send 200 men to Stockholm this summer. Their expenses will be paid by the French government and it is likely that an appropriation amounting to 100,000 francs will be set aside for this purpose. France expects to show up well at the big games in Stockholm and she is anxious to capture some of the prizes.

During the month of February 452 persons emigrated to foreign countries. During the same month last year there were 674, which goes to show that emigration is on the decrease. This can also be gleaned from other reports, which show a decrease in every month during the past twelve months over the same period preceding it.

NORWAY.

In Norway, as we know, women are allowed to vote, but they are not allowed as yet to hold all kinds of offices. The upper house of parliament recently considered the question of offices which might be held by women. The royal recommendation was ratified, namely, that women were eligible to all offices except the following: First, members of the king's council; second, the ministerial office of the state church; third, diplomatic offices and consulships; fourth, military offices and police force; fifth, offices that may be established in the future for which it may be advisable to appoint only men. A proposition to allow women to hold office in the king's council was lost by a vote of 60 to 28, and another proposition to allow women to hold office of clergy in the church was lost by a vote of 49 to 39.

"A Word of Warning" is the title of a recent brochure by Dr. Sven Hedin in which he warns both countries of the approaching Russian danger and urges both Norwegians and Swedes to be on their guard. The brochure has been widely circulated, not only in Sweden but in Norway as well, and there have, of course, in the latter country been comments pro and con regarding Dr. Hedin's contentions. The earnestness and ardency with which Dr. Hedin holds forth his warning would warrant many people to believe that there really may be some danger from Russian aggression.

A. H. Mahlmann and his wife, a young German couple newly married, have started from Christiania on a most novel honeymoon trip. The couple brought with them from Germany a large box nine feet long and four feet wide, the interior of which is so arranged as to serve as kitchen, bedroom and commissary. Underneath the box, which is of light wood, they fixed skis and tiny wheels, the latter to be used when there is no snow. Mahlmann and his wife push their little car over the country and declare that they are having a very delightful journey.

MARION S. NORELIUS.

TANGLE AT FERGUS FALLS

Strange Muddle Result of the Recent Election.

The Fergus Falls city council has canvassed the returns of the recent election, but the result leaves the situation as badly muddled as it was before.

The vote on license stood 546 in favor, 600 against and 87 blank. It has recently been discovered that under the charter a majority of all votes cast must be against license in order to prevent the granting of licenses, so that the blanks count the same as if cast in favor of license. On this theory the city council officially declared the city "wet."

W. H. McBride, the no license candidate, and E. T. Nelson, the license candidate, each received 603 votes for mayor. The council cast lots, Mr. McBride won and was duly declared mayor of the city.

This further complicates the situation, as three of the eight aldermen have taken the ground that a majority of the people voted against license and they do not propose to vote to grant licenses in view of this showing. It is presumed that the other five will vote to grant them, but if the mayor interposes a veto no licenses can be granted with three voting against them.

TO FIGHT FOR THE BALLOT

Minnesota Woman Suffrage Association Incorporates.

The Minnesota woman suffrage movement can now legally throw its Easter bonnet in the political ring and battle for the ballot to its heart's content. The Minnesota Woman Suffrage association has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. It is to be a sort of central body of the suffrage movement in Minnesota. Auxiliary bodies can become members of the association by paying 10 cents a year for each member of the auxiliary. This entitles the auxiliary to a representation in the deliberations of the central body.

The articles of incorporation state that the purpose of the organization is to obtain suffrage for women in Minnesota and the United States.

SAY MINE IS MAN KILLER

Fee Owners of the Norman Cancel Lease With Steel Trust.

Pointing to the fact that nineteen lives have been lost in the last eight months fee owners of the Norman mine at Virginia have filed notice of a cancellation of the lease, which runs to the Oliver Mining company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation.

The fee owners say the mine is being operated in a reckless manner and that it is being ruined for all future use after the lease expires next year. It is said another cavein occurred a few days ago, when scores of lives would have been lost if it had happened twenty minutes earlier or before the men quit work. The fee owners are said to be planning a suit for heavy damages.

He has opened headquarters at the West hotel, Minneapolis, and Gordon T. Bright is in charge.

The Spooner announcement has been preceded by circulation of petitions asking him to run. They were signed extensively in his own and surrounding counties and one circulated in Minneapolis received about seventy-five signatures.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Thirty thousand persons homeless, two thousand square miles of country inundated, thirty persons drowned and a financial loss of $10,000,000 constitute the result of a two-week flood in the Mississippi valley. These figures were arrived at by government engineers and officials of state levee boards engaged in fighting to maintain the Mississippi levees from Illinois to threatened points in Mississippi and Arkansas. Water is pouring into Arkansas through three new breaks in the levee south of Memphis. These gave way and several hundred square miles are flooded. Railroad traffic in these sections practically is paralyzed. Hundreds of persons still are menaced by the river at points in Lower Missouri, Northwest Tennessee and Arkansas. They are marooned in housetops, in trees and on anchored rafts.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Dr. G. A. Bading, nonpartisan candidate for mayor of Milwaukee, defeated Mayor Emil Seidel, the Socialist incumbent, by a vote of 42,002 to 30,200. With four Socialist holdover aldermen the new city council will be composed of twenty-six nonpartisan aldermen and eleven Socialists.

In an open letter to President Taft Senator Joseph Dixon, campaign manager for Colonel Roosevelt, declares that the president "will become the deliberate receiver of stolen goods" if he does not repudiate the action of certain federal officeholders in the Kentucky elections and institute proceedings against them.

In the Wisconsin presidential preference primary Senator La Follette carried every district in the state over President Taft by a ratio of 2 to 1. Taft, however, surprised La Follette's managers by support given him in nearly all districts. Woodrow Wilson secured a majority of the Democratic delegation.

That restless boy might be busied during a good many of his spare hours this summer if you will take the trouble to help him plan a garden patch to be planted and cared for by himself. And it will be better for the growing things in the garden and the boy if he is allowed to keep a portion of the receipts from the sale of the garden stuff.

The writer has found an excellent substitute for the butter fat in whole milk used as a ration for the calf to be a handful of scalded oil meal, having the consistency of a thick gruel. The youngsters will soon count on this and eat it greedily when they find it at the bottom of the pail. In some respects it is much better than the fat of the milk, because it is rich in bone and muscle forming materials.

In the basin of a partly dried-up lake in the Mohave desert, in southern California, has been found a deposit of readily soluble potassium salts of such magnitude that the experts of the federal department of agriculture believe it will furnish all the potash needed in the United States for the next thirty years. This is good news for sure and will relieve American consumers of the exactions of the German commercial fertilizer trust, in which the kaiser's government plays an important part.

According to figures compiled last fall by the Missouri state board of horticulture, sprayed apples brought on an average 61.7 cents per bushel, while fruit not sprayed brought 40.3 cents per bushel. Another advantage of spraying, which the data gathered should make plain, but do not seem to, is the gain in yield per tree due to spraying. The writer has found this to be a considerable item and would doubtless make the showing in favor of spraying much stronger than is indicated by the above price figures alone.

If the lambs are to be fattened for market start them on little grain just as soon as they will learn to eat it and feed grain continuously with good pasture until they go to the block. Prime fat lambs cannot be produced by alternate grass and grain. They must be pushed to lay on fat from start to finish.

The fellow who last fall secured a good supply of ensilage is wearing a broad smile just now, when all kinds of feed and forage are scarce and when it is not yet time to turn the stock out to grass. And if he is wise he will continue the silage ration until the grass has got beyond the watery stage, when it contains comparatively little nutriment.

The choicest heads of lettuce, both as to size and crispness, are always secured by transplanting the little seedlings when they are in the second or third leaf. In resetting they should be given a space of seven or eight inches square. Water frequently if it does not rain and keep the soil loose and you will be more than paid for your pains.

As a pasture for the hogs before the usual pasture season comes on there is nothing better than a patch of rye. The seed should be sowed as soon as the ground can be worked and put in mellow condition. The grain should be allowed to get a good start before the hogs are turned in. Another excellent forage for the hogs that will be good until next November or later is rape.

Speltz is a grain that has a decided value and advantage, but it is in sections where the rainfall is less than sixteen inches a year—too slight to permit of the proper development of wheat, oats, barley or corn under the annual cropping system. It stands drought and hot winds better than any of the cereals mentioned and has a feeding value about equivalent to that of oats.

More hotbeds fail to come up to expectations through being too hot than too cold. This means that on warm, bright days the sash should be lifted so as to give good ventilation. Due to heat from above and below, the bed will be likely to dry out very rapidly and hence should be watered liberally and frequently. Substantially these directions were given a short time ago in an article on the hotbed, but it is worth while repeating them.

Fifteen years ago sweet clover was generally viewed as a roadside weed that seemed drought proof and of no particular use under the sun. In the more recent years of the interval mentioned the plant has been studied, grown as a crop and is now highly regarded by many. The dislike that stock shows for it at first seems to wear away to some extent, and this is particularly true if the clover is cut for hay before the stalks get woody.

Orchard men over practically all of the territory east of the Rockies, in which an early spring season greatly increases the likelihood of damage by hard freezes when fruit trees are in blossom, are immensely gratified that winter has held on as long and uninterruptedly as it has, thus keeping fruit buds dormant and reducing the danger of frost damage. With orchards that have a setting of fruit buds the prospects for a good crop are excellent.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON

VOL. XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1912 NUMBER 16

FAIR ASSOCIATION HELD MEETING

Decide on Having a Fair This Season That Will Eclips Anything Formerly Held in This County.

Saturday evening the fair association held its annual meeting and decided to have a bigger and better Pennington county fair than ever before held. Their main object in view is to start immediately to arrange for the coming fair and to issue premium lists promptly and have them distributed among the farmers of the county, so they will know what to raise for exhibit purposes.

They have also increased many of the premiums, which will induce the people in the surrounding country to exhibit more fine productions than ever before.

The dates set for the big coming event will be August 1st, 2nd and 3rd, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Committees are now busily engaged in getting a line on the best attractions they possibly can, and expect soon to book them.

Officers of the association were all re-elected as follows:

W. W. Prichard, Jr., president.

John Morgan, vice-president.

C. D. Gustafson, 2nd vice president.

G. A. Penney, treasurer.

W. H. Akre, secretary.

The officers of the association will leave no stone unturned to make this eleventh annual fair one of the biggest successes of the history of Pennington county.

Will Be Good.

The wrestling match at the Auditorium promises to be the best match ever staged in this city up to date. Curtis and Gustafson have been training hard during the past month and will be in the best of condition for this match.

Gustafson is the undisputed champion middleweight wrestler of Canada and weighs 158 pounds. He has met Young Miller, of St. Paul, twice, winning one match and losing the other. Loren Curtis has fast proved himself a good man to the wrestling public and will do all he can to make this match the best of the season. Curtis weighs 158 pounds.

The special stage, standard size, will be of great benefit to the wrestlers. Heretofore the stage which has been used was rather small and the men were unable to keep on the mat. Tickets are now on sale at the Effinger pool room, and it behooves you to secure them early, as they are being reserved fast. Remember it is tonight at the Auditorium.

In Municipal Court

Policemen Jas. Farr and Rudolph Warner on Monday brought before Municipal Judge Tarrant two men who had been arrested on the charge of petty larceny, having taken an overcoat from one of the clerks at P. W. Roark's store on La Bree avenue. The case against one of the men was dismissed. The other was fined $15 and costs or 30 days in the county jail, and on Tuesday morning had been unable to pay his fine and was still in jail.

Saves Leg of Boy.

"It seemed that my 14 year old boy would have to lose his leg, on account of an ugly ulcer, caused by a bad bruise," wrote D. F. Howard, Aquone, N. C. "All remedies and doctors treatment failed till we tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and cured him with one box." Cures burns, boils, skin eruptions, piles. 25c at all druggists.

AXEL SKOVGAARD

The Celebrated Danish Violinist Will Appear at the Auditorium Thursday, April 25th.

The noted violinist, Skovgaard, will be the big attraction at the Auditorium, Thursday, April 25th. Skovgaard has for 30 years played on a violin, and has played before King Christian of Denmark, King Oscar of Sweden, King Haakon of Norway and the emperor of Germany. Having been intimately associated with the eminent Joachim for nearly ten years, Skovgaard has absorbed much of the great master's personality, readily observed in his entire sinking of the player in the elevation of the composer and his wondrous music.

Skovgaard is classed with the greatest violinists of Europe and plays upon a wonderful Stradivarius violin. This violin has a most remarkable history, which, if we were to go into details, would fill several columns. This instrument is spoken of as the $13,000 violin and Skovgaard's hand is insured for $50,000.

This attraction was booked by the Lyceum Theatre, but owing to the fact that the Theatre would be too small, they decided to stage it at the Auditorium. Manager Morgan has arranged to make the most popular prices, so that everyone will be able to attend. This, without a doubt, will be a great treat for the music lovers of this city.

Miss Ethel McClung, pianist, and Miss Ethel May Wright, vocalist, will appear with Skovgaard.

ERIE

From the Eleven Towns.

H. Tiedemann left Monday for Brainerd on business matters.

Mrs. J. A. Tofteland returned Wednesday from Farmington, where she attended her mother in her last illness and death.

Owing to the absence of the usual spring rains, the roads just now are in exceptionally good condition for this time of the year.

The oldest son of Elmer Vran, the Torgerson mail carrier, has been very ill with pneumonia the past week. At the present time his condition is improving. Dr. Gambell, of Thief River Falls, is attending him.

Mrs. H. K. Lattimore departed on Wednesday for Hennepin, Ill., whence she was summoned to appear as a witness in a trial. In the meantime Harry is doing a stunt at keeping "bachelor's hall" in his cabin on the claim.

Halvor K. Bjorneraa returned Wednesday from a visit with relatives at Reynolds, N. D. Mrs. Bjorneraa is prolonging her stay by visiting with relatives at Red Lake for a week or so. Mr. Bjorneraa says he is glad to get back—that the Dakota winds are too much for him.

George Bowen, who has been visiting the Meyer family for some time, returned Monday to Thief River Falls, where he has accepted a position with the Hotel Ogahmah.

Henry Paulson, formerly buttermaker for the High Landing creamery, has been engaged for this season by the Germantown creamery. Mr. Paulson is a good fellow and a first-class buttermaker and the people of Germantown are to be congratulated in securing his services.

M. W. EASTMAN

Former Managing Editor of This Paper Passed Away at His Home in St. Cloud.

Friday morning the sad news of the death of Maurice W. Eastman was received in this city. Maurice for a number of months last summer was managing editor of the Thief River Falls News, but was compelled by sickness to resign his position and go to his home at St. Cloud.

During his stay here he made a large circle of friends, who sympathize with the bereaved parents and sister. The following biography is taken from the St. Cloud Journal-Press:

Maurice W. Eastman was born at Anoka, Minnesota, January 30, 1888, and came to St. Cloud with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Eastman, in 1892. He attended the public schools, graduating from the high schools in 1906, and then attended Dartmouth college, finishing a four-year classical course in 1910.

Since graduating from college he was city editor of the Journal-Press, up to the time of his illness last October. He was vice-president of the Journal-Press company.

For some months there was strong hope of his recovery, but despite the efforts of the best specialists and physicians in the Northwest, and the best of nursing, he began to fail rapidly the past few days, and heart failure resulted a few minutes before 6 o'clock Thursday evening.

Besides his father and mother, he has one sister, Kathrine.

Services will be at the residence, 711 Fifth avenue south, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Revs. P. D. Densingberg and E. V. Campbell officiating.

The pallbearers will be the six employes of the Journal-Press who were longest associated with him—each employe being his loyal friend: J. F. Gaspard, L. G. Gaspard, Edward Hedlund, Chas. Wampach, Anthony Schubert, Frank Daniel.

TIGERS ORGANIZE

Held Meeting Last Thursday and Will Soon Begin to Schedule Games for the Season.

The base ball team known as the "Tigers" held a meeting last Thursday night and decided to have a team this season, and will soon schedule a series of games with various out of town teams.

The officers are as follows: Prof. Roseland, manager; H. Schuster, captain; Thomas Majeres, secretary and treasurer. Practically the same line-up will be had this year as was had last season, with the exception *of Homer Mussey and "Jens" Erick*son. The former was compelled to withdraw from the game on account of business matters and the latter expects to try out with the first team.

ARE LINING UP

Socialists Already in the Field for County Offices, Although They Have Not Filed Yet.

While out on a "wild goose" chase last week, we happened to get a clew, which after we followed it for some time, resulted in us getting a line on the Socialist candidates for county offices, which will be, so far as we could learn, the ticket from top to bottom, to-wit:

Peter Becken—Auditor.

Mr. Dahl, of St. Hilaire—Judge of Probate.

Oscar Naplin—County Attorney.

Lars Netterland, of Rocksbury—Superintendent of Schools.

Hans Rolland—County Commissioner.

W. O. Long—Sheriff.

Treasurer is undecided.

Commissioners P. Wold and Olaf Larson will be endorsed by the Socialists.

Dr. Vistaunet—Coroner.

Lewis Lonson is a candidate for Register of Deeds on the Republican ticket and we are informed that he will be endorsed by the local organization.

MALCOLM.

(Too Late for Last Week)

Snow is all gone and roads are good.

Woods begin to look green and we saw violets today.

The farmers are looking forward to get the telephone through here this summer.

Mr. Otto Kline has been working for Mr. John Peterson this week.

Mr. Ackerblade is building three homestead shanties 3 miles east of Malcolm.

Mr. Johnny Peterson was a Saturday and Sunday Caller at Rapid River.

Mr. J. Stratton left for South Dakota to spend the summer on a ranch.

Mr. Ansen and family are moving on their homestead east of Malcolm.

Mr. Ed Cook and father-in-law, Mr. Meelery, were business callers at Malcolm and returned to Red Lake Falls Friday.

Frank Payne came from Red Lake Falls and went through here to Rapid River to spend the summer on his claim.

Mr. Stafford spent last week with his family and returned to his homestead Saturday.

Miss Dibble is spending a few days with Millie McCay.

New land seekers are seen here every day.

Synod Church.

I. T. Aastad, Pastor.

Services next Sunday with the administration of the Lord's Supper at 10:30 A. M.

English services in the evening at 7:45.

The Ladies' Aid meets April 25th in the basement of the church on the invitation of Mrs. Ed. Evenson and Mrs. Mabel Torrison.

AN OBITUARY OF

Nels Nelson, Who Passed Away Last Friday at His Home on the East Side.

Death came very suddenly to Nels Nelson last Friday night. Although he had not been able to work for some months, he did very little complaining and the relatives had no idea that death was so near at hand. Shortly after seven o'clock Mr. Nelson was taken with a choking spell, after which he seemed to be resting very easy, but after a short time he said to his wife, "I am going," and his last words to her were, "I am gone."

Nels Nelson was 25 years, 3 months and 15 days old. He was born in Denmark in the year 1887 and had made this city his home for some time. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and a number of friends. Death resulted from tuberculosis. The funeral services were held from the Methodist church Sunday afternoon and interments were made in the Greenwood cemetery.

SUNBEAM

From the Sunbeam.

The farmers are all busy seeding and the close of this week will see a lot of grain in the soil of Pennington and Red Lake Counties, where crops never fail.

The navigable Red Lake river is now fordable and a petition will soon be circulated to have it declared non-navigable, so it will be bridgeable.

Simon Solberg has been moving his steam plow engine up from McIntosh this week, and if you hear an awful cracking in the brush south from Highlanding, do not be alarmed, for its only Simon and the steam plow.

Charles W. Johnson sold his farm north of Rhoda this week to a new settler, who will farm the land. Mr. Johnson was a good citizen and "settler," but what this country needs now is to hear the crack of the breaking team whip.

We started in the chicken business this week with two prize hens and a rooster. We have three eggs up to date that don't look much different from the ordinary eggs that you buy from stores. But they must be different, for they're worth $1.40 a dozen, 15c for the eggs and $1.25 for the breed.

Vaughn Bros. & Co. will break up and seed to flax a large portion of the farm that they bought from Mr. Arndt last fall. Andrew Ellingson is also going to put in a good crop of grain this year, and we are trying to get in every acre possible on the Sunbeam farm, and in fact everybody is trying to make some ready cash from the rich farming lands of Pennington.

FOREIGNER VISITS US

Comes to Thief River Falls to Look Over Northwestern Drainage Company's Machinery.

Expresses Himself as Highly Pleased With the Manner in Which Work Is Done.

A representative of the Russian government traveled half way around the earth to inspect the plant of the Northwestern Drainage company of Thief River Falls. He is Chief Engineer Peter Stackle, of Blogovestchensk, Siberia, who is in charge of a vast drainage works in Eastern Siberia, some 500 miles from the coast and on the north side of the Amur river. He is endeavoring to reclaim about 16,000,000 acres of level rich prairie land which at times is too wet for agricultural purposes.

Mr. Stackle had heard of the great ditching propositions in this state and came directly from Siberia to Thief River Falls to learn of the methods and machinery used at first hand. A. M. Arpin, president of the Northwestern Drainage company, spent two days with the foreigner, and he left Saturday loaded with profiles, estimates, plans and photos of the work. He also had an opportunity of viewing some machines of various forms at work for his special benefit and was amazed at the rapidity and ease with which the ponderous machines were operated. He immediately offered to close a bargain for the purchase of several of the machines, which was out of question, and insisted that the local concern promise to take up work with his government in the faraway land. He sailed from New York on the 13th for St. Petersburg with a vast fund of information of Minnesota drainage.

Bert Wilson is grubbing for Frank Kainz.

Henry Dau is busy breaking a team of mules. He said when he could drive them he would give some girls a fast ride.

Emil Ristau is busy painting his house and barn.

Rev. Soltz, of Thief River Falls, passed through here for Esplee.

Miss Clara Finberg left for Thief River Falls to see a doctor, as she has been sick for a while.

Vaudeville Acts.

Schulte & Keene have been billed to be at the Lyceum Thursday, Friday and Saturday and will present for public approval high class comedy singing and talking act, one that has scored a hit wherever it has been presented. And on April 22nd, 23rd and 24th, May and June, the biggest comedy sketch of the season. You'll laugh if you attend, so be there.

Chief Wa-de-na in Summer Quarters.

This is a chief of the full-blood White Earth Indians. They constitute less than one-fourth of the tribe, a majority of the White Earth Chippowas being more white than Indian. Gus Beaulieu, whom Congressman Graham said it was a joke to call an Indian, is very near an average mixed-blood. The full-blood Indians are the ones who are reported diseased and destitute. That they are diseased has been known for years, and Congressman Steenerson and others have tried to get the Indian Bureau to help them. If they are destitute it is the fault of the authorities on the reservation, for they have power to and are expected to issue rations to those in need.

They were not affected by the Clapp act, which provides that only mixed-bloods could sell their lands. The effort to connect their disease with the land legislation is ridiculous. They have been diseased for a generation, and they could not possibly be destitute if the Indian agent issues the rations that are paid for from the tribal fund.

SWEDEN.

Dr. Sven Hedin, the eminent Asiatic explorer, is planning another exploration trip into the wilds of the heart of Asia. He recently visited St. Petersburg for that reason and he is now busily engaged in making the necessary preparations for his long journey. It would seem that Sven Hedin should have tired of making these hazardous trips into places where no other human being has ever set foot, but it seems that the life really agrees with him. He has compiled most of his scientific data, comprising many volumes, which have been translated into twenty-four languages. Having completed this part of his work he contemplates starting on another long exploration trip into Asia. Dr. Hedin has been promised a detachment of Russian Cossacks to protect and escort him on his next trip.

Owing to the fact that Colonel Robert M. Thompson and James F. Sullivan of New York, who have been chosen leaders of the American Athletic troupe which is to participate in the Olympian games at Stockholm next summer, have been taken ill recently, the work of the American Olympian committee has been greatly hindered of late. However, arrangements have been completed with the owners of the steamer Finland and that vessel will carry the athletes to Sweden, leaving New York June 15.

It may be interesting for Swedish-Americans to know that Jack Campbell, the San Francisco boxer and trainer, is a Swede and that his right name is Olson. Campbell, as he now calls himself, was at one time the "featherweight champion of the Pacific coast." According to the Swedish San Francisco paper, Vestkusten, Campbell will visit the Olympian games at Stockholm and will most likely be the only Swedish-American boxer present who has any particular reputation.

Judging from what is going on in the riksdag at present there is some indication that a most drastic emigration law will be passed at the present session. Hitherto the Swedish emigration laws have only regulated emigration of Swedish subjects to foreign lands, but in the event that the new law is passed it will not be as easy to leave the country as formerly. The new law is so drafted that it will, in a measure, prevent wholesale emigration to foreign lands.

The government has authorized its minister at Buenos Ayres to aid all Swedish subjects in Argentina who have become stranded to return to their native land. It is a well known fact that a large number of Swedes who went to the Argentine Republic to seek their fortune spent all the money they had and are now penniless. It is these people that the Swedish government proposes to help.

The revival of the good old custom of co-operative killing of beef and sheep among neighbors would solve one of the causes of the high cost of living, so far as farmers are concerned.

The increased use of aluminium in utensils and in other forms is shown in the growth in the output of the metal from less than 100,000 pounds in 1883 to more than 50,000,000 pounds in 1911.

The repulsive looking scaly legs in chickens can be improved in appearance a whole lot by rubbing them at intervals of a few days with a salve made of equal parts of lard, sulphur and kerosene.

It should be mighty small consolation for the man whose boys or girls are going wrong that he has stowed away in the bureau drawer or writing desk blue or red ribbons won on blooded stock at the county or district fair.

It will be in mighty good taste for the fellow who trusts to luck and doesn't test his seed corn this spring in some accurate way to cuss providence or the weather next November when he is husking fifteen or twenty bushels per acre.

The manure spreader should be the most generally used tool on the farm, but this is no reason why it should be left unprotected in the storms and wintered in the snow bank. A shed for the spreader would be the best economy.

Thoroughbred boys and girls should stay or be kept at home nights unless there is an excellent reason why they should be somewhere else. They are at least entitled to the same care in this regard that the pure bred domestic animals receive.

Midstate brewers (or, more correctly, the National Brewers' association) are said to have secured control of the bulk of the hop growing business in western Oregon. The high prices of a year ago seem to have been more than the brewers were willing to stand for.

Lots of folks, both men and women, get into the miserable habit of whining and complaining a good deal over little troubles or annoyances, overlooking the while blessings that should obscure these little troubles completely were a right standard of values employed. It is just as easy to cultivate the habit of looking on the bright side as looking on the dark and a whole lot more enjoyable for the folks one has to live with.

The mere fact that many men and women who were denied the privileges of an education in their youth have still made a success of life should not be used as an argument by the boy or girl of today for neglecting opportunities for schooling that may be had free of cost. One cannot but wonder in the case of these so called self made people how much more they might have achieved along desirable lines had they been able to have such advantages as are open to practically everybody today.

A great service might be performed by the merchants of many a town for the womenfolk living in the rural community tributary to them if they or some other organization in the town would provide comfort and rest rooms which the former could use on their visits to town. In all too many towns there is no place whatever, aside from store or shop, where the farmer's wife or daughter can go while waiting for her husband or father. This would be a thoughtful provision for townsfolk to make and would be a courtesy that would be greatly appreciated.

The above figure illustrates the amount per year the White Earth Indians get as annuities. This is somewhere near the average for the last ten-year period previous to this year. The annuities this year are in excess of nine dollars, the Indian Bureau having managed to increase it, no doubt, on account of the present agitation of White Earth matters.

This is all the mixed-bloods get. Some of the full-bloods get the rations when the agent thinks they are in need.

The mixed-bloods are self-supporting, absolutely, and have been for many years, and the $5.35 per year is merely an incident. It does not help them much, and the loss of it would not make any difference in their style of living. Most of the full-bloods also support themselves by hunting and fishing, and the $5.35 annuity has usually come in handy to buy some cheap clothes.

So that the theory which prevails that the government supports the Indians is clearly a mistake.

Instead of that the Indians support a horde of officeholders saddled on them by the government.

On the White Earth reservation there are ninety-one government employes drawing salaries at the present time, in the regular establishment and eighteen in the Burch corps. These figures may not be absolutely correct, but are near enough. Many of these are necessary, and many are not. For instance there is a superintendent of a saw mill that has not turned a wheel for three years drawing $125 per month; there is a "farmer" who has not been known to work for months, drawing $100 per month, etc.

Besides the regular force the Burch corps has been on the reservation for three years, headed by Judge Burch, who draws $5,000 per year, and contains among others Judge Burch's nephew, Arthur M. Seekel, who draws $390 per month for doing abstract work that competent help could be secured for at $75 per month. Even the judge's adopted son, a boy of fourteen or fifteen, has managed to connect with the government payroll at $75 per month.

There were NINE MILLION DOLLARS in the Chippewa Indian funds. AT THE PRESENT TIME THERE IS LESS THAN $4,000,000.

The difference of $5,000,000 represents what has been spent "for the relief and civilization of the Indians."

And right here is the big issue in the fight about White Earth reservation affairs.

No itemized statement of who this money has been paid to has so far been obtained from the Indian Bureau.

Congressman Steenerson has for several years tried to obtain such a statement, but has so far been unable to get it.

The Indian Bureau evidently has serious objections to giving out such a statement. Can it be that this alleged investigation of the Indian Bureau, by confusing the issue, is designed to protect it from the necessity of having to make such a statement?

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE FIVE MILLION DOLLARS?

No amount of wielding of the slush bucket by the government lawyers; no amount of sensational trembling for his country by the chairman of the committee; no amount of effort to discredit Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson by the administration at Washington will be satisfactory as an answer to this question the Indians are asking, and the answer to which they have a right to know.

There is a feeling among the Indians that any of their money that goes into the government treasury will never come out again except in the form of salary checks to white officials. This feeling is justified by bitter experience, and is back of the unanimous demand for such legislation as the allotment acts, the Clapp act, and the present demand for the distribution of the tribal funds.

The Clapp act was not a perfect law. It had a serious defect in that it did not provide for an official roll of mixed-bloods and full-bloods before the restrictions were removed. But it was what the Indians wanted, and had the Indian Bureau kept liquor off the reservation, as the law provides they should do, and for which they are paid big salaries, it would have been a success.

As it is many of the mixed-bloods have spent the money they got for their lands. Others have it or its equivalent in property and some have greatly increased their share. Those who have spent their share have gone to work and are making a living just as they did before. None of them are starving and few of them are doing any complaining. Many of them have braced up and are taking a new start, having learned the value of having money by the loss of it.

After the removal of restrictions and the inrush of land buyers and speculators, and the total abandonment of all restraint upon the liquor traffic, such scandal resulted that the interior department called on the department of justice to furnish government lawyers to straighten out the complicated land frauds in court. Judge M. C. Burch, who had just been displaced as division chief, was given this Indian litigation, as he says as his "last case," and he at once proceeded to so plan things as to make it last for the balance of his natural life. He invented a new definition of "mixed-blood," contrary to the established rule, so as to make it include only persons who had more white than Indian blood. This enabled him to bring several hundred suits which no one had dreamed of before, until he has now instituted more than 1,200 suits in equity, involving as many eighty acre tracts of land. It is true that only one question is involved in all, and that is: Who is a mixed-blood, within the meaning of the act? This litigation and threatened litigation unsettled all titles, stopped all improvement and development, to the detriment of all the people, including the Indians, stopped payment of taxes, and threatened to close the public schools. Congressman Steenerson was appealed to and he introduced bills for remedial legislation. One of these provided for a commission to make authentic rolls of mixed-bloods and full-bloods separately, and was intended to equitably and justly dispose of the apparently endless litigation. But here Mr. Steenerson ran against a snag in the shape of a lot of hungry government attorneys and their assistants whose occupation would be gone if the 1,200 suits were disposed of. Their chief very shrewdly went before the committee to investigate the interior department and asked for an investigation of his own client, the interior department, and when he got it, after revamping the old scandals growing out of the administration of the Nelson and Morris and other acts for the disposal of Indian timber, proceeded to lay all the blame for mismanagement of Indian property to the law and to congress. In this way it was sought to not only discredit Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson, but to defeat the proposed remedial legislation, which threatened to cut short the salaries of these hungry lawyers and their dependents.

But Mr. Steenerson, by reason of his independence and fearlessness, had incurred hostility in still higher quarters. By his opposition to administration measures, notably Canadian reciprocity, he had put himself beyond the pale of executive favor, and no doubt these men who are now doing the dirty work were given a free hand in the attempt to destroy the political reputations of Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson.

This is the real animus of the whole matter, but the people will understand that this hostility is but an incident of the fight their representative has made in their behalf, and will rally to his support more strongly than ever.

Tribal Funds.

At the present rate it will be only a question of a few years anyway, until the tribal funds of the White Earth Indians will be all spent by the Indian Bureau. The best that could happen to them would be a division of the funds, after enough is set aside to care for the old and the infirm. Then let the capable ones take their place among the ordinary citizens of the republic. The tribal relations are of no value to them, and a sum so insignificant as $5.35 per year is of little value.

And the most peculiar feature of the Graham investigation was the reports sent out of the discovery of disease and destitution among the full-bloods, in view of the fact that the government has 109 employes on the reservation looking after the welfare of the Indians—one for each ten full-bloods. Among these are five doctors. If this little army of Indian protectors could not discover disease and destitution after spending years in the work, could it be reasonably expected that Congressman Steenerson could know of it?

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, That on the 30th day of April, 1912, at 1:00 o'clock P. M., at the office of the County Auditor, in the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., within and for Pennington County, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Ditch No. 57 of Pennington County, established by the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date March 28th, 1912, viz: For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each, and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the Engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified, in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent. over and above the estimate cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the Auditor of said County, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows:

[illegible] cubic yards of earth to excavate and remove.

The estimated total cost of the work is $10,000 [illegible].

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the Auditor of said County, for not less than ten per cent. of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

The record price for tame hay on the Kansas City market was registered the other day, when $23.50 per ton was paid for a carload of hay shipped from Rupert, Ida.

Roughly speaking, it takes a depth of from twelve to fifteen inches of snow to make one inch of water. Again, one inch of rainfall will moisten the earth to the depth of about twelve inches.

Switzerland has 2,100 dairies, which employ on the average four people each. Of the total number of dairies 1,400 are engaged in the production of Ementhal cheese, a brand that constitutes a large share of the cheese exports of the little country.

Probably the highest price ever bid for a calf was $6,000, which a Wisconsin breeder bid at auction the other day for a month old calf of the famous Dolly Dimples, a prize winning Jersey that is owned on the Ames stock farm near Boston and rated as one of the most valuable cows in the world.

The Japanese sugar cane, which has lately been introduced into some sections of the south, gives promise of being a valuable forage crop. While it will produce more sirup than any other cane, its chief value is for forage, as the stalks are small. However, the variety is hardy, grows to twelve or thirteen feet in height and produces many stalks to the hill. It yields from fifteen to twenty-five tons of green forage per acre.

The Black Giant is the name of a breed of poultry that is making a good record in several eastern states, few if any having as yet been brought west of Pennsylvania. The cock birds weigh nine or ten pounds and the hens from seven to eight. Unlike some other black feathered breeds, they are yellow skinned and have black legs free from feathers. The breed is hardy and easily kept. The Black Giants are favorites in several eastern markets for caponizing and usually top the market in this class.

One breeder of Jersey cattle whom the writer is personally acquainted with is following a plan in the improving of his herd of some forty or fifty fine cows that has much to commend it. Recently there was shipped to him by the owner, on terms that were mutually satisfactory, a prize winning $1,000 Jersey bull, with which some thirty of his cows are to be mated. This arrangement will cost the owner of the herd mentioned a snug sum, but there is little question that it will pay him a handsome return on the investment.

During the closing days of 1911 grapes were taken from cold storage in some eastern markets that had been shipped from California six weeks before and held there during the interval. They were found in prime condition—practically as good as when put in storage—but the other important feature connected with the experiment was that when put on the market finally these grapes brought more than twice as much as they would had they been sold at the time of shipment from the west. The experiment is likely to have quite an effect upon the grape growing business.

Dynamite is queer stuff, and there are a whole lot of things about it that are difficult to understand. Unlike a good many other substances, there does not seem to be much uniformity in the laws which govern its ignition and explosion. Often the slightest jar or the application of heat to it is sufficient to set it off. In a case related to the writer the other day a chunk of the stuff fell off a wagon on which it was being hauled and a few minutes later was run over by a disk pulverizer without exploding. Again, a chunk of it put in a fire will burn quietly without exploding. We would not advise making this experiment, however.

It stimulates appetite, without which you will often fail to consume a sufficient amount of food, and that you do eat will not be properly digested. A keen appetite is essential.

It is food in itself—a wholesome, nutritious, predigested, liquid food, containing in correct proportions the nutritive and digestive elements of rich barley malt and choicest hops.

It furnishes the power for digestion and conquers dyspepsia, thus rendering a meal both enjoyable and beneficial.

It is the great promoter of sociability at meal time, which is one of the objects to be kept in view in indulging the appetite.

Let us send you a case.

Official Paper of Pennington County

An Appreciation

In the death of Maurice Eastman, son of the able and efficient editor of the St. Cloud Journal-Press, Minnesota and the Northwest has lost one of its most promising young men. He was born and reared in the shadow of the sanctum, and during his all too short life had mastered to a large extent the details of the practical newspaper business. He was graduated with honors from Dartmouth college some two years ago, since when, until his illness, he has been connected with the Journal-Press and for a short time with this paper. He was a good student, a great reader, a writer of no mean ability, and gave promise of becoming a factor in Minnesota journalism. To his grief stricken parents The News and his friends here extend the most sincere sympathy.

Now that spring is here, don't you think it is about time to begin advertising? Let the people of the city and vicinity know what you have to offer them.

Friday, April 26th, has been fixed by Gov. Eberhart as Arbor Day and bird day, and he requests that every citizen would participate in planting trees on this day.

Say boys, when you attend the state convention in June, and everything has been nominated on the ticket as far down as Supreme Court Justices, you want to fill your lungs and get ready to howl, because the next order of business will be the nomination of Alvah Eastman for congressman at large.—Walker Pilot

Bids Opened.

At a meeting of the city council bids were opened for chemical and hose wagon combined. The bids received are as follows:

L. Fravee Co. of Chicago $1,500

Peter Pearce Co. of Wisconsin $1,400

W. S. Knot Co. of Minneapolis $947.75.

The bid of W. S. Knot was accepted, and their representative, Mr. Root outlined the chemical and wagon as just the thing for this city. The council also purchased 500 feet of hose which is also a great addition to the fire department. The council had an adjourned meeting last night and took up unfinished business which they were unable to dispose of at the Tuesday evening meeting.

FROM EXCHANGES

Congressman Lindberg has introduced a bill which proposes to grant free mail boxes to patrons in smaller towns. This bill ought to become a law, as it is not right to charge the people of the village for box rent, when mail is delivered free to patrons of rural routes.—Roseau Region.

The Republican state committee decided Tuesday that it would not be safe to trust the people and turned down the presidential primary proposition. Frank Eddy says that the matter was previously talked over with the governor and that he was against letting the people express themselves on the question. Not at all strange.—Sauk Rapids Sentinel.

Edgar Weaver, of Mankato, has announced his withdrawal as a republican gubernatorial candidate. Mankato is Gov. Eberhart's home and the withdrawal of Weaver will prevent strife among neighbors. L. C. Spooner, the able leader of the house, is a candidate and we may now expect the withdrawal of Gordon and Lee in the interest of harmony, and finally Mr. Spooner will secure what he wants and will quit, leaving Gov. Eberhart a clear field for re-nomination.—Roseau County Times.

Some of our "pen pushers" are discussing the proposition of whether they should edit their own newspapers or let the politicians do it for them. The consensus of opinion seems to be that all political "junk" sent in by the politicians should be cast into the waste basket, or be charged for at regular advertising rates. We receive a large amount of this class of material and if we published all of it we would be obliged to greatly enlarge our office force and equipment. We have our own ideas on matters political and prefer to express them in our own way.—Greenbush Tribune.

Rural School Notes.

County training schools are now a recognized necessity in our school system. Their success as an element in the training of the teaching force is evidenced by the work done in the school room. They are designed to meet the individual wants of the teacher and no live teacher can well afford to miss attending them.

First and last it is the problem of methods with the teacher. Emphasis will be laid on How to Teach School as well as to review the second grade subjects.

The Summer School will be organized at ten o'clock Monday, June 24th, in the Lincoln High School building, Thief River Falls, and will be in session six days in the week for five weeks. The program will be so arranged that all recitation work will be done in the forenoon, beginning at 7:30 and closing at 1:30 P. M.

Since it would be impossible for both Red Lake and Pennington counties to get each a Summer School, Supt. H. F. Anderson desires that the teachers of Red Lake county attend at Thief River Falls. This is a most happy arrangement and it is hoped that many teachers will attend. We will gladly reciprocate the favor with Red Lake county for next year, anticipating that the Summer School will then be held at Red Lake Falls.

The work this year will be confined to reviews of the subjects required for second grade certificates. Special work will be offered in Domestic Science and Agriculture. Those teachers who have had less than eighteen months actual experience must take Primary Methods and Model Work. All should take spelling and writing and, as far as possible, Reading, Composition and Language work.

Books for 1911-'12.

Elementary course.

"Evolution of Dodd," 50c.

"Harvey's Principles of Teaching," $1.00.

Advanced Course.—

"The Teacher and School," $1.00.

"Literature in the Common Schools," 90c.

These books can be obtained at the office of the County Superintendent. Four Reading Circle Certificates are necessary for the renewal of a first Grade Certificate; these certificates must be obtained for study of the books prescribed by the Reading Circle Board during the life of the certificate.

Two Reading Circle Certificates are likewise necessary for the renewal of a Second Grade Certificate. The exchange of a Limited for a complete Second Grade Certificate requires one Reading Circle Certificate and teaching experience of five months. The teaching required and review work must be done before the application for renewal.

The state teachers' examinations will be held immediately at the close of school, July 29, 30 and 31st. This will be the only examination held this summer.

Certificates of perfect attendance will be issued to those who have an absolutely perfect record both as to attendance and punctuality.

Students and graduates of the High School who have not taught seeking to obtain certificates are required to attend a Summer School and to take the professional test as a condition before receiving an indorsement of their application, or certificate.

Teachers from neighboring counties having no Summer Schools are cordially invited to attend this, our Training School, and every means will be employed to make their stay pleasant and the School a success. Thief River Falls is centrally located, railway communications are good and we have a most excellently equipped High School with every means possible for a fruitful and pleasant course of study.

Thief River welcomes the Summer Training School most heartily and assures every teacher student a most pleasant time.

For further particulars write Supt. J. H. Hay, Conductor, or the County Superintendent, E. A. Mostue.

Official Call For The Republican County Convention In and For Pennington County, Minnesota, To Be Held in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, May 13, 1912.

Pursuant to the call of the Republican State Central Committee duly communicated to the Republican County Committee of the County of Pennington, State of Minn., a Republican County Delegate Convention is hereby called to be held on the 13th day of May, A. D., 1912, at eleven (11) o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the court house in Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing ten (10) delegates to the Republican State Convention to be held on the 16th day of May A. D 1912, at twelve o'clock noon of said at the Armory in Minneapolis, Hennepin County, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing six delegates at large and six alternates to the National Republican Convention to nominate a president and vice president of the United States, to be held in Chicago, Illinois, on June 18, 1912, and to nominate twelve Republican electors for the State of Minnesota; and for further purpose of electing ten (10) delegates to the Republican District Convention for the Ninth Congressional District of Minnesota, to be held at the Armory in the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, A. D 1912, at Ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, for the purpose of electing two, (2) delegates and two (2) alternates to the National Republican Convention to nominate a president and vice president of the United States, to be held in Chicago, Illinois, on June 18th, 1912.

The primaries for the election of delegates to said Republican County Convention shall be held at the usual voting place in each voting precinct in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, on Saturday the 11th day of May, 1912, from seven to eight o'clock p. m.

The Republican voters of Pennington County, Minnesota without regard to past political affiliations, who believe in the principles advocated by the Republican party and indorse Republican policies, are cordially invited to participate in the selection of delegates to this convention.

The Representation to said Republican County Convention shall be based upon the average Republican vote for the following State officers at the election in 1910; Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, State Auditor, State Treasurer, and Attorney General. Each voting precinct being entitled to one delegate for each twenty five voters or majority fraction thereof, and one delegate at large.

WILL SUPPORT THE NOMINEE

Edgar Weaver of Mankato Out of Race for Republican Nomination for the Governorship.

Edgar Weaver of Mankato, who announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor on March 25, has formally withdrawn from the contest. He gives no reason except that his canvass of the situation has caused him to change his mind. He was preparing for a struggle in Blue Earth county with Governor Eberhart and the coming contest had aroused considerable interest.

Mr. Weaver said that he has not talked with any of the governor's friends since he entered the race. He will support the nominee of the convention.

"I have made a careful canvass of the situation," says Mr. Weaver's statement, "the result of which, together with other developments that have taken place, has caused me to alter my determination."

He declares that he will not be a candidate for any political office and that his motive is to promote harmony in the Republican party.

MAY BREAK FORMER RECORD

Minnesota's Production of Iron Ore This Season Will Be Large.

Minnesota's iron ore production this year will equal or exceed the high record of 30,404,937 tons made in 1910, is the prediction of J. P. Funk, head of the mineral lands department of the state auditor's office. A big favorable commercial situation, contrary to what has been generally thought to be the condition, is expected to be a factor. The steel corporation is operating its plants at a higher rate than last year. Larger ore orders are being placed by operators and spring activity will be pronounced. It is expected that this spring movement will hold up proportionately throughout the year.

F. A. Wildes, field inspector for the state auditor's office, reported that operators are planning upon heavy shipments. The state, which collects a 25 cent royalty, has twenty producing mines on its list and may add to the number this year. It is possible that one of the state's mines on the Cuyuna range may ship this year.

In the record movement of 1910 the Mesaba range shipped 29,201,760 tons of iron ore and the Vermillion range 1,203,177.

PROTECT FOREST RESERVES

Governor and Others Oppose Proposed Allotment to Indians.

Active opposition has developed to the bill recently introduced in congress by Representative Lindbergh of Minnesota, which would allot 45,000 acres of land in the national reserve near Cass Lake to the White Oak Point band of Chippewa Indians. Governor Eberhart has telegraphed to Mr. Lindbergh asking him to try to have action on the bill postponed and has followed up the telegram with a letter setting forth the reasons why this allotment should not be made. The state forestry service is up in arms over this attempt to cut down the area of the forest reserve and will make every effort to have the bill defeated.

In a letter replying to Governor Eberhart's telegram Mr. Lindbergh says that he introduced the bill on petition of a committee of Indians. The bill would give a vast portion of the southern end of the reserve to this band of Indians now living on White Oak Point at Leech lake.

MAD DOG IS SHOT TO DEATH

Canine Bites at Least Five Persons at Minneapolis.

After biting at least five persons and as many dogs and for three days keeping a whole South Side neighborhood at Minneapolis in suspense a mad dog was run down and shot to death by police and citizens.

Three of the persons bitten by the dog are at large in Minneapolis and were sought by officers to warn them of their peril. One of them is a woman. The names of all were unknown to the police. Unaware of the fact that the dog that bit them was suffering from rabies all three are believed to be unconscious of the peril hanging over them.

Two Die When Floor Drops.

Harrington Park, N. J., April 16.—Two persons were killed and more than a score injured, several seriously, when the collapse of the floor of the Church of Our Lady of Victory precipitated nearly 300 persons into the basement. The church was only partly completed and the assemblage was in connection with the ceremonies of laying the corner

Safeblowers Damage Building.

Yeggmen blew the safe and got $200 cash from the office of the Troy Laundry company at St. Paul. Persons in the neighborhood were awakened by the detonation, but before a policeman could get to the scene the robbers had escaped. The safe was completely wrecked and the front of the building was damaged to the extent of about $300. Practically every window in the place was shattered.

Killed by Kick of Horse.

Johannes Korum is dead at Brandon, Otter Tail county, as the result of a kick of a horse. Mr. Korum was assisting a neighbor in caring for a sick horse and the animal kicked him in the chest, the injury resulting in his death. Mr. Korum was the father of fifteen children, of whom thirteen are living.

New Hamline President.

The committee selected by the board of trustees of Hamline university at St. Paul at a meeting decided to recommend Samuel Kerfoot, president of South Dakota Wesleyan university, as a successor to Dr. G. H. Bridgeman, whose resignation goes into effect at the end of the school year.

IRISH HOME RULE BILL IN COMMONS

Premier Asquith Urges Adoption of Measure.

London, April 12.—The Irish home rule bill, the third effort made by a Liberal government of the United Kingdom in a quarter of a century to settle the quarrel between Great Britain and Ireland, was introduced in the house of commons by Premier Asquith.

Premier Asquith was greeted with prolonged cheers from the Nationalists and Liberals when he rose to speak. He took up the narrative of home rule at the point at which the late William Ewart Gladstone left off nineteen years ago, pointing out that through all the political changes and through peace and war the insistence and persistence of the Irish demand for home rule had remained constant.

The vote of Ireland, he said, was preponderantly in favor of home rule and the right of a relatively small minority in Ulster to veto the will of the vast majority of the Irish people could not be admitted

The other day the Kentucky legislature, having come to the conclusion that blue grass has a blossom, adopted it as the official state flower.

Sometimes it is strictly proper for the wife to do the milking, but it is when the husband is ill or away on business and not when he is idling away time at the grocery.

What is said to be the largest egg of which there is any record has been laid by a hen at Elgin, Ill. This egg measures 8½ by 6½ inches in circumference and weighs fifteen ounces.

Besides keeping more and better animals, more attention should be paid by farmers to such crops as restore the fertility of the soil. The chief among these are clover and alfalfa.

The profit of a pure bred herd of cows depends very largely upon the keeper. Some men will make more with ordinary stock than others will make with the very best of breeding.

Many dairy cows do not produce up to the limit because they are not fed right. They may have an abundance of food, but if it is not of the right kind they cannot give the best results.

Most any of the dumb animals have more sense than a good many folks along one line at least—they seem to appreciate the value of fresh air and are not as afraid of it as of death and taxes.

If hogs are to be kept in good physical condition they should have access to a supply of charcoal, ashes and salt whenever they feel a craving for them. If a little sulphur is mixed with the ashes and salt it will prove beneficial.

Whatever ration one may be able to provide for the flock of hens one condition should be kept in mind—namely, they should be compelled to scratch for most of the grain they receive. This means exercise, and exercise means health.

The unusually heavy fall of snow over much of the great southwest is looked upon as a virtual guarantee of bountiful crops and good times through all that section. This will be a most welcome condition after two dreadful droughty years.

While the soft maple tree yields considerable sap, it is low in sugar content and makes a sirup that is much inferior to that secured from the sap of the hard maple, from which variety practically all of the maple sugar and sirup of commerce is obtained.

Two very innocent looking sacks of nice clean clover seed that the writer saw in a retailer's store the other day cost the proprietor $83, and he had to pay transportation charges on top of that. And before the farmer gets it he will have to pay the retailer something for handling it.

In the testing of the seed it is just as necessary to eliminate the ear whose kernels show weak vitality as to throw out the ear whose kernels are entirely dead, for if the weak germed seed is planted it will come to little or nothing, making a stalk that will produce no ear and so spindly that it will be worth mighty little for fodder.

If one has access to clean, plump kerneled corn, it can be hulled by the following simple process and a tasty ration furnished for the table: Take two quarts of corn, add two heaping teaspoonfuls of soda and boil in soft water until the hulls start. The corn should then be washed in several waters and rubbed with the hands to remove the hulls.

Fifty per cent of all the expenditures of the federal government is for the maintenance of our army and navy establishments, the grand total being in the neighborhood of $318,000,000. In pitiful contrast to this, particularly in view of its beneficence, is the paltry expenditure of about $6,370,000 for strictly agricultural improvement purposes. Is it any wonder we are beginning to grow a bit impatient at this scandalous misapportionment of public funds?

An Indiana farmer of the name of F. C. Palin is said to have raised the most perfect ear of corn in the world. It is a trifle over ten inches long, is seven and three-quarter inches in circumference and weighs thirty ounces. In the position of the kernels there is not a single misplacement, and each row is perfectly straight. An interesting fact, which has nothing to do except indirectly with the ear of corn, is that sixteen years ago Mr. Palin was a traveling salesman and listened to the "back to the land" call.

CONCERNS EVERYBODY.

Never before have big business enterprises, whose volume of trade depends quite directly upon the agricultural prosperity of the country, taken such a lively and intelligent interest in the good seed question as now. Particularly has this been noticeable in the effort that is being made by transportation and manufacturing companies to get the farmers of the northern part of the corn belt to test their seed before planting it. This is nicely shown in literature which has been circulated within the past few weeks in Iowa, which stands next to Illinois in the volume of her corn production. This presents the striking fact that if but one poor ear of corn, whose kernels are dead or of low vitality, is used in the planting of each of the more than 9,000,000 acres which are devoted to the growing of this cereal the total loss for the whole state would amount to $18,000,000. This puts the importance of planting good seed corn on a dollars and cents basis and ought to be so plain that a "fool running might be able to read."

THE POOREST IN YEARS.

That the situation with reference to the wretchedly poor condition of the seed corn that was saved last fall is not overdrawn in reports which have been circulated recently is plainly shown in the condition of market corn which has been received at leading points during the past three months. These show that at Chicago during December, January and February but forty-six cars of No. 2 corn were received, while 18 per cent of all corn received graded No. 3, and over 80 per cent graded No. 4, or worse. At Omaha during the same interval 80 per cent of all corn received graded No. 4, while 15 per cent did not grade as good as this. At Kansas City over half of the corn received during the winter was fourth grade or worse, the average moisture content being about 20 per cent, which is the worst showing in years. In view of this showing this warning of "bad seed corn" is hardly in the "Wolf, wolf!" class.

USE GOOD SEED.

In years when grass seed is high, as is the case this spring, there is a tendency on the part of many a farmer to make the silly mistake of buying seed that is not first class simply because it is cheap. Such seed is usually dirty, containing many foreign and often noxious weed seeds, and quite often of low germinating power. These two things taken together make it the most expensive seed that can be bought merely from the standpoint of results obtained—the dollars and cents standpoint. No matter what the price, the highest price seed is always the best, because in the long run it is the cheapest. Simple as are the truths referred to, there are nevertheless a whole lot of fellows who hope to have about so much rocky experience before they get this idea fixed in their noddles.

A PAYING PROPOSITION.

That there is good money in raising beef cattle when the price is satisfactory is shown in a sale made the other day by a farmer living in the northern part of the corn belt with whom the writer is well acquainted. There were eighty-two head in all, and they averaged 1,300 pounds apiece. They were landed on a good market, fetching $7.50 per hundredweight. This means that the steers brought $96.75 a head, or a total of $7,935. One of the best features connected with this stock raising enterprise aside from the snug sum received was the fact that the raw products of the farm were converted into a finished product on the farm where most of the stuff was raised, with the result that there was returned to the land all of the manurial byproduct.

WATCH THE CHILD.

Many a parent does an almost irreparable injury to the girl of from eight to fourteen years by encouraging her in the doing of fancy or other work taxing to both eye and nervous system when the most of her spare time out of school ought to be spent in the taking of needed physical exercise that would build a strong physique. And often it is children that are ambitious and need no encouragement to such work that suffer the most serious injury. Many a parent forgets that a mere child has not the endurance of an older person. This, coupled with parental pride in the child's achievement and the childish enthusiasm to meet the parent's expectations, forms a very dangerous combination and one of which the thoughtful parent should be ware.

POISON FOR HOPPERS.

A farmer living near Dodge Center, Kan., in a communication to the Kansas City Star reports much success in the use of London purple as a means of warding grasshoppers off his grain fields. His plan is to spray the weeds and grass bordering the field to be protected in a strip about three feet wide with a solution made by mixing two quarts of London purple in forty gallons of water. He recommends spraying just before sundown and two subsequent sprayings of the same strip. He says that this method has never failed to protect his fields, as he has used it for a number of years. It hardly need be said that stock of all kinds should be kept from eating this poisoned forage, as it would make short work of them.

F. E. Trigg

Head Chief of White Earth Chippewas.

MAY-ZE-KE-GE-SHIG.

The Chippewa chief was born in 1825 in what is now Crow Wing county, Minn. He is therefore eighty-seven years old, is still in fairly good health and takes an active interest in public questions affecting his people.

The old chief is progressive in his ideas, and believes that the interests of his people will be best served by them adopting the white man's ways.

He can see no future for them as old-style Indians, and has strongly advocated all progressive legislation, such as the allotment acts and the Clapp act, and also all measures for the education of the Indians.

Five million dollars of the funds of the Chippewa Indians have been expended by the Indian Bureau without any accounting to show who received it.

The Indians have been trying to secure an accounting for several years past and Congressman Steenerson has been very active in the matter.

But in spite of their efforts the Indian Bureau has so far been able to avoid an accounting of these funds.

It is the idea of the Indians that the attacks on Congressman Steenerson by Judge Burch and Congressman Graham are for the purpose of discrediting him and preventing him from forcing an accounting for the $5,000,000 of Indian money spent by the government officials.

Origin of the Steenerson Act.

Under the treaty of 1867, establishing White Earth reservation, each Indian was to have 160 acres of land whenever he had cultivated forty acres, or forty acres whenever he had cultivated twenty acres, or twenty acres whenever he had cultivated ten acres. This is what is called the cultivation clause, and only about 200 Indians ever secured their full 160 acres under this clause. The Nelson act of Jan. 14, 1889, provided for allotments of only eighty acres each, but that law was not to take effect until approved by two-thirds of the male adult Indians of each tribe or band. When the commissioners, Senator Rice, Bishop Marty and Mr. Whiting, held the council with the White Earth Indians they refused to agree to the law, under which it was proposed to cede 4,000,000 acres of land in Northern Minnesota to the government, unless they were promised the 160 acres mentioned in the treaty of 1867. They promised, and thereupon, in consideration thereof, the Indians signed the agreement, and the Nelson act went into effect. The land was ceded to the United States in trust to be disposed of; the agricultural land to homesteaders at $1.25 per acre, and the timber land to the highest bidder. When the secretary of the interior proceeded to allot the land to the Indians of this reservation under the law he issued instructions and directed that each Indian should only have eighty acres. The White Earth Indians went to Washington and made a protest, and invoked the promises made by the representatives of the government. The secretary of the interior and the commissioner of Indian affairs asked the commissioners, Senator Rice, Bishop Marty and Mr. Whiting, if they had promised 160 acres to each, and they wrote back and said that they had so promised, and referred to the printed council proceedings, and said further that they thought they had the right to so promise and waive the cultivation clause of the treaty of '67. The secretary then, in 1892, wrote a letter to the senate committee on Indian affairs requesting that a law be passed authorizing him to carry out the promises of 160 acres of land made to the Indians, and Senator Dawes of Massachusetts, then chairman of the senate committee on Indian affairs, introduced and secured the passage through the senate of a bill which is exactly the same proposition as was afterwards passed and which is now known as the "Steenerson act" of 1904. The Dawes bill failed of consideration in the house. It was again introduced in the senate in 1897, and on motion of Senator Nelson was again passed, but it again failed of consideration in the house. Later on it was three times introduced in the house in three different sessions of congress by Congressman Eddy, but failed to get consideration until Mr. Steenerson took hold of it soon after his first election. The honor of the United States was pledged to the Indians to pass the "Steenerson act," giving them the additional eighty acres. That promise was the consideration for the ratification of the Nelson act, under which more than 4,000,000 acres of land was ceded, and no one can justly criticise congress for enacting the law, but a great deal of criticism can be laid against the administration of it by the department.

Administration of Steenerson Act.

The commissioner of Indian affairs now admits that these provisions of the act were so violated that there are four or five hundred Indians entitled to additional allotments who cannot receive them because there is not enough land to go around. There was ample authority in the department to cut down the additional allotments to forty acres of agricultural land, and they could have reserved from allotments all the pine timber for the common benefit of the tribe; but they saw fit to so administer the act that the valuable timber was not only unequally disposed of, but four or five hundred Indians entitled to additional allotments were left without possibility of securing even a part of the same.

The Allotment Incident.

In recognition of Mr. Steenerson's services the Indians held a council and elected him a member of the tribe. They also decided he could have an allotment on the reservation, and the old chief wanted to give him his own allotment. Mr. Steenerson refused at the time, in the presence and within the hearing of thousands who had gathered to witness the ceremonies, but later he was visited by a delegation of Indians who explained that a refusal to accept the gift would be regarded, according to Indian usages, as an insult to the tribe, and he consented to sign an application on the condition that if anything came of it he would return the value of it to the tribe by establishing a hospital, or in some similar way. The Indian council proceedings proposing the enrollment of Mr. Steenerson were certified by the Indian agent to the secretary of the interior and he held that the White Earth band alone could not authorize the enrollment, but that it required the favorable action of all the Chippewa bands of Minnesota, and as soon as Mr. Steenerson was notified of this he requested that his application for allotment be withdrawn and nothing more was done with it. The facts in regard to this episode were extensively published in the newspapers throughout the district at the time and were referred to in Mr. Steenerson's official biography. Mr. Steenerson has been elected to congress three times since and the whole matter was forgotten by nearly everyone until now resurrected for political purposes. This is all there is to the allotment matter. The newspaper reports of the Graham investigation have sought to create a wrong impression by insinuation and inference, so that many good people got the idea that Congressman Steenerson received an allotment and sold it for $12,000, and it is proper that they should be set right on that point, for the insinuation is utterly unfounded.

Of course Mr. Steenerson's political opponents will question his sincerity in stating what he expected to do with the allotment if he got it.

That is politics.

But Mr. Steenerson has a record of thirty years of honorable dealings with the people of Northwestern Minnesota that will not be forgotten; dealings that will stand the test. Thirty years during which he has fought for the laborer, for the farmer, and the small business man, as against the more powerful railroad and other corporations; and he has fought for the rights of the Indians against the bureaucrats at Washington, who are eating up the Indians' funds, in the same way that he fought for the lumberjack and the laborer as an attorney.

Urine makes an excellent fertilizer for house plants, but it should be diluted by an equal volume of water before using.

Those who took the trouble last fall to plant bulbs are now reaping the benefit in the fragrance and beauty of hyacinth and narcissus.

In the feeding of a baby animal, human or otherwise, milk should not be expected to take the place of water. Milk is the food, water the drink.

A pen of a hundred good laying hens will produce enough eggs to supply the sugar and coffee of an ordinary family, besides supplying the home table.

On the island of Ceylon they now and then have a plague of snails which not only devour decaying animal matter, their usual food, but also the leaves, bark and fruit of trees.

A study of the various seed catalogues before the spring work opens up and a list of the seeds wanted for the vegetable and flower gardens will be found worth while when the busy time comes on.

The experience gained last year should guide us in meeting the duties of life this season. As years come and go let us separate the grain from the chaff and store up the golden harvest in the granary of old age.

Make all of the needed improvements on the farm before planting time. See that the fences, gates, barn, etc., are in good repair. Whitewash and paint will be a good investment in making the farmstead attractive.

It is said to be impossible to make a whistle out of a pig's tail, but a fellow living in Philadelphia has discovered a process whereby he converts cotton waste into artificial rubber. The imitation is said to be excellent and to wear well.

Some people have an idea that the only way to make dairying profitable is to have every possible contrivance that one can think of. This is hardly right or just. Many a man has been a successful dairyman with a limited equipment.

It is always well to discount from 100 to 300 per cent the yields that are reported and pictured in some seed catalogues that are being distributed about now. Oats are not going to yield, as promised, 150 bushels per acre, nor corn 120, nor potatoes 700 bushels.

Those fellows down in Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma who have been pretty badly blocked with snow the past few weeks put up with the inconveniences of the situation very good naturedly, for in this same snow they see the moisture necessary to the maturing of a crop the coming season

Two neighbors living near Hazard, Ky., have had a long drawn out legal battle over an eight dollar hog, which was settled after having been twice in court by a decision in a third trial, in which the jury agreed that each litigant should bear his own share of the costs, which altogether amounted to a trifle over $500. Besides this, each party paid his own attorneys. It is needless to say that the cause of all this trouble was long ago converted into pork steak and bacon.

Husbandmen have been making hay for centuries, but it was not until a few months ago that a Mississippi valley farmer who evidently thinks as he works devised a plan for keeping loads of hay on bobsleds from tipping over. He rigged curved boards running parallel with the sleigh runners and fastened a short distance to either side and at a height of about a foot and a half from the ground. If the load tipped to either side these supports would rest on the ground and prevent a spill.

A north Iowa county has arranged a corn growing contest for the present season that has several features which make it worth reporting. A real estate association having offices in several towns in the county has offered prizes for the best five acre tracts of corn raised in the county during the season. The winner of the first prize will get $100 and the other four amounts ranging from this down to $20. Further interest has been added to the contest from the fact that since the prizes mentioned have been hung up fourteen landowners in different parts of the country have agreed to double any one of the prizes should any of their tenants be among the winners. It would be interesting to know just what the good effects of this contest will be to the corn raisers of this county this year.

We know a bull pup that is rapidly acquiring the habit of rushing out and barking at passing teams. Pretty soon now it would be a good idea to break the canine of the habit or break his neck, for if he doesn't quit it he will be a plaguey nuisance as long as he lives.

Of the common shade trees the hard and soft maple and box elder are the only ones that bleed seriously as a result of spring pruning. In the case of these such work should be done in the dead of winter before the sap starts or after the leaves are a half to two-thirds grown.

There has not been a spring season in a good many years when the raising of colts from blocky mares and the best sires one can get access to promised larger returns than seem to be in sight just now. There appears to be no danger whatever of flooding the heavy draft horse market.

An improper ration and lack of exercise on the part of the dams are two things more largely responsible for the loss of young farm animals at birth or shortly after than anything else. The two conditions combined leave the dam so depleted that she cannot do her young justice either before or after birth.

Some folks can't see how it pays to keep cows well groomed; looks to them like a sheer waste of time. But the fact is a cow that is carefully groomed is healthier than one that is left all dust covered and rough, and she eats more and digests her food better, all of which points to better returns from the milk.

The farmer who this year intends to raise sweet corn for a nearby factory can count on from $5 to $6 per ton for the green ears and on from seven to eight tons per acre. In figuring the income he should also take account of the value of the green stalks, which may be fed fresh or converted into silage.

In spite of the verdict of the jury which heard the case brought by the government against the Chicago packers, there will still persist in the minds of most men who have been engaged in raising stock during recent years that the beef barons have manipulated the market to their advantage, and that in a most brazen manner.

Cottonseed meal has been experimented with considerably as a part ration for horses and mules, and the conclusion reached seems to show that it cannot safely be used in excess of two pounds per day. In beginning to feed it much smaller quantities than this should be used. As in the case of oilmeal, it has a laxative effect on the alimentary tract and is very rich in protein.

Rotation of crops is not only to be strongly commended from the standpoint of the annual value of the crops, but as well from the standpoint of the resulting condition of the soil. Such rotation tends to reduce to a minimum damage by insect, fungous and other pests and serves to prevent soil depletion, and this latter is especially true in case some leguminous crop is used in the rotation.

There is no vegetable in the whole list that yields a more toothsome ration for the table than the lima bean. In growing it one should remember that originally it was a semi-tropical plant and that for best results a long growing and maturing season is desirable. However, dwarf bush varieties have been developed that will at least produce green beans for the table as far north as latitude 47 or 48.

The farmer who has to send away for his seed corn should keep clearly in mind the danger of planting seed grown any considerable distance south of the latitude in which he lives, for he is almost sure to get seed of a large variety that will have a hard time to mature in the shorter northerly season. Far better would it be to get seed from a considerable distance north, which, though of a small variety, will produce sound ears.

There is probably no single false step in the process of buttermaking from the act of milking to that of working the finished product that is responsible for a more low grade product than the quite common one of adding warm cream to a body of cold cream skimmed or separated from an earlier milking. The same rule holds as well with reference to the care of milk. The simple rule to remember is to cool all milk or cream before adding it to that which is already cold.

As a result of experiments that have been carried on during the past two or three years it has been found that hyacinths and the other bulbous flower plants that are in so great demand reach as great perfection in western Washington and northwestern Oregon as in Holland, which for many years has been the recognized most favorable locality for the growing of these plants. A comparison of the old and new world districts mentioned reveals a striking similarity in climatic conditions both as regards temperature and moisture. In both cases the climate is modified by warm ocean currents that temper the winter cold and furnish the moisture laden winds that are responsible for heavy rainfall. If the thrifty Hollander, who has until now had a monopoly on this bulb business, does not get his hands on generous tracts of this Puget sound country it will be because he doesn't hear about it.

THREE BROTHERS.

The writer has in mind three brothers who ten or twelve years ago were just starting out on their own hook. They came of a good family, but one in straitened financial condition. They did not set up a whine because of this seeming handicap nor cuss the government, the existing economic order nor Providence because of it. Rather they got busy and began to saw wood. They worked, and worked hard. Nor did they spend what they earned foolishly on things that would sap rather than strengthen their vital force—their efficiency as workingmen. Instead of carousing nights, as did so many of their fellows of like age, they slept so that they might work the harder next day. The upshot? Today each of the three has a fine farm of a quarter section or more, which if not paid for in full will be soon. They are all respected and honored in their respective communities. Some other fellows who played with these same boys in school and are now grown men are still in the hand to mouth brigade and couldn't borrow $50 at their local bank, and one or two of them couldn't buy a bushel of potatoes on tick. If you were to ask these fellows how it was those three brothers got ahead they would probably attribute it to good luck. This contention may be true in one narrow sense—namely, they were lucky enough to be endowed with good horse sense and a becoming appreciation of the law of cause and effect and the principle of sowing and reaping. Many a young fellow in his teens today who is leading a purposeless life or worse might do well to take himself off in a corner and talk things over and make up his mind whether twenty years hence he wants to be in a deeper rut than he is in today or have some property and a bank account. He might also well ponder on the "good luck" factor which entered into the success of these three brothers.

ASK HER ADVICE.

It may be true in a good many cases, as is sometimes contended, that women folk do not have much of a head for business, but there is no getting around the fact that a sead of fellows would now have larger bank accounts and be living on the interest of their money if they had asked and followed the advice of their wives before they tied up their hard earned thousands in some harebrained investment enterprise. As long as the good wife has to help pay the fiddler in case such an investment does not pan out right, it is no more than fair that she should be consulted in the matter before the step is taken. If she is consulted and the proposition proves a fizzle she will with better grace wear her last year's dress or bonnet.

USING ROCK PHOSPHATE.

While ground rock phosphate is one of the very best commercial fertilizers that can be used on depleted soil, it is well to keep in mind the fact that its fertilizing value is greatly lessened if scattered on the surface of the soil as one would scatter ground limestone. The most effective way of using the fertilizer is mixing small quantities of it on the manure and scattering it with that. Certain chemical reactions are necessary for the phosphate to break up and assume an available form, and the presence of the manure hastens this. The next best method of applying the phosphate is to scatter it on the surface of the soil just before turning under a growth of green manure.

WHERE REAL FAILURE IS.

We are wont to consider the failure of popular or representative government as indicated in the grafting of legislators or corrupting of judges, when the bottom truth of the matter is that it is more often shown in the criminal indifference of the so called good citizen, who has neither the gumption nor the patriotism to get out and take a hand in his precinct caucus or primary. It is because of the laziness or self interest of this class, who would rather add a half dollar to their bank account than have an honest man in office, that the rotten political conditions in many sections of the country are due.

POTATO PARINGS FOR SEED.

With early seed potatoes ranging in price from $1.70 to $2.25 per bushel this spring, it will be worth while being a bit economical of the seed. Two good eyes will give just as good returns in the hill as four or five, and the seed will go just twice as far. By keeping the parings of potatoes so that they will not sour or spoil they can also be used for seed, and a good many people at the close of a long winter when hundreds of thousands of bushels have been spoiled through freezing will find it convenient to practice this economy.

A SHORTSIGHTED POLICY.

The farmer who adopts an ungenerous and niggardly policy in the bringing up of his boys not only falls down in his calculation simply from the financial standpoint, but in nine cases out of ten the sowing is of such kind that he reaps a large harvest of disappointment and bitterness later on which can be by no means measured in dollars and cents—ingratitude and lack of love and respect. Many a father comes to a realization of this truth too late to undo the damage wrought. How is it with your boy?

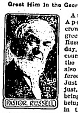
HOW JESUS PREACHED TO SPIRITS IN PRISON

Who They Are and the Cause of Their Imprisonment.

Pastor Russell Explodes the Theory That Jesus Preached to Dead Humans-in-Prison—Crowded Audiences Greet Him In the Georgia Capital.



Atlanta, Ga. April 28.—Two crowded audiences greeted Pastor Russell here today. One of his discourses was from the text, "Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened in the spirit, by which (two experiences—death and resurrection) He preached unto the spirits in prison" (I Peter iii, 18, 19).

This text has been made the basis for some very peculiar presentations. The difficulty in every case seems to be the failure to remember that the Bible always and everywhere teaches that the dead are really dead, that they know nothing, and that, therefore, it would be impossible to preach to the dead.

Spirits Once Disobedient.

The spirits to whom the message was given had proven themselves disobedient, says St. Peter. He even tells us the time of their disobedience—"In the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing."

Turning to Genesis vi, 1-5, we find there the cause of the disobedience of these angels who for a time had been permitted to see what they could do for the uplift of humanity, or, rather, permitted to demonstrate that the downward tendency of sin is incurable except in the manner which God has already arranged for through Messiah and His glorious reign of 1,000 years.

Instead of those angels helping mankind out of sin, they helped themselves into sin; and by so doing they increased the depravity amongst humanity until the astounding record is that "the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thought of his heart was only evil continually." The particular sin of those angels was that when they were granted the privileges of materializing—of taking human bodies—for the sake of helping and instructing mankind—they misused this power and took to themselves wives.

We are particularly told that the offspring of this improper union were giants, both physically and mentally superior to the fallen human family—"men of renown." The race thus in several centuries became so corrupt that apparently only Noah and his family were left uncontaminated.

It was then and there that God imprisoned these spirits ("angels, who kept not their first estate"), and are therefore called fallen angels, devils, demons. They were not imprisoned in some far-off world called hell, nor are they engaged there in stoking fires.

The record is that God cast them down, that they might not longer associate with the holy angels, but must be reserved in tartarus—our earth's atmosphere.—Jude 6; II Peter ii, 4, 5.

When imprisoned or cut off from the privilege of materialization, many of the fallen spirits continued their active opposition to God, after the manner of Satan. Hence they are spoken of as his angels, his messengers, and he is spoken of as Beelzebub, their Prince.

How Jesus Preached in Death.

Here arises another question: If Jesus was really dead, as the Scriptures declare; if "He poured out His soul unto death" and made His soul an offering for sin," and His soul was not raised from the dead until the third day after His crucifixion, how could He in the meantime preach to spirits in prison, or to anybody else? We reply that He could preach in the same way that the Apostle refers to, saying, "Abel, being dead, yet speaketh" (Hebrews xi, 4); and again, in the same way that the blood of Abel is said to have cried to God—figuratively. Of one thing we are sure, namely, that Jesus gave no oral address while He was dead. He preached in the way we sometimes refer to, when we say, "Actions speak louder than words."

It was the great object lesson which the fallen angels saw that constituted to them the great sermon that gave them a ground for hope. They admired Jesus' loyalty and faithfulness to God, but doubtless believed Him to be foolish; they never expected Him to arise from the dead.

But when they perceived His resurrection on the third day to glory, honor and immortality ("far above angels, principalities and powers"), His sermon to them was complete, namely, that "the wages of sin is death," but "the gift of God is eternal life" (Romans vi, 23). And as they realized thus the Power of God and the Love of God for His human creatures, the Apostle's words imply that this constituted to them a message of hope.

Doubtless there is much significance also in St. Paul's remarks, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge angels?" (I Corinthians vi, 3.) We do know that the holy angels need no judging, no trial; hence the Apostle must refer to a trial, or judgment, or testing of these spirits in prison who were disobedient, in the days of Noah.

...School Notes...

The state college of agriculture and the Crookston school of agriculture, also a state institution, have supplied the local high school with pure bred seeds for planting in the school plot. It is probable that the high school agriculture department will plant four or five acres of corn for seed purposes for next year. It is apparent from the seed experiences of Minnesota this spring that home grown seeds are the only reliable kind.

The seniors are well prepared for Friday's class play. "The Private Secretary" is certainly most entertaining and its presentation will be snappy and full of vim. The proceeds will be used to purchase a class memorial and to aid in meeting necessary graduation expenses. It might be stated that the pictures and ornaments in all the schools in this city—and there are several hundred dollars' worth—have been secured by the students in years past with funds raised by entertainments. "The Private Secretary" is worthy of your patronage.

School closes on Friday, May 31st. The last week of school will be devoted to the state high school board examinations.

J. H. Hay attended the Clearwater county association of teachers at Clearbrook last Saturday.

School gardens will be started in several parts of the city for pupils above the fifth grade. There are many good reasons which might be advanced in favor of this movement, but space forbids.

Last week, Mr. Haskin organized a farmers' club at the Sathre school southwest of town and another at the Wright school near Kratka.

It is gratifying to learn of the success of graduates of the local high school, who have attended higher institutions of learning, in securing positions in good towns in this and adjoining states.

Miss McConnell was detained by the illness of her mother at her home at Sioux Falls, S. D., until Tuesday of this week. Mrs. Haskin, Mrs. George Curran and Miss Dagny Halseth substituted during her absence.

The last basket ball game of the season was played between the first and second teams Friday evening, resulting in a victory for the former by a score of 18 to 5.

The high school grounds will be improved this spring by Mr. Haskin, the agriculture instructor.

Up to April 1st, the Knox school enrolled exactly 139 boys and 139 girls. The total enrollment in all schools to same date was 1258.

Here are the features embodied in a modern school building recently erected in Lexington, Kentucky: "The basement of the school shows a kitchen, carpenter shop, and a laundry where the children will be taught. The swimming pool and the showers are to be open to the young people and the adults of the community as well as to the school children. On the main floor, in addition to the classrooms, there is a large room to be used as kindergarten, gymnasium and auditorium. In the morning, the kindergarten children will occupy it. It is a story and a half high to accommodate the gymnasium apparatus. With the stage at the end and folding chairs, it may be converted into an auditorium for stereoptican lectures, musical entertainments and plays. The top floor shows four class rooms, a library and reading room, where the excellent library extension work now being carried on may develop. The flat roof may be used as an out-door school. When the school buildings belonging to the people are used by the people as their club houses, where recreation, physical education and educative amusement may be had, social evils will not cut so much figure in our civilization."

Among other samples of corn which are being tested by the department of agriculture of the high school, is a lot of 45 ears owned by Fr. Adolph Dingman, which he received from Beaulieu on the White Earth reservation. This corn is a native product, developed by Fr. Roman Homer, the resident priest, from the small squaw corn by cross fertilization with pure bred Minnesota varieties. It matures in ninety days and is a valuable contribution to the list of reliable varieties which can be grown with profit in northern Minnesota.

Bert Boyden, a member of the Caesar class, has constructed a diminutive bridge, modeled on a plan adopted by Caesar's army engineers. It is a clever contrivance of small sticks and ordinary twine, all weighing only one and a half pounds but capable of supporting a weight of 150 pounds.

Of the common shade trees the hard and soft maple and box elder are the only ones that bleed seriously as a result of spring pruning. In the case of these such work should be done in the dead of winter before the sap starts or after the leaves are a half to two-thirds grown.

There has not been a spring season in a good many years when the raising of colts from blocky mares and the best sires one can get access to promised larger returns than seem to be in sight just now. There appears to be no danger whatever of flooding the heavy draft horse market.

An improper ration and lack of exercise on the part of the dams are two things more largely responsible for the loss of young farm animals at birth or shortly after than anything else. The two conditions combined leave the dam so depleted that she cannot do her young justice either before or after birth.

Some folks can't see how it pays to keep cows well groomed; looks to them like a sheer waste of time. But the fact is a cow that is carefully groomed is healthier than one that is left all dust covered and rough, and she eats more and digests her food better, all of which points to better returns from the milk.

The farmer who this year intends to raise sweet corn for a nearby factory can count on from $5 to $6 per ton for the green ears and on from seven to eight tons per acre. In figuring the income he should also take account of the value of the green stalks, which may be fed fresh or converted into silage.

In spite of the verdict of the jury which heard the case brought by the government against the Chicago packers, there will still persist in the minds of most men who have been engaged in raising stock during recent years that the beef barons have manipulated the market to their advantage, and that in a most brazen manner.

Cottonseed meal has been experimented with considerably as a part ration for horses and mules, and the conclusion reached seems to show that it cannot safely be used in excess of two pounds per day. In beginning to feed it much smaller quantities than this should be used. As in the case of oilmeal, it has a laxative effect on the alimentary tract and is very rich in protein.

Rotation of crops is not only to be strongly commended from the standpoint of the annual value of the crops, but as well from the standpoint of the resulting condition of the soil. Such rotation tends to reduce to a minimum damage by insect, fungous and other pests and serves to prevent soil depletion, and this latter is especially true in case some leguminous crop is used in the rotation.

There is no vegetable in the whole list that yields a more toothsome ration for the table than the lima bean. In growing it one should remember that originally it was a semi-tropical plant and that for best results a long growing and maturing season is desirable. However, dwarf bush varieties have been developed that will at least produce green beans for the table as far north as latitude 47 or 48.

The farmer who has to send away for his seed corn should keep clearly in mind the danger of planting seed grown any considerable distance south of the latitude in which he lives, for he is almost sure to get seed of a large variety that will have a hard time to mature in the shorter northerly season. Far better would it be to get seed from a considerable distance north, which though of a small variety.

There is probably no single false step in the process of buttermaking from the act of milking to that of working the finished product that is responsible for a more low grade product than the quite common one of adding warm cream to a body of cold cream skimmed or separated from an earlier milking. The same rule holds as well with reference to the care of milk. The simple rule to remember is to cool all milk or cream before adding it to that which is already cold.

As a result of experiments that have been carried on during the past two or three years it has been found that hyacinths and the other bulbous flower plants that are in so great demand reach as great perfection in western Washington and northwestern Oregon as in Holland, which for many years has been the recognized most favorable locality for the growing of these plants. A comparison of the old and new world districts mentioned reveals a striking similarity in climatic conditions both as regards temperature and moisture. In both cases the climate is modified by warm ocean currents that temper the winter cold and furnish the moisture laden winds that are responsible for heavy rainfall. If the thrifty Hollander, who has until now had a monopoly on this bulb business, does not get his hands on generous tracts of this Puget sound country it will be because he doesn't hear about it.

LAUDS AUGUST STRINDBERG

Writer in New York Publication Calls Swedish Novelist One of Greatest in the World—Blind People of Norway Well Taken Care Of—Danish Press Takes Great Interest in Germany's Foreign Policy.

SWEDEN.

The greatest living writer in the Scandinavian North and one of the greatest in the whole world, is the way Edward Bjorkman of New York characterizes August Strindberg. Writing in the Forum of Strindberg and the main facts of his life Mr. Bjorkman tells us that "no artist was ever more personal in his choice of material, and none more impersonal in his treatment of that material. Thus his life and his art are, to an exceptional degree, rendered inseparable. And coming up through grinding poverty and the most antipathetic surroundings, young Strindberg's story is the same one told by one man of genius after another. Then, suddenly, he discovered that he had in him the fine gift of poetical creation. His first masterpiece, 'Master Olaf,' an historical prose drama grouped around the Luther of the Swedish reformation, was completed in 1872. Forty years of shifting literary fashions have failed to sap its strength or dim its charm. But while it still seems great today, even when compared with the epoch-making works of universal literature, it stood unique in Swedish literature at the time of its completion—a landmark proclaiming the inception of a new era. That play was rejected—scornfully and sneeringly rejected—by the literary arbiters of the Royal theater, then the only stage available for the production of such a work. No publisher could be found for it. Nor until five years later was it placed in book form, and then in altered shape, after its author had rewritten it five times in compliance with the edict of the critics that verse alone was suitable to the historical drama. Strindberg was most unfortunate and unhappy in his matrimonial experiences. He was married three times, always seeking and never finding peace and happiness in the marital relation. His second masterpiece, a novel entitled 'The Red Room,' established his reputation as a writer. It was written under the stimulus of the happiness that came with his first marriage. In a work subsequently published in 1884 entitled 'Marriage' he endeavored to present modern marriage as he saw it—'based not on ideal claims, but on economic conditions.' It aroused the opposition of even the government and at the instigation of the queen he was 'criminally prosecuted,' not for immorality, but for 'sacrilegious treatment of an established religion.' As the years passed 'the relationship between him and his wife grew more painful.' The tortures he endured as this grew worse have been pictured by Strindberg in his autobiographical novel, 'A Fool's Confession,' with a minute exactness and a psychological penetration that have probably never been surpassed. At all times, from his earliest youth to the present day, Strindberg has been keenly interested in every aspect of life not only as an artist but as a thinker also."

The state church of Sweden has begun on a small scale what may be called slum work somewhat in the nature of that conducted by the Salvation Army, but in a different manner. The initiative work has been started by Rev. P. A. Wenner and a place in Stockholm has been opened for the support and shelter of the poor and wretched and thus far the necessary funds for this work have been secured from private funds and donations. The intention is to have some of the other congregations in the city open up similar places in various sections of the city. A corps of Sisters of Mercy is to be trained practically and theoretically to work among the destitute and forsaken and minister to their temporal and spiritual wants.

Henry Coleman May, charge d'affaires at the American legation in Stockholm, says: "From the budget proposals for 1913 now before the riksdag it appears that the financial position of Sweden is very strong and compares favorably with that of most other European countries. In spite of increased expenditure in several departments, particularly for public instruction, no new taxation is required. A loan of $7,500,000 is to be raised for extension of railways, telephones, waterpower stations, etc., about $750,000 is to be added to the workman's insurance fund and $1,750,000 is to be put into the sinking fund."

During the year of 1910 the insurance companies in the province of Skane paid out for damages by fire over 1,500,000 crowns. In 1911 the damages by fire were still greater and some of the companies were compelled to make loans to cover their obligations.

NORWAY.

The blind people of Norway seem to be well provided for. There are 1,245 who are taken care of either in public or private schools and other institutions. Besides these many others are in a condition to take care of themselves and are doing all kinds of work. There are, for example, 90 who are engaged in horticulture, 85 in mechanic arts, 12 are merchants, 12 domestics, 25 day laborers, 106 are mothers of families. There are in the city of Christiania, all told, 213 blind persons, 105 male and 108 female. In Bergen there are 18 male and 33 female blind. Through the country the female blind exceed the male.

It may be interesting to know what the people of Christiania do for a living. According to the recently published Year Book of that city 1,985 persons are engaged in agriculture, 201 in the fish industry, 69 in mining, 33,865 in manufacturing, 53,542 in the mechanical arts, 11,559 in varied smaller industries; merchants, banks and hotels give employment to 48,221; seafarers at home and abroad, 4,797; common laborers, 24,069; domestics, 3,612; unclassified, 9,233, and 4,279 are said to be unemployed.

Roald Amundsen is reported to have been offered 90,000 crowns for cabling the story of his discovery of the South pole from the London Chronicle. He also was offered a handsome sum of money from the Christiania papers. If the storthing will pay his expenses and award him upwards of 200,000 crowns, Captain Amundsen may learn that polar explorations, though fraught with much danger and physical exposure, is a most compensating piece of endeavor.

The Bergen colony in Christiania held their annual "fest" at the Grand hotel in the latter city on the evening of March 16. DENMARK.

During the negotiations between France and Germany over Morocco, it was by no means a mere accident that the Politiken and other leading papers frankly discussed Denmark's feeling toward "Germanism" and assumed either an enthusiastic tone or, at least, a mild and friendly one. That portion of the Danish nation that controls its foreign policies was intensely interested in the German negotiations not as guarantees, or as to the amount of "compensation," but as to the general question of war and peace. For, confessed or not, says an eminent writer, the Danes know that their existence as a people may be involved in the foreign policies of Germany. While popular sentiment was undoubtedly at heart pro-French, there was also a strong feeling in favor of Germany. This apparent contradiction, as well as a full discussion of other serious problems that confront Denmark, is treated from the German viewpoint in the Gegenwart (Berlin).

It is announced that the government of Denmark has received eighty offers of loans from banking houses of the world and that when the time comes for floating bonds there will be no difficulty in getting all the money wanted. American financiers are among those interested, but it is believed that when the loan is finally made it will be negotiated by a London bank, which has already put money in Danish [illegible].

EYE SORES OR BEAUTY SPOTS?

The widewake people of Minneapolis carried out a plan last year in connection with the handling of her vacant lots that might well be worked by other towns and cities having a needy class of people and acres of idle land that have heretofore been weedy eyesores during the summer season. The main motive that led to the carrying out of the plan referred to was a civic celebration in July, at which time it was desired to have the city present the neatest and most attractive appearance possible for both residents and visitors. There were in all 5,000 acres of this idle land. A generous response was made to the appeal of the city officials, and the result was that 2,000,000 square feet of land was planted to vegetables and 250,000 square feet to flowers. Among the results achieved were the beautifying of the city through a substitution of beds of flowers and straight rows of vegetables for vast expanses of burdock, fennel and pigweed, the giving of healthful outdoor exercise to many a stale and pale indoor employee, such a production of vegetables that the cost of fresh vegetables was reduced from 20 to 50 per cent, while not the least of the benefits was an encouragement of a spirit of sociability and neighborliness as a result of meeting in the garden work among people who prior to that time seldom saw or spoke to each other. This method of handling vacant city lots is commendable from every point of view, and it is none too early right now to make preparations for the tilling of lots which in the past have been doing nothing but produce a lusty crop of weeds.

PROFESSOR BOLLEY ON FLAX.

As a result of tests and experiments in flax culture, in which he is the leading investigator in this country, Professor Bolley of the North Dakota experiment station has proved conclusively that the reason for the spread of the common idea that flax is hard on land is not actually due so much to this as that, as usually grown, spores of the flax wilt are left in the soil, which not only attack a subsequent crop of flax disastrously, but do not improve conditions for any other crop. Professor Bolley states that by disinfecting flax with the formalin solution and sowing on land free from wilt spores good crops can be produced year after year, having done this himself consecutively for a period of sixteen years. However, he does not recommend such continuous cropping, but the use of flax in a four crop rotation. As a result of his experiment Professor Bolley has developed wilt proof types of flax that do well on ground badly infested with this plant disease.

WILL WORK FEWER ACRES.

A reader of these notes who for several years past has been working some 600 acres of land in company with a brother-in-law has decided for the coming season to devote his energies to a quarter section farm. He tells us that with so many acres to look after the work sort o' drove him and his partner and the women folk as well and that the hired man problem presented a serious and often vexing factor in a situation that was already tense and complex. Our friend thinks that with the smaller farm he will be able to manage better, drive his work instead of having it drive him, and that in the showdown when the season's work is over he will have just about as much on hand as a reward for his labors. We believe this man is sensible and that he would be still more so if he should erect a couple of silos and work 100 acres instead of 160.

SHE LOST FIVE DOLLARS.

A grocer who is a good friend of the writer has lately been investigating the prices listed in the catalogue furnished the members of a well known club. On four of the first items listed he found that the prices charged club members ranged from 40 to 100 per cent higher than the prices he was asking for just as good a grade of the same commodities, or better, in his own store. And he further reports that a lady who had recently joined the club figured up a list of goods amounting to $15 which she had recently received and found she could have got the same goods or better of the home grocer for $10, thus saving $5 in cash besides freight charges. This reveals a situation that other small town merchants should look into and take advantage of through well directed advertising in the home paper.

THE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL.

Sufficient time has gone by so that it is now possible to judge the experiment of a consolidation of country school districts by the results that have been attained. In a majority of cases the feasibility as well as utility of the plan has been demonstrated, and only in rare instances has the consolidation plan been given up and the old district plan returned to. Among the favorable results which have been noted are better attendance, a better spirit among the pupils due to a greater number of pupils and larger classes and more competent and satisfactory instruction due to higher priced and more efficient teachers. There are a lot of school townships all over the country where the little white school houses with their five or six pupils ought to join hands in the establishment of a township school such as the one referred to.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

The steamship Titanic, the largest liner afloat, now on her maiden trip across the Atlantic, called "C. Q. D." and reported having struck an iceberg off Cape Race. The steamer said that immediate assistance was required. Half an hour afterward another message came reporting that they were sinking by the head and that women were being put off in lifeboats. The Marconi station at Cape Race notified the Allan liner Virginian, the captain of which immediately advised that he was proceeding for the scene of the disaster. The steamers Olympic and Baltic are also hurrying to the assistance of the Titanic.

The Mississippi is taking its tithe in Southern Arkansas and Northern Louisiana. The flood is pouring through two gaps in the levee—at Panther Fork in Arkansas and near Roosevelt, La.—over fertile flat lands in the Louisiana-Arkansas delta. It is estimated that a thousand square miles in East Carroll and Madison parishes, Louisiana, and Chicot and Desha counties, Arkansas, are flooded. Thousands of families have been rendered homeless.

Between 1,700 and 2,000 square miles, including more than 500,000 acres of rich farming land in Northeastern Arkansas in the St. Francis basin, are affected by a break in the main line of the levee system about fifty miles north of Memphis, near Golden Lake, Ark. Marked Tree and Wilson, Ark., are inundated and many other villages are threatened.

The Merchants and Miners' line steamer Ontario, from Baltimore to Boston, which carried fifteen passengers and a crew of forty, was run on the rocks off Montauk Point, L. I., with a fire raging fiercely in her hold. The passengers were taken off by a tug, but the crew remained aboard and fought the fire until it was brought under control.

W. D. Skinner, aged sixty, treasurer of the Hawkeye and Des Moines Fire Insurance company, was instantly killed, his wife probably fatally injured and W. L. White and wife were seriously hurt when a gas explosion wrecked the Skinner home at Des Moines.

Fifteen buildings were wiped out, seventy-five families made homeless and property worth $200,000 destroyed by a fire which started in the Cairns Wood Working company's mill at East Hartford, Conn., and spread rapidly in all directions.

Four boys were drowned when a boat in which they were crossing the Ohio river from the West Virginia side capsized twelve miles south of East Liverpool, O.

PRIVATE SECRETARY

The Class Play at the Auditorium on Friday Attracted a Large Audience.

Seniors Realize Large Sum—Miss Goodwin Makes Good Showing as Director.

The Seniors presented for public approval their comedy farce play entitled "The Private Secretary," April 19th, at the Auditorium to a large audience. The play from start to finish was full of life and good comedy. Each and every character took his or her part with ease, showing no signs of weakness, in fact they took their parts so well one would have been inclined to believe they were old experienced actors.

Miss Goodwin, the instructor of the play, deserves much credit for the way in which she had trained the cast of characters. Rehearsal every evening was in order, until she was satisfied the cast was up to the standard and in first-class shape.

They gave a matinee to the school children Friday afternoon, at which time a good crowd turned out and were all well pleased, and it is still being talked about. The sum which was taken in for the two performances was $290.00, the expenses will approximately be about one third, but nevertheless the sum left will be sufficient to purchase a very handsome class memorial.

Another Big Land Sale

Last Saturday T. P. Hamre sold the east half of Section 14, T. 157, R. 43, for $25 per acre cash.

The purchaser was T. B. McCollough, superintendent of the State Reformatory at St. Cloud.

Mr. McCollough is a practical farmer, himself having the management of 1,000 acres at the institution at St. Cloud. He is a judge of soil and, having looked over considerable country at Bemidji, Plummer and other points south of here, considered this the most promising section for investment. He did not buy this land with the idea of letting it lie idle either, but will have it developed into a model farm. Thus more and more is it evident that the country tributary to Middle River is coming into its own. We are just starting in on an era of rapid development that will double land values here inside of five years: Mark the prediction.—Middle River Pioneer.

ERIE

From the Eleven Towns.

The Erie "Mudhens" are getting into harness and promising to play ball during the summer.

Jos. Johnson drove out from Thief River Falls to look after business matters pertaining to his farm, returning home Monday morning.

Isaac J. Hole, who has been sick for some time, will go to the hospital at Warren the first of the week to undergo an operation for rupture.

Theo. Hyland struck a good flow of water on the H. Hommy place last week at a depth of 75 feet. He is now engaged in drilling for A. W. Hanson.

Geo. S. Baird has moved onto his farm northwest from Erie while putting in his spring crop and has engaged Miss Amelia Meyer to keep house for the crew while there.

H. C. Iverson departed Monday morning via Roland and Plummer for Thief River Falls, making an 80-acre additional entry to his claim in section 27, in Star. He returned home Tuesday on the "overland."

A BAD RUNAWAY

Last Monday Morning Was the Cause of Great Excitement on Main Avenue.

Shortly after eleven o'clock Monday forenoon Mrs. Harolson, driving a single horse down Main Avenue towards 3rd Street, was thrown from the buggy and dragged a short distance, after which the back wheels passed over her body, rendering her unconscious for a short period. She was immediately picked up and taken into the West hotel. Though badly bruised, she sustained no serious injuries.

The horse, with the buggy overturned, started west on 3rd Street, running upon the sidewalk alongside the E. & E. Clothing store, and the buggy went through the big plate glass window in the rear of the store. The horse continued to run as far as the Jenson & Sons livery barn, where it turned in, dragging the buggy. The buggy was a complete wreck, but the horse escaped all injuries. It is said that the horse became frightened at a passing automobile, but we are unable to testify to this statement.

MALCOLM.

John Saterly, of Rapid River, was a Saturday business caller here.

The Misses Olof Hoff, J. H. Johnson and E. A. Graphain spent Saturday evening with John Peterson.

Geo. Lipscomb and land seekers from Thief River Falls spent the last part of the week in this vicinity.

Floyd Belding spent Saturday and Sunday with Johnny Peterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Orheim and family were Sunday visitors at the J. Peterson home.

Mr. Markon, of Thief River Falls, spent last week on his homestead.

Miss Lily Solberg, of Orheim, was a Sunday visitor here.

Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Kline were Sunday P. M. visitors at Mrs. John Peterson.

Mrs. Ackerblade is having logs sawed at the saw mill.

...School Notes...

On March 22nd, the Thief River Falls schools were added to the list of Minnesota schools accredited to the colleges and universities of the middle west states. Accredited schools are those which, by reason of the standard of their work and the completeness of their equipment, are placed on an honor list and their graduates freely admitted without any restrictions to the educational institutions mentioned. This honor is enjoyed by but a limited number of Minnesota schools, and it is all the more gratifying in view of the fact that it came unsought by the local school.

Nearly three bushels of pedigreed seed corn were recently received by the department of agriculture of the high school from the Crookston experimental station. It was guaranteed to germinate at least 80 percent, but a series of tests by Mr. Haskin developed the fact that not over 50 percent germinated satisfactorily. If this guaranteed seed from so reliable a source is almost valueless for seed purposes, the seed corn in the hands of neighboring farmers cannot be safe to plant. Mr. Haskin is anxious to test any corn brought him and to make a detailed statement of the result. He has the necessary equipment to do it properly and it will pay everyone to accept this free offer before seeding.

The local schools are under deep obligations to the city newspapers for the liberal treatment accorded their interests by the editors. The generous donation of weekly space for the School Notes, as well as the publicity granted every school activity, tends in large measure towards the success of educational movements in this city.

SHOWS SCIENCE

Loren Curtis Was Not Slow About Defeating the Champion Middle Weight of Canada.

Chas. Gustafson Loses First Fall in 6 Minutes and 45 Seconds.

The wrestling match Thursday at the Auditorium spoke for itself. Loren Curtis is by far the best and cleverest wrestler who has ever been staged in this city during recent years and proved the same when he so cleverly and quickly defeated Chas. Gustafson, champion middle weight of Canada, two falls in 11 minutes and 25 seconds. Gustafson without a doubt is a good wrestler, but his opponent was far superior to him.

The preliminaries were all very good. The first was between Alfred Lee and Oscar Cerny, the former winning in two straight falls. Al Betcher wrestled a handicap match with Harold McCrum, Duncan Stanton, Oscar Eggerude and Joe Wickum. Betcher agreed to throw the four boys in 20 minutes, which he did. They lasted as follows: Eggerude, 2 minutes and 20 seconds; McCrum, 1 minute and 15 seconds; Stanton 45 seconds, and the coming "White Hope, Joe Wickum stayed 7 minutes; total, 12 minutes and 25 seconds.

Local fans are now getting in line to arrange a big match between Loren Curtis and Young Miller, of St. Paul, champion middle weight of the world. This match will, so far as we know at present, be staged in this city and it without a doubt will be one great to witness. Watch for later announcements.

ST. HILAIRE.

From the Spectator.

C. A. Pitkin, of Thief River Falls, spent Sunday in St. Hilaire.

O. H. Olson took in the sights at Thief River Falls yesterday.

County Surveyor Martz was looking after official matters at the county seat Thursday.

Mrs. Jo Draeger returned Thursday to her home at Badger, after a visit at Hans Wilson's.

Ed. Peterson purchased the A. G. Ness residence in the south part of town, paying therefor $200.00.

Attorney Boughton and Sheriff Fellman, of Red Lake Falls, were in town a few minutes Thursday afternoon.

An alarm of fire made quite an excitement for a few minutes Wednesday. A barrel full of excelsior standing at the rear end of the Oddfellows building in some way became lighted and made a fierce looking fire.

Miss Ella Jackson returned Monday from Hickory township, where she just closed a very successful term of school. While on her way home she and another young lady and the young man who was driving had the discouraging experience of being dumped into the cold waters of the Clearwater river.

PROFIT IN COWS

A Case Where Ten of Them Paid Better Than Forty-Five.

A striking example of the advantage accruing to the dairyman from the careful testing of his cows is afforded in a recently-published synopsis of the work of a single Cow-Testing Association. The profit on one herd of forty-five cows, for the limited period of the test, was $122.21. The profit on the best ten cows included in the same herd was $151.82. It is therefore seen that not only did the owner feed and care for thirty-five poor cows, with no return whatever, but he actually spent upon them $29.61 of the money earned by the ten good cows. He would have been far better off had he kept only the ten.

It is to save the dairyman from such needless misapplication of his energies, and to make sure that every cow in his herd shall contribute her proportionate amount to his gross earnings, that Cow-Testing Associations have been called into existence. There are now probably 100 such associations in the United States. Each member usually pays $1 per cow per year for the services of the expert employed to do the testing. To some, this may seem a high figure, especially as the dairyman is expected to board and lodge the expert for the day given, once a month, to the work. But that the outlay justifies itself is seen from results.

The proper selection of the herd, on the sole basis of the production of milk and butter-fat, is the foundation of successful dairying. Before the revelations of the scales and the Babcock test, all judgments based on form, breed or pedigree must be relegated to innocuous desuetude. Only by the production of milk in a sufficient amount and of sufficient richness can a cow justify her right to remain in the dairy herd. And the testing association is the most convenient and inexpensive instrumentality for bringing her, at proper intervals, before a tribunal which shall decide whether she shall there remain or be fitted for the shambles.—C. R. Barns, Extension Div. Minn. Col. of Agriculture.

Advertised Letters.

The following is a list of the unclaimed letters at the post office of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the week ending April 6, 1912. If not called for in two weeks from the above date they will be sent to the Dead Letter Office at Washington D. C.:

Anderson, Miss Nora

Will Purchase Huller.

Ole Tessum of the Tessum Temanson Elevator Company informed us this week that he intended to purchase a Clover Huller, providing the farmers of this vicinity would raise clover enough to make this a paying investment. Now, Mr. Farmer, when you are in the city you will do Mr. Tessum as well as yourself a great favor if you call on him and talk this matter over.

FIRST TOUR TO THIEF RIVER

Crookston Automobile Club Will Take Run to Three Live Towns.

On the Return Trip—A Scout Machine Will Be Sent to Locate Route.

Dr. Morley, chairman of the touring committee of the Crookston Automobile club, announces that the club has decided to make the first run of the season to Thief River Falls about May 1st, the exact date not having been set.

Stops will be made at St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls and the return trip may be made via a portion of the old Pembina trail, but the exact route will not be announced until the return of a scout automobile which will report on the condition of the various roads and which is the most advisable route to take.

The Crookston Automobile club will make several tours this year, and every one of them will attract a big following. There will be no objections this year on the speed question as all speeding will be eliminated, and a pace set at no time that will be dangerous or that will bother anyone to hold their place in the line.

"A Thousand Years in Hell."

Due to the fact that we have had a considerable number of inquiries in regard to the nature of this book, since the Times has run one of the poems, same will be postponed, and for the benefit of the querilous the writer wishes to submit to the public the following extract from one of the chapters of the book, "A THOUSAND YEARS IN HELL," by E. C. Schinderling, of Thief River Falls.

PREFACE

As an introduction to this volume, the author wishes to state to the Humble and gentle, pious reader, that it is written for grown folks with a conjectural nature, who are not superstitious or weaklings, but search for the essence of a Divine Truth at the Great Fountain of Knowledge, which governs their future, and Natural lives during their abode on earth, and the Hereafter.

If the rigidity of your moral spine will withstand the strain, pick it up and read it. If not, and you are not in sympathy with scientific developments, and unwilling to listen to the power of REASON, and intelligence, that oozes from out your own intellectual, and Supreme Superiority, with which you have been endowed; if you have not made at least sixteen trips around the Sun, close the volume, and lay it aside for some one else. It is too salty for YOU. YOU are too FRESH for it.

See the Times and Press for other extracts.

Public Notice.

Notice is hereby given that a public meeting will be held at the Auditorium on Tuesday, April 30th, at 8 p m for the consideration of the hospital proposition.

This is of vital importance to every man and woman in Thief River Falls and surrounding country and deserves their serious consideration. All are urgently requested to lay aside other duties, attend this meeting and participate in the proceedings.

WERE MARRIED

Miss Ruth Godward and Carl Korstad were United in Marriage at Elbow Lake.

Last Thursday, April 18th, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Godward, at Elbow Lake occurred the marriage of Miss Ruth Godward to Carl Korstad. Miss Godward for a long time was librarian in the public library and during the time she has resided here has made a large number of friends who wish her great success during wedded life.

As for Carl, he needs no introduction to people of this city as he was connected with the Korstad Bros. clothing store some time ago and is very popular and well known. The young couple left Elbow Lake Thursday on a honeymoon trip to Minneapolis and other points in the southern part of this state. On their return to this city they will remove to Mr. Korstad's farm near Highlanding where they will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Korstad have a large circle of friends who join the News in wishing them much happiness.

POSTAL SAVINGS

Information Concerning Postal Savings Bonds to Be Issued July 1, 1912.

By applying on or before June 1, 1912, depositors of the Postal Savings System may exchange the whole or a part of their deposits for United States registered or coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100, and $500, bearing interest from July 1, 1912, at the rate of 2½ per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, and redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after one year from the date of issue, both principal and interest payable 20 years from that date in United States gold coin.

Postal savings bonds are exempt from all taxes or duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form by or under State, municipal, or local authority.

Applications for the conversion of deposits into bonds on July 1, 1912, must be received on or before June 1, 1912, by the postmaster at the depository office where the certificates were issued.

PLUMMER.

From the Plummer Pioneer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker and children and Miss Nellie Short, of Garnes, were guests at the J. Alrick home last Sunday.

T. A. Brink, of St. Hilaire, arrived here last week to take charge of the barber shop during the absence of Horace Demarius, who is reported ill at his home in Red Lake Falls.

Al Huseth, the Thief River tonsorial specialist, came down Thursday in response to an urgent appeal to administer trimmings to the local whiskers. On his arrival, however, he found that he had been preceded here by Mr. Brink, who came here on a like occasion.

Roy Halseth, a brother of Miss Laura Halseth, came down from his home at Thief River for an over-Sunday visit here. Sunday morning a trio composed of Miss Halseth and Messrs. Halseth and Alcid Morrisette drove out to Garnes to spend the day with Miss Magna Halseth.

Bert Brese arrived here the latter part of last week from Osceola, Wis., and is moving his furniture and supplies out on his farm north of town. Mr. Roese purchased his farm here some two years ago. He will convert a big portion of his land into field this year and intends to remain here permanently.

The construction work on the new bridge to span the Clearwater is expected to be commenced next week. Part of the material is now here and more is arriving every day. When the work is commenced, it is expected that between ten and twelve men will be employed to do the work. The bridge is to be completed by June 1st.

While the robin and meadow lark are accepted as true harbingers of spring, the musical trill of the [illegible] frog on a quiet evening following a warm day furnishes more conclusive proof that spring has come.

The cherry slug, which also feeds on the leaves of young pear trees, and its second cousin, which eats rose leaves, may be put out of business by sprinkling the leaves when the dew is on or after a rain with fine road dust.

Many a farm dog has come to grief through biting at the spokes of a swiftly moving automobile, not having had it brought to his attention before that this is a different proposition from chasing a skittish horse driven by some passerby.

A merchant of the writer's acquaintance had a sack of prime clover seed stolen the other night. To any one who has priced the commodity this spring it scarcely need be said that this offense hardly comes under the head of petty larceny.

The "good" citizen who stays at home when he ought to go to the polls and vote is good in the same sense that are those over whose remains tombstones have been placed in the quiet graveyards. Nay, he is worse than these, for they can't do better and he could.

With alfalfa hay to be had at from $5 to $8 per ton in sections of several western states far removed from central markets, the opportunity would seem to be excellent for the cheap production of milk products as well as mutton and beef. In all too many of such isolated sections milk, butter and fresh meats fetch very high prices.

Planting weak germed kernels of corn in a field, the bulk of the stalks of which are from strong germed kernels, and allowing them to mature tassels which will scatter a vitiated pollen for rods around are contrary to every accepted principle of breeding in either plant or animal life. It is merely the question of the "scrub sire" in a little different aspect from usual, but real nevertheless.

Professor Hansen of the South Dakota experiment station, who some years ago brought back from Siberia the seeds of a hardy alfalfa, is this spring delivering to new members of the State Horticultural society little packets containing 100 seeds of this new Cossack alfalfa, which are said to be worth $1 a package. This variety is said to grow luxuriantly, to bear good quantities of seed and to be sufficiently hardy for all the great dry and cold northwest. He would seem to be a lucky farmer who gets some of this seed.

The problem that many a dairyman is confronted with of whether it would be to his advantage to sell milk or butter is in many instances settled by the disposal he is able to make of his skimmilk and buttermilk. If he can get as much for a pound of butter as he can for two gallons of milk it is just about a standoff, the value of the skimmilk and buttermilk byproducts paying for the manufacture of the butter. However, a pound of butter removes far less fertility from the farm than two gallons of milk, and this is a factor, often overlooked, that should be kept in mind.

A fellow living in a district infested with quack grass has invented a machine which he thinks will rid the country of the pest. It plows up the soil, elevates it, crushes it and passes it over flaming gas jets, the heat from which destroys all seeds or vegetable matter that it contains. There are two features in connection with this contraption that the writer is a bit skeptical of. The first is the possibility of running the machine slowly enough so as to thoroughly heat the soil; the other, how the average farmer is going to make enough money off land so present infested with quack grass to buy the fuel for those "flaming gas jets."

The percentage of fat which a cow's milk will yield depends upon her individuality and the breed, but it depends more on the former than the latter.

The farmer who takes the best care of his cows usually knows what each cow is doing, and likewise the farmer that knows what each cow is doing usually gives his herd the best care.

The careful farmer who gives his personal attention to the making and feeding of silage and is not satisfied with the result is yet to be heard from. The silo seems to be edging mighty near the cornerstone of successful dairying.

True, the clover sown last spring in many of the states east of the Rockies was pretty nearly thrown away because the catch was killed by the unusually dry summer. But, disappointing as this was, it should not serve as a good excuse for not sowing some clover seed this spring.

A boy climbs up and makes something of himself in life or sows his wild oats and goes to the devil largely as a result of the use he makes of his spare hours. Success and happiness as well as failure and misery are wrapped up in them, and the thoughtful lad will have a care how he spends them.

There is little question that the high cost of living today is traceable to quite an extent to the high prices that have to be paid for the necessaries of life, but it is also in part due to the fact that the list of what we deem necessaries has been considerably enlarged over what it was a generation ago.

The sweet peas may be planted as soon as the frost is out of the ground and will stand dry weather the better if they are put in to a depth of from four to six inches. After they come up the surface soil should be stirred frequently, and later on the peas should be watered if the weather turns very dry.

While the disk drill is to be strongly recommended for use when the soil is in a fine and mellow condition, we know of a good many fellows who during the past two or three years have had to abandon them because a sticky condition of soil made them pull so hard that six horses were required to do the job.

In a good many sections of the country where bad roads are to be found during many weeks of the year the prospects are good that rural free delivery service will be discontinued altogether, the postal department having come to the decision that if the farmers living along a given route are not sufficiently interested in the service to keep the roads in passable condition they shall not have their mail distributed.

The thorough stirring up of the established alfalfa field with the spring tooth harrow will not only destroy hordes of small weeds just getting a start, but will make the surface soil more mellow and thus conserve the moisture. The field may look sort of sick when the job is done, but it takes something stiffer than a spring tooth harrow to kill an alfalfa root that is all the way from a quarter of an inch to an inch and a half in diameter.

The fellow who has helped about the house just a little bit ought to have a sufficiently adequate idea of the extent of a woman's work to be persuaded without being hit on the head with a sled stake that she will have her hands full if she does the work about the house as it ought to be done without bringing in the wood, pumping and carrying water, dumping slops and a whole lot of other things that a man wouldn't put up with for five minutes if he were in the woman's place.

The writer's home is pestered with mice now and then, just as are those of other folks. The little wretches had been waxing fat on some stale corn meal and were having high jinks all over the house. It got tiresome. We baited one of the little snap traps with a small piece of cheese, tying it to the tongue of the trap. Four of the pests were caught inside of thirty-six hours, and there is enough bait left for four more. The colony has been cleaned out, and now the writer and his good wife sleep in peace.

The planting of a tree is often an entirely unselfish act, for the chief value of it along the line of both fruit and shade reaches a maximum when the one who planted it has gone to his reward. It is so with the trees that used to mean so much to us as children, and it may be true of the trees we plant now, which will furnish fruit or shade for our children and their children. Make Arbor day something besides a pretty sentiment this year by actually setting out a tree or trees. The planting of trees requires faith, and that is one of the features that make it so much worth while.

Scientists in Germany have come to the aid of animal husbandmen again through the discovery of a serum treatment for the prevention of calf cholera or scours, which is a germ disease and most destructive. The new medicine is called polyvalent dysentery serum and is given to the newborn calf in the form of a hypodermic injection, ten cubic centimeters being a sufficient preventive dose and twenty cubic centimeters being required to effect a cure in case the disease has been contracted. In experiments in Germany the serum was found to prevent dysentery in 91 per cent of the calves treated.

THE FLY CROP.

While it is impossible to forecast the weather or tell just how large the different crops will be, there need be no guesswork on the question of flies. It is safe to take it for granted that there will be the usual number of the dirty pests. It is true there are not as many of them about right now as there will be in eight weeks, but it is none too early to begin waging a vigorous campaign against them. The fight against them should be waged along two general lines—first, reducing their breeding places to a minimum, and, next, to destroy them with traps and poison as soon as they put in an appearance. The several prepared fly dopes are excellent, but care should be taken to see that they are kept out of the reach of little children. Another dope that is not harmful to the human is made by adding a couple of tablespoonfuls of formalin to a pint of water and placing this in shallow dishes where the flies gather. A little sugar and a few drops of vinegar will serve to increase its drawing power. The most effective trap is made by inserting a cone made of wire screen with a small hole in the tip in the bottom of a barrel or smaller receptacle with wire sides, made fly tight. This should be put where the flies gather, raised three or four inches on supports and a dish of some sweet stuff placed beneath to more effectively draw the flies. They will creep up this cone into the trap, and the more flies there are trapped the more will want to get into it.

PRESERVING EGGS.

Now that the season of cheaper eggs is at hand there may be some readers who will want to preserve some for fall and winter use. One of the best methods of a good many that have been tried is by the use of the water glass solution, or sodium silicate. This chemical costs about 30 cents a quart and can be got at most any drug store. This should be thoroughly mixed with water that has been boiled and cooled at the rate of a quart of the water glass to nine quarts of water. The best receptacle to use is an earthenware vessel, which should be scalded out before being used. Only clean, fresh and uncracked eggs should be put down. The jar containing the eggs should be put in a cool place and covered with sacking or a board cover to prevent evaporation of the solution. Experience shows that eggs laid in April and May will keep longer than those secured in other months.

WHY IT PAYS.

Briefly, the philosophy of the advantage of clover growing lies in this fact—that, while a ton of clover hay takes from the soil about $8 in fertilizing elements, there is added to the soil through the root systems, which take nitrogen from the air, about the same volume of fertilizers. This means that one can grow clover and just about keep even. However, if one feeds this clover hay on the farm and returns the manure to the soil the farmer will be the gainer by approximately $4 worth of fertilizers for every ton of hay produced. It is due to this fact that sections where dairying is carried on and where cattle and sheep are fed become more fertile and prosperous as the years go by.

WHY THEY STAY.

Folks living in security on the highland watersheds, far removed from the Missouri and Mississippi river bottoms, wonder sometimes why folks persist in living where the water level in these rivers is higher than the beds they sleep in at night and where in time of spring freshets they are likely to be drowned out of house and home. The secret of this persistence may be accounted for in part by the fact that many of these people are of limited resources and have not the wherewithal to buy land elsewhere, but in larger part because these lowlands, overflowed as they are with the silt laden waters at floodtime, are as fertile and productive as was ever the valley of the Nile.

A LIVE STOCK SPECIAL.

The good work which is being done along the line of animal husbandry in the Wisconsin State Agricultural college at Madison is being spread abroad in the southern and western parts of the state this spring by means of the running of live stock specials, officials of the several railroads co-operating in admirable fashion with representatives from the college. Not only are lectures on the advantage of raising improved breeds of stock given, but representatives of the several kinds of domestic animals are taken along as object lessons to drive home the arguments presented in the talks. It is a good work that is being done and means benefit for all parties concerned.

CUTWORM AGAIN.

While gardeners in many sections of the country have been hoping that there would be a letup in the cutworm pest this spring, indications point to the contrary. Gardeners who have made early hotbeds find the worms already at work and doing much damage. If one is compelled to wage a campaign against the worms there is no better way than moistening bran or clover or alfalfa hay in a solution of paris green and scattering the bait along rows of newly set plants. As the worms do most of their work at night, the bait should be scattered in the evening. They will feed on it during the night and kick the bucket the next morning.

F. E. Trigg

The dandelion is a perennial pest, and worse some seasons than others. There are two methods of getting rid of it. One is to take a sharp knife and cut the plants off just below the crown. The other—and this method is recommended for larger areas—is to spray the young and tender plants with a strong solution of iron sulphate or green vitriol. This puts the plants out of commission, but does not seriously injure the grass.

The milk distributers' trust in the New England states has forced or is keeping the price it is willing to pay for milk down to the point where a good many farmers cannot produce it and make both ends met, with the result that in some sections farmers are quitting the dairy business entirely and going into poultry raising. It would seem that if enough do this it would materially improve the market conditions for those that keep on with the cows.

The severity of the past winter was shown in the freezing over of many lakes so completely that all air holes were closed. Now that the ice in these lakes has disintegrated the result of the closing of these air holes is manifest in the presence of thousands of dead fish floating to the shore. At Lake Winona, Minn., so many fish died by suffocation during the winter that the health authorities had no small job on their hands disposing of their decaying carcasses.

A farmer living near Puyallup, Wash., has carried out the color scheme to the limit in his choice of animals which he raises. His preference is white, and he has carried it out in white buildings and fences, white horses and ponies, white cattle, hogs, sheep and goats, chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys and guinea fowls. Not satisfied with his outlay, he has Spitz dogs and Persian cats, an albino elk, three white deer, a mountain sheep and a polar bear cub.

In the valley in which the writer's ranch is located there is frequently considerable damage to older apple trees from sun scald, the damage resulting from the warm, bright days followed by frosty nights. This season we have safeguarded against this damage by tying long pine shakes on the southwest side of each trunk. This will shade them and keep the sap from flowing too rapidly. This sun scald damage is likely to occur at any time during the winter, but is often most serious during April and May.

The housewife can save herself much hard labor at housecleaning time by the use of her head—that is, by studying best methods and by employing all the substitutes for "elbow grease" she can find. Along this line it will pay her to read the household hints found in the various magazines published for women. While many of the suggestions therein contained are impracticable, if not indeed ridiculous, still some ideas are furnished which are well worth consideration and trial by busy women whose work at best is not light.

Many a young wife, all unconsciously, places her husband in a trying position by incurring expenditures quite beyond his means. In many instances the blame for this state of affairs is chargeable largely to the husband because of his failure to take his wife into his confidence. Many a home has been wrecked or had its happiness largely destroyed through failure on the part of the husband to inform his wife of the exact financial status. It is her right to know the volume of the income. If she does and is not willing to cooperate in making both ends meet, then the blame rests on herself.

THREE BROTHERS.

The writer has in mind three brothers who ten or twelve years ago were just starting out on their own hook. They came of a good family, but one in straitened financial condition. They did not set up a whine because of this seeming handicap nor cuss the government, the existing economic order nor Providence because of it. Rather they got busy and began to saw wood. They worked, and worked hard. Nor did they spend what they earned foolishly on things that would sap rather than strengthen their vital force—their efficiency as workingmen. Instead of carousing nights, as did so many of their fellows of like age, they slept so that they might work the harder next day. The upshot? Today each of the three has a fine farm of a quarter section or more, which if not paid for in full will be soon. They are all respected and honored in their respective communities. Some other fellows who played with these same boys in school and are now grown men are still in the hand to mouth brigade and couldn't borrow $50 at their local bank, and one or two of them couldn't buy a bushel of potatoes on tick. If you were to ask these fellows how it was those three brothers got ahead they would probably attribute it to good luck. This contention may be true in one narrow sense—namely, they were lucky enough to be endowed with good horse sense and a becoming appreciation of the law of cause and effect and the principle of sowing and reaping. Many a young fellow in his teens today who is leading a purposeless life or worse might do well to take himself off in a corner and talk things over and make up his mind whether twenty years hence he wants to be in a deeper rut than he is in today or have some property and a bank account. He might also well ponder on the "good luck" factor which entered into the success of these three brothers.

No wonder the doctrine of socialism and other discontent are on the increase when instances exist such as that reported in connection with an Indiana woman who spends close to $50,000 yearly on wearing apparel, and that when thousands of little babies in the country are dying for lack of proper food and medical attendance and when tens of thousands of other older children never have enough to satisfy their hunger nor enough clothing to keep them warm. A day of reckoning is coming some day, and the Lord have pity on those on whom the burden of the settlement falls.

So scarce and high priced have the pelts of fur bearing animals become that lately serious attention has been given to the question of raising wild animals for their fur. Along this line it is worth mentioning that the department of agriculture at Washington has recently issued a bulletin which tells how to raise mink, giving the details of mating, housing and feeding. With prime mink pelts selling at all the way from $7 to $10 apiece, it is easy to see how a handsome revenue could be derived from rough land, traversed by creeks, which would be practically worthless for any use but pasture. Any reader interested in this enterprise can secure the bulletin on mink raising by applying to his congressman at Washington or sending directly to the department.

The successful poultry raiser must possess to a certain extent that which has been called genius—"the capacity for taking infinite pains."

A piece of beef which is to be sliced for use cold will be much more satisfactory and slice more easily if it is roasted the day before it is to be used.

Last season was a mighty bad one for grasshoppers in several sections, and if the coming season should be as dry as last they are likely to be a still worse pest.

Unleached wood ashes contain from 5 to 7 per cent of potash and are an excellent fertilizer. As is well known, the ashes from hard wood are much richer in potash than those from soft wood.

When one rides through a dairy section it does not take very much imagination to decide whether the farmers are making money or not. The appearance of their places is sufficient evidence.

The uses of concrete are multiplying very rapidly. Not only has it largely taken the place of plank for sidewalks, barn floors and posts, but it is giving very satisfactory results as a substitute for wooden railway ties.

Eggs are quite as likely to absorb odors from the things the hen eats as milk is to take on smells from the things the cows consume in the stable. And either smelly milk or eggs are not calculated to whet one's appetite.

Hogs are not usually recommended as a fertilizer for corn, but one of the best fields of corn that the writer remembers having seen as a boy was one in which some 200 350-pound porkers that died of hog cholera had been planted.

The middle of January a carload of potatoes from Scotland was unloaded at Portland, Me., to supply local needs. This is said to be the first time in her history as one of the leading potato states that Maine has had to import potatoes for her own use.

It is not only desirable for a girl to know how to sew well from the standpoint of being competent and self sufficient, but from that of economy as well. Fortunately it is neither degrading nor unladylike for a woman to know how to clothe herself.

A northern poultry keeper who has been getting good results from a flock of forty pullets has made the meat of one rabbit a part of their daily bill of fare. Besides, they get wheat in the morning, oats or speltz at noon, cracked corn at night, while water and milk, bone and ground oyster shell are provided every day.

Baby beef is the cheapest and most profitable to raise, and the first 200 pounds of growth in a shoat is produced considerably cheaper than the last 100 pounds if he is brought to a weight of 300 pounds. Almost invariably early gains are quickest and cheapest, and this is just as true of poultry and sheep as it is of hogs and cattle.

If the flock of hens is to be confined the coming season it will be a good idea to shut off a portion of their yard or a tract adjoining and sow rape. If this is allowed to get a good start it will furnish the hens a supply of the finest green food all summer and they will be still nibbling at the stalks after they are killed by the frost of early winter.

If there was ever a spring when the argument ought to be strong in favor of setting out a wood lot it is the present one, following a winter season when the very sight of soft coal is enough to give the householder who has been buying it and the good wife who has been using it and cleaning up after it a veritable nightmare. Medium sized wood lots set ten or a dozen years ago are now giving their owners a most refreshing substitute for this nastiest of fuels.

They have found out in experiments conducted in Rothamstead, England, on the royal agricultural farms that if soil is heated to a temperature of 212 degrees F. it will kill certain forms of destructive animal life and make it possible for the soil to yield double what it has been wont to do. This is good news, but just how the fellow who cannot now, as things are, buy a new range for his wife or a spring bonnet, make necessary fence repairs or repair the hog house or dairy barn can install and operate a steam heating plant to parboil the [illegible] on his many acres we have not been quite able to figure out.

A SENSIBLE MAN.

A good friend the writer has known for many years and who at sixty-six years of age has yielded to the very commendable desire to take life a little easier and enjoy some of the fruits of his labors for the past thirty years or more on a quarter section farm has hit upon a very sensible solution of the best way to let go of the strenuous life he has been living. Rather than quit work entirely and rust out or die of azoturia, or whatever it is called in the case of genus homo, he has purchased a ten acre place on the edge of town, which has a very comfortable house and outbuildings, a fine little orchard, a nice garden patch, pasture for a cow or two and room enough to grow some corn and praties. He figures that working this much ground will keep him out of mischief, give him something to think about and provide enough exercise to give him a good appetite and keep him in good physical condition. By following the course he has we believe our friend has solved in a very satisfactory as well as sensible manner the question of retiring from active and heavy farm work. Many a man who has earned a competence for the eventime of life would not only be a good deal happier, but live many years longer, were he to carry out the same plan.

THE OLEOMARGARINE TAX.

A bill is being thrashed out in the agricultural committee at Washington which has in view placing a uniform tax of 2 cents per pound on all oleomargarine or butterine, whether colored or not. While there is considerable opposition to the bill on the part of some dairy associations, others have in effect given approval to the bill, provided it is accompanied by severe penalties for those who would ply the business of selling colored oleomargarine for butter and getting butter prices for it. There is little question that the present tax of 10 cents a pound on colored oleomargarine works a decided hardship on the man of limited salary or wage who has many mouths to feed. If he wants to buy butterine, knowing what it is, it hardly seems fair to impose a virtually prohibitive tax on this necessity in the interest of a class who are probably already the most well to do of any.

GIVES VENTILATION.

The use of muslin in place of window sash is now an accepted practice with practically all up to date poultry keepers. Not only does the muslin admit sufficient light, but, what is more essential than this, makes possible a perfect circulation of air. This insures the health of the flock, which in turn is a prime condition for egg production. A lady reader of these notes who has her poultry houses equipped in the above fashion reports twenty-six eggs from her flock of less than a hundred hens on a day recently when her thermometer on the back porch registered 36 below zero. Muslin is cheaper than window glass and is also better for the biddies. Another who has tried muslin in place of the upper window sash reports that dampness on the floor has disappeared since the change was made.

POTASH FROM SEAWEED.

Investigations which have been made by the department of agriculture with a view to finding practical sources for the securing of commercial potassium seem to have demonstrated that an ample supply of this valuable fertilizing element is to be got from the beds of kelp or giant seaweed which are found over considerable areas along the Pacific coast shore line. This weed extracts the potassium salts from the sea water, and when the weeds are dried the potassium exudes to the surface in the shape of potassium chloride. The dried plants contain from 25 to 30 per cent of the chloride, and it is estimated that if properly handled these beds would produce annually for an indefinite period of time 1,000,000 tons of potassium chloride, worth $40,000,000.

A TRAINLOAD OF STEERS FREEZE.

An incident of the period of severe cold in January, which reached a climax in a temperature of from 35 to 42 degrees below zero through the northern tier of states, that will probably not be recorded again in a generation, was the freezing to death of eighteen carloads of fat steers that were snowbound for fifty-six hours on the C., R. I. and P. railway between Neola and Council Bluffs. It is said that as the animals began to freeze they remained standing, and when the discovery of their plight was made the entire trainload, totaling some 360 head, were stark and stiff and still on their feet. If the steers were worth $70 a head the damages that will have to be paid by the railroad will be $25,200.

BURNING STUMPS.

The following method is recommended for treating stumps prior to burning them: Bore a hole in the center of each stump to a depth of a foot with a two inch auger, fill the hole one-fourth full of powdered saltpeter and the remainder with coal oil, filling a second time with coal oil when the oil first applied is absorbed. This job should be done in the spring, and in the fall it is said the stumps will burn, roots and all. Under this method it is claimed that the saltpeter dries the sap, while the oil penetrates the wood thoroughly and tends to make the combustion complete.

A Philadelphia surgeon has lately discovered that the inside membrane of hens' eggs can be successfully used as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations. The new skin formed by this method is finer than the old, but strong and healthy.

For folks who hibernate in latitudes where the mercury is likely to slip down to 20 or 30 below zero there is absolutely no investment that gives more generous or immediate returns than that put into a thirty-five cent soapstone. In the comfort which it yields it pays for itself every night it is used.

It is an interesting fact shown in immigration statistics that, while the vast majority of Italians who emigrate from their native land to the western world come to the United States, just as large a per cent of the Spanish peasants go to South American countries. During the past year 230,000 people left Spain, 8,000 of these arriving in Buenos Aires in a single fortnight.

That this "watermelon stealin'" business is getting to be serious is shown in the discussion of the subject by a speaker before the recent meeting of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association held in St. Louis. Some one has suggested giving each melon a paper jacket, which would prevent the melons from being exposed to view and thus reduce the temptation to steal them.

If you would live long drink generous amounts of sour milk or buttermilk. Scientists have discovered that the family of bacteria that produce lactic acid—that is, cause the souring process in milk—have the power to destroy or neutralize another group of germs that are said to be responsible for the imperfect digestion of food in the intestines, which in turn is said to be the chief cause of old age decline.

Illinois produced last year more corn than any other state in the Union, but the largest average yield per acre—88.3 bushels—was grown in Connecticut, not usually considered in the list of corn producing states at all. It is evident that the farmers of those rocky little New England homesteads are on to some secrets of corn raising that the owners of the big farms of the central western states would do well to get next to.

Baguio, in the Philippine Islands, is said to be the wettest place in all the territory at present under the control of the United States. Meteorological records kept there show that in four days of last July 88.14 inches of water fell, thirty-four inches of this enormous amount falling in a period of twenty-four hours. This place is the health resort of the island, and the "water" cure is said to be a favorite method of treatment.

Surveys are being made for a scenic highway around Crater lake, in southern Oregon, which is conceded to be one of the world's wonder spots, but which as yet has been visited by comparatively few people on account of its inaccessibility. A proposed automobile road from Medford, a station on the main line of the railroad, some sixty miles away, and the building of the scenic drive around the lake will afford to lovers of the beautiful in nature an opportunity of viewing one of her masterpieces.

Between meridians 100 degrees and 120 degrees, which includes practically all of the dry country of the western half of the United States, it is estimated that there are 200,000,000 acres of fertile land capable of producing a crop of twenty bushels per acre of winter wheat every other year. This means that if one-third of this vast area were producing on the above basis the increase in the country's wheat crop as a result would be 1,000,000,000 bushels yearly, which is a good deal more wheat than the country has ever produced in a single crop.

Folks who are paying 30 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of coffee wonder why there was not a drop in price when the import tariff tax was removed some time ago. The reason there was not is due to the fact that the Brazilian coffee trust, backed by the government, slapped on an export duty equal to our import tax which had just been removed. As a still further aid in maintaining prices the output of coffee is so regulated that in times of big crops enough of the surplus is removed from trade channels so that the price can be kept up on the remainder.

A reader of this department who lives at Reed City, Mich., in a recent letter calls attention to the interesting fact that as a result of investigations which have been carried on it is now contended that fruit raising can be carried on in Michigan over a much wider area than was formerly supposed. In support of this statement our correspondent calls attention to the fact of the clearing of one 3,000 acre tract not far from where he lives, all of which is to be set to fruit trees as soon as cleared. He also speaks in high terms of a fruit and land show that was held a short time since in Grand Rapids, where choice fruit put up in the western box fashion was on display. In this connection it may be added the Michigan fruit grower has a distinct advantage over his western competitor in [illegible] nearness to good markets. With he will take as much pains in the care and spraying of his trees and in the picking of his fruit he will [illegible] correspondingly satisfactory prices for his stuff.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Fifty butter and egg dealers from all parts of the state met at Minneapolis and organized the Minnesota Butter, Egg and Poultry association. The announced object of the association are: Equitable shipping rates; better shipping facilities to overcome a present loss of 20 per cent; teaching producers how to increase their output and prepare it for shipment; elimination of waste by co-operating with other state organizations and with the national storage and food product organizations.

A series of warning letters to farmers throughout the state has been issued jointly by A. D. Wilson, superintendent of the farm school extension division, and A. M. Olson, demonstration farm specialist. These letters bear on seed corn and deal with the test, Minnesota as a corn state and the importance of the corn crop to the prosperity of the state.

What is believed to have been the largest shipment of dairy cows ever made in a single consignment into the Pacific coast country from any market was made last week from South St. Paul by W. J. Rogers of Pipestone, Minn., who took out a special train load of 248 tested milch cows destined to Ellensburg, Wash.

Two hundred and thirty-seven thousand acres of unimproved farm land will be offered for sale by the state in Koochiching, Beltrami, Cass, Itasca, St. Louis, Aitkin and Roseau counties within the next seven months.

The state land sale at International Falls was the largest in the history of Koochiching county, 15,000 acres being disposed of at an average price of $6.50 an acre, with $18 the maximum.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Captain Joseph Weinman, eighty-six years old, a resident of Minnesota for fifty-six years, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. Weinman arrived in St. Paul by steamer from Galena, Ill., in May, 1856, moving at once to Benton, Carver county, where he was elected county attorney the following year. He served in that capacity for five years, when he was appointed second lieutenant and recruiting officer, Aug. 24, 1862, by Governor Alexander Ramsey, and participated in several Indian campaigns. After his discharge he removed to Faribault, where he resided until 1885, when he located in Minneapolis.

Victim of heart failure, Mrs. A. B. Nelson of Minneapolis died suddenly in the presence of her husband and two small children in the main dining room of the West hotel, while hundreds of other diners were there. The parents and their children had just finished their dinner when death came to Mrs. Nelson.

Charles E. Johnson of Atwater, member of the legislature from the Fifty-fifth district, is dead at Bethesda hospital, St. Paul. Mr. Johnson was operated upon at the hospital three weeks ago. He was fifty-two years of age and a native of Minnesota.

Malcolm Duncan, eighty years old, dropped dead of heart failure at his daughter's home at Cloquet. Duncan removed to Cloquet a few months ago from Stillwater, where he had lived forty years.

Newington Gilbert, aged ninety-seven, is dead at St. Paul. He was the sole surviving delegate to the convention which framed Minnesota's constitution.

Mrs. Mary Jane Towlerton, seventy-eight years old, who came direct to St. Paul from her home in England in 1856, is dead at St. Paul.

Joseph Smith, a well known citizen of Fergus Falls, fell dead while playing a game of checkers at the home of a neighbor.

Maurice W. Eastman, twenty-four years old, vice president of the St. Cloud Journal Press company, is dead.

Major G. W. Budd, for many years prominent in army circles, is dead at Minneapolis, aged seventy-six years.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Burglars set grass fires to the windward of New Duluth. When the flames swept toward the town the police and citizens started out to fight them. Then the robbers broke open Frank Brard's general store and stole $500 worth of clothing and jewelry.

Mrs. Christina Peterson of Nordland, near Aitkin, died from burns received while endeavoring to put out a grass fire. Her son Emil also was severely burned while pulling the burning clothing from his mother. Mrs. Peterson was fifty-seven years old.

Isadore Cohen, an eighteen-year-old North high school student, and son of Rabbi Hirsch Cohen, is dead at Minneapolis. Cohen was struck by a speeding motorcycle while picking his way among teams and auto trucks.

F. H. Gladen, aged fifty, of Petersburg, Neb., was found dead in a room at the Continental hotel at St. Paul from gas poisoning. The bureau had been pushed against the door and the gas jet was turned on.

Henry Sanders, employed on the farm of William Schultz, near Green Valley, is dead as the result of the accidental discharge of a shotgun which he was carrying while at work in a field.

Official Paper of Pennington County

Turn out with a rake tomorrow morning and clean up your yard.

By all means, help make the Pennington County Fair a big success.

This is the beginning of the season of the pesky house fly. Make up your mind to swat them.

Someone has remarked that the name Caswell would be Aswell without the C. Possibly Ed Smith, Dar Reese, Ed Parish et al. are now wondering if it would not have been just as well if they had been able to (C) a little farther ahead at the time of the last state convention.

Citizens of this city and surrounding country are requested to be at the public meeting to be held at the Auditorium April 30th, for the purpose of considering the hospital proposition. We have been long in need of a hospital, now that a meeting has been called it is up to every citizen to do his share. Be at the meeting April 30th, at 8:00 p. m.

The candidacy of the gentleman from Morris seems to be based largely on what he did not accomplish in the legislature. He also endeavors to "make a play" to the country districts by calling attention to the reckless extravagance of former legislatures in appropriating funds for a new state house. Will Mr. Spooner please advise his constituents if a new state house was not an absolute necessity, and to be consistent will he please state why he now objects so strenuously to this past appropriation of $2,500,000.00 for a new prison, which appropriation included $90,000.00 for a greenhouse, $20,000.00 for new wardens residence, $15,000.00 for deputy warden's residence, and a few more frills.

PUNY MAN.

Crash!

In the dangerous darkness of the night, 900 feet of wood and steel had hurled itself against a mountain of floating ice.

Proud Titanic, newly crowned queen of the seas, fell back with a gaping wound and her human cargo of 2,200 souls heard rushing waters, a death gurgle.

For 1,300 miles the ocean billowed between the Titanic and the Goddess of Liberty in New York harbor. The nearest point of land was 400 miles away.

Crushed into a helpless cripple, the great ship in her first race across the Atlantic drifted at the mercy of the gale.

True, sound waves were radiating from the Titanic's wireless station and almost instantly half a score of other ships, the closest many miles away, caught the danger signal, "S. O. S."

Then began the race of rescue, the great ocean greyhounds churning their way rapidly toward the sister in distress.

But despite man's cunning, his ability to flash intelligence through space and his triumph in constructing a $10,000,000 floating palace, the terror of a shipwreck at sea remained and the mighty mass of wood and iron and steel and glass, holding its precious burden of hundreds of human lives and millions of dollars' worth of property, plunged beneath the waves, never to rise again; the first and last voyage of the proud Titanic.

Never before has so large a ship braved the perils of navigation and never has so fearful a toll been exacted for man's daring.—Bemidji Sentinel.

School Notes, From First Page

grade buildings will be organized and planted as soon as suitable grounds can be obtained. The children will be given all they raise and it is expected that parents will buy from their own children in preference to the regular traders. Various obvious reasons might be presented in favor of this movement, but space forbids. Later, particulars will be announced, and in the meantime, it is suggested that school patrons encourage this work.

In one of the Knox rooms, five children left school last week to accompany their parents to claims, and in another room, six pupils left during the same period on a like mission.

Among new arrivals this week is a family from Lisbon, New York state.

The comparative standings of the members of the graduating class were estimated last week. The result is that Martha Kleppe of Newfolden has won the honor of being valedictorian, while Myrtle Scovell of Middle River secures second place and will be the class salutatorian.

The following list comprises the students in the normal training department, all of whom will receive state certificates, entitling them to teach in the specially aided rural schools of the state: Olga Aos, postgraduate, Dagna Bakke, Mary Breese, Dagny Halseth, Hannah Halvorsen, Annie Haugen, Alvina Jonas, Ella Kelly, Mabel Knutson, Inga Lee, Ruth Lee, Selma Lovas, Laura Moen, Anna Moengen, Gaya Olson, Florence Sallow, Anna Thompson, Alma Welo, Sena Welo, Arthur Alnes.

The senior class play, presented last Friday evening at the Auditorium, proved a decided success, both histrionically and financially. The makeup of the various characters was excellent and the play was put on without any hesitation or awkwardness on the part of the youthful players. The audience was delighted with the performance and declared the entertainment superior to the majority of the shows presented by traveling companies. The gross receipts amounted to $200, which will be used to purchase a suitable memorial for the class, and for necessary graduation expenses.

Miss Goodwin, who trained the students for "The Private Secretary" deserves much praise for the skillfull manner in which her proteges acquitted themselves.

Inquiry was made at the high school last week, to learn how many students desired to enroll in the normal training department next year. Twenty six eligible students signified their intention of entering, fourteen of whom will be seniors. As the state sets twenty as the maximum enrollment, and even advises not more than fifteen, it is evident that a second department must be organized to accomodate the students; in fact, it is probable when school opens next September, that the nonresident pupils entitled to enroll will compel the establishment of a third department. This possibility has been presented to the state authorities and they admit, that as Thief River Falls necessarily supplies high school facilities for a large territory lacking high schools, that the work of all the departments organized will be recognized and the state aid of $750 for each department made available. This aid practically pays the expense of conducting the training department through the year.

Official Call For The Republican County Convention In and For Pennington County, Minnesota, To Be Held in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, May 13, 1912.

Pursuant to the call of the Republican State Central Committee duly communicated to the Republican County Committee of the County of Pennington, State of Minn., a Republican County Delegate Convention is hereby called to be held on the 13th day of May, A. D., 1912, at eleven (11) o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the court house in Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing ten (10) delegates to the Republican State Convention to be held on the 16th day of May A. ROOSEVELT GETS OREGON

Majority Estimated at More Than Five Thousand.

Portland, Ore., April 21.—Returns are coming in slowly on the statewide presidential primary and the early lead shown by Colonel Roosevelt is being maintained. The Roosevelt supporters predict his majority will be in excess of 5,000. The race between Senator Bourne and Benjamin Seming, who is seeking to wrest his toga away, remains exceedingly close.

SEVENTY-TWO DEAD IN RECENT TORNADO

Casualty List In Illinois and Indiana Growing.

Chicago, April 23.—The storm which swept over Indiana and Illinois Sunday evening left seventy-two dead, nearly 200 injured and nearly 100 destitute families in its wake, figures show. More than 100 homes were demolished and the property loss totaled several hundred thousand dollars. Greatest damage was done at Bush, Willaville, Murphysboro, Campus, Freeman and Kankakee, Ill, and Morocco, Ind.

Bush, a village of 650 in the northwestern corner of Williamson county, suffered heaviest. The two storms which wrought havoc in Central and Southern Illinois Sunday evening met at Bush at 6 o'clock, one coming from the northwest and the other from the southeast.

Wakefield Farm at Waubun.

This is a sample of a mixed-blood farm of the better class on the White Earth reservation. Of the 2,448 mixed-bloods on the Hinton roll a big majority are engaged in farming, and the proportion of those who own their own lands is about as large as in most white communities. The passage of the Clapp act in 1906 gave the mixed-bloods a chance to sell off a portion of their lands and improve the rest. Previous to that time they did not do much farming. The above place was bought with the proceeds of a pine allotment.

Some of the mixed-bloods who sold their land squandered the money and are now either renters or laborers. They are all self-supporting, however, and some of them are busy making a new start, having learned the value of having money in the hard but very efficient school of experience.

FRANK DAY AGAIN A RESIDENT

Former Democratic Chairman Returns From Montana.

With a Woodrow Wilson boom tucked under his hat Frank A. Day arrived in St. Paul from Montana prepared to stay in Minnesota and to assist in delivering the state for the New Jersey governor.

Like William Jennings Bryan Mr. Day will not aspire to leadership of the party, but will serve in the ranks. He declared that his recent residence in Montana, where for more than a year he bucked the octopus at Missoula, was not an official residence. He never voted there. His family remained in Minnesota. His household goods are still in the state and he intends to go back to Fairmont and "wait for something to turn up."

FAVORABLE REPORT IS MADE

War Department Approves Work on Lac Qui Parle Dam.

A favorable report on the proposed improvement of the Minnesota river at Lac Qui Parle has been made by the war department to congress. Estimating that the work to be done will cost approximately $1,000,000 the report recommends that it be undertaken at an early date provided the state of Minnesota or other local interests will bear one-half the expense.

The contemplated improvement is the building of a forty-five-foot dam at Lac Qui Parle, which will create a reservoir with a capacity of 30,000,000,000 cubic feet of water. A large amount of dredging will be necessary.

PASSES IMMIGRATION BILL

Senate Restores Educational Test in a Modified Form.

Washington, April 21.—The Dillingham immigration bill, with the educational test restored in modified form, passed the senate without division on the final vote. The test adopted requires that every male immigrant must read and write and makes that provision applicable to immigrants from Canada and other countries of the Western hemisphere, who were excepted by the original bill. Religious refugees would be exempted.

As the result of the very heavy snows in many of the north central states the past winter many a driveway to the leeward of shelter belts has been virtually impassable for months past, due to the fact that when planted the belt was set too close to the roadway. However, when once planted it is not an easy matter to move such a windbreak. This suggests the wisdom of putting the trees at a greater distance from driveway and building to start with.

Eggs are quite as likely to absorb odors from the things the hen eats as milk is to take on smells from the things the cows consume in the stable. And either smelly milk or eggs are not calculated to whet one's appetite.

Hogs are not usually recommended as a fertilizer for corn, but one of the best fields of corn that the writer remembers having seen as a boy was one in which some 200 350-pound porkers that died of hog cholera had been planted.

The middle of January a carload of potatoes from Scotland was unloaded at Portland, Me., to supply local needs. This is said to be the first time in her history as one of the leading potato states that Maine has had to import potatoes for her own use.

It is not only desirable for a girl to know how to sew well from the standpoint of being competent and self sufficient, but from that of economy as well. Fortunately it is neither degrading nor unladylike for a woman to know how to clothe herself.

A northern poultry keeper who has been getting good results from a flock of forty pullets has made the meat of one rabbit a part of their daily bill of fare. Besides, they get wheat in the morning, oats or speltz at noon, cracked corn at night, while water and milk, bone and ground oyster shell are provided every day.

Baby beef is the cheapest and most profitable to raise, and the first 200 pounds of growth in a shoat is produced considerably cheaper than the last 100 pounds if he is brought to a weight of 300 pounds. Almost invariably early gains are quickest and cheapest, and this is just as true of poultry and sheep as it is of hogs and cattle.

If the flock of hens is to be confined the coming season it will be a good idea to shut off a portion of their yard or a tract adjoining and sow rape. If this is allowed to get a good start it will furnish the hens a supply of the finest green food all summer and they will be still nibbling at the stalks after they are killed by the frost of early winter.

If there was ever a spring when the argument ought to be strong in favor of setting out a wood lot it is the present one, following a winter season when the very sight of soft coal is enough to give the householder who has been buying it and the good wife who has been using it and cleaning up after it a veritable nightmare. Medium sized wood lots set ten or a dozen years ago are now giving their owners a most refreshing substitute for this nastiest of fuels.

Bisson Farm at Ogema.

This farm is owned by A. Bisson, a mixed-blood of the White Earth reservation. Since the passage of the Clapp act a large number of mixed-bloods have gone into farming. Many mixed-blood families had as much as 1,000 acres of land in allotments, but could raise no money to buy stock or machinery to work with, previous to the passage of the Clapp act. When that law was passed, in 1906, they sold off part of the land and used the money in improving the balance of it.

TRUST OWNS ABOUT HALF

Minnesota Ranges Contain 1,500,000,000 Tons of Iron Ore.

Thomas F. Cole of Duluth, former president of the Oliver Iron Mining company and now engaged in copper mining in Arizona and Montana, was a witness before the house committee of inquiry into the United States Steel corporation.

Interested in many mines in the Lake Superior ore region for years, Mr. Cole, at the time of the organization of the United States Steel corporation, had charge of its mining operations.

Asked by Representative Young of Michigan for his estimate of the ore holdings of the steel corporation on the Mesabi and Vermillion ranges he said that, exclusive of the Hill ore leases, the holdings would exceed 750,000,000 tons.

He said ores in the Mesabi range owned by independent operators, including the Hill lease ores, nearly equaled the steel corporation holdings.

The value of all the ores on the Mesabi range, when held as a reserve, Mr. Cole declared, would range from 20 to 50 cents a ton.

"As an inert mass lying in the ground," he said, "the value of the ore is little."

Mr. Young called Mr. Cole's attention to statements repeatedly made that the object of the steel corporation in contracting the Hill ore lease recently ordered canceled was to monopolize iron ores. Mr. Cole replied that the lease was taken over as an exploration experiment.

TOOTHPICK CAUSE OF DEATH

Blood Poison Follows Swallowing of Small Piece of Wood.

Killed by a toothpick, John Dolan, fifty-one years of age, a traveling salesman, died at his home in Minneapolis after nearly a week of agonizing pain.

Three months ago, while Mr. Dolan was on the road, he accidentally swallowed a toothpick. He thought nothing of it, but a few days before his death he was taken seriously ill and a physician was called. Mr. Dolan ascribed his illness to oysters he had eaten, but the physician found that blood poisoning had set in from an abscess in the stomach.

An examination showed that the abscess had been caused by the toothpick swallowed months before.

FRANK A. DAY TO RETURN

Former Head of Minnesota Democracy Will Locate at Fairmont.

Frank A. Day, former head of the Minnesota Democracy, is returning to Minnesota from Missoula, Mont., where he has been for more than a year, and will locate again at Fairmont, where he is part owner of the Fairmont Daily Sentinel. Mr. Day went to Missoula with John E. King, former state librarian, but their newspaper venture there has not been successful in a business way and they have disposed of the property. Minnesota friends have information that Mr. Day will return to Fairmont, while Mr. King will remain in Montana.

A study of the various seed catalogues before the spring work opens up and a list of the seeds wanted for the vegetable and flower gardens will be found worth while when the busy time comes on.

The life of the day laborer may have its drawbacks, but it also has its compensations, for, while he cannot afford an automobile or broadcloth nor buy his wife diamonds, he may have steady nerves, a good digestion and a clear conscience, which many who possess wealth lack.

Carbolic acid is one of the best of disinfectants. Mixed with water at the rate of one to twenty, it makes an excellent spray for the poultry and hog houses and dairy barns. When whitewash is applied to the interior of these buildings an ounce of the acid should be added to a gallon of the whitewash.

It is pretty shallow philosophy and mighty shoddy morals which cause many good folk whose blood has cooled to deny young people recreation and entertainment of possibly questionable character when they are not willing to lift a finger or go down into their pockets to provide pastimes which are wholesome.

Some one contends that a balky horse can be distinguished from the fact that the tips of its ears will point inward. The writer had a balky horse once, but usually had his hands so full getting the brute to go that he entirely overlooked this turn of the ears. However, on reflection we do believe the critter's ears did sort o' turn inward.

The Functions of White Seal Beer as a Table Beverage

It stimulates appetite, without which you will often fail to consume a sufficient amount of food, and that you do eat will not be properly digested. A keen appetite is essential.

It is food in itself—a wholesome, nutritious, predigested, liquid food, containing in correct proportions the nutritive and digestive elements of rich barley malt and choicest hops,

It furnishes the power for digestion and conquers dyspepsia, thus rendering a meal both enjoyable and beneficial.

It is the great promoter of sociability at meal time, which is one of the objects to be kept in view in indulging the appetite.

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

Life has held great joy this spring for the small boy who was so fortunate as to possess a pair of rubber boots. The wading was fine.

The poultryman living in the warmer climate does not have to bother with frozen combs, but he has a correspondingly bigger trouble on his hands as the result of inroads of lice and mites.

There are flocks of hens that net their owners from $2 to $4 per head yearly. There are others that don't net more than from 20 to 40 cents. A part of this difference in income is due to the hens, but more to the man and the care.

While the impression seems to be somewhat general that a cow's milk is richest when she is fresh, tests show that milk contains the largest per cent of butter fat when the cow is far advanced in her period of lactation—in fact, just before she goes dry.

California is the only state which makes a production of borax. The output for 1910, according to the United States geological survey, was 42,357 short tons, having a value of a trifle over $200,000. About one-half of the amount of borax consumed is in the enameling industry, in the making of kitchen and sanitary ware.

In case it should be found necessary to use seed corn of a rather low germinating power far better results will be secured if the seed bed is put in extra good tilth and if the planting of the corn is put over until the ground is thoroughly warm. Such seed will need the most favorable conditions, and these should be provided so far as possible.

A good pair of eyes and a sharp knife may be able to distinguish with considerable accuracy as between a dead and a live germ in a kernel of corn, but the combination falls down when it comes to telling a kernel with a vigorous germ from one in which the germ is weak. Herein lies the chief argument in favor of the test box, which shows plainly what kernels are dead and what are strong and weak.

Few farmers feel that they have time to give to an elaborate corn breeding plot, but none of them is so busy that he can't take time to select the best hundred ears in his supply of seed and, after testing to be sure of its vitality, plant in a plot on the south or west sides of his main field. Doing this will not only simplify the matter of selecting the seed ears next fall, but the location of the best and most thrifty type of corn in the position mentioned will mean that much of the remainder of the field will be fertilized by the tassels on these better stalks.

A reader of these notes who some years ago lived at Trinidad, Colo., succeeded in ridding her house of cockroaches after trying a number of things by putting some of the following mixture in several places on the floor where they were in the habit of running: Equal parts powdered sugar and powdered borax, scented with a few drops of essence of oil of lavender. Whether the insects ate of this combination and found it did not agree with their digestive gearing or whether they were offended at the smell of lavender is not stated. At any rate, they quit the place.

With popcorn so popular an article of consumption as it is, there is no farm in any portion of the corn belt that should not grow a patch to supply the family needs. Popcorn will do well on any land that will produce a good crop of corn. It should be cultivated and cared for in the same general manner as corn, though it may be planted more closely. It ripens in about 100 days, and it should be shocked as soon as it is ripe, so that it will dry out well before husking. It will produce from fifty to sixty bushels of ears with a good stand, and this will fetch from $1 to $2 per bushel.

According to a recent report of the Wisconsin state dairy commissioner, 100 pounds of American cheese whey as it comes from the vat contains five and three-fourths pounds of milk sugar, fourteen ounces of nitrogenous matter and five ounces of butter fat. Of the three elements mentioned by far the most important is the milk sugar, but the value of this is largely lost, as whey is usually allowed to sour. If heated at [illegible] to 150 degrees F. the bacterial life contained is killed, with the result that the milk sugar retains its form and does not change to lactic acid. Farmers living in the vicinity of cheese factories would do well to take this fact into consideration and see that the whey byproduct of the factory is sterilized in the manner mentioned.

SHOULD USE GREAT CAUTION.

The farmer living in the northern part of the corn belt, who for one reason or another may have to buy seed corn within the next few weeks, should exercise the greatest caution in the securing of this supply. If possible he should get it from some of his nearest neighbors, as experience in many states has proved that such seed will do better than that brought in from any considerable distance. It may be that a good many ears will have to be tested individually to get the seed one needs, but this will be worth while. If such home grown seed cannot be secured than one must look about in some other quarter for that which is good. There are a few seed men who are reliable and whose statements regarding seed corn they have for sale may be taken at face value. There are others who are in the shyster class, from whom nothing should be bought under any condition. But from whomsoever secured no seed corn should be bought except in the ear and on the express guarantee that it is not to be paid for unless it will grow. Shelled bulk seed corn is a risky proposition in an ordinary year and particularly so this year, when a good article of seed is so scarce. An incident showing this was related to the writer the other day. A firm advertising Minnesota grown seed corn for sale was investigated by customers, and it was found that their supply of Minnesota grown seed was secured from a seed house at Sioux Falls, S. D., whither it had been shipped from southern Nebraska. If this seed had had vitality it would have been all right in Nebraska, but it was virtually worthless except for fodder purposes in the localities where it was distributed as Minnesota grown seed. Had this seed been bought in the ear this would have been discovered at once.

THE HOME BERRY BED.

It is doubtful if any portion of the home garden patch gives a more satisfying or delicious crop return than the one, two or three square rods devoted to the strawberry bed. The crop is not hard to raise, and this furnishes the greater reason why no family should be without this toothsome berry. The plot to be used for the bed should be one of rich soil and as free as possible from weed seeds. If the soil is not as fertile as it should be this difficulty can be overcome by applying well rotted manure, while the weed nuisance can be overcome by persistent work with the hoe or cultivator. Depending somewhat upon season and rainfall, the plants should be set out the latter part of April or the first week in May or shortly after the time for planting early potatoes. For the small garden the plants should be set out twenty inches apart in rows two and a half feet apart. In setting the roots should be spread, and care should be taken to see that the crown is on a level with the soil, not so high that the plant will dry out nor so low that the crown will get covered with earth in case of a heavy rain. Unless very dry weather comes on the newly set plants will not need watering. The cultivation should be frequent and enough to keep down the weeds and keep the surface soil in a mellow condition. The plants will produce more fruit next season if the blossoms put forth this season are snipped off.

COST OF KEEPING COWS.

It is evident from exact records that have been kept of the cost of keeping cows on twenty-five dairy farms in three widely separated neighborhoods in the state of Minnesota that the annual board bill for a dairy cow, which has been put at from $32 to $38 for several years past, will have to be revised. In the vicinity of Halstead, Minn., the figures show that this annual feed bill ranged from $42.20 per cow in 1904 to $58.01 in 1909. In the vicinity of Marshall the range was from $40.46 in 1906 to $51.35 in 1907, while near Northfield the cost ranged from $54.42 in 1905 to $72.35 in 1908. The figures mentioned are the more striking because they represent the cost of feed in a state where the prices are probably as low as anywhere and considerably lower than in many eastern states, where dairymen have to buy much of the roughage and concentrates that they feed. The facts presented simply lay greater stress on the necessity of eliminating all cows from the dairy herd that are not or are just barely paying for their keep.

AZOTURIA EASILY PREVENTED.

Veterinarians who have made a study of the subject of azoturia in horses seem to be pretty well agreed that a majority of the cases of the disease could be prevented were greater care and more intelligence used in the care of the horse. The disease is due to an overloading of the system of the animal with poisons by keeping up a full feed of grain and hay during a period of two or three days' idleness in the stable and seems to be immediately developed by rapid driving following such a period of inaction. There are two easy methods of lessening the danger of the disease. One is to reduce the grain ration to practically nothing when the animal stops heavy work. The other is to give the animal the run of a yard or paddock when it is not working. Some one may contend that he has not the room for such an exercise ground, but this is beside the question, for a horse worth $200 is worth from two to four paddocks of half an acre each.

Mixed-Blood and Full-Blood White Earth Indians.

ALEX M'KENZIE.

MA-DAUSH.

There are 1,070 full-bloods and 2,448 mixed-bloods on the present official roll of the White Earth reservation, known as the Hinton roll.

The average white blood is 55.8 per cent and Indian blood 44.2 per cent among the mixed-bloods.

Alex McKenzie is seven-sixteenths Indian and nine-sixteenths white. He is the average mixed-blood of the White Earth tribe.

Ma-daush is a full-blood Indian.

The mixed-bloods live by farming, working for wages and by business, exactly the same as white people. They are fairly well educated and have been self-supporting for many years.

The full-bloods live by hunting, fishing, gathering of wild rice and raise a little garden. They get rations from the Indian agency when destitute. They are generally ignorant and are weak physically. They object to cleanliness and a large percentage of them are afflicted with trachoma and tuberculosis.

The mixed-bloods were given the right to sell their lands by the Clapp act, but the full-bloods were not given such right, and have not been affected, except that some of them have managed to sell to over-anxious speculators who were disposed to take long chances on low prices. These deals were not because of the Clapp act, but contrary to it, and such sales will be annulled and the full-bloods get their land back.

The route of the Graham committee was through the full-blood settlements.

Consul General Henry Bordewich, formerly of Granite Falls, Minn., died in Christiania March 19. Consul General Bordewich was born at Vaagan, Norway, Jan. 19, 1844. He was graduated at the high school and at a commercial college in Bergen, coming to the United States in 1864. He served in the Mississippi squadron, United States navy, during the latter part of the Civil war, after which he located in Minnesota. He was county auditor of Yellow Medicine county from 1871 to 1878, after which he became postmaster at Granite Falls, Minn., serving until 1893. He was a candidate for state treasurer on the Republican ticket in 1884. In 1897 Mr. Bordewich was named American consul at Christiania and in 1900 he was made consul general

DENMARK.

There is general rejoicing in the Danish West Indies because of the news that the Danish government has determined to spend 7,000,000 crowns for harbor improvements on the islands. The St. Thomas Weekly contains a long article regarding the government's plans and starts out by saying that the people of St. Thomas could scarcely believe the good news when they first heard of it. The fact that the Danish government will engage in such extensive harbor improvements means much for the future of the islands in the belief of the people of St. Thomas and the next few years will reveal a remarkable rejuvenation of the industrial spirit among the people of the Danish West Indies.

ASK HER ADVICE.

It may be true in a good many cases, as is sometimes contended, that women folk do not have much of a head for business, but there is no getting around the fact that a scad of fellows would now have larger bank accounts and be living on the interest of their money if they had asked and followed the advice of their wives before they tied up their hard earned thousands in some harebrained investment enterprise. As long as the good wife has to help pay the fiddler in case such an investment does not pan out right, it is no more than fair that she should be consulted in the matter before the step is taken. If she is consulted and the proposition proves a fizzle she will with better grace wear her last year's dress or bonnet.

USING ROCK PHOSPHATE.

While ground rock phosphate is one of the very best commercial fertilizers that can be used on depleted soil, it is well to keep in mind the fact that its fertilizing value is greatly lessened if scattered on the surface of the soil as one would scatter ground limestone. The most effective way of using the fertilizer is mixing small quantities of it on the manure and scattering it with that. Certain chemical reactions are necessary for the phosphate to break up and assume an available form, and the presence of the manure hastens this. The next best method of applying the phosphate is to scatter it on the surface of the soil just before turning under a growth of green manure.

WHERE REAL FAILURE IS.

We are wont to consider the failure of popular or representative government as indicated in the grafting of legislators or corrupting of judges, when the bottom truth of the matter is that it is more often shown in the criminal indifference of the so called good citizen, who has neither the gumption nor the patriotism to get out and take a hand in his precinct caucus or primary. It is because of the laziness or self interest of this class, who would rather add a half dollar to their bank account than have an honest man in office, that the rotten political conditions in many sections of the country are due.

POTATO PARINGS FOR SEED.

With early seed potatoes ranging in price from $1.70 to $2.25 per bushel this spring, it will be worth while being a bit economical of the seed. Two good eyes will give just as good returns in the hill as four or five, and the seed will go just twice as far. By keeping the parings of potatoes so that they will not sour or spoil they can also be used for seed, and a good many people at the close of a long winter, when hundreds of thousands of bushels have been spoiled through freezing, will find it convenient to practice this economy.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

MINNESOTA LEADS IN DRAINAGE

Further Advanced Than Most Other Commonwealths, Says State Auditor Iverson.

Minnesota is much further advanced in the matter of drainage than most of the other states of the Union, according to State Auditor Iverson, who has just returned to St. Paul from the meeting of the National Drainage congress at New Orleans. He said that Minnesota has been giving attention to drainage of the state for twenty years and some of the other states have hardly started. Louisiana has about 10,000,000 acres that are in need of drainage, Georgia has from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 acres and Florida and Texas have vast areas unreclaimed. There are, according to the information obtained at the congress, about 75,000,000 acres of land in the United States that are in need of drainage. The National Drainage congress expects to reach all of this land before long.

Several federal officers were in attendance at the congress and plans are being worked out to further cooperation between the federal and state governments with the local authorities in draining the land. The two reasons set forth by the congress for draining are: To remove a menace to public health and to render the land useful for agricultural purposes.

NURSES SAVE THE PATIENTS

Carry Fifteen From Burning Wing of Red Wing Hospital.

Displaying great presence of mind a corps of trained nurses, under the direction of Miss Bertha Johnson, superintendent, rushed to the east wing of the Red Wing hospital, where a fierce fire was breaking through the walls, and rescued fifteen patients from the dense smoke which filled the building. The patients were carried out on the hospital grounds and later removed to the west wing of the hospital, which is fireproof. There was little excitement among the patients and it is believed none will suffer from the experience, as they were given prompt attention by a staff of physicians hurried to the scene.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in the basement. The loss probably will reach $3,000. The nurses, who had their quarters in the east wing of the hospital, lost all their personal effects.

TO BAR FALSE ADVERTISING

Representative Steenerson Introduces Drastic Bill in House.

A bill drastic in terms aimed at advertisements that mislead prospective investors was introduced in the lower house of congress by Representative Steenerson of Minnesota.

The bill is entitled "A bill prohibiting false and misleading advertisements." It provides that whoever shall offer for sale any merchandise, or stocks, or bonds, by means of false or misleading advertisements sent through the mail in any printed form, shall be fined not more than $1,000 for each offense or be imprisoned not more than two years, or both, in the discretion of the trial court.

Mr. Steenerson is of the opinion that many innocent persons are defrauded by means of advertisements by schemers who impose on newspapers and the bill is designed to punish those who wilfully utilize advertising as a means to defraud.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

An extraordinary case of "over the hills to the poorhouse" occurred at Duluth when an aged father and aged son went together to the shelter of the St. Louis county poorhouse. The father, Dominico Foleno, and his son John were the men. The father is ninety-three and the son sixty-two years old. John has a grown family of his own. His children are married, but also are poor.

The shock of witnessing the deaths of Simon O'Malley and three-year-old Bonny Reedy, poisoned candy victims, in the O'Malley flat at Minneapolis last winter, and her part in the investigation that followed, was thought partly responsible for the mental condition of Clara Grates, who was taken to the state hospital at St. Peter from the home of her father in Chaska.

More than 3,000 acres of state and school lands were sold at the state land sale at Duluth in one day. While a majority of the tracts disposed of were sold at about $5 an acre, some of the parcels were bid up to $8.25. The average price was $5.25.

Milton C. Potter, superintendent of schools at Pueblo, Colo., president of the Colorado State Teachers' association, will be the new head of the public schools of St. Paul, succeeding S. L. Heeter, whose resignation became effective March 1.

The Consumers Power company of Faribault has started a crew of fifty men to lay a gas pipe line to Northfield. About thirty miles of pipe will be laid, including that which will be laid in the city of Northfield.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Mrs. Anna Forslin, who lived with her son-in-law, George P. Johnson of Pillsbury, fell downstairs, fracturing the base of her skull and her collarbone in two places, death being instantaneous. The family had retired for the night some time previous and it is believed that Mrs. Forslin, who was eighty-three years old, was feeling unwell and in crossing to another room slipped at the head of the stairs.

Fire in Wright's livery at Barnesville, one of the largest in the Northwest, caused the death of thirty-three horses and totally destroyed the barn, valued at $8,000. A dance was on in town and most of the animals belonged to farmers living in the vicinity. One animal was valued at $4,000. The total value of the others was $10,000.

George Cyr, who four weeks ago shot and instantly killed Paul Fournier in the Cyr home in the town of Quiring, Beltrami county, was released from custody after having been arraigned before Court Commissioner Crowell at Bemidji. A coroner's jury previously had exonerated Cyr on the ground of self defense.

Frank Kanult, an elderly farmer living near Appleton, died from the effects of a kick from one of his horses. He had just fed his team preparatory to going to work and was passing behind them when one of the horses kicked him in the stomach, causing his death in a few hours.

Henry Zusan, seventy years old, a pioneer of Hastings, while he was temporarily insane, leaped from the spiral bridge over the Mississippi river to the water, a distance of seventy-five feet. He was rescued by C. J. Sommers, with a skiff, but died from the shock a few hours later.

Harry Carlson, thirty-four years old, was found dead in his bed at Minneapolis. Death is said to have resulted from a fight with David Ploof, forty-six years old, a plasterer. Ploof is being held pending the autopsy.

Fire starting in the basement workshop of the Cadillac Automobile company at Duluth caused a loss of between $[illegible] and $10,000 and injured [illegible] people, one of them seriously and perhaps fatally.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Rev. Charles G. Ames, closely identified with the early history of Minneapolis as pastor and editor, is dead at his residence in Boston, Mass., aged eighty-one. Mr. Ames reached St. Anthony in June, 1851, sent as a missionary by the Free Will Baptist church from New England, and took charge of an infant congregation, which formed a regular church organization that year and had services in the schoolhouse. In 1854 it was transferred to Minneapolis. The young pastor had political inclinations and founded the Minnesota Republican as a weekly, Oct. 1, 1854. In 1857 he was elected register of deeds of Hennepin county and held the office three years. He left Minneapolis in 1860.

Mrs. Susan R. Eastman, who reached Minneapolis in 1856 as the bride of W. W. Eastman, once owner of Nicollet Island and an upbuilder of the Mill City, and who was herself one of the best known of the state's pioneers, is dead at Minneapolis.

Rev. August Beck, pastor of the Evangelical church at Waseca, is dead of heart failure, aged fifty years. At various times he had charges at Farmington, Mankato, Sherburne, Rochester, Renville, St. Charles, Wells and the Waseca circuit.

Dr. Martha G. Ripley, aged sixty-nine, is dead at Minneapolis. She was founder of the Minneapolis Maternity hospital and well known in charity work in Minneapolis.

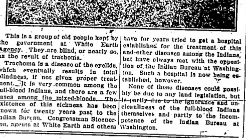
Blind People From Old People's Home.

This is a group of old people kept by the government at White Earth Agency. They are blind, or nearly so, as the result of trachoma.

Trachoma is a disease of the eyelids, which eventually results in total blindness, if not given proper treatment. It is very common among the full-blood Indians, and there are a few cases among the mixed-bloods. The existence of this sickness has been known for twenty years past to the Indian Bureau. Congressman Steenerson, agents at White Earth and others have for years tried to get a hospital established for the treatment of this and other diseases among the Indians, but have always met with the opposition of the Indian Bureau at Washington. Such a hospital is now being established, however.

None of these diseases could possibly be due to any land legislation, but is partly due to the ignorance and uncleanliness of the full-blood Indians themselves and partly to the incompetence of the Indian Bureau at Washington.

Parisien Farm at Waubun.



The above farm is owned and operated by Pat Parisien, a mixed-blood Indian of the White Earth reservation, and is located three miles north of Waubun. After the passage of the Clapp act Mr. Parisien sold his own allotments of 160 acres and used the money in improving Mrs. Parisien's allotment, which is now all under cultivation. Mr. Parisien would be regarded as a "good farmer" in any community. There are many cases on the reservation exactly similar to his.

Smith Farm at Ogema.

The above farm near Ogema is owned by Mrs. Lizzie Smith, who is three-fourths Indian, but whose husband is a white man. There is a large number of such cases on the reservation, where white men have married mixed-blood maidens, gotten a quarter section of land with them, and are prospering as farmers. The mixed-blood families are usually more numerous and much healthier than the regular Indian families, and the children are usually well educated.

When the degree of Indian blood is reduced to one-fourth or less most of the Indian characteristics and features are lost. There are perhaps more than 1,200 members of the White Earth tribe whose Indian blood does not show—who are really whites.

NO MONEY FOR SHIP'S CREW

Line Fails to Make Provisions for Men Who Survived Disaster.

New York, April 22.—Except for furnishing clothing to those who were asleep at the time of the accident and did not reach land with their uniforms the White Star line has done nothing for the members of the crew who were picked up from the Titanic. Up to date there has been no announcement of what provision will be made for the men.

Under the English maritime laws the wages of the sailors, firemen and stewards stopped when their vessel went down. None of the men landed here with money and they all declared none had been given to them.

SERIOUS CRISIS IN MOROCCO

Uprising of Native Troops Assumes Grave Proportions.

Paris, April 2[illegible].—The total absence of dispatches from Fez, where the Moroccan troops have mutinied against increased French intervention, led to the belief that the uprising has assumed serious proportions and that the French troops may be in danger of losing control of the situation.

The last dispatches, which were meager, [illegible] killed in a desperate street fight [illegible] and the imprisonment of [illegible] more.

DECLARES TREATY INVALID

Saloons Legalized in Sections of "Indian Country."

Federal Judge C. A. Willard, sitting at Minneapolis, made permanent the injunction issued by him in January, 1911, restraining W. E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson from closing or interfering with the saloons in Bemidji and vicinity.

Johnson closed a number of saloons in Bemidji in carrying out a campaign enforcing the provision of the old Indian treaty which prohibited sale of liquor on ceded land. Judge Willard ruled that the effect of the treaties had been wiped out when Minnesota became a state.

HEN COOP THEIR SHELTER

Women and Children Nearly Perish When Driven Out by Fire.

Mrs. Annie Nelson, a widow, and her eight children were found on a homestead near Grand Rapids, huddled in a hen coop and dressed only in thin night clothing in which they escaped from their burning home several days previous. They had a small stove which gave heat enough to keep life in them and they killed and ate their chickens, the only food left them.

It was the second time their home had been burned in six months. A fund will be raised for them.

The following item appears in one of our exchanges: "There is an attempt being made at present by one Francis Wennerblad to give the Swedish people a new catechism. Mr. Wennerblad's catechism contains the whole of Luther's so called 'Little Catechism,' but diverges from the old one in having no 'Big Catechism.' In place of that there is a selection from Bible history, selections from the psalms and scriptural passages. NORWAY.

In various parts of Norway copper is found and has been worked from time to time, but the deposits have thus far proved poor and limited in extent, and none of the mines have been commercial successes. The same may be said of the few deposits of coal and iron. It seems possible, however, that Norway may find an unlooked for value in some of her deposits of minerals of rare elements, for which at any time there may be a great demand. Among her older rocks have been discovered many minerals of great scientific interest, including broggerite, the most radio-active of known minerals. DENMARK.

In an article entitled "Denmark's Life Problem" the Gegenwart (Berlin) says: Two great problems enter into Denmark's foreign policy: the North Schleswig question and the land defense of Copenhagen; ministry upon ministry has fallen on account of the latter. The point is: Shall Copenhagen, the head and front of the little realm, be protected against maritime attack by batteries, mines, etc., only toward the Baltic, or shall it entrench itself, on modern lines, landward as well? The old land fortifications are absolutely inadequate. Even the radicals admit this, but they claim that an armed defense of this capital would mean a positive danger—and they are right. For a neutral state is spared. A country that arms in defense experiences, in case of defeat, the fate of a foe. This might be said about the coast fortifications likewise, but these have their significance as protection against Norway, Sweden and all sorts of contingencies.

Shall Copenhagen be a fortified town? Nobody doubts that such defense would mean protection against Germany alone. If the English were to land at Esbjerg, in order to invade Schleswig-Holstein, every Danish nationalist would rejoice and the government, entertaining pretty much the same sentiments, would, at the utmost, "protest" as a matter of form. The Danes are ardent friends of England, and apprehend no danger from that quarter. By far the greatest part of Danish imports and exports are interchanged with England. On the other hand, the Germans are their hereditary, warmly hated enemies, whose discomfiture would please them greatly. But suppose if the Germans were to divine this, and, forestalling the English, would occupy Jutland, prevent the entrance of the English fleet, and force the Danes to unequivocal action? In 1870-71 the Danish troops were in marching order, ready to regain "South Jutland" in case of German defeat which was fully expected. But at the news of the German victories they silently retreated to their homes. Doubtful neighbors these, the Germans feel, for such things cling to the memory. How, then, does the case stand; strict neutrality or not?

That is the fateful question that has again confronted Denmark with the Moroccan affair making war seem a likely contingency. In North Schleswig reunion with the "kingdom" is more or less openly agitated. In Copenhagen the people disclaim any knowledge about it. "We do not think of such a thing" has been the emphatic assurance the last weeks. But who has questioned them? This seemingly [illegible] and assurance looks [illegible] officially, of course they wish to [illegible] otherwise there would be a direct clash. But if, for example, [illegible] were to be defeated in a war with [illegible] and England and Schleswig were offered to the Danes [illegible] If they were [illegible] But as far as we know [illegible] not seem wise enough [illegible]

TO BOOST VALLEY

Representative Men of Four Counties Organize With That End in View.

Scandia Farm Home Association Formed at Meeting Held at Warren.

One of the most important moves toward advertising properly the Red River Valley, as well as encouraging immigration, was taken last Thursday, when representative men of four counties organized the Scandia Farm Home Association at Warren.

These men, thinking that "the bread basket of the world" was not getting its just share of actual settlers, took steps to find a remedy and formed a land corporation. The articles of incorporation already are on the way to the secretary of state, and the business of the association has begun with a vigorous advertising campaign, which will extend through Iowa, Illinois and the eastern states.

The incorporators and other supporters of the association feel that more actual settlers can be had in the Red River Valley in a comparatively short time. At the meeting statistics were produced to show that many home-seekers have arrived in this section of the state, but that they have been compelled to leave on account of inability to meet rather difficult conditions in their contracts with land agents.

This association does not intend to compete with any land agency doing business on a fair basis, but will, rather, assist in getting settlers located permanently. The association, through its representatives in every community in this section of the Valley, will list only lands with a future, thus assuring prospective settlers that they have sufficient inducement for coming to this territory.

The farmers and business men join in this move, as may be seen from the list of directors. Branch agencies will be established in every locality wishing to co-operate, and the association has been able to formulate a plan whereby there will be no discrimination in regard to the various communities. Literature fully describing each locality will be sent out, and whenever an inquiry comes regarding a certain place, it will be referred to the local representative, who will either give the information to the inquirer directly, or send data to the association, which will attend to the correspondence.

The association was capitalized at $50,000. A good amount of the stock has been subscribed by the promoters of this booster idea. It is certain that a greater interest will be taken in this move as soon as the citizens of Marshall, Kittson, Roseau and Pennington counties will learn the nature and purpose of this association.

The officers elected for the first year are: G. Wahlund, president; Israel Sjoberg, vice president; O. A. Naplin, secretary, and L. M. Olson, treasurer. The directors and their addresses are: Israel Sjoberg and O. B. Ekman, Roseau; J. A. Swenson, N. D. Swanson and E. A. Johnson, Hallock; C. A. Naplin and P. B. Malberg, Thief River Falls; Frank E. Dahlgren and John Dagoberg, Alvarado; C. M. Carlson, Strandquist; P. A. Risberg, Holt; G. Wahlund, L. M. Olson, John Lindberg and Aug. Lundgren, Warren. Oscar Wahlund, Warren, was elected executive secretary by the executive committee.

This association will embrace as many localities as possible in the Red River Valley and invites the co-operation of all who wish to see more actual, or permanent, settlers in our various communities. Warren was selected as the home office of the association.

DOINGS AT SCHOOL

During the Week Past. Should Be of More Than Passing Notice to the Parents

John Ryan, one of the 1911 graduates and Ward Long a high school student, have formed a partnership to cultivate a twelve acre tract of vegetables and market gardens on the Long farm. The boys have assumed a heavy task, but are confident they will have a generous balance on the right side of the ledger next November. They are satisfied to permit others to overload the crowded professions, while they will follow the more independent and lucrative occupation of raising dollar tubers and profit yielding garden stuff.

Supt I. J. Borass of Ada spent last Friday visiting the local schools. He expressed some surprise at the size of the town and the heavy enrollment of school children. He and all his teachers will attend the Northwestern Minnesota Educational Association, which holds its annual meeting in this city next fall.

The attention of the public is called to the manual training exhibit which, by the kindness of Mr. Oen, occupies one of the show windows at the Oen Mercantile store. The pieces are samples of the production of the grade and high school classes and are all absolutely hand-made, with the exception of the turned articles. They give the observer a fair indication of the service the manual training department is rendering.

The final results of the year are being determined and the class promotions arranged for. In the seventh and eight grades and high school classes, the startling truth is confirmed that practically every boy who uses tobacco has hopelessly failed of promotion. Just why so many boys have become addicted to the use of the weed this year, others not connected with the school may be able to explain, for the habit is not countenanced or indulged in about the school building. School Notes believe that tobacco and its incident accompaniments cause the failures, and that the failures do not create the tobacco users among half grown boys. It also believes that every boy young enough to go to school, is too young to indulge in this ordinary minor vice, even in high school, and next year, for his own good of the smaller boys, he ought to be compelled either to quit the habit or the school. He needs all the nervous energy he possesses as a boy to cope with his school tasks, and will have ample time and too much opportunity after leaving school to indulge his inclinations.

On account of the inclement weather last Friday afternoon, the schools were not dismissed at noon for the city "clean-up" day, as had been planned by the city board of health.

A communication from President Vincent conveys the disappointing information that he cannot deliver the commencement address to the class of 1912. A first class speaker, or none at all, will be obtained.

To allay the unnecessary fears of those who sometimes question the ability of a senior class to dispense its funds wisely, it is proper to state how class finances are handeled. When earned the money is placed in a local bank and checked out by the class treasurer only. This he does by direction of the class officers. Every class has a class adviser who directs the students, and in this manner it is impossible for funds to be misspent or misappropriated.

Tests are being held this week throughout the grammar and high school grades. School closes May 31st and the last week will be devoted to the state high school examinations.

A meeting of the grade teachers was held last Thursday after school in the normal room.

The 72 eighth grade pupils who are entitled to promotion to the high school are preparing their graduation exercises. They will be presented the evening of Wednesday, May 29th, in the Lincoln assembly, when the diplomas will be handed the children.

36 letters received on Tuesday and 32 on Monday of this week mark the high tide of a strenuous correspondence, which has been floating into the office of the superintendent for the past few weeks. Nearly all of these communications demand a reply.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. F. J. Seltz, pastor of the German Lutheran church, on the evening of Sunday, May 26th. The plan in vogue is to grant every church in the city having a resident pastor, the opportunity of holding this service, if it so desires.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TO HAVE HOSPITAL

Action Taken at Mass Meeting Tuesday Night in a Matter of Great Importance to All.

COST TO BE AT LEAST $25,000

A Committee of Five Prominent Men Appointed to Formulate Plans and Solicit Stock.

Thief River Falls is about to realize one of her most cherished dreams. The need of a place where the sick may receive scientific treatment, which has been noted by all visitors from places more fortunate in that respect, and brought forcibly home to every resident who has been forced in case of sickness to resort to other towns, a need which has caused this city to lag behind most other towns of any size in the northwest, is at last to be relieved:

At a mass meeting held in the Auditorium Tuesday evening definite steps were taken in the matter and henceforth the project of a hospital will be pushed with a vigor that has characterized our citizens in all great undertakings in the past.

Owing to the inclement weather, a smaller number of people made their appearance than might have been desired. Those who did attend, however, evinced great interest in the proposition and were plainly determined to push the project to a successful conclusion. It was the unanimous expression of the assemblage that the hospital should be built by the people, for the people and managed by the people and not under the control of any organization.

Mayor Lars Backe was elected Chairman of the meeting and Prof. J. H. Hay secretary. After these gentlemen had explained to those present the object of the meeting and dwelt at length on the need of a hospital in this city, various plans were suggested by different gentlemen as to the means of attaining the desired end.

The plan finally adopted, with a few changes, was a suggession of H. G. Hieber, namely, that the Chairman name an executive committee of five members, including himself (the Chairman), which should formulate plans and gather information relating to the matter, that the committee meet immediately and appoint sub-committees, which should have authority to solicit stock and make reports to the first committee, which shall make a report to the public at a mass meeting not later than three weeks from date. The city is to be divided into districts and the surrounding country into townships, one member being assigned to each district.

Chairman Backe named as members of the committee the following gentlemen: Prof. J. H. Hay, Daniel Shaw, Dr. Swedenborg, W. B. Fuller and Lars Backe.

It was the sense of the assemblage that the hospital should cost not less than $25,000, stock to be $10 per share, and each member to have one vote in the election of directors, regardless of the amount of money contributed.

The committee, which is composed of men with foresight and experience, has addressed itself with energy to the task assigned to it, and favorable results may be looked for within three weeks.

Feature Film at the Lyceum Tonight Views of the "Titanic" Leaving England on Her Maiden Voyage.

The only authentic moving pictures taken of the ill fated steam ship "Titanic" taken at South Hampton, England, 10 minutes before sailing time. Showing Captain Smith inspecting the ship, the great number of passengers boarding the same and also the loading of the baggage.

It is the most touching sight to see the thousands of people leaving on the "Titanic" bidding their families, friends and relatives good bye, not knowing what terrific disaster they are about to meet in the Atlantic Ocean at the hands of the elements.

This is not a picture of the wreck but being that the "Titanic" was the largest ship in the world carrying the largest number of passengers the Warden Feature Film company of New York was on the spot photographing the "Titanic" as she left the pier.

LANDRO GOT $8,000

State Supreme Court Sustains Him Against Great Northern Railway.

The case of Ole Landro, of this city, against the Great Northern Railway Company was decided by the state supreme cout on April 26 in favor of the plaintiff, who was awarded damages in the sum of $8,000. This case, which has been the subject of much litigation, having been twice in the district court, and twice before the supreme court, dates from February 1909, when Mr. Landro sustained injuries to his back in the derailment of a train north of Ardock, N. D. A suit for $12,00 was brought against the railroad company, and the case was tried in the district of Marshall County, the jury awarding the plantiff $6,500. On appeal to the supreme court the case was sent back for new trial, the judgment being considered excessive. At the second trial before the district court, the jury awarded the plaintiff $12,500. On the second appeal the supreme court reduced the damages to $8,000.

Attorney G. Halvorson of this city conducted the case for Mr. Landro.

An Unusual Number of Gasoline Engines Sold Here This Spring.

One of the best signs of the continued progress of this section of the country may be seen in the unusual number of traction engines that have been going out of the city this spring. The first of the week four Avery gas tractors came in over the great Northern, one each for Quist Bros. ane Ole Torgerson, of this city, Peter Thoreson, of Highlanding, and one to a party at Gonvick. They were all of the same pattern and horse power, 35 horse power, break test, and 20 horse draw bar, and will be used in breaking and threshing. Two more gas tractors of the International line came in over the Soo Tuesday.

The firm of Olson & Prichard, alone have sold eighteen engines of the International make this spring to parties in this section of country, and the other dealers also report a brisk trade in that line.

An immense amount of breaking is going to be done this spring on the new lands tributary to Thief River Falls, the effect of which cannot but be felt once the crops are harvested and the grain brought to market.

SPORTSMEN ATTENTION

396,573,700 Fish to Be Distributed Throughout Lakes and Streams of Minnesota.

Crews of Men Are Gathering Pike Spawn to be Hurried to Hatching Tanks.

St. Paul, Minn., April 28th:—One hundred million wall-eyed pike and four million brook trout will be distributed throughout the lakes and streams of Minnesota this year to provide amusement for sportsmen. The last of the trout are just leaving the hatcheries and crews of men are in the great North woods gathering pike spawn to be hurried to the hatching tanks. Within 60 days the distribution will be finished and a record established of 396,573,700 small fish or "fry," as commonly called, liberated in free waters within seven years. This record probably is unequaled.

In addition to the pike and trout, possibly a half-million bass will be planted this fall, when the season for gathering arrives.

When the hot days come, when the asphalt begins to soften, the streets to bake and steam in the wake of the water wagon, and office men dream of lakes surrounded by pine trees and spruce and tamarack, it is expected the rush to the famous fishing haunts of the Gopher state will begin. There are 10,000 lakes in Minnesota, in some of which no white man has ever cast a line. Practically all of them teem with bass, pike, crappie, trout and muskallonge. In the northern part of the state, especially in districts where no lumbering has been done, are virgin lakes unequaled in all the world for game fishing.

Planting approximately 400,000,000 fish fry, propagating them and caring for big game, has cost Minnesota $755,232.64 during the past ten years. Included in this sum, is the cost of nine tons of beef liver, the dinner de luxe of the wiggler just learning to swim. At the hatcheries, liver is ground to a pulp and fed at the rate of 200 pounds a week. A minnow takes to liver pulp like a kitten to milk.

Hatching young fish from spawn and mothering them till they are large enough to forage for themselves, is technical work. Trout spawn are obtained from shallow waters where the mother trout has gouged out a hole in the sand and gravel and deposited her eggs. The hole is carefully covered and the spawn left to be hatched by tepid waters and warmth from the earth. The female trout will deposit from 1,000 to 1,500 eggs or spawn in a season. Gathered and taken to the hatchery, they will hatch in 60 days with water at a temperature of 48 degrees. For each degree the water is colder, five days more is needed. Thirty days after they begin to move about beef liver is fed and the long tanks, filled with running water, show signs of activity. When the trout get to be an inch and a half in length, they are ready for transplanting to open waters, and are called "fingerlings." In two years they grow to be small-sized fish, large enough to eat, and in three years, they become full-grown.

The wall-eyed pike, which resemble bass and are just as palatable, are the cannibals of fishdom. When the pike fry get to be large enough to move about with ease, civil war begins and the rate of extermination is measured only by the gluttonous appetites of the combatants. When a young pike becomes hungry, he turns to his nearest companion and proceeds to eat him, taking a bite out of whichever part he first touches. Activity of men in charge

Ten Years Hence Which?

Which will your house be ten years from now? Will it be covered with weatherproof, fireproof Vulcanite—a roof with ten years' honest service behind it and with probably several years' wear ahead?

Or, will it be covered with cracked, warped, leaking shingles, upon which you've spent many a repair dollar with little to show for it—and with probably another big repair bill staring you in the face? Which is it going to be?

Vulcanite Roofing

is nailed down and cemented at the seams until it becomes almost a solid sheet over the roof—keeping out storm and weather, year in and year out, because it's waterproofed with genuine mineral asphalt that can't rot, can't soften and wear out and can't evaporate. By the way, the fire insurance companies endorse Vulcanite. What do they say about shingles?

Go to our dealer, named below, and see this roofing for yourself. If you're in doubt about its wearing qualities, you can make tests in ten minutes that will be as severe as ten years' actual wear. Our book, "Time's Test," shows you how. Ask the dealer for it. (2)

While concrete has much to commend it as a material for the construction of dairy barns, it is now conceded that if used for the flooring of the stables it should be covered with slatted racks or bedded deeply, as direct contact of the floor with the cows' udders is liable to cause trouble.

In the northern tier of states where the snow has fallen deep the past few weeks there has been demonstrated on many a farm the unwisdom of having set the shelter belt of trees too near the barn and feed yards, as the drifts that have piled up in the lee of such windbreaks are well nigh impassable.

If the weighing and testing of milk did not accomplish the very desirable end of enabling the owner of dairy cattle to determine what animals were paying their board it would be advisable simply from the standpoint of enabling him to determine how large a ration each cow should be fed advantageously.

As the result of her new highway law the state of Wisconsin will during the present year spend $1,097,910 on 632 miles of good roads in 501 towns sixty counties of the state having applied for aid under the law. Of the amount named one-third will be furnished by the state, one-third by the counties and one-third by the towns.

With good hay worth all the way from $10 to $18 a ton there is mighty little excuse of feeding it so freely that the horses will not need any other bedding. Instead the horses should be given half as much hay with some straw. They will under this method of feeding eat the hay up clean and be just as well off physically, provided they are not working.

A breeder of brown Swiss cattle living near Middleburg, N. Y., has his two herd bulls broken so that they are used regularly in work about the farm. He reports that as a result of the exercise they get they are as docile as a pair of Norman mares and that they have not only won prizes at the state fair in their working clothes, but have sired the finest and most promising lot of heifers he has ever seen.

Since the women of California have been given the right of suffrage they have in some cities taken it upon themselves to inquire into the conditions prevailing on some of the dairy farms that supply milk for the city trade and in some instances have uncovered conditions that they insist must be righted. In some other cities they have prodded the men until they have consented to make like investigations.

Farmers in some sections of the northern states are losing horses from an ailment that has been diagnosed as due to the blue-green mold that formed on corn and cornstalks that did not have sufficient time in which to ripen. In a majority of cases the poisoning seems to have occurred with animals that ranged the fields and not with those that have been fed the dry corn fodder in barns. Animals affected become dull and drowsy and generally remain in that condition until they die.

While slight frosting does not seriously impair the texture and quality of some roots, hard freezes such as have occurred during the past two months practically ruin them, making them not only worthless from the standpoint of food value, but even dangerous to feed and poisonous. Reports have been numerous of late of the illness and death of farm animals as a result of eating such frozen roots. If frozen the best use that can be made of them is to haul them out on the land for fertilizer.

Not in many a year have eggs reached as high a price during the winter months as has been the case the past two or three weeks over most of the country. From 42 to 60 cents per dozen has been paid for eggs in market centers where the price rarely reaches 35 cents at any time during the winter season. The situation referred to seems to be due in part to a greatly lessened production of fresh eggs owing to the intensely cold weather and in part to the fact that not nearly so many eggs were placed in storage last summer and fall.

In the city of DeKalb, Ill., there has been in vogue for some years past a custom that might with profit be adopted by other towns over the country. This is the setting aside of the third Friday of each month as horse day, at which time farmers and breeders within the trading area of the town bring their stock in and offer it for sale. So successful has the custom proved that buyers are in the habit of coming from long distances to buy horses, while the presence of a number of buyers is a surety that the horse raisers will receive a good price for their animals.

In the international egg laying contest which is being conducted at the Storrs college in Connecticut the White Leghorns of the Englishman Thomas Barron still lead all other pens and varieties. This pen has 225 eggs to its credit, while a pen of the same breed owned by a New Jersey breeder holds second place with 170 eggs. However, two pens of Rhode Island Reds are gaining on the leaders, having to their credit 163 and 162 eggs since the contest began. As was anticipated, the cold weather has had a marked effect in cutting down the egg production of the Leghorns as compared with the American breeds. The home stretch in this contest is some nine months off and a whole lot of things can happen in that time—layers go to loafing and loafers get busy.

AN ILLINOIS INQUIRY.

A reader of these notes who lives near Edinburg, Ill., not far from Springfield writes stating that he lives on a sixty acre farm especially well suited for a dairy farm and makes inquiry as to the wisdom of going into the dairy business. He states that he knows practically nothing of the dairy business, wants to know how many cows a sixty acre farm would support, whether it would be better to sell milk or cream and what would be a reasonable estimate of the amount of milk a cow would give per day during the year and what per cent of it would be cream. While it would be impossible in the limits of such an article as this to give a novice in the dairy business as full directions as he desires, nevertheless a few suggestions may be made that will prove helpful.

A suggestion which our correspondent makes in his letter is excellent—namely, visiting and inspecting for himself some of the most successful dairy farms in the section in which he lives. Here he can make inquiries as to a hundred and one details knowledge of which would be helpful to him if he is going into the dairy business, while the visual impressions he will take away with him from a shipshape dairy farm will be a decided advantage to him. Were we in our correspondent's place we would secure ten or a dozen tested grade cows of the breed which seems to be most numerous in the section in which he lives. He might handle more, but this would do for a start. These cows will cost all the way from $50 to $20 apiece, depending upon their ability to deliver the goods. And in this connection it is well to remember that it is far better in the long run to pay $100 for a cow that the other fellow would rather keep than $40 or $50 for one that he is quite willing to sell.

The "reasonableness" of an estimate as to how much milk a cow would give would depend quite largely upon the amount paid for her and also upon the feed and care given her. A cow that gives 5,000 pounds of 5 per cent milk in a year will produce 250 pounds of butter fat, approximately equal to 312 pounds of butter, worth at an average of 30 cents per pound, $93. Subtracting cost of feed, about $38, leaves a net return of $55 per year. A Holstein to give the same return would have to produce not far from 9,000 pounds of milk containing 3 per cent of butter fat. While she would give more milk, her feed bill would also be larger. If one is willing to pay, the price he can reasonably expect as good results as these or better. While the writer is not acquainted with the local conditions, it would be his offhand judgment that selling the cream would be the better proposition, for, while he might not get any more for it than he would for the whole milk, he would have the skimmilk left on the farm for his hogs, calves and chickens, which would be natural byproducts of his dairy operations. If there is not already a silo on our friend's farm he should have one or two, depending upon the number of cows he will ultimately keep. If he does not have them already he should subscribe for a couple of good dairy papers and by reading them carefully and making inquiries of his neighbors who are most successful in the dairy business he will gather information which will be most helpful to him. If he can so arrange it it would give him a good return on the money invested if he would take a short course in dairying at the state agricultural college.

A COSTLY FIASCO.

If some of the would be statesmen that are representing or misrepresenting us down at Washington would get their hands off the political wires long enough to pass a law which will provide for the rigid federal inspection of all imported nursery stock at port of entry and the immediate destruction of all consignments found diseased or infested with the eggs or nests of destructive insects they would confer an inestimable benefit upon the vast horticultural interests of the country. Secretary Wilson is authority for the statement that the United States is practically the only civilized country having horticultural interests of any importance which does not require rigid inspection of imported nursery stock. For lack of the protection which such laws would have given our orchards are infested with various imported scale insects, while the brown tailed moth is another pest which has been imported into the country regularly through lack of federal inspection laws and which is doing untold damage to orchards and shade trees in eastern states. It may not be impertinent to inquire how long this fiasco that Secretary Wilson refers to is going to continue.

$2,500 A YEAR NET.

An Iowa farmer who bought a quarter section farm five years ago at $80 an acre has in the meantime kept an accurate account of all receipts and expenditures. He finds that besides keeping his family in comfortable circumstances he saved $2,500 a year in cash. He figures that there has been an average increase in the value of his land per year of $5 per acre, which, added to his net revenue, means that his income from the place has been net $3,200 yearly. Quite likely this is a good deal better than owners of 160 acre farms will average, but it shows what can be done. It would be interesting to know how many books this farmer had helping him with the farm operations.

A NEW OLEOMARGARINE BILL.

Congressman Haugen of the agricultural committee of the lower house of the national congress introduced a bill recently that aims to do away with several defects of the present law and seems to be viewed favorably by officials of the National Dairy union, though it does not propose all that dairy extremists asked. The ground taken by the subcommittee which framed the bill was that it favored reasonable restrictions tending to promote the honest sales of oleomargarine, effective checks on the dishonest sales of the commodity and a protection of butter men in their legitimate market. The bill as framed is conservative. It eliminates the 10 per cent tax and the color line on imitation butter and requires oleo (which it is specified shall, after the passage of the bill, be called margarin) to be sold only in half pound and pound packages, which are made the manufacturer's original package, which must be sealed by a long, narrow revenue stamp and which must remain on the print or package until it is sold by the retailer. The bill provides for a cent tax, which is one-tenth the present tax on colored oleo, five times as much as the oleo interests wanted and four times the present tax on uncolored oleo. In several instances the new bill provides for much severer penalties for violation than those at present in force, while the special taxes on manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are reduced considerably below those provided by the law at present in force. The bill leaves the matter of the sales of margarin in hotels and restaurants to be regulated by the several states. The bill may not contemplate all that could be desired, but it has been framed in a spirit of fairness, and there is reason to believe if it is adopted in substantially its present form that it will prove generally satisfactory.

SEED SHOULD BE TESTED.

Tests of seed corn which have been made in the northern portion of the corn belt show that notwithstanding the care that was exercised last fall in the selection of seed ears many of them show kernels whose germs are entirely dead or of a vitality so low as to make them entirely unfit for seed. It therefore behooves any one who is planning to grow corn the coming season to look into the condition of his seed. Of course this job will be postponed by some until it is warm enough to make the test out of doors, but the forehanded man will test all of the ears he has saved for seed by one of the patent seed corn testers or one of the homemade kind which have been described several times in these notes, by means of which half a dozen kernels, three from two sides of each ear, may be tested so as to indicate whether the germ is dead or weak. Ears that do not in such a test show five vigorous sprouting and rooting kernels out of six should be thrown out. If one's entire supply of seed ears is shown to be in poor condition steps should be taken at once to secure a supply that will grow. Only those who are slack and dilatory will leave the job until ten days before planting time when there is likely to be a grand scramble for seed that will grow and when a lot of fellows are likely to lose out in the shuffle.

THE EVERGLADES CONTROVERSY.

A very warm controversy which bids fair to reach a still higher temperature is being waged in congress and in the public press relative to the merits and feasibility of the proposed draining of the Florida Everglades and the possibility of their use for agricultural purposes. This is one of the largest reclamation projects which have as yet been undertaken and from its very magnitude has been calculated to test the courage and faith of those who have undertaken it. While on the one hand one is by no means justified in saying that the promoters behind this big drainage proposition are untrustworthy, it will be a good plan for the one who has not investigated the subject carefully and calmly, and that at first hand, not to invest largely in these Everglade ranches. A good way to cut cross lots and discover the worth of the lands which are being offered for sale is to find out from any leading Florida banker how much money he would lend on a parcel of the Everglade land offered for sale at a given price. If the size of such a loan, if the banker were willing to make it at all, is away below what would be lent on land of known productivity, the prospective buyer should beware. This is the way to get a proof of the pudding, for the banker's estimate will cut out speculative value.

"SLOW" BUTTER.

There are several factors which tend to make the butter slow in coming in the churning process. One of these may be that the cream or a portion of it is from cows far advanced in their period of lactation. Another and perhaps more frequent cause is that sweet cream is added to that intended for churning the same day the churning is to be done. This prevents proper and even ripening and retards the "coming" of the butter. Another cause may be that the cream is not at the proper temperature. The cream in the churn should show a temperature of [illegible] degrees F., and if it does not it should be brought to that point before the churning is started.

WHEN HE WOKE UP

It was a surprise to Burchard when he dropped in to call upon Sylvia to find a strange young man occupying his special chair and acting quite as much at home as though he belonged there by right.

Burchard had been calling on Sylvia for months, even years, and had sat in that particular chair innumerable times. A sensation of being ill used and injured surged through his soul as he bowed with stern cordiality to the young man.

"Mr. Gillmyer," Sylvia was saying sweetly, "is a brother of my old school friend, Dot, of whom you've heard me talk so often, Ted. He's come to Chicago to go into business. Isn't that delightful!"

"Lovely!" agreed Burchard. There really was nothing else that he could say. Speech seemed to have been smothered within him by that first wave of surprise which had overwhelmed him.

Try as he might to enter into the conversation, Burchard found himself relapsing painfully into silence every little while.

The more he thought of the situation the more indignant Burchard grew. By the time he said good evening he was able to give Sylvia the frostiest sort of nod and barely to touch the tips of her fingers. The surprise in her eyes was succeeded by a flicker of something else, which was quickly hid by her lowered lids. Burchard would have been a good deal surprised if he had known that instead of dragging herself slowly up the stairs to weep over his cruelty Sylvia dropped down on the bottom step when the front door closed and laughed.

Naturally Burchard called the next evening to atone for the coolness of his good-by. Sylvia was wearing a particularly large bunch of violets, which he eyed malignantly.

"I love violets," Sylvia said absently, patting them. "You can almost smell these!"

"Almost," Burchard repeated, bewildered.

"They're artificial," Sylvia explained. "Did they fool you?"

The bound of relief that Burchard's heart gave when he found Gillmyer had not sent the flowers was perfectly evident, but Burchard was too upset to grasp the fact. He was conscious of an inner triumph when he left at 10:30 that he had had the field to himself. But these triumphs were few, for Gillmyer bobbed up at all sorts of moments.

"He knows so few people in town," Sylvia said once. "And, really, he's awfully nice, don't you think, Ted?"

"Fine chap," agreed Burchard, with a sensation of swallowing red-hot coals.

The worst of it was that Gillmyer really was a fine chap. He broke into the Sunday night chafing dish suppers that Burchard had been wont to enjoy with Sylvia, and he cut up the cheese and beat the eggs as though that had always been his duty.

Between whiles Gillmyer invited Sylvia to go to the theater and brought her books and candy as though there was no reason why he shouldn't. The little rankling jabs attached to this phase of the situation was that there really was no reason. Yet Burchard felt outraged.

The evening he called and found to his dismay that Sylvia had gone out somewhere with Gillmyer without the preliminary of letting him know when it was his regular night to call made Burchard see stars. Women, he said to himself cuttingly as he strode home at a great pace, are fickle, unreliable, frivolous, unworthy and unnecessary cumberers of the earth. He had thought Sylvia different, but that was merely because he was an imbecile.

Burchard sat and stared at the wall for an hour, smoked three cigars and then turned in. At midnight he was still awake. "I suppose they are just about getting home now," he murmured.

It amazed him that Sylvia should show no trace of contrition, shame or concern about the manner in which she was treating him. She acted as though she was perfectly all right and appeared to have no uneasiness over Burchard's acquired gloom. On the contrary, she seemed to be having a decidedly good time. That she actually could enjoy Gillmyer's society was an agonizing blow to Burchard. His mind was such a mixture of unhappiness and bewilderment that he did not even try to figure out a solution.

He was agreeably surprised when he called one evening to find that Gillmyer was not present. He took his old chair, but sat on the extreme edge because it really wasn't all his chair any more.

"Mr. Gillmyer," Sylvia remarked, casually, "has been sent west for a month."

"Thank the Lord for that!" Burchard burst out, explosively. "I don't wish him any bad luck, but I hope the train runs off the track!"

"Why, Ted Burchard," said Sylvia, in proper horror. "The idea of your feeling that way!"

"I've just discovered how I feel," said Burchard, calmly. "And now that I know my esteemed friend Gillmyer can't break in on us at any minute and that I actually have your undivided attention, I'd like to go into details and elaborate on the subject!"

"Why, Ted!" said Sylvia again. "You amaze me! But—er—go on, please!"

PLAIN WORDS TO RICH AND POOR.

Compliments John Wanamaker on Princely Gift.

Pastor Russell, Accompanied by Foreign Missions Investigation Committee, Preaches In Victoria Hall, Madras—Large Audiences Heard Him Twice Yesterday.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Madras, India, Feb. 11.—The "Foreign Missions Investigation Committee" is here. Our finest auditorium, the Victoria Hall, was crowded to hear Pastor Russell. He spoke twice today. We report one of his discourses from the text: "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich; and He addeth no sorrow therewith." (Proverbs x, 22.) He said:—

The thing which strikes me specially as I visit your great city for the first time is the marked contrast between the palaces of your superior quarter and the hovels of Blacktown—the contrast between great riches and great poverty. But think not that I have come to speak words which would engender strife or even discontent. Rather my message is one of peace.

The inequalities, mental and physical, which prevail amongst us as members of a fallen race, produce naturally our inequalities as respects wealth and social conditions; it is well, therefore, that we should not accept the rabid views entertained by many, but we should think soberly, dispassionately. We should remember that God Himself is very rich. All the gold and silver are His, and the cattle upon a thousand hills, with Infinite power, beyond human comprehension.

We should remember that it is written that "Abraham was very rich," and that his riches did not interfere with the fact that he "was the friend of God," and that to him God gave that great promise secured by the Divine oath, which is the basis of all hope for the blessing of the world: "In thee and in thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Other noble characters on the pages of history are noted as having possessed great wealth.

We should therefore view the matter of poverty and riches philosophically. Both poor and rich should be encouraged to use faithfully the opportunities which they possess and to wait patiently for the Lord's time and way for the introduction of the new order of things which He has promised, assured that it is not in our power to hasten or delay the Divine program.

Bible Counsel For the Rich.

The Apostle says, "Charge those amongst you who are rich that they trust not in uncertain riches." The history of centuries corroborates the Apostle's words. The rich and prominent of one day become the poor and forgotten of another. "Riches take wings" in a manner that poverty rarely imitates. The talents and opportunities which have brought great wealth to some of our prominent Americans have brought wealth and prosperity in smaller measure to those associated with them in their enterprises. Indeed, in some respects the entire world, and particularly America, owes them a debt of gratitude for their energy and perseverance in the exercise of their talents along such broad lines.

My mind took this course of reasoning as I looked at the handsome edifice occupied by the Y. M. C. A. of this city, and I was informed that it was the gift of one of our American merchant princes, Mr. John Wanamaker, of New York and Philadelphia. I said to myself, Behold an instance in which riches have been generously expended, even in a far off land, for the benefit of the masses and with a desire to promote clean and noble manhood along Christian lines.

God's Blessing Maketh Rich.

Our text is an epitomized statement of the Gospel of Christ. All God's blessing for our race will come through the Seed of Abraham—The Christ. The giving of His Son to be man's Redeemer and Deliverer from sin and death was God's blessing to man—making man rich. Messiah, having died for the redemption of the world, is about to bestow upon men the Divine blessing promised to Abraham—"In thee and in thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

That blessing to the non-elect world will be a glorious opportunity for rising up out of sin and death conditions to full human perfection in the image and likeness of God—as Adam possessed this before his fall. It will mean the bringing of the earth to the conditions pictured in Eden. The earth, God declares, He formed not in vain, but to be inhabited. At present man is in a condition of enmity and separation from his Creator and his earthly home is disordered. God's footstool, for 6000 years, has been the scene of a terrible reign of Sin and Death.

The only hope is in Messiah's Kingdom, which God has promised shall be established for the overthrow of Satan, the abolishing of ignorance and superstition, the enlightenment of mankind and the uplift of all the willing and obedient and for the destruction of the wilfully wicked in the Second Death.

The United States produced 372,227 tons of lead in the year 1910, Spain produced 211,201 tons, and Germany ranked third with 174,053 tons.

The fine quality of mutton produced by the Canadian and English husbandman is due in no small measure to the generous ration of turnips which the sheep are given during the feeding period.

Ashes are all right dumped on the highway in the summer months, but in latitudes where there is snow in winter they should be put in the alley, not where they will stall teams hauling heavy loads.

While the farmer, of all men, puts in the most overtime in the summer or has ample opportunity to do so, he does usually have a breathing spell in the winter months during the day between the morning and evening chores.

No wonder that boys and girls go to the devil faster than a horse can trot when during the formative years they do not receive the oversight or attention that discerning parents would give pet cats or dogs or pure bred domestic animals.

The good folk in Kansas are feeling pretty chesty over the unusually heavy rainfall in December last. In the vicinity of Wichita it was 2.26 inches, or three times the normal, being the heaviest precipitation for December in a period of twenty-five years.

Take in the dairy special if it comes your way. Not only will you have a chance to see splendid types of the leading dairy breeds, but you will get first hand and in a way that you will remember a lot of dairy information and instruction of the most condensed and practical kind.

In the construction of both the hog and poultry house the admission of sunshine, which is a great germ killer, is a most important matter. Both in the facing of the building and the arrangement of the windows the aim should be to let into the structure just as much sunshine during as many hours of the day as possible.

In 1910 the United States produced 209,556,048 barrels of crude petroleum which was an increase of 14 per cent over the record output of the preceding year. California led in the production of oil with 73,010,560 barrels, which is more than the production of any foreign country. Oklahoma came second with 52,028,718 barrels, while Illinois ranked third with 33,143,362 barrels.

If two people are having trouble in their married life the last person under the sun they should consult if they would mend the growing breach is a lawyer, saving perhaps old Satan himself. All too many lawyers would advise divorce proceedings, in the course of which a goodly portion, if not all, of the property of both parties to the action would be consumed in court costs and attorneys' fees.

Many a housewife in these days of high priced commodities feels that she cannot afford to buy the amount of milk that she really needs, when if the fact of the situation were more fully appreciated she could well afford to have twice as much milk as she is now using. From the standpoint of food value alone good milk is worth all it costs, while the use of it in the shape of gravies and soups makes possible a decided saving in butter and other articles.

The department of agriculture recommends the following tonic for hogs that are in need of toning up: One pound of wood charcoal, two pounds of common salt, two pounds of sodium hyposulphate, two pounds of sodium bicarbonate, one pound sodium sulphate and one pound antimony sulphate. These ingredients are thoroughly powdered and mixed and given in doses of a tablespoonful to hogs weighing 200 pounds. The dose is most conveniently given to the hogs in a thin slop.

Mention was made in these notes some time ago of the practice which is followed in some sections of Germany of growing fruit of different kinds on the borders of the highways. Recently an American consul has reported that in the province of Hanover the fruit that is grown on these roadside trees is sold at auction, the proceeds of which are used for the upkeep of the roads. This district has some 7,000 miles of country highway, and the past year the fruit trees on some of the roads yielded a revenue of $295 per mile. The fruit is protected by law, and during the ripening season the roads are patrolled by watchmen.

A Philadelphia surgeon has lately discovered that the inside membrane of hens' eggs can be successfully used as a substitute for human skin in grafting operations. The new skin formed by this method is finer than the old, but strong and healthy.

For folks who hibernate in latitudes where the mercury is likely to slip down to 20 or 30 below zero there is absolutely no investment that gives more generous or immediate returns than that put into a thirty-five cent soapstone. In the comfort which it yields it pays for itself every night it is used.

It is an interesting fact shown in immigration statistics that, while the vast majority of Italians who emigrate from their native land to the western world come to the United States, just as large a per cent of the Spanish peasants go to South American countries. During the past year 230,000 people left Spain, 8,000 of these arriving in Buenos Aires in a single fortnight.

That this "watermelon stealin'" business is getting to be serious is shown in the discussion of the subject by a speaker before the recent meeting of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association held in St. Louis. Some one has suggested giving each melon a paper jacket, which would prevent the melons from being exposed to view and thus reduce the temptation to steal them.

If you would live long drink generous amounts of sour milk or buttermilk. Scientists have discovered that the family of bacteria that produce lactic acid—that is, cause the souring process in milk—have the power to destroy or neutralize another group of germs that are said to be responsible for the imperfect digestion of food in the intestines, which in turn is said to be the chief cause of old age decline.

Illinois produced last year more corn than any other state in the Union, but the largest average yield per acre—88.3 bushels—was grown in Connecticut, not usually considered in the list of corn producing states at all. It is evident that the farmers of those rocky little New England homesteads are on to some secrets of corn raising that the owners of the big farms of the central western states would do well to get next to.

Baguio, in the Philippine Islands, is said to be the wettest place in all the territory at present under the control of the United States. Meteorological records kept there show that in four days of last July 88.14 inches of water fell, thirty-four inches of this enormous amount falling in a period of twenty-four hours. This place is the health resort of the island, and the "water" cure is said to be a favorite method of treatment.

Surveys are being made for a scenic highway around Crater lake, in southern Oregon, which is conceded to be one of the world's wonder spots, but which as yet has been visited by comparatively few people on account of its inaccessibility. A proposed automobile road from Medford, a station on the main line of the railroad, some sixty miles away, and the building of the scenic drive around the lake will afford to lovers of the beautiful in nature an opportunity of viewing one of her masterpieces.

Between meridians 100 degrees and 120 degrees, which includes practically all of the dry country of the western half of the United States, it is estimated that there are 300,000,000 acres of fertile land capable of producing a crop of twenty bushels per acre of winter wheat every other year. This means that if one-third of this vast area were producing on the above basis the increase in the country's wheat crop as a result would be 1,000,000,000 bushels yearly, which is a good deal more wheat than the country has ever produced in a single crop.

Folks who are paying 30 cents a pound for the cheapest grade of coffee wonder why there was not a drop in price when the import tariff tax was removed some time ago. The reason there was not is due to the fact that the Brazilian coffee trust, backed by the government, slapped on an export duty equal to our import tax which had just been removed. As a still further aid in maintaining prices the output of coffee is so regulated that in times of big crops enough of the surplus is removed from trade channels so that the price can be kept up on the remainder.

A reader of this department who lives at Reed City, Mich., in a recent letter calls attention to the interesting fact that as a result of investigations which have been carried on it is now contended that fruit raising can be carried on in Michigan over a much wider area than was formerly supposed. In support of this statement our correspondent calls attention to the fact of the clearing of one 3,000 acre tract not far from where he lives, all of which is to be set to fruit trees as soon as cleared. He also speaks in high terms of a fruit and land show that was held a short time since in Grand Rapids, where choice fruit put up in the western box fashion was on display. In this connection it may be added the Michigan fruit grower has a distinct advantage over his western competitor, namely, nearness to good markets. When he will take as much pains in the care and spraying of his trees and in the packing of his fruit he will receive correspondingly satisfactory prices for his stuff.

AGAINST THE BREECHING.

Most everywhere you will run across a class of people—usually men, because they are engaged in collective business undertakings more than women—who always ride in the march of progress or, to mix the figure a little by a more forceful phrase, are usually against the breeching and mighty seldom in the collar doing straight pulling. Especially does this disposition crop out in case of new enterprises that are started in the community having in view the general welfare of the people living therein. When invited to take hold and give enterprises of this character a boost they remark, "Oh, I'll wait awhile," or "I'll wait and see if the thing pans out." Perhaps such an attitude is commendable when assumed toward decidedly risky propositions, but in many cases it is an evidence of mere stinginess or lack of good red blood. Such folk forget that whatever progress the world has made, not only in material but along other lines, has been made not by the aid of this type, but with the handicap of their either riding and letting some one else furnish motor power or backing up in the breeching.

IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

Those who are interested in the welfare of farmers' co-operative societies are watching with much interest the outcome of suits which have been brought against some of these societies of late. In one instance in Iowa the supreme court ruled that the provision of a company's bylaws which required that for every pound of pork which a member of the company sold to a competing firm he should pay a certain per cent to the parent company was a plain violation of the anti-trust law. More recently, after the company's bylaws have been so altered as to eliminate this feature, suit has been made to dissolve the company because its bylaws required all members of the society to trade with the society and no one else. It is contended by the party bringing the second suit that this proviso also is in plain violation of the anti-trust law.

"BAD ORDER" REBATES.

While the old system of direct rebates has been done away with, there seems to be another which is to some extent being used in its place. From one who is engaged in the express business the writer learns that many shippers and merchants are able to get quite as much in the shape of "bad order" claims as they were ever granted under the old system. Not only do such shippers make such claims when there is little or no ground for them, but the claims are paid at once, while with the claim that is honestly made by the person who ships produce only occasionally it is held up often for months, in some cases years. If this "bad order" rebate practice is general, and there is reason for believing it is, it would seem to deserve the careful investigation of state railway commissioners.

TEN POUNDS OF NUTMEGS.

Many a farmer or his good wife often miss it by ordering supplies of the peddler or of the catalogue house when just as good or a better grade of product could be secured from the home dealer. A case was reported to the writer the other day in which a farmer's wife ordered twenty pounds of cocoanut and paid 8 cents a pound more for it than was regularly charged by the home dealer. The good woman evidently did not realize that twenty pounds of cocoanut would last her family five or six years and that most of it would spoil before it was used up. Another case showing even worse perspective than this was one where a rural customer bought ten pounds of nutmegs, and in this case also more was paid than was charged for the same article in the home store.

NOT ALL POETRY.

The "back to the land" movement has much to commend it in the way of independence and good health for those who have been living in cramped quarters in a city flat with a 2 by 4 plot of ground in the front or rear, but none should think seriously of making the move who do not possess determination and both the willingness and ability for hard work. This being "back to the land" is no pipe dream or air castle business. Gold eagles are not plowed out of the ground and do not fall from low bending fruit trees, but come from the hardest kind of work, calloused hands, backaches and ravenous hunger. Some benefit is derived doubtless from a mere contemplation of an ideal pastoral life, but none should tackle the realities of it who are not willing to pay the price.

BERMUDA GRASS.

Bermuda grass is of southern origin and is extensively used in the latitude of Oklahoma, in sections where the rainfall is somewhat limited. The Oklahoma station, which has recently issued a bulletin on this grass, does not recommend growing it where alfalfa and similar crops can be grown. The grass does best on a sandy loam and is admirably adapted as a grass to prevent soil erosion and for a pasture on rough land not well suited to agriculture. Except in the southernmost parts of the country the grass does not mature seed and is best propagated by sowing the roots. The best time to do this is in the spring, and the general planting method followed with potatoes gives good results.

Did you clean your yard last week or did the board of health have it done for you?

The Pennington County fair will be a big success, and you must render your assistance.

The News was sold this week to Marcus C. Cutter of St. Paul, who will arrive with his family in this city next Monday, May 6th, when he will personally have charge of the paper. Mr. Cutter is a practical printer, but has been a member of the State Board of Control for the past ten years, which position he resigns to take up newspaper work in this city.

Sportsmen, Attention, From 1st Page of the hatching tanks does not stop them, and the only way to preserve the fry intact, is to move them to open waters where there is opportunity for escape or free-and-easy room for an uninterrupted fight.

The female pike is the greatest producer of eggs or spawn of any game fish in America. Large pike have been taken from Minnesota streams and lakes which produced one quart of eggs. In this quart, there are approximately 200,000 spawn. Crews sent out from the state fish hatcheries catch the pike and strip the eggs from them. Left undisturbed in their native streams, the mother pike deposits her eggs nearly in the current, and allows them to drift and lodge where they will. In the hatching tanks at a temperature of 48 degrees, the eggs hatch in 18 to 20 days, and by the time the little pike are 12 or 14 days old, they playfully begin eating each other. Then they are hurried from the hatchery as rapidly as possible, to their future homes in the open waters.

"Bass are not gathered till the fall," said John Marty, foreman of the state fish hatchery at St. Paul. "No one has yet found a way to handle bass spawn so they will develop. The bass must be left undisturbed where the female bass has deposited her eggs, and where the male may circulate around in the waters, on guard. He is the faithful one. He is the most savage of all fish excepting the muskallonge, and will fight anything that comes near the eggs he is watching.

"The bass fry with which Minnesota lakes are stocked are gathered from sloughs along the Mississippi river. We take them when they are only fingerlings—catching them with nets and merely transplanting to the lakes to be stocked. The headwaters of the Mississippi afford thousands of these little bass."

Minnesota is fighting with all her might to rid the inland waters of German carp and suckers. These are the deadly enemies of game fish—not that they are equal in a pitched battle, but because either a carp or a sucker will eat or mutilate a million eggs of the game fish during the spawning season. Having spent approximately three-quarters of a million dollars in maintaining her wonderful fishing opportunities, the state is a natural enemy of these egg-destroying species of fish and has signed their death warrant.

Minnesota boasts of having the best fishing lakes and streams of any state in the Union and the annual pilgrimage to them each summer is becoming greater. Not many years will go by before the native waters of America will be "fished out," and the last of this fine sport probably will be here, because of the lakes in the big North woods not yet reached by railroads. There are accessible places, however, in the solitude of the woods, easily reached now, which are not surpassed by any game-fish waters of America.

Official Call For The Republican County Convention In and For Pennington County, Minnesota, To Be Held in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, May 13, 1912.

Pursuant to the call of the Republican State Central Committee duly communicated to the Republican County Committee of the County of Pennington, State of Minn., a Republican County Delegate Convention is hereby called to be held on the 13th day of May, A. D., 1912, at eleven (11) o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the court house in Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing ten (10) delegates to the Republican State Convention to be held on the 16th day of May A. D. 1912, at twelve o'clock noon of said at the Armory in Minneapolis, Hennepin County, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing six delegates at large and six alternates to the National Republican Convention to nominate a president and vice president of the United States, to be held in Chicago, Illinois, on June 18, 1912, and to nominate twelve Republican electors for the State of Minnesota; and for further purpose of electing ten (10) delegates to the Republican District Convention for the Ninth Congressional District of Minnesota, to be held at the Armory in the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1912, at Ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day, for the purpose of electing two (2) delegates and two (2) alternates to the National Republican Convention to nominate a president and vice president of the United States, to be held in Chicago, Illinois, on June 18th, 1912.

The primaries for the election of delegates to said Republican County Convention shall be held at the usual voting place in each voting precinct in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, on Saturday the 11th day of May, 1912, from seven to eight o'clock p. m.

The Republican voters of Pennington County, Minnesota without regard to past political affiliations, who believe in the principles advocated by the Republican party and indorse its policies, are cordially invited to participate in the selection of delegates to this convention.

The Representation to said Republican County Convention shall be based upon the average Republican vote for the following State officers at the election in 1910; Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, State Auditor, State Treasurer, and Attorney General. Each voting precinct being entitled to one delegate for each twenty five voters or majority fraction thereof, and one delegate at large.

GROWING ALFALFA.

A reader of these notes who has succeeded in establishing a very thrifty three acre patch of alfalfa in a latitude and section where practically none of the legume has been thus far grown gives us some account of the method he followed, and we present it here in the idea that it may be helpful to some who have not had any experience with it. The patch in question had been in clover which was manured in the spring and planted to corn the year before the alfalfa was sowed. In the fall the corn was harvested, and the following spring the patch was left until about June 1, when it was plowed, following the application of about seven tons of manure per acre. It was made fine with a harrow and dragged at intervals to germinate and destroy weed seed until the first week in August, when the seed was sown at the rate of twenty pounds per acre. Our friend broadcasted this, but is of the opinion that with a rather dry surface soil the drilling of the seed would give better germination. He further states that he did not take the precaution of inoculating the seed or soil, but believes it would be well worth while to do so. He made two cuttings of this alfalfa last season, made one the middle of June this year and will make a second in a few days. The patch yielded better than two tons per acre the first cutting, when timothy and clover meadows in the neighborhood were yielding a scant three-quarters of a ton of hay per acre. Our friend harvested no other crop from the patch the season when he started the patch, but believes sowing on a well manured oat stubble from which the grain has just been removed would give even better results than the plan he followed, as it would not result in the loss of a crop and the weed trouble would be no worse. In addition to the points mentioned, it is well to make note of two or three others factors on which success in growing alfalfa depends. One of these is a well-drained subsoil in which the water table does not lie nearer than five or six feet to the surface. A porous subsoil is preferable, but it should not be gravelly. If possible poultry should have the range of the alfalfa patch, as in a dry year grasshoppers are very likely to gobble the young plants. Sometimes the soil may be sour, in which case it should be sweetened by the application of two or three tons of ground limestone per acre disked in before sowing the seed. Good seed costs a round price, but nevertheless nothing but the best should be used, for in the long run it is economy. The growing of alfalfa is not difficult if a few simple directions are followed. We believe the benefits accompanying the growing of it have not begun to be appreciated in a great many sections where its fertility restoring mission is badly needed.

"Sterilization" is a term about which we hear much these days. Its meaning is known to many, yet there may be some readers who have not a definite idea of what the process is. Briefly, a liquid or substance is said to be sterilized when it has been heated for a stated length of time at a temperature of 180 degrees or more. This heating process kills all bacterial or other life—typhoid or tubercular germs in milk or water, trichinae in pork and the like.

A NEW THEATRE

Roy Morgan Will Erect A Modern Fire Proof Building On LaBree Avenue.

Roy Morgan owner of the Lyceum Theatre on Tuesday obtained permission from the city council to build a modern fire proof theatre on LaBree avenue between Bfinger's pool room and Rolland's store. The building is to be of brick, 25 x 140, 24 feet high in front and 36 feet in the rear and equipped with all modern appliances. The present Lyceum has been found too small to accomodate the crowds that come daily to see the shows, hence Mr. Morgan's decision to build a new play house. The building will be commenced at once and finished as soon as possible.

ERIE

From the Seven Towns.

Miss Fannie Zavoral has accepted a position as cook for the crew on the Griffith dredge working on ditch No. 38.

Robert Greer, who has been clerking in the Erie store for several weeks has resigned to accept a position as fireman on a dredge operating near Middle River, and left Monday for that place.

The Griffith dredge, on ditch No. 38, has started and is now running with a full crew. Considerable frost was found that impeded their progress but they removed that portion with dynamite the first of the week.

A. D. Brown of Neptune, passed through Erie Saturday on his way home from Thief River Falls. His daughter, Mrs. Fred DuChamp, of Germantown, accompanied him for a short visit.

Mrs. Ole O. Sandsdahl returned Saturday from Fargo where she has been the past week taking medical treatment.

Hans Swanson met with an accident Wednesday morning. While at work in the field one of the horses kicked him in the side, causing a very painful injury with a possible fracture of the ribs. Mr. Swanson has just recently taken charge of the Jos. Johnson farm and with the present scarcity of help he is in a bad plight to be laid up during this busy season.

STEINER NEWS.

Sunday school at Cop school house was well attended and a fine interest taken. This is a union Sunday school and all denominations are invited to attend every Sunday at 10.30.

Seeding is well along in these parts with the exceptions of late crop on spring plowing of which there will be considerable this spring owing to the early freezing last fall.

The boys along Thief River are having fun catching suckers these nights. They are nearly as bad as the realestate men of Thief River Falls.

The Swanson brothers were callers at the Rogers home Sunday afternoon.

The young son of John Myre had his thumb and front finger cut off last Sunday while the boys were playing with a feed cutter.

Richard Rogers returned home last Saturday after closing a successful term of school near Bruten, Minn.

Mr. Riddle was a business caller in Thief River Falls the last part of the week.

Mr. Warring transacted business in the city of Thief River Falls last Friday.

S. R. Rogers is digging the basement for a new house which he is going to build this summer.

Mr. Mussey has been buying and bailing hay the past week which he is shipping to Chicago. Hay is about as good a thing to have now as wheat.

Flagged Train With Shirt.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at all druggists.

DEMS. NOMINATE

"The Unterrified" Meet and Name Candidates for County Offices.

A large number of Democrats held a meeting Monday evening and named candidates for the county offices. The following is a list of the probable candidates at the primaries:

Auditor—B. E. Burkee, St. Hilaire
Treasurer—Martin Moylan, Town of North.
Clerk of Court—E. A. Larson, Bray.
County Attorney—E. M. Stanton
Sheriff—J. W. McGinty
Judge of Probate—N. W. Tarrant
County Commissioner from T. R. F.—S. Kenison
Register of Deeds—Martin Hoff, St. Hilaire
Coroner—John Morgan

Elected Delegates.

At a regular meeting of the Fire Deprrtment held Wednesday, April 24th the matter of great importance before the department was the election of delegates to the state Firemen's Convention to be held in Minneapolis June 11 and 12 1912. The delegates elected are as follows: Louis Lonson, C. H. Porter, Jas. Farr, Dennis Le Sage and Chief Medderigh.

Ira C. Richardson, Vice-President of the State Fire Ass'n, was appointed by the Relief Ass'n. of the department to attend the convention as its delegate.

SUNBEAM

From the Sunbeam.

Edward Singer has been appointed state fire patrolman for this district.

The new church at Highlanding is now near enough completed to hold services in, and it adds to general appearance of the country.

We understand that a walking dredge is to be put in on ditch No. 47, and the people will hope it can walk as they are awful tired of setting dredges.

Herbert Swift closes a very successful term of school in this district today, it being the last four months term of an eight months school with a first grade teacher.

The farmers have been improving the fine weather that we are having and about all of them are done seeding wheat and oats, and now comes the barley, flax and corn, and be sure to not forget the corn patch.

St. Hilaire News.

From the Spectator.

Helmer Swanson went Tuesday to Great Falls, Montana, to secure employment.

The St. Hilaire base ball team will play the first game of the season at Red Lake Falls on Sunday, May 5, with the Red Lake Falls team as opponents.

Mr. and Mrs O. K. Sevre returned Tuesday from Goldfield, Col., where they went last fall with the hope of deriving benefit for Mrs. Sevre's health. Mr. Sevre has purchased the original Sevre homestead in Sanders township.

The senior class of the Thief River Falls high school has decided to give their play, "The Private Secretary," in St. Hilaire Friday evening, May 3. This play was given last Friday evening at home and made a great hit. It is a farce-comedy in three acts—fun from beginning to end.

Jeanne Towler in "The White Sister"

Coming to the Auditorium on Wednesday night, May 8th, is Jeanne Towler and her splended company in that wonderful play "The White Sister." One of the best known dramatic critics of Chicago who witnessed the first performance of Miss Towler in the title role of this play, said in part—"To those who have not seen this distinguished play in one of the most striking roles she has ever assumed it should be sufficient to say that it will be an absolutely misfortune to miss this opportunity of seeing a play of powerful grip and intense interest—that is, if you desire for your dramatic enlightment and entertainment a star of the first rank and what can be truthfully claimed as America's most beautiful actresses in one of the highest class offerings we have submitted to us for approval."

It is the corn in the ration of the laying hens that gives the yellow yolked eggs.

Quite often the worst stretches of the country highway during the winter months are caused by the roadside weeds that were left standing and served to catch the drifting snow.

Between the heavy ice bills of an unusually hot summer last year and the coal bills which are mounting up this severe winter the purses of many by the time spring comes will have a "lean and hungry" look.

Often a man's attitude toward the public is in no other way more accurately shown than in his disposition to keep the snow shoveled off that portion of the walks bordering his place which he himself seldom uses.

It is generally agreed now by medical authorities that the contraction of colds of one type and another is more often due to the breathing of bad air and to overheating than to the mere exposure of oneself to fresh air out of doors.

To those who are sitting up nights trying to keep their potatoes and other vegetables from freezing the suggestion is made that they place a tub of water on the cellar floor. The water, being very susceptible, will tend to draw the frost first.

In an article in this department a short time since, under the caption "An Illinois Inquiry," reference was made to the price at which good dairy cows could be purchased. In print the range given was from $50 to $20 when it should have been from "$50 to $120."

Boiling exactly three minutes makes an egg medium soft and about right for most folks who relish a soft egg at all. The same result is obtained by putting an egg in a pint of boiling water and setting the dish off the stove and allowing the egg to remain in the water ten minutes.

A corn belt boy, fifteen years old, of whom we read an account the other day, raised ninety-seven and a half bushels of corn per acre in a competitive contest last year at a cost of 14 2-3 cents per bushel. It is questionable if this lad's father was raising fifty bushels per acre before the youngster got interested in "better corn."

Not only does the white heron fall a victim of wanton slaughter at nesting time to gratify the whim of thoughtless women, who care a great deal more for adorning their bodies than they do of cultivating their hearts and minds, but also the crested grebes, which are slaughtered wantonly to furnish decorations for women's hats. In one way the slaughter of the grebes is worse in that it takes a greater number of victims to provide a given decoration.

It has been the writer's experience that more damage is done by rabbits to orchard trees during February than any other month of the winter. It is usually the month of deepest snow, while the rabbits have lost most of their reserve flesh put on during the fall and are almost completely barred from their usual sources of food supply. If the smaller trees have not been provided with protectors of some kind a sharp lookout should be kept to guard against damage being done in this way.

Thirty thousand pheasant eggs and 5,000 pheasants are to be distributed to farmers and sportsmen free during the present season from the state game farm in Sherburne, N. Y. Eggs or birds will be sent only to those from whom applications are received. The eggs will be distributed beginning in April, from fifteen to eighteen eggs being included in the sitting. The eggs are hatched under common hens, and the little pheasants are hardy and seem to thrive under the conditions found on the average farm.

While there may be some disadvantages in the case of the person who seems to think that the things he possesses are quite a bit finer than anybody else's, he is still several degrees better off than the fellow who is always discontented with his own achievements or [illegible] and who is jumping from [illegible] thing to that continuously, with the idea that the next thing will please him more or bring him better financial returns. A happy mean would seem to be somewhere between these two types—that is, a reasonable satisfaction with what one does or has, but at the same time an intelligent watchfulness to improve his condition.

A SENSIBLE MAN.

A good friend the writer has known for many years and who at sixty-six years of age has yielded to the very commendable desire to take life a little easier and enjoy some of the fruits of his labors for the past thirty years or more on a quarter section farm has hit upon a very sensible solution of the best way to let go of the strenuous life he has been living. Rather than quit work entirely and rust out or die of azoturia, or whatever it is called in the case of genus homo, he has purchased a ten acre place on the edge of town, which has a very comfortable house and outbuildings, a fine little orchard, a nice garden patch, pasture for a cow or two and room enough to grow some corn and praties. He figures that working this much ground will keep him out of mischief, give him something to think about and provide enough exercise to give him a good appetite and keep him in good physical condition. By following the course he has we believe our friend has solved in a very satisfactory as well as sensible manner the question of retiring from active and heavy farm work. Many a man who has earned a competence for the eventime of life would not only be a good deal happier, but live many years longer, were he to carry out the same plan.

THE OLEOMARGARINE TAX.

A bill is being thrashed out in the agricultural committee at Washington which has in view placing a uniform tax of 2 cents per pound on all oleomargarine or butterine, whether colored or not. While there is considerable opposition to the bill on the part of some dairy associations, others have in effect given approval to the bill, provided it is accompanied by severe penalties for those who would ply the business of selling colored oleomargarine for butter and getting butter prices for it. There is little question that the present tax of 10 cents a pound on colored oleomargarine works a decided hardship on the man of limited salary or wage who has many mouths to feed. If he wants to buy butterine, knowing what it is, it hardly seems fair to impose a virtually prohibitive tax on this necessity in the interest of a class who are probably already the most well to do of any.

GIVES VENTILATION.

The use of muslin in place of window sash is now an accepted practice with practically all up to date poultry keepers. Not only does the muslin admit sufficient light, but, what is more essential than this, makes possible a perfect circulation of air. This insures the health of the flock, which in turn is a prime condition for egg production. A lady reader of these notes who has her poultry houses equipped in the above fashion reports twenty-six eggs from her flock of less than a hundred hens on a day recently when her thermometer on the back porch registered 30 below zero. Muslin is cheaper than window glass and is also better for the biddies. Another who has tried muslin in place of the upper window sash reports that dampness on the floor has disappeared since the change was made.

POTASH FROM SEAWEED.

Investigations which have been made by the department of agriculture with a view to finding practical sources for the securing of commercial potassium seem to have demonstrated that an ample supply of this valuable fertilizing element is to be got from the beds of kelp or giant seaweed which are found over considerable areas along the Pacific coast shore line. This weed extracts the potassium salts from the sea water, and when the weeds are dried the potassium exudes to the surface in the shape of potassium chloride. The dried plants contain from 25 to 30 per cent of the chloride, and it is estimated that if properly handled these beds would produce annually for an indefinite period of time 1,000,000 tons of potassium chloride, worth $10,000,000.

A TRAINLOAD OF STEERS FREEZE.

An incident of the period of severe cold in January, which reached a climax in a temperature of from 35 to 42 degrees below zero through the northern tier of states, that will probably not be recorded again in a generation, was the freezing to death of eighteen carloads of fat steers that were snowbound for fifty-six hours on the C., R. I. and P. railway between Neola and Council Bluffs. It is said that as the animals began to freeze they remained standing, and when the discovery of their plight was made the entire trainload, totaling some 360 head, were stark and stiff and still on their feet. If the steers were worth $70 a head the damages that will have to be paid by the railroad will be $25,200.

BURNING STUMPS.

The following method is recommended for treating stumps prior to burning them: Bore a hole in the center of each stump to a depth of a foot with a two inch auger, fill the hole one-fourth full of powdered saltpeter and the remainder with coal oil, filling a second time with coal oil when the oil first applied is absorbed. This job should be done in the spring, and in the fall it is said the stumps will burn, roots and all. Under this method it is claimed that the saltpeter dries the sap, while the oil penetrates the wood thoroughly and tends to make the combustion complete.

THE STONE WITNESS OR GREAT PYRAMID

God's Altar In the Midst of the Land of Egypt.

Its Symbolic Teachings Corroborate Science and the Bible, Refuting Evolution and Higher Criticism—It Indicates Distance to Sun, High Calling of Church and Hope of the World.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Cairo, Egypt, March 3.—The Committee appointed by the International Bible Students Association to report on Foreign Missions is homeward bound, instead of visiting the missions of eastern and southern Africa. They will recommend another commission for Africa and Australasia, etc.

We report Pastor Russell's discourse of today, from the text which he said referred directly to the Great Pyramid located near this city: "In that day there shall be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, * * * for a sign and for a witness." (Isa. xix, 19, 20.) Not only did God thus mention prophetically in Isaiah the great Pyramid, but also in Jeremiah xxxii, 20, where we read that "He set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even unto this day."

The location of the Pyramid is remarkable, and its size centuries ago marked it as one of the Seven Wonders of the world.

Scientists tell us that the measurement of its base on the four sides, at the level of its sockets, when added, gives as many pyramid cubits as there are days in four years, to the fraction—including the leap year fraction. The diagonal measurements across the base, N. E. to S. W., and N. W. to S. E., give as many inches as there are years in the precessional cycle of the stars. This cycle astronomers had already concluded to be 25,827 years, and the Pyramid corroborates the conclusion. The distance to the sun is indicated by the height and angle of the Pyramid to be 91,840,270 miles, which almost exactly corresponds with the latest figures reached by astronomers.

Spiritual Lessons Here Taught.

A key suggested in 1868 by a young Scotchman, Robert Menzies, and which began to open the Pyramid's religious lessons, was the Well. He wrote to Prof. Piazzi Smyth, Astronomer Royal for Scotland, "From the north beginning of the Grand Gallery, in upward progression, begin the years of our Savior's life, expressed at the rate of a year for an inch. Three and thirty inch-years, therefore, bring us right over against the mouth of the Well." In other words, that Well and the appearance of an explosion, picture our Lord's death and resurrection. In harmony with this the Downward Passage represents the course of sin and death, leading to destruction. The low Ascending Passage, blocked by the granite "Plug," represents the Law Covenant given to the Jews, but which none were able to keep, because "there is none righteous, no, not one."

From the time of our Savior the Gospel Dispensation began, symbolically represented by the Grand Gallery. It is a Dispensation of grace or favor, nevertheless its Passageway is deep and narrow, leading to the "Goal" at the farther end. As the Grand Gallery has an end, so this Gospel Age will have an end. It will accomplish its purpose, which is the gathering of the "elect" to be the Bride of Christ.

Another interesting feature is that the Ascending Passage with its Plug represents exactly the length of the Jewish Age! And, similarly, the Grand Gallery represents (an inch to a year) the length of this Gospel Dispensation! It indicates that at a certain time the great favor of becoming joint-sacrificers with the Redeemer, and thus becoming joint-heirs with Him in His Kingdom, will terminate.

The King's Chamber Granite.

Before entering the Ante Chamber or school, the pupil must stoop low, implying humility. No sooner has he risen than he finds himself confronted by a huge granite obstruction, known as the Granite Leaf, and he can make no further progress except by bowing low to pass under it. Symbolically it says, It is not sufficient that you have a desire for Godliness, and faith in Jesus, and a desire to be taught of Him; you cannot go further unless you make a full surrender to God.

The Passage leading from the Ante Chamber to the King's Chamber is just as low as the Granite obstruction, which seems to say that as the one represents a condition of death of the will, the other represents actual death—only by a real death could our Savior or any of His followers pass into the Heavenly state, symbolized by the King's Chamber, for "We must all be changed," because "flesh and blood cannot enter the Kingdom of God."

We understand the Horizontal Passageway leading to the Queen's Chamber [illegible] to represent the trial and testing that will be upon the human family [illegible] attaining human perfection [illegible] the glorious reign of Messiah's Kingdom, when the [illegible] the Bride of Christ will be associated with her Lord in effecting [illegible] all the willing and obedient.—Acts iii, 19-23.

A note which the writer hardly knows whether to classify under the head of agricultural or political is the distribution of packets of vegetable and flower seeds by congressmen just a few days before the circulation of their nomination papers among a grateful constituency.

A rather interesting fact has been noted on a trolley line which runs through a section in which rabbits abound—namely, that the rabbits seem to be attracted by the bright lights of the cars at night, with the result that a number are killed every trip. Not long since a jack rabbit met a like fate.

During the past winter altogether too much grain was shipped to market in the raw state instead of the finished animal products of the farm. This movement was due to the high prices for the grain and relatively low prices offered for steers, sheep and hogs. From the standpoint of fertility of the soil it is an unfortunate situation.

A very interesting trait common to both dogs and their wild cousins, wolves, is the disposition which each shows to put up an unearthly and prolonged howl when a bell is rung in their hearing or a whistle given a prolonged blast, and a further interesting fact is that often they will respond in nearly the same key as that of whistle or bell.

Thin and sickly offspring at lambing or farrowing time are an unfailing evidence of a scant or unbalanced ration and improper quarters for both ewe and sow in the weeks prior to the birth of their young. It is merely a working out of the law of cause and effect. The wise breeder will appreciate this fact and will make these conditions of food and housing the best possible.

A little Iowa girl, Lois Edmonds, baked a loaf of bread not long ago. This was nothing extraordinary, as hundreds of other girls and mothers did the same thing the same day, but this particular loaf happened to be the best out of 1,400 loaves that were baked by as many other Iowa girls. Her reward for this achievement was a trip to Washington, with all expenses paid. In the same company with this prize bread baker were ten Iowa boys, winners of corn growing prizes in as many districts of the state.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Three Hundred Forty and 31-100 ($310,31) Dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas J Mjeseth, a widower, Mortgagor, to First State Bank of Thief River Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 10th. day of December, 1908, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 18th. day of December, 1908, at 11:30 o'clock A. M., in Book 3 of Mortgages, on page 413, and which said Mortgage now appears of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, (said Pennington County being formerly a part of the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota) in book 31 of mortgages on pages 416-417, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

Lots two (2) and three (3) of block fourteen (14) of Porter's Addition to Thief River Falls, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington County, Minnesota, being formerly in and a part of Red Lake County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County and State of Minnesota at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington County and State, on the 18th day of May 1912, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $310.31, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

The Functions of White Seal Beer as a Table Beverage

It stimulates appetite, without which you will often fail to consume a sufficient amount of food, and that you do eat will not be properly digested. A keen appetite is essential.

It is food in itself—a wholesome, nutritious, predigested, liquid food, containing in correct proportions the nutritive and digestive elements of rich barley malt and choicest hops.

It furnishes the power for digestion and conquers dyspepsia, thus rendering a meal both enjoyable and beneficial.

It is the great promoter of sociability at meal time, which is one of the objects to be kept in view in indulging the appetite.

Let us send you a case.

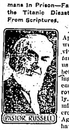
HOW JESUS PREACHED TO SPIRITS IN PRISON

Who They Are and the Cause of Their Imprisonment.

Pastor Russell Explodes the Theory That Jesus Preached to Dead Humans In Prison—Fate of the Dead of the Titanic Disaster Pointed Out From Scriptures.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Atlanta, Ga., April 28.—While we weep with the survivors of the "Titanic" disaster, let us thank God that a better understanding of the Bible enables us to sorrow not hopelessly. Not long ago, misguided by our creeds of the Dark Ages, we would have asked, Were any of the 1500 who perished saints? And assured that very few of them would have claimed to be saints, we would have concluded that all the remainder plunged down to a Catholic Purgatory of terror, or worse, to a Protestant hell of eternal torture.

Even the tales of their great gallantry and heroism would not have altered the decision which would have hung on the question. Did they confess Jesus in word and deed? we would have asked. Were they church members? This is the same argument used respecting the 90,000 heathen who die every day in the year, "going down into Christless graves," the "London Missionary Society" truly says, but means and is understood to mean into Christless eternal torture!

Now, how different! Now we see that a faithful, elect Church is being selected during this Age; that in the next Age they with Jesus may assist, bless, uplift all the non-elect to an earthly salvation to human perfection, in the new Paradise—Earth—which Messiah's Kingdom will usher in. Thus, only "the wilfully wicked will ever be annihilated.

But our old errors die hard; because we have twisted the Bible to fit them. For instance, let us consider St. Peter's words:—"Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened in the spirit, by which (two experiences—death and resurrection) He preached unto the spirits in prison" (I Peter iii, 18, 19).

This text has been made the basis for some very peculiar presentations. The difficulty in every case seems to be the failure to remember that the Bible always and everywhere teaches that the dead are really dead, that they will know nothing until the resurrection. Therefore, it would be impossible to preach to the dead humans.

Spirits Once Disobedient.

St. Peter tells us the time of the disobedience of these spirits—"In the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing."

Turning to Genesis vi, 1-5, we find there the cause of the disobedience of these angels who for a time had been permitted to see what they could do for the uplift of humanity, or, rather, permitted to demonstrate that the downward tendency of sin is incurable except in the manner which God has already arranged for through Messiah and His reign of 1,000 years.

The particular sin of those angels was that when they were granted the privilege of materializing—of taking human bodies—for the sake of helping and instructing mankind—they misused this power and took to themselves wives.

The offspring of this improper union were "giants," both physically and mentally superior to the fallen human family—"men of renown." The race thus in several centuries became so corrupt that apparently only Noah and his family were left uncontaminated.

It was then and there that God imprisoned these spirits ("angels, who kept not their first estate"), and are therefore called fallen angels, devils, demons. They were not imprisoned in some far off world called hell, nor are they engaged there in stoking fires.

The record is that God cast them down, that they might not longer associate with the holy angels, but must be reserved in tartarus—our earth's atmosphere.—Jude 6; II Peter ii, 4, 5.

When imprisoned or cut off from the privilege of materialization, many of the fallen spirits continued their active opposition to God, like Satan, and are spoken of as his angels.

How Jesus Preached In Death.

Here arises another question: If Jesus really died, as the Scriptures declare; if "He poured out His soul unto death" and "made His soul an offering for sin," and His soul was not raised from the dead until the third day after His crucifixion, how could He in the meantime preach to spirits in prison, or to anybody else? We reply that He could preach in the same way that the Apostle refers to, saying, "Abel, being dead, yet speaketh" (Hebrews xi, 4).

But when they perceived His resurrection on the third day to glory, honor and immortality "far above angels, principalities and powers", His sermon to them was complete, namely, that "the wages of sin is death," but "the gift of God is eternal life" (Romans vi, 23). And as they realized thus the Power of God and the Love of God for His human creatures, the Apostle's words imply that this constituted to them a message of hope.

Once a day is sufficient for chickens to be fed a mash. The remainder of the day dry grain is considered better.

No one has yet discovered just why it is so, but it has been noticed that a heifer twin with a bull seldom if ever breeds. If both twins are heifers they will produce normally, as if born single.

That community certainly has a pretty questionable standard of practical values in which the hired men who milk the cows get more per month than the girls who teach the country school.

While garden and other seeds will often keep their power of germination for several years, it is always more satisfactory, as well as more economical in the long run, to secure seed that is guaranteed to be fresh.

Do not throw away the parings from vegetables nor the scraps from the table. The hens are fond of them. They add variety to the ration; they are good foods and cost nothing. Be sure to save them for the fowls.

Any readers who may be interested in the culture of sugar beets should send to the division of publication, department of agriculture, Washington, for Farmers' Bulletin No. 52, which is sent free on application.

The forty cent price fixed by the Elgin butter board for Monday, Jan. 15, is the highest butter price on record in a period of twenty-four years. It is no wonder common folk are beginning to inquire into the merits of butter substitutes of one kind and another.

The Montana State college at Bozeman has lately come into possession of Grandma, declared by poultry authorities to be one of the most prolific as well as oldest hens of which there is any record. She is seventeen years old and has raised two broods of chicks every year during this period.

Good mixed hay—timothy and clover—with silage containing all the grain makes a very satisfactory feed for young stock that is being carried through the winter, but a more rapid as well as economical growth could be secured if a small amount of linseed or cottonseed meal were added to the ration. It is true this concentrate is high priced, but the feeding of it moderately would pay well.

The loss in the weight as well as the value of manure as it is handled on the average farm when piled in the barnyard and left until spring or later is shown in an experiment which was made by the Maryland experiment station. Eighty tons of barnyard manure were put in one pile and left for a year. At the end of this time it was found the pile had lost in weight fifty-three tons, or over 60 per cent, while from the standpoint of fertilizer value it probably lost even more than this.

A rather interesting climatic change seems to have taken place during the past few months along the southern coast of Alaska in the modification of the temperature by some 15 degrees as compared with normal winter temperatures. The change is attributed to the closer approach to the coast of the warm Japan ocean current, which corresponds in a general way to the gulf stream of the Atlantic ocean, which makes the winters of Europe and the north coast countries warmer than they would otherwise be.

It is said that the one disease of tuberculosis inflicts an annual expense on the people of this country of $[illegible],000,000. It is [illegible] that three-fourths of this [illegible] could be prevented if people would use good [illegible] and the necessary precaution to prevent the spread of the disease, ventilate the sleeping rooms, secure a pure water supply and get rid of the tubercular cows that supply the family [illegible]. This question of tuberculosis [illegible] be of especial interest to farm people because a majority of its victims are from farm homes.

Perhaps more than in any other quality the value of silage lies in its succulence—that in texture [illegible] moisture content it so nearly approaches June grass. This [illegible] coupled with the further fact that it has a demonstrated feeding value of from $5 to $8 per ton, which is a [illegible] erous estimate, figuring [illegible] its cost does not exceed $2 per ton, combines to make it a [illegible] feed for the [illegible] cattle raiser. Those who have tried [illegible] as a part of [illegible] not only would [illegible] but wonder how they managed to get along without [illegible] as long as they did.

In the last instalment of matter for this department reference was made to the sale of a month old calf of Dolly Dimples at the long price of $6,000, the dam being put in the Jersey class. Dolly Dimples is not a Jersey, as was stated, but a Guernsey and one of the most famous of this popular breed.

The brood sow should not only be warmly housed, but should be given a ration largely nitrogenous—muscle forming, rather than fat forming. Besides this, she should have an abundance of pure water and room enough so she can take needed exercise. In a large measure these same conditions hold of both the ewe and cow that are carrying young.

Purely as a business proposition, to say nothing of the humane aspect of it, a heating tank is a good investment and will pay good returns on the money put into it, as it is a self evident fact that when the fuel of an animal's body must be taxed to warm up the ice cold water which it has to drink just so much is taken from its flesh or milk producing powers.

A North Dakota resident is said to have got round the prohibitory law in force in his state by eating mince pie put out by a certain bakery. The pies are said to be doped with a generous application of whisky, and as a result the authorities are investigating. There is surely more than one way of beating the devil around a stump when a fellow sets his mind to it.

While it is true that potatoes can be grown under a straw mulch, the seed being laid in shallow furrows and covered with the straw, it seems to be pretty well agreed that the yield is not so good as is secured under usual cultural conditions, where a dust mulch is maintained, while from the standpoint of the labor involved there is little saving by the mulch method.

Until quite recently date seeds have been a troublesome as well as unsalable product. However, in south Algeria and Tunis it has been discovered that by prolonged soaking the covering of the seeds may be softened to such an extent that they may be used as a ration for camels and mules. Datestone meal contains 9 6-10 per cent of nitrogenous matter, 26 per cent of hydrocarbons and 2 per cent of fatty matter, which in feeding quality makes it about equal to timothy hay.

While the raising of both mushrooms and ginseng, under favorable conditions and with proper handling, may yield good revenue, there is a good deal of doubt whether the same amount of ingenuity and brains devoted to plain gardening would not give as large a financial return with less risk. But strangely, there seems to be a fascination about engaging in enterprises in which the stake may be large; but in which the risk is also great.

Not until recent years has the value of pasture for hogs been fully appreciated. In some feeding tests which have been conducted by the Missouri experiment station during the past three years with hogs on pasture it was found that clover pasture gave a return of $34 per acre per year, oats and rape $23, corn and cowpeas $29 and blue grass pasture $17. In view of such a showing as this, it would seem as though many a farmer might profitably convert a portion of his corn and grain fields into hog pastures.

Probably not in twenty years have dairy cows of known milk producing capacity under proper conditions of care and feed yielded a larger cash revenue than during the two months just past. The price received for butter fat, which has ranged from 40 to 50 cents per pound, has been the chief determining factor in the heavy returns. In instances not a few which we have noted "just average" cows have been producing a gross return of from $8 to $16 per month. The dairy business looks like a mighty inviting proposition.

While many of our readers hear a good deal about oleomargarine and butterine, there may be some who will be interested in knowing in a general way how it is made. One standard brand of which we know contains in the neighborhood of 12 per cent of the purest cream that can be secured. This is mixed with about seven times its volume of melted stearine or beef suet and fat and is then carefully churned. Where the colored product is made the coloring is added before the churning. Without any coloring the finished product is [illegible] pure white. From the standpoint of cleanliness and wholesomeness this product is in every way the equal of the best butter and under chemical analysis shows a larger per cent of food elements than does butter.

A Kansas poultry fancier who has had [illegible] with poultry [illegible] recommends the following [illegible]. Take eight [illegible] and add to it about 15 [illegible] gum. Next [illegible] the chest and neck.

A BIG HORSE FEEDING TEST.

Probably the largest experiment in horse feeding ever conducted was the one recently concluded at Fort Riley, Kan., under the supervision of Dr. Campbell, who is connected with the State Agricultural college. Nine hundred and thirty-seven horses were used in the test, and these were divided into fifteen different lots and fed as many different rations. Every meal for every one of these horses was weighed and mixed in the right proportions during a period of 140 days. The purpose of the experiment was to find, if possible, a grain ration that would take the place of oats and give as good results, also to test the feeding value of different hays and to determine the effect of different grain rations upon the health of the horses. When the feeding tests were concluded several things were made clear: First, other feeds can be substituted for oats as a ration for work horses, with as good results and much cheaper. It was proven conclusively that oats alone were a better grain for work horses than corn alone, but more expensive. Horses that were fed oats alone gained on an average sixteen pounds a head, while a like number that were fed corn alone lost twenty-nine pounds apiece in the same time. When corn was fed with the proper amount of alfalfa of the right quality it was found to give just as good results as oats and, besides, was fully 50 per cent cheaper. Alfalfa hay, properly fed, proved to be a more valuable roughage than either timothy or prairie hay and cheapened the cost of the daily ration from 25 to 40 per cent. A ration consisting of six parts of corn, four parts of oats and four parts of bran, together with timothy hay, was rated as the best ration that could be given a horse, though not the cheapest. An old idea was exploded in the experiment—namely, that horses fed oats have more life than those given a ration of corn.

A SCHOOL OF HORTICULTURE.

As a result of co-operation on the part of the business men of Lewiston, Ida., and Clarkston, Wash., a school of horticulture has been established at Livingston that will be quite unique in its scope and purpose. Instead of furnishing instruction primarily to young people, as is so largely true of the average agricultural college, the school in question will be attended most largely by owners of fruit ranches in the vicinity and their wives and daughters. Among the subjects studied will be fruit growing, nursery practice, the growing of small fruits and vegetables, insects and their treatment, plant diseases and other subjects arising from the agricultural conditions to be found in the valley; also soil physics and soil chemistry. The business men of the two cities came to the conclusion that the fruit industry of the valley was retarded because of a lack of trained men, and the school just established has definitely in view correcting this difficulty. That a high grade of instruction will be given is indicated in the choice of Professor Thornber, previously in charge of the horticultural departments of the South Dakota and Washington state agricultural colleges. Lectures will be given in the forenoons of five days in the week, while the laboratory work will be largely done in the nearby orchards. Professor Thornber believes there is a real need for the school and is enthusiastic about its future.

SENSIBLE MONTANA.

Beginning with Jan. 1 the good people of Montana will be able to know a bit about the pedigree of the eggs they have for breakfast. At that date regulations became effective relative to the sale of eggs, which state authorities say will be strictly enforced. Under the regulations eggs will be classified as fresh eggs, ranch eggs and case eggs. Eggs offered for sale as fresh that are more than seven days old will be considered misbranded. Ranch eggs are those that have not been preserved or the age of which is unknown. All eggs that have been kept in cold storage or that have been preserved in any way are known as case eggs, and the containers of such eggs must have plainly marked thereon in letters not less than two inches high the month and the year in which the eggs were placed in storage. Any eggs of the above class not plainly labeled are considered misbranded. The law imposes heavy penalties for violation and makes it incumbent upon both the merchant and eating house proprietor to specify plainly the class to which eggs he sells belong.

CORN IN LOUISIANA.

A very interesting change that is going on in those portions of the south where cotton has been the staple crop for generations past is clearly shown in the rapid increase in the production of corn in the state of Louisiana during the past few years. A few years ago the cotton boll weevil made its appearance in the state, and cotton growers seemed to be threatened with bankruptcy. But being compelled to devote cotton land to the growing of corn and other crops has really been a blessing in disguise. Figures that have been compiled show that the production of corn has increased from 19,510,000 bushels in 1905 to nearly [illegible] bushels in 1911. In the year 1910 Louisiana corn was sold to Europe and Texas for the first time, and the surplus for the past year has been close to [illegible] bushels.

WHOLESALING HELD LEGAL

Decision of State Supreme Court May Wipe Out All "Dry" Territory in Minnesota.

In a sweeping decision on the liquor question the state supreme court is believed to have in effect wiped out the "dry" territories of Minnesota.

While the sale of liquor at retail is prohibited in certain districts the supreme court holds that the sale of liquor at wholesale cannot be prevented by municipalities.

On the basis of the supreme court decision, attorneys say, there is nothing to prevent anyone from establishing warehouses in "dry" territories and distributing at wholesale beer, whisky or other liquors without a license.

The case passed upon by the court was that of William Hogan against P. J. Sullivan, chief of police, East Grand Forks.

Hogan opened a wholesale liquor house in East Grand Forks after the "lid" was put on and was arrested on a charge of selling liquor without a license, but was subsequently discharged on a writ of habeas corpus.

The chief of police appealed the case.

The supreme court holds that the city council has not the power to license and regulate the sale of liquor at wholesale and therefore Hogan can continue business in the "dry" territory.

WETS WIN AT FERGUS FALLS

Court Decides That License Carried at Recent Election.

Judge Taylor handed down a decision in the district court at Fergus Falls in the injunction suit brought by the anti-license people to prohibit the issuing of liquor licenses in that city. The vote at the recent election was 600 against license and 546 in favor, with 87 blanks. The charter provides that licenses shall not be granted "if a majority of the legal votes cast at which election shall be against license."

Judge Taylor announced that he would hold that a majority of the votes cast on the proposition should govern were it not for a supreme court decision in an Osakis case. In that case the supreme court held that a majority of all votes cast at an election was necessary to carry license and Judge Taylor holds that in this case the same rule will have to apply in order to defeat license. He accordingly dismisses the case and the city council is now at liberty to grant licenses.

BODY OF DOUGLASS FOUND

Minneapolis Victim of Titanic Disaster Recovered.

The family of Walter D. Douglass, Minneapolis millionaire, has been notified that Mr. Douglass' body had been recovered near the scene of the Titanic disaster.

Members of the family say the remains will be taken to Cedar Rapids, Ia., the old family home, for burial.

George C. Douglass, a son, and George B. Douglass of Cedar Rapids, Ia., a brother, have left to meet the steamship Mackay-Bennett when it arrives in Halifax with the bodies.

Another one of the bodies taken from the sea by the cableship was positively identified as that of A. O. Holverson, until a few years ago a resident of St. Paul and well known in Minnesota business circles.

TORNADO STRIKES DULUTH

Small Twister Damages Many Structures in Suburb.

A small tornado hit New Duluth, a suburb of the Zenith City, partly wrecking many buildings, demolishing the electric light plant and leaving the place in darkness. Bricks from wrecked chimneys flew through the air and many had narrow escapes.

Two funnel shaped clouds joined just west of the town and the twister dashed down the main street. Floods of rain followed it.

The site of the new $10,000,000 steel plant also was swept, but no serious damage was done. The storm subsided in a few minutes.

THREE MEN DROWN AT DULUTH

Sailors Walk Off Dock During a Heavy Fog.

Three men from the package freighter North Sea perished in the bay at Duluth. Two of the bodies were recovered by the lifesaving crew.

The three men had gone into the city to do some shopping previous to boarding the steamer. They returned after a heavy fog had settled about the dock and in some manner walked off the edge of the dock.

Child Drowns in Well.

The three-year-old son of Peter Weldon of Shakopee fell into a well and was drowned. The well was covered, but the child, playing around the yard, removed a board and fell in. The little boy and his mother were visiting a neighbor when the accident occurred.

BILL DEFINING PURE BUTTER

Congressman Nye of Minneapolis Introduces Measure.

Declaring that the creameries have "diluted butter and made profits on water beyond what is right," Representative Nye of Minneapolis introduced a bill in the lower house of congress providing that butter containing more than 14 per cent of water shall be deemed adulterated and prohibiting its sale under severe penalties.

The bill is entitled "a bill defining adulterated butter and prohibiting the manufacture and sale thereof," and is as follows:

"That within the meaning of this act any butter containing more than 14 per cent water shall be deemed to be adulterated and it shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture, sell or offer for sale within any territory or the District of Columbia any butter so adulterated. Any person who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be liable to all penalties now prescribed under and by virtue of the laws of the United States now in force relating to adulterated foods and the manufacture and sale thereof."

CHARGE CRIME TO MARSHAL

Miners Allege Range Official Held Them Up With Gun.

Joe Graham, village marshal of Calumet, a small town on the iron range, is under arrest, charged with having held up and robbed H. Rose and C. Anderson of $7. The robbery is alleged to have been committed at the point of a gun and the arrest was made by Sheriff Gunderson in Grand Rapids.

The prisoner denies his guilt and says he did not see his accusers before. The men claim they were coming from work on the night shift at one of the mines when the police chief relieved them of their cash and sent them on their way, threatening them with dire results if they made an outcry.

OFFERS TO SELL LIGHT PLANT

Edison Electric Company Makes Proposition to Duluth.

The Edison Electric company, which furnishes electric light for Duluth, offers to sell its plant to the city. It is proposed by the electric company that a board of appraisers be selected to fix the price. The Edison Electric company will select one man, the city will select another, and the third man will be selected by the two appraisers already named. At the last municipal election the people voted to buy the present electric plant, or to build a new one. The proposition of the electric company has been sent to the common council and probably will be accepted.

AGED SISTERS ASPHYXIATED

Duluth Gas Officials Deny Detaching of Meter Was the Cause.

Augusta and Pauline Voight, spinsters, sixty-eight and seventy years of age, were found dead in bed, asphyxiated by illuminating gas, at their home in Woodland, a suburb of Duluth.

The city gas department detached their meter. The gas department people say the work was done properly, but that a break in the pipe outside the basement wall allowed the gas to escape and that it leaked into the house through an aperture surrounding the pipe.

The dead women are Germans and lived at Duluth nearly thirty years.

SIX FIREMEN ARE INJURED

Church Roof Falls During Blaze at Minneapolis.

Six firemen were injured, two of them seriously, and the lives of scores of others endangered in a fire that badly wrecked the First Unitarian church at Minneapolis, entailing a loss estimated at $20,000.

The accident occurred to the firemen after the fire was practically extinguished, when part of the roof fell in, smothering the fire fighters who were standing on the balcony floor inside the church. A frantic search for the missing firemen was at once commenced, which did not cease until all had been accounted for.

WHITE SLAVER FOUND GUILTY

Convicted of Luring Young Girl to Minneapolis.

Millard Lundring was found guilty at Minneapolis of statutory assault after deliberation of an hour and a half by a jury in Judge Dickinson's branch of the district court.

The case grew out of the arrest of Margaret La Rue, fifteen years old, in a raid on a resort kept by Emo Ellsworth and the girl's statements to officers of the Humane society that she had recently entered the country from Canada, had met Lundring at Minot, N. D., and with him went to Minneapolis.

FIRST AWARD UNDER NEW LAW

Widow Given Judgment Against Saloon Keepers for Husband's Death.

The first case in the state under the new law which grants action for damages against saloon keepers selling liquor to persons who become injured or are killed was tried at Redwood Falls a few days ago. The widow of John Cheddek of Seaforth, this state, received $[illegible] award. Her husband was killed by an automobile near Wanda last September after having been sold liquor by John Belfany, Nick Lauk, Math Drees and Max Darkow, saloon keepers.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

The new law under which persons injured as a result of the illegal sale of liquor may sue for damages has been invoked in St. Paul by Nick Koalska, who is suing Philip J. Arnold, a saloonkeeper, for $500 damages. Koalska claims that his son Raynard, nineteen years old, was served with drinks in Arnold's saloon Dec. 13 and that on his way home the son drove his horses over an embankment, causing his death. Koalska demands $250 for funeral expenses and $250 more for the death of one of the horses.

The Minneapolis Fresh Air Fund and Outing association has purchased a farm of forty acres thirty miles northwest of the city, on Lake Charlotte, for the poor and sick children who cannot get out into the country any other way in the summer. The farm will have sixteen cottages, completely furnished, and capable of caring for 400 children. A stock of machinery will be on hand, and food will be raised on the farm. Those who are sick will be treated free of charge.

With bands playing and flags flying in a big automobile parade, and business in general suspended, Red Wing paid special honors to "Uncle David" Hancock, pioneer soldier in defense of the Union and citizen for nearly sixty years, who celebrated his 100th birthday. The occasion was observed by programs and features participated in by the G. A. R., W. R. C., Commercial club, business men and citizens generally.

One hundred million wall eyed pike and 4,000,000 brook trout will be distributed throughout the lakes and streams of Minnesota this year to provide amusement for sportsmen. Within sixty days the distribution will be finished and a record established of 396,573,700 small fish or "fry" liberated in free waters within seven years. In addition possibly a half million bass will be planted this fall.

Bees in Minnesota have wintered very poorly, according to J. Alfred Holmberg, state inspector of apiaries. He said that many of the bees in the state have died. One man in Hennepin county lost 110 colonies during the winter. Others have lost all of their bees.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Rev. Sidney Phoenix, eighty-three years old, the oldest Yale graduate in the West in age of his class, and a prominent Presbyterian minister and missionary, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. Phoenix was graduated in the Yale class of 1850 and later from Union Theological seminary in the class of 1861. He was a descendant of Caleb Strong, governor of Massachusetts during the revolution, and his father was Rev. Alexander Phoenix, a widely known Presbyterian clergyman of Chicopee, Mass.

With the passing of Oliver Parsons of Minneapolis, eighty-nine years old, the ranks of the territorial pioneers were again attacked. Mr. Parsons' death leaves not to exceed fifteen survivors of the vanguard which came to Minnesota in 1849. Mr. Parsons was born in South Paris, Me., June 1, 1823, and reached Stillwater in 1849. In the early fifties he was engaged in the lumber business in that city, removing to Minneapolis in 1876.

George Dunnell, long a resident of White Earth and a pioneer of the state, is dead. He was seventy-five years old. Mr. Dunnell was a near kinsman of the late Mark H. Dunnell. He was a state pensioner, having been scout and guide during the Indian outbreak.

Dr. M. M. Mead, surgeon of the First Minnesota heavy artillery in the Civil war, is dead at the State Soldiers' home at Minnehaha Falls. Dr Mead was eighty-five years of age and settled in this state in 1856.

Nicholas J. Weber, a resident of Stearns county since 1857 and one of the most prominent of the older residents of St. Cloud, is dead, following an attack of acute blood trouble. He was sixty years of age.

Wilkins J. Lawrence, aged forty-seven, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. Lawrence was well known in the wholesale paper trade of the Northwest.

Rev. J. F. Froesche, pastor of the First German Episcopal church of St Paul, is dead, aged fifty-two.

John Blomquist, a member of St. Paul's board of aldermen, is dead, aged sixty-one.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Mrs. Tobias Thompson, wife of a farmer living nine miles east of Karlstad, is dead as a result of taking morphine tablets to bring sleep. She was in the habit of taking tablets for that purpose, but one would not suffice and she took three before sleep came. She never woke again and when her husband arrived home he found her lifeless body.

Bert Thompson of the town of Homestead, Otter Tail county, lost his residence and all of its contents by fire. Mrs. Thompson's hair was burned off and her face and arms were injured while she was escaping from the dwelling.

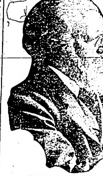
John Engdahl, a white slaver, was ordered deported by the authorities at Duluth. He fought the case, which is the first such case on record. There is no appeal.

THE DEATH RECORD.

The body of Major General Fred D. Grant, U. S. A., lies in its final resting place in the military cemetary at West Point. As the coffin was lowered into the cement crypt prepared for it the battalion of cadets of the United States military academy fired three volleys over the grave, while the military band gave forth the strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." An artillery salute of thirteen guns followed.

Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons, the aged philanthropist, is dead in a sanitarium at Hinsdale, Ill. He was ninety-two years old and in recent years had given away more than $5,000,000 to small colleges, chiefly in the Middle West. He died a comparatively poor man.

Justin McCarthy, novelist and historian, and for many years a member of the British parliament, is dead. Born in 1830 Justin McCarthy was one of the most prolific political and historical writers of the time. He was an ardent home ruler and for twenty-five years was a political writer for one of the London daily papers.



JUSTIN M'CARTHY.

Dr. Fayette L. Thompson, general secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood, died at East Orange, N. J. His health broke down during the winter after an exhausting service in the campaign of the Men and Religious movement, of which he was the associate campaign leader.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Bonnot, the leader of an organized gang of automobile bandits who have been terrorizing Paris and the surrounding districts for months past, and Dubois, a notorious anarchist, were shot to death in one of the most thrilling encounters in the annals of French crime. A garage at Cloisy-le-Roi, six miles south of Paris, in which the bandits had taken refuge, was blown up by dynamite after these two men had kept at bay for hours a large part of the police force of Paris, a contingent of gendarmes, two companies of republican guards and a company of engineers. Ten thousand spectators viewed the battle from points of vantage.

The massacre at Fez, Morocco, in which a large number of French officers, soldiers and citizens were killed and wounded, has given rise to considerable criticism of the government authorities for not foreseeing and preventing the occurrence. It is pointed out by the Paris newspapers that the French troops occupied the Moroccan capital more than a year ago.

SWEDEN.

James E. Sullivan, secretary of the American Olympic committee, who has received many inquiries in relation to the management of the Olympic games at Stockholm this summer, says that the Swedish Olympic committee will have complete control of the games. This body has arranged everything in connection with the greatest of athletic meets, according to Mr. Sullivan, and will be responsible for whatever takes place at Stockholm while the games are in progress. The actual management of the different sports has been delegated to subcommittees appointed by the governing sporting associations of Sweden, namely, the Central and National associations. Each country is entitled to enter twelve men in each event and in team contests one team. The Swedish Olympic committee recognizes as a "nation" any country having separate representatives in the Olympic committee, or where no such representation exists any group considered as a nation at the last Olympiad will be considered as such at the games this summer. The American interests will be looked after by the American Olympic committee.

The Turkish minister to Sweden, General Cherif, is very much disgusted because one of the former members of the Turkish legation in Stockholm has been appointed Turkey's minister at another court in Europe. In a Parisian paper General Cherif has revealed some inside pictures regarding the conduct of the members of the Turkish legation and it makes singularly interesting reading. He claims that all of the members were renegades and degenerates; that they had borrowed money right and left in Stockholm and none of them had made any attempt to settle their debts. He protested most vigorously against advancing any of them to any higher diplomatic post. The matter has created much gossip in court circles in Stockholm and judging from what is being circulated the Turks who were members of the Ottoman legation in Stockholm must have had an unusually fast time of it in the Swedish capital.

The survivors were the following: Ernst Peterson, bound for Chicago; Oscar Johnson, going to Wisconsin; Severin Svenson, on his way to his father in North Dakota; Miss Hilda Hellstrom, from Northern Sweden, going to Chicago; Miss Anna Bibborn, from Finland, en route to the state of Washington, and Miss Bertha Nelson, en route to Missoula, Mont.

HUSTLE FOR HOSPITAL

Active Campaign Begun for Raising Funds With Which to Erect Hospital Building.

Committees Commence.

From Now On There Will Be No Let Up Until This Project Is Assured

As chronicled in the News last week Thief River Falls is to have a city hospital. Since the meeting of the committee last week several subsequent meetings have been held, and sub-committees have been appointed for the purpose of raising the necessary funds. As noted before these funds are to be raised by popular subscription, and for the purpose of giving the people a clear and concise idea of the methods to be employed we publish herewith a fac simile of the subscription blank to be employed:

The Peoples Hospital Association

Thief River Falls, Minnesota

I hereby make application for .... shares of the non-dividend stock of THE PEOPLES HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION of Thief River Falls, Minn., of the par value of Ten Dollars per share, for which I agree to pay the sum of $........ in the following manner to-wit. $........ Cash when called for by the Secretary of said Association and $..............................

$..

This application and agreement is made upon condition that said Hospital shall be independent and non-sectarian and under the control of the Shareholders and Board of Directors of Said Association.

Dated........................ ....

One of the committees having this work in charge will solicit from all the general business men; one from the railroad employes, one from the manufacturing interests, one from the professional men, one from the railway mail clerks, postoffice employes and city and county officials and employes, one from hotels, restaurants, etc., and one from the liquor dealers.

As there can be no question of the absolute need of such a project as the one in question The News bespeaks for these committees cordial cooperation, and trusts that everyone will subscribe as liberally as possible for a most worthy cause.

It should be borne in mind that this hospital is to be absolutely independent and non-sectarian, and is to be under the control of the stockholders and board of directors, thus insuring an institution that will be conducted by and for the whole people.

No steps have as yet been taken as to the selection of the site for the building, or as to the type or construction of same, these matters to be left entirely with the stockholders, and action thereon to be taken at a regular meeting of the stockholders at such time as the necessary funds are assured.

What Happened at the Local Schools During the Week Past, of Great Interest

The grade teachers are saving the best portion of the written work of the pupils for exhibition purposes, when the Northern Minnesota Educational Association meets in this city next October. In some cases, whole sets are preserved. The N. W. M. E. A. will bring at least 750 teachers and school officers to Thief River Falls for three days' session.

School closes the last of May. In the high school and grammar grades the month will be spent largely with review work. Below the seventh, the usual advance work will be continued and most difficult parts of the year's outline reviewed. With few exceptions, all the outlined work for the year will have been completed when May 31st arrives.

The Senior class comprises the following students: Martha Kleppe, Marth Bjorsness, Olga Bjorsness, John Brudie, Calesta Caldwell, Erving Carter, Irene Chittick, Oscar Evenson, Emily Fossum, Huldah Fossum, Jens Grothe, Carl Gulrud, Dagny Halseth, Eugene Hance, Elmer Iverson, Alvina Jonas, Clarence Larson, Ida Legvold, Claud Posten, Elizabeth Richardson, Raymond Pope, Myrtle Scovell, Theone Walker, Agnes Wilson, Edgar Wold, Olga Stensrud.

With reference to annual promotion; it might be stated that every student knows from month to month his report card and from the admonitions of his teacher whether he is qualified to be moved to a higher grade or eligible for high school graduation, and if not, wherein he is failing. This knowledge is always his, so that when the end of the year arrives and he cannot be promoted, the failure is not a matter of surprise to him. Seventy-five is state passing mark, which must be secured by daily recitation and examinations, through exceptional cases may receive special attention and consideration.

DOINGS OF DRUMMERS

United Commercial Travelers Organize Local Council—Will Instal May 17.

After Installation Will Banquet at the Evelyn—Good Ad for Thief River Falls.

Local commercial travelers have been busy during the past month organizing a U. C. T. Council in Thief River Falls. Members of the order residing in this city have been incessantly on the job, and the organization has now been perfected and a charter has been granted by the Grand Council. The new Council will have its installation Friday evening, May 17th, after which a banquet, smoke social and general jollification will be held at the Hotel Evelyn.

Frank Gravell of Duluth, district deputy, assisted by members from Crookston, Bemidji, Grand Forks and Fargo councils will exemplify the work for the new local.

There are about thirty-five members of the U. C. T. residing and making their headquarters in Thief River Falls, and this means that there are thirty-five live wires constantly and incessantly boosting and advertising the city. There is no better advertisement for a town than a wide awake traveling salesman (and they are all wide awake), so the citizens of Thief River must needs realize what it means to have a lodge of this nature established here permanently. Here's to the new U. C. T. Council, may she live long and prosper, and may the boys get all that's coming to them at every turn of the road.

CITY COUNCIL

City Dads Meet Last Evening and Transacted the Usual Grist of City Business.

Number of Building Permits Granted at Every Meeting Shows Healthy Growth.

The Council met in the Auditorium last evening with Mayor Bakke and all of the aldermen present.

On motion the following building permits were granted:

Elias L. Rolland, residence 22 x 28 feet, with concrete foundation and shingle roof, on lots 20 to 24, block 39, original townsite $1,000.

Madison C. Howell, kitchen addition to residence on north half of lot 23 and lot 24, block 13, Knox's addition. Cost $175.

A. A. Odegaard, residence 24 x 26 feet, on lots 11 and 12, block 4, Highland addition. Cost $1,200.

Erling Dahl, residence 18 x 36 feet, on lots 3 and 4, block 9, Knox's addition. Cost $1,600.

A. B. Remmem was granted permit to put in an eight foot walk on his property.

The city attorney was instructed to stimulate for settlement and have the action dismissed in the case of John Meyn vs. the City, and settlement to be based on the original claim of the plaintiff.

Moved by Alderman Bjorkman and seconded by Alderman Gullrao that the new power house building be accepted, provided the contractor Mr. F. S. Doege, furnish a personal bond to the city in the sum of $1,000, guaranteeing that the concrete foundation shall not crumble or deteriorate on account of inferior material or improper workmanship. Motion carried.

A resolution was adopted providing that laborers on city work be not permitted to work more than eight hours per day.

Liquor bond of Stemmetz & Nelson was approved.

After passing a resolution that the contractor on the power house building be paid in time certificates, and allowing the usual bills, the council adjourned to Tuesday evening, May 14.

MURDER OR SUICIDE

Gruesome Find By Workmen Grubbing and Plowing on the Hanson and Barzen Farm Just West of the City.

NEAR THE OLD RED LIGHT DISTRICT.

Skeleton of Man With Bullet Hole Through Skull Found at Noon Yesterday by A. M. "Happy" Varcher.

Yesterday, when "Happy" Varcher, erstwhile porter at the Ogema hotel, but now employed on the Hanson & Barzen farm, west of the city, started on a short cut for his noonday meal, he was not prepared for the gruesome sight which was about to meet his eyes. While passing through a small clump of trees forty rods south of the old Tindolph property he discovered the skeleton of a man lying partially covered in the mud. The ghastly find so worked upon the feelings of the now unhappy "Happy" that he was unable to eat any dinner.

He was, however able to notify his companion, who was a short distance away, and the authorities were immediately notified. Dr. C. O. Swanson, of St. Hilaire, Coroner, was immediately notified and arrived at the scene about 3:30

The skeleton was that of a man about 5 feet 10 inches tall, and probably weighing in the neighborhood of 165 pounds. Decomposition was complete, there being no flesh on the bones and only bits of clothing remained. Man was lying on his stomach with right arm under him and head resting on the left side. The hair on the right side of the head was in a good state of preservation, although somewhat faded. The hair was light reddish.

BULLET HOLE THROUGH SKULL.

A 32 calibre bullet had pierced the brain, entering at the right temple and coming out just over the left ear. A pair of lumberman's rubbers size 8, encased the feet, and parts of a sheep lined, corduroy coat were about the remains. A 32 calibre revolver of the American bull dog type and a box containing 43 cartridges were under the skeleton. The position in which the gun was found would seem to indicate that it was

A COMING CITY

Non Resident Land Holder Predicts Great Future for Thief River Falls.

Dr. Meade of Cedar Falls, Iowa, who purchased a large tract of land in this vicinity some ten or twelve years ago, was a visitor here for a few days last week, and in conversation with Daniel Shaw was very enthusiastic over the future of Thief River. He not only predicts that this is the coming city of this section of the state, but says that in his opinion we will have here a population in twelve or fifteen years of from 25,000 to 30,000. Statements of this nature are indeed gratifying from an outsider, but in this the doctor only voices what is already known by residents.

As an indication of the rapid growth and development of the city we will cite the fact that at the present time there is not a vacant house or store building in the town, and that although new residences are constantly being erected it is almost impossible to keep up with the demand.

Lyceum's Bill.

For the last half of this week the management of the Lyceum has secured, what is said to be a real good vaudeville team and one that can not be equaled for singing the latest song hits of the season. Tom Barton and Nell Fee presenting refined singing and dancing act, also introducing Jerome H. Remick & Co's., song success entitled "Oh you Beautiful Doll!" also "That Baboon Baby Dance." The date of their appearance will be the 9th, 10th and 11th, Saturday matinee at 2:30.

On Wednesday, May 15th, for one night only "The Great Brose," will appear at the Lyceum. They introduce high class singing, dancing and musical comedy. This is an act which has made a decided hit throughout the country and has yet to be surpassed. The Brose comedians are harpists, singers, dancers, cartoonists, lightning sketch artists and high class entertainers of the highest rank. Manager Morgan feels highly pleased to think that he has secured this act and promises his patrons that they will be well pleased with this act. It's one night only, Wednesday, May 15th.

MRS. F. BOURQUE

Old Resident of This City Died at Her Home Monday, at 4:15 p. m. of Cancer of Stomach.

Friends and relatives were bereaved Monday when the death of Mrs. Frank Bourque occurred. For two months she had lingered, receiving the best of medical aid, but was unable to survive. Mrs. Bourque's maiden name was Miss Alice DeMarsh and she was born in Belleville, Ontario, Canada, June 27, 1861, and was married to Frank Bourque, May 30, 1881.

Mrs. Bourque leaves to mourn her loss a husband and ten children, Mrs. W. B. Fuller, Mrs. Jas. Madden, Leon, Josephine, Francis, Rose, Leona, Alice, Celina and Luke, all except Leon was at the home at the time of her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Bourque with their family moved to this city twenty years ago from Bellville, Ont., Can., and have a large circle of friends who extend sympathy to the bereaved ones. The funeral will be held this morning in the Catholic church and interment will take place in the Catholic cemetery.

Juniors Entertain

The reception tendered the graduating class by the Juniors last Saturday evening at the Lincoln was the most elaborate school affair ever carried out by the students. The event partook of the nature of a banquet and was held in the Normal room. The opposite corners were connected by two rows of tables, which crossed at the center of the room. The decorations were very attractive and appropriate and created a beautiful picture, which we cannot recall having seen surpassed at any function in this city. The Juniors, Seniors, faculty and board of education comprised the party, and the freshmen girls waited table. A program of oratory and music interspersed the five course menu, making three hours of delightful entertainment. Much credit is due the Juniors for planning and carrying to a successful issue this annual affair.

To Whom It May Concern.

Notice is hereby given that there is money in the county treasury to pay all warrants on the revenue fund registered prior to April 30, 1912. Interest on these warrants will stop 30 days after the date of this notice.—Andrew Trovaton.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

The new law under which persons injured as a result of the illegal sale of liquor may sue for damages has been invoked in St. Paul by Nick Koalska, who is suing Philip J. Arnold, a saloonkeeper, for $500 damages. Koalska claims that his son Raynard, nineteen years old, was served with drinks in Arnold's saloon Dec. 18 and that on his way home the son drove his horses over an embankment, causing his death. Koalska demands $250 for funeral expenses and $250 more for the death of one of the horses.

The Minneapolis Fresh Air Fund and Outing association has purchased a farm of forty acres thirty miles northwest of the city, on Lake Charlotte, for the poor and sick children who cannot get out into the country any other way in the summer. The farm will have sixteen cottages, completely furnished, and capable of caring for 400 children. A stock of machinery will be on hand, and food will be raised on the farm. Those who are sick will be treated free of charge.

With bands playing and flags flying in a big automobile parade, and business in general suspended, Red Wing paid special honors to "Uncle David" Hancock, pioneer soldier in defense of the Union and citizen for nearly sixty years, who celebrated his 100th birthday. The occasion was observed by programs and features participated in by the G. A. R., W. R. C., Commercial club, business men and citizens generally.

One hundred million wall eyed pike and 4,000,000 brook trout will be distributed throughout the lakes and streams of Minnesota this year to provide amusement for sportsmen. Within sixty days the distribution will be finished and a record established of 396,573,700 small fish or "fry" liberated in free waters within seven years. In addition possibly a half million bass will be planted this fall.

Bees in Minnesota have wintered very poorly, according to J. Alfred Holmberg, state inspector of apiaries. He said that many of the bees in the state have died. One man in Hennepin county lost 110 colonies during the winter. Others have lost all of their bees.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Rev. Sidney Phoenix, eighty-three years old, the oldest Yale graduate in the West in age of his class, and a prominent Presbyterian minister and missionary, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. Phoenix was graduated in the Yale class of 1850 and later from Union Theological seminary in the class of 1861. He was a descendant of Caleb Strong, governor of Massachusetts during the revolution, and his father was Rev. Alexander Phoenix, a widely known Presbyterian clergyman of Chicopee, Mass.

With the passing of Oliver Parsons of Minneapolis, eighty-nine years old, the ranks of the territorial pioneers were again attacked. Mr. Parsons' death leaves not to exceed fifteen survivors of the vanguard which came to Minnesota in 1849. Mr. Parsons was born in South Paris, Me., June 1, 1823, and reached Stillwater in 1849. In the early fifties he was engaged in the lumber business in that city, removing to Minneapolis in 1876.

George Dunnell, long a resident of White Earth and a pioneer of the state, is dead. He was seventy-five years old. Mr. Dunnell was a near kinsman of the late Mark H. Dunnell. He was a state pensioner, having been scout and guide during the Indian outbreak.

Dr. M. M. Mead, surgeon of the First Minnesota heavy artillery in the Civil war, is dead at the State Soldiers' home at Minnehaha Falls. Dr. Mead was eighty-five years of age and settled in this state in 1856.

Nicholas J. Weber, a resident of Stearns county since 1857 and one of the most prominent of the older residents of St. Cloud, is dead, following an attack of acute blood trouble. He was sixty years of age.

Wilkins J. Lawrence, aged forty-seven, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. Lawrence was well known in the wholesale paper trade of the Northwest.

Rev. J. F. Froesche, pastor of the First German Episcopal church of St. Paul, is dead, aged fifty-two.

John Blomquist, a member of St. Paul's board of aldermen, is dead, aged sixty-one.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Mrs. Tobias Thompson, wife of a farmer living nine miles east of Karlstad, is dead as a result of taking morphine tablets to bring sleep. She was in the habit of taking tablets for that purpose, but one would not suffice and she took three before sleep came. She never woke again and when her husband arrived home he found her lifeless body.

Bert Thompson of the town of Homestead, Otter Tail county, lost his residence and all of its contents by fire. Mrs. Thompson's hair was burned off and her face and arms were injured while she was escaping from the dwelling.

John Englahl, a white slaver, was ordered deported by the authorities at Duluth. He fought the case, which is the first such case on record. There is no appeal.

A North Dakota resident is said to have got round the prohibitory law in force in his state by eating mince pie put out by a certain bakery. The pies are said to be doped with a generous application of whisky, and as a result the authorities are investigating. There is surely more than one way of beating the devil around a stump when a fellow sets his mind to it.

While it is true that potatoes can be grown under a straw mulch, the seed being laid in shallow furrows and covered with the straw, it seems to be pretty well agreed that the yield is not so good as is secured under usual cultural conditions, where a dust mulch is maintained, while from the standpoint of the labor involved there is little saving by the mulch method.

Until quite recently date seeds have been a troublesome as well as unsalable product. However, in south Algeria and Tunis it has been discovered that by prolonged soaking the covering of the seeds may be softened to such an extent that they may be used as a ration for camels and mules. Datestone meal contains 9 8-10 per cent of nitrogenous matter, 26 per cent of hydrocarbons and 2 per cent of fatty matter, which in feeding quality makes it about equal to timothy hay.

While the raising of both mushrooms and ginseng, under favorable conditions and with proper handling, may yield good revenue, there is a good deal of doubt whether the same amount of ingenuity and brains devoted to plain gardening would not give as large a financial return with less risk. But, strangely, there seems to be a fascination about engaging in enterprises in which the stake may be large, but in which the risk is also great.

Not until recent years has the value of pasture for hogs been fully appreciated. In some feeding tests which have been conducted by the Missouri experiment station during the past three years with hogs on pasture it was found that clover pasture gave a return of $34 per acre per year, oats and rape $23, corn and cowpeas $29 and blue grass pasture $17. In view of such a showing as this, it would seem as though many a farmer might profitably convert a portion of his corn and grain fields into hog pastures.

Probably not in twenty years have dairy cows of known milk producing capacity under proper conditions of care and feed yielded a larger cash revenue than during the two months just past. The price received for butter fat, which has ranged from 40 to 50 cents per pound, has been the chief determining factor in the heavy returns. In instances not a few which we have noted "just average" cows have been producing a gross return of from $8 to $10 per month. The dairy business looks like a mighty inviting proposition.

While many of our readers hear a good deal about oleomargarine and butterine, there may be some who will be interested in knowing in a general way how it is made. One standard brand of which we know contains in the neighborhood of 12 per cent of the purest cream that can be secured. This is mixed with about seven times its volume of melted stearine or beef suet and fat and is then carefully churned. Where the colored product is made the coloring is added before the churning. Without any coloring the finished product is nearly pure white. From the standpoint of cleanliness and wholesomeness this product is in every way the equal of the best butter and under chemical analysis shows larger per cents of food elements than does butter.

A Kansas poultry fancier who has had forty years' experience with poultry diseases recommends the following simple remedy for roup: Take eight ounces of olive oil and add to it about 15 cents' worth of camphor gum. Next add eighty drops of carbolic acid, which is ten drops to the measured ounce of oil. Rub the mixture over and underneath the eyes and between the wattles of the affected fowls. This treatment should be given at night and in severe cases twice during the day. If the swelling in the roof of the mouth is severe a couple of drops of the mixture should be placed there with a fine mouthed oil can. Incidentally this same combination is a fine remedy for colds and sore throat for the human species when rubbed on the outside of the chest and neck.

A note which the writer hardly knows whether to classify under the head of agricultural or political is the distribution of packets of vegetable and flower seeds by congressmen just a few days before the circulation of their nomination papers among a grateful constituency.

A rather interesting fact has been noted on a trolley line which runs through a section in which rabbits abound—namely, that the rabbits seem to be attracted by the bright lights of the cars at night, with the result that a number are killed every trip. Not long since a jack rabbit met a like fate.

During the past winter altogether too much grain was shipped to market in the raw state instead of the finished animal products of the farm. This movement was due to the high prices for the grain and relatively low prices offered for steers, sheep and hogs. From the standpoint of fertility of the soil it is an unfortunate situation.

He Was Hateful

"Don't talk to me, Ernie, I tell you!" said Miss Zimmerman, heatedly, after she had devoted fifteen minutes to telling him her exact opinion of him.

"But I'm not talking to you," objected Ernie. "I haven't had a chance! It's been so long since I heard the sound of my own voice that I don't know now whether it's myself talking! Is it?"

"It doesn't make any difference," retorted Miss Zimmerman with infinite scorn. "When a person makes as much noise as you do and says as little it isn't necessary to bother wondering who's talking, because nobody listens, anyhow!"

"Wow!" said Ernie.

"How do you soak 'em! Straight from the shoulder! I almost begin to think that you're mad at me!"

Miss Zimmerman nearly choked. "Mad!" she repeated. "Have you just got it through your head, Ernie Casey, that I'm not making love to you? You didn't think, did you, that I was calling you pet names the last half hour? If that's your idea of a lady's way of expressing undying affection, you're behind the times! I'd have you know that I am mad, good and plenty! And what's more, I'm mad for keeps!"

"Well," said Ernie, "I am surprised. The worst is what you say about there being no hope of your ever getting over it——"

"Never!" cried Miss Zimmerman. "I know I have an easy going disposition and people think I'm meek, but when I get stepped on I know it and I have spirit enough to resent it and stand up for myself! And you needn't sit grining there, Ernie Casey. It's serious!"

"Now, Evangeline!" began Ernie, cooing like a dove. "You pain me by——"

"Oh, piffle!" interrupted Miss Zimmerman. "Pain your grandmother! As though you cared! As though it made the slightest bit of difference to you if every girl on earth got mad at you! You're just a paving block, Ernie Casey, and I'm glad I discovered it in time! Why haven't you got any more feeling in your heart—as for that, you haven't got a heart! It's some kind of a machine that keeps things running. Something like an alarm clock. And how much more convenient! It never disturbs you when you do hateful things to other people! I suppose that's why you can't understand that the rest of us are really human and can be hurt! It's really your misfortune!"

"I'm glad," remarked Ernie with becoming gratitude, "that you are sorry for me, Evangeline! Pity, you know——"

"Sorry for you!" cried Miss Zimmerman, agitatedly. "I'm not wasting any sorrow on you! There's people that better deserve it! I just despise you! I didn't know it was possible for me to be so downright furious at a man as I am at you! I——"

"Yes," said Ernie, as though convinced at last against his will. "I can see that you are actually annoyed. I didn't believe it at first, but——"

"Annoyed!" almost shrieked Miss Zimmerman. "Land o' godness! Is this your idea of 'annoyed?' Why, if I got any madder I'd explode! You needn't try to be funny, Ernie Casey!"

"I feel far from funny," declared Ernie. "I'm all of a tremble, I'm so nervous! I'm not used to being jumped at and eaten alive! Kind treatment is what I've been brought up on and I haven't a bit of doubt that I'll have a nervous chill when I get home!"

"You—you're a brute!" choked Miss Zimmerman. "You don't care! You just enjoy it!"

"Excuse me," protested Ernie firmly. "You mean I just endure it!"

"Well, I wish you'd go home!" snapped Miss Zimmerman, feeling for her handkerchief with her chin very high in the air. "Good-bye, Ernie Casey!"

Ernie, rising, walked over and looked down at her sternly. "See here, Evangeline," he demanded, "just what are you so mad about, anyhow?"

For an instant Miss Zimmerman glared back at him. Then a little bewilderment drifted into her eyes. She clutched the table back of her and swallowed.

"I—I can't seem to remember," she said vaguely. "We've said so much since that—I guess I'm all mixed up! But, anyhow, I had a perfect right to get lots madder than I did and I'll do it again if you do what you did to make me mad, whatever it was—and look out, Ernie Casey—you're knocking all my hair down—no-o-o, I won't k-k-kiss and make up—I won't—"

"Well, I did, anyhow!" said Ernie, calmly, "and that's what really counts."

Brought Strangers.

Visitor—Last time I was here your board of trade was booming the town. Didn't they keep it up?

Honeymoon or Divorce.

"Where are you headed for now?"

"Oh, the falls, as usual."

"Niagara or Sioux?"

One Widow's Mistake

Once a week for six months Mr. Charles Ford had driven over to Gorse Lake from Pentville to call at the residence of the Widow Bush. That made 84 times. On the 25th he declared his love and asked for her hand. He was crushed to earth when told that the widow's heart was not in the affair. There were reasons—many reasons why she could not love. As a brother he might continue to drive over from Pentville as long as he wished, but any future conversation must not touch upon the subject of love.

Late one afternoon, a week after the great refusal, the Widow Bush set out in her auto to go to Pentville. It was not to see Mr. Ford and hint to him that she had changed her mind but to visit a relative. At the same hour Mr. Ford set out from Pentville to motor over to Gorse Lake. It was not to submit a new matrimonial proposal, but to see a man on business. Both motors could have made the trip before dusk came down but for accidents. Something went wrong with both machines. Something had to be tinkered at. There was delay. And thus it happened that an hour after dark on a moonless night, with rain threatening at any minute, the two autos came together on that long hill. It is impossible to tell how things happen. In this case both machines had their lamps lit—both were running slowly and carefully—Mr. Ford was prudent and the widow's man experienced, and yet those autos struck head on. There was a jar, but no one was hurt. It would be some hours before the Widow Bush could reach Pentville, or Mr. Ford could talk business with that man in Gorse Lake. Three of the four lamps were smashed. The chauffeur took the fourth and started off to find a farmer to come with a team of horses.

And then it began to rain, and the darkness thickened until Mr. Ford could not see the tip of his nose. The widow had the shelter of a tonneau; he had none. He had to stand out and take the pour as it came.

After the chauffeur had departed there was silence between the rejector and the rejected. It didn't last long, however. At the end of 10 minutes the widow opened the door and called out:

"Mr. Ford, I am sorry that you are out in the rain."

"You ought to be. It is all owing to that fool-man of yours!"

"Mr. Ford, are we in danger of bears?"

"Yes, we are, and I hope ten or twelve of them will come!"

"Mr. Ford, are you smoking?"

"Yes."

"What's that noise?"

"It sounds like the bellowing of a bull."

"But will the animal come here and attack us?"

"He may."

It was a bull, and he had leaped the pasture fence. He came along down the hill, bellowing at every stride and hoping to find something to demolish, and the widow began to scream and threw the door open to jump out.

"Get back there and stop your noise!" commanded Mr. Ford, and his grasp was not gentle as he seized her arm.

Then he disappeared into the night. There were stones in the road. He felt them under his feet and pelted the bull and started him into a retreat. As he came sloshing back through the mud and water the widow asked:

"Mr. Ford, don't you think you ought to follow William and ascertain the cause of this delay?"

"No, ma'am, I don't!" he promptly answered.

"Then I will follow him myself!"

"Then you will stay right where you are! If William isn't the biggest fool in the state he has crawled under a haystack somewhere and won't be seen until daylight."

That settled things for a long half hour. Then the tonneau door opened and a soft voice said:

"Mr. Ford, please come nearer. You loved me, didn't you?"

"Y-e-s," he sulkily admitted.

"You asked me to marry you, and I refused. I refused because I had not read you aright. I am willing to admit that I was entirely mistaken in your character."

"H-how?"

"I took you for a sissy, like my late husband—awfully good, but a sissy. I didn't know that you were aggressive. I didn't believe you'd dare face a bellowing bull, even by daylight, with a six rail fence between you. I couldn't have been made to believe that you would dare order me about. Tonight you have shown me my errors. Oh, how mistaken I have been!"

"Then why don't you say you are coming in here beside me and order me to move along? It seems to me we ought to have a talk—a new talk."

And soon after daylight, when the chauffeur returned with a farmer and a team, he saw the widow's sleepy head resting on Mr. Ford's shoulder and lost his presence of mind and stepped back to exclaim:

"Well, but who'd a thought it!"

A Great Admirer.

"Have you Thackeray's works?"

"No," sighed Mrs. Timpers; "although I am a great admirer of Thackeray."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; and I was so anxious to have his works complete, but I couldn't find a binding that would harmonise with the color scheme in our library."

Silex—The Decorative Roofing

Here's a handsome new roofing that is just as distinctive as a bright new coat of paint. It's light, silvery gray color will brighten the whole appearance of a house, for Silex is as clean and attractive looking as a roof of sheet aluminum and will last almost as long as the building it covers.

Consider this: Why should you use shingles when Silex is far handsomer, cheaper, easier applied, will last longer and is fire-proof? 'Tis time to stop using shingles, with their fire risk, cracking and expensive repairs. Cover your home, instead, with

Vulcanite Silex Roofing

Red and Green Slate are two other Vulcanite Roofings well worth knowing about. The first is a dull Terra Cotta color, and the other is a gray-green shade. The slate surface is permanent and can't fade or wear out. The waterproofing is made of wool felt, saturated with mineral asphalt that won't rot or leak for a lifetime.

Go to our dealer, whose name appears below, and see these roofings; it will be time well spent. He will show you handsomer, cheaper, more durable roof coverings than you ever thought were made.

A NEW OLEOMARGARINE BILL.

Congressman Haugen of the agricultural committee of the lower house of the national congress introduced a bill recently that aims to do away with several defects of the present law and seems to be viewed favorably by officials of the National Dairy union, though it does not propose all that dairy extremists asked. The ground taken by the subcommittee which framed the bill was that it favored reasonable restrictions tending to promote the honest sales of oleomargarine, effective checks on the dishonest sales of the commodity and a protection of butter men in their legitimate market. The bill as framed is conservative. It eliminates the 10 per cent tax and the color line on imitation butter and requires oleo (which it is specified shall, after the passage of the bill, be called margarin) to be sold only in half pound and pound packages, which are made the manufacturer's original package, which must be sealed by a long, narrow revenue stamp and which must remain on the print or package until it is sold by the retailer. The bill provides for a cent tax, which is one-tenth the present tax on colored oleo, five times as much as the oleo interests wanted and four times the present tax on uncolored oleo. In several instances the new bill provides for much severer penalties for violation than those at present in force, while the special taxes on manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are reduced considerably below those provided by the law at present in force. The bill leaves the matter of the sales of margarin in hotels and restaurants to be regulated by the several states. The bill may not contemplate all that could be desired, but it has been framed in a spirit of fairness, and there is reason to believe if it is adopted in substantially its present form that it will prove generally satisfactory.

SEED SHOULD BE TESTED.

Tests of seed corn which have been made in the northern portion of the corn belt show that notwithstanding the care that was exercised last fall in the selection of seed ears many of them show kernels whose germs are entirely dead or of a vitality so low as to make them entirely unfit for seed. It therefore behooves any one who is planning to grow corn the coming season to look into the condition of his seed. Of course this job will be postponed by some until it is warm enough to make the test out of doors, but the forehanded man will test all of the ears he has saved for seed by one of the patent seed corn testers or one of the homemade kind which have been described several times in these notes, by means of which half a dozen kernels, three from two sides of each ear, may be tested so as to indicate whether the germ is dead or weak. Ears that do not in such a test show five vigorous sprouting and rooting kernels out of six should be thrown out. If one's entire supply of seed ears is shown to be in poor condition steps should be taken at once to secure a supply that will grow. Only those who are slack and dilatory will leave this job until ten days before planting time, when there is likely to be a grand scramble for seed that will grow and when a lot of fellows are likely to lose out in the shuffle.

THE EVERGLADES CONTROVERSY

A very warm controversy which bids fair to reach a still higher temperature is being waged in congress and in the public press relative to the merits and feasibility of the proposed draining of the Florida Everglades and the possibility of their use for agricultural purposes. This is one of the largest reclamation projects which have as yet been undertaken and from its very magnitude has been calculated to test the courage and faith of those who have undertaken it. While on the one hand one is by no means justified in saying that the promoters behind this big drainage proposition are untrustworthy, it will be a good plan for the one who has not investigated the subject carefully and calmly, and that at first hand, not to invest largely in these Everglade ranches. A good way to cut cross lots and discover the worth of the lands which are being offered for sale is to find out from any leading Florida banker how much money he would lend on a parcel of the Everglade land offered for sale at a given price. If the size of such a loan, if the banker were willing to make it at all, is away below what would be lent on land of known productivity, the prospective buyer should beware. This is the way to get a proof of the pudding, for the banker's estimate will cut out speculative value.

"SLOW" BUTTER.

There are several factors which tend to make the butter slow in coming in the churning process. One of these may be that the cream or a portion of it is from cows far advanced in their periods of lactation. Another and perhaps more frequent cause is that sweet cream is added to that intended for churning the same day the churning is to be done. This prevents proper and even ripening and retards the "coming" of the butter. Another cause may be that the cream is not at the proper temperature. The cream in the churn should show a temperature of close to 60 degrees F., and if it does not it should be brought to that point before the churning is started.

Swedish Committee to Have Complete Control of Arrangements—Krupp Company Takes Over Large Iron Field in Norway—Monument to Danish Explorer at Copenhagen.

SWEDEN.

James E. Sullivan, secretary of the American Olympic committee, who has received many inquiries in relation to the management of the Olympic games at Stockholm this summer, says that the Swedish Olympic committee will have complete control of the games. This body has arranged everything in connection with the greatest of athletic meets, according to Mr. Sullivan, and will be responsible for whatever takes place at Stockholm while the games are in progress. The actual management of the different sports has been delegated to subcommittees appointed by the governing sporting associations of Sweden, namely, the Central and National associations. Each country is entitled to enter twelve men in each event and in team contests one team. The Swedish Olympic committee recognizes as a "nation" any country having separate representatives in the Olympic committee, or where no such representation exists any group considered as a nation at the last Olympiad will be considered as such at the games this summer. The American interests will be looked after by the American Olympic committee.

The Turkish minister to Sweden, General Cherif, is very much disgusted because one of the former members of the Turkish legation in Stockholm has been appointed Turkey's minister at another court in Europe. In a Parisian paper General Cherif has revealed some inside pictures regarding the conduct of the members of the Turkish legation and it makes singularly interesting reading. He claims that all of the members were renegades and degenerates; that they had borrowed money right and left in Stockholm and none of them had made any attempt to settle their debts. He protested most vigorously against advancing any of them to any higher diplomatic post. The matter has created much gossip in court circles in Stockholm and judging from what is being circulated the Turks who were members of the Ottoman legation in Stockholm must have had an unusually fast time of it in the Swedish capital.

WHEN HE WOKE UP

It was a surprise to Burchard when he dropped in to call upon Sylvia to find a strange young man occupying his special chair and acting quite as much at home as though he belonged there by right.

Burchard had been calling on Sylvia for months, even years, and had sat in that particular chair innumerable times. A sensation of being ill used and injured surged through his soul as he bowed with stern cordiality to the young man.

"Mr. Gillmyer," Sylvia was saying sweetly, "is a brother of my old school friend, Dot, of whom you've heard me talk so often, Ted. He's come to Chicago to go into business. Isn't that delightful!"

"Lovely!" agreed Burchard. There really was nothing else that he could say. Speech seemed to have been smothered within him by that first wave of surprise which had overwhelmed him.

Try as he might to enter into the conversation, Burchard found himself relapsing painfully into silence every little while.

The more he thought of the situation the more indignant Burchard grew. By the time he said good evening he was able to give Sylvia the frostiest sort of nod and barely to touch the tips of her fingers. The surprise in her eyes was succeeded by a flicker of something else, which was quickly hid by her lowered lids. Burchard would have been a good deal surprised if he had known that instead of dragging herself slowly up the stairs to weep over his cruelty Sylvia dropped down on the bottom step when the front door closed and laughed.

Naturally Burchard called the next evening to atone for the coolness of his good-by. Sylvia was wearing a particularly large bunch of violets, which he eyed malignantly.

"I love violets," Sylvia said absently, patting them. "You can almost smell these!"

"Almost," Burchard repeated, bewildered.

"They're artificial," Sylvia explained. "Did they fool you?"

The bound of relief that Burchard's heart gave when he found Gillmyer had not sent the flowers was perfectly evident, but Burchard was too upset to grasp the fact. He was conscious of an inner triumph when he left at 10:30 that he had had the field to himself. But these triumphs were few, for Gillmyer bobbed up at all sorts of moments.

"He knows so few people in town," Sylvia said once. "And, really, he's awfully nice, don't you think, Ted?"

"Fine chap," agreed Burchard, with a sensation of swallowing red-hot coals.

The worst of it was that Gillmyer really was a fine chap. He broke into the Sunday night chafing dish suppers that Burchard had been wont to enjoy with Sylvia, and he cut up the cheese and beat the eggs as though that had always been his duty. Between whiles Gillmyer invited Sylvia to go to the theater and brought her books and candy as though there was no reason why he shouldn't. The little rankling jabs attached to this phase of the situation was that there really was no reason. Yet Burchard felt outraged.

The evening he called and found to his dismay that Sylvia had gone out somewhere with Gillmyer without the preliminary of letting him know when it was his regular night to call made Burchard see stars. Women, he said to himself cuttingly as he strode home at a great pace, are fickle, unreliable, frivolous, unworthy and unnecessary cumberers of the earth. He had thought Sylvia different, but that was merely because he was an imbecile.

Burchard sat and stared at the wall for an hour, smoked three cigars and then turned in. At midnight he was still awake. "I suppose they are just about getting home now," he murmured.

It amazed him that Sylvia should show no trace of contrition, shame or concern about the manner in which she was treating him. She acted as though she was perfectly all right and appeared to have no uneasiness over Burchard's acquired gloom. On the contrary, she seemed to be having a decidedly good time. That she actually could enjoy Gillmyer's society was an agonizing blow to Burchard. His mind was such a mixture of unhappiness and bewilderment that he did not even try to figure out a solution.

He was agreeably surprised when he called one evening to find that Gillmyer was not present. He took his old chair, but sat on the extreme edge because it really wasn't all his chair any more.

"Mr. Gillmyer," Sylvia remarked, casually, "has been sent west for a month."

"Thank the Lord for that!" Burchard burst out, explosively. "I don't wish him any bad luck, but I hope the train runs off the track!"

"Why, Ted Burchard," said Sylvia, in proper horror. "The idea of your feeling that way!"

"I've just discovered how I feel," said Burchard, grimly. "And now that I know my esteemed friend Gillmyer can't break in on us at any minute and that I actually have your undivided attention, I'd like to go into details and elaborate on the subject!"

"Why, Ted!" said Sylvia again. "You amaze me! But—er—go on, please!"

PASTOR RUSSELL'S ADIEU TO INDIA

Found Large Hospitals For Decrepit Animals.

Other Observations on India, but No Reference to Missions—Foreign Investigation Committee Will Report Findings in Hippodrome Upon Its Return to New York.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Bombay, Feb. 25.—The Committee of the International Bible Students Association for the Investigation of Foreign Missions have spent three weeks in India and traveled over three thousand miles. The seven members divided the work amongst them at the various stopping points and will co-labor in the report. The committee will report its findings at a meeting to be held in the New York Hippodrome on March 31. A summary of today's discourse of Pastor Russell in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium is as follows:—

I had a great interest in your land and its people before coming to your shores, but my interest has been greatly increased by what I have witnessed during the past three weeks in India—not only in your largest cities, but also in your towns, villages and agricultural districts. As there are no other extremes in the world so great as between the caps of your Himalaya mountains and the wash of your coral strands, 20,000 feet below them, so likewise there can be found no greater contrast socially and financially than between your wealthy princes and your poverty-stricken lower castes. Although such contrasts are deplorable we have no remedy to suggest, except the Divine one—the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom.

Generous Instincts of India's Wealthy.

Although I have remarked of your hundreds of millions of hopelessly poor, I have not overlooked the fact that some of your wealthy have shown that they are not without generous instincts. Many of your merchant princes have evidently given largely to the charitable institutions, notably in Bombay, large animal hospitals having been provided for decrepit chickens, donkeys, etc.

However we may consider such benefactions, in view of human need and suffering, we cannot overlook the fact that sympathy is there, only waiting for the proper direction, which Messiah's Kingdom will shortly give.

Our forefathers saw the height of God's love for the holy angels and its condescension to the saintly of men, but they did not see its depths. They did not see that the Redemption accomplished by Jesus is ultimately to reach down to and embrace the very humblest and most degraded of humankind, dead as well as alive. How the precious Scriptures which tell of Jesus as the Savior of the world, as well as of the Church, escaped our notice, who can explain?

But surely glad are we that now we can see clearly that the Redeemer is a Propitiation for our sins, the Church's sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.

This fuller appreciation of the lengths and breadths and heights and depths of love Divine is coming to Christian people as a benediction from heaven, just at the time when many are Higher-Critically repudiating the Bible and its God as unworthy of belief. The true view of God's Word we have intimated, namely, that all the families of the earth are to be blessed by Messiah's Kingdom, and that the Church, in process of election, is to be sharer with her Lord in that Kingdom.

"In the Ages to Come."

The heights and depths and lengths and breadths of Divine love toward the elect Church, the Bride of Christ, will not be fully exhibited to angels and to men, even during the glorious period of Messiah's reign. Saint Paul explicitly declares, "that in the Ages to come He might show the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us through Christ Jesus." (Ephesians ii, 6, 7.) Is it asked what opportunity there will be for further favors to be bestowed upon the Church at the conclusion of Messiah's reign?

If our astronomical concepts are correct, all the fixed stars are suns, and around each sun are planets. Are there, then, a thousand blazing suns? Yes, more! Are there ten thousand? Yes, more! Are there ten times ten thousand? Yes, more! Are there ten times a hundred thousand, a million? Yes, more! Are there ten times ten millions, a hundred millions? Yes, more! And if we allow an average of ten planets to each sun this would make more than a thousand million planets, all made not in vain, but eventually to be inhabited.

Alas! our poor minds are bewildered with such manifestations of Divine Power and Wisdom, even as we have already been bewildered in our attempt to appreciate the heights and depths of Divine Love. Will there not indeed, then, be quite a sufficiency of the Divine Program to be outworked through Christ and the Church to justify the Apostle's statement that in the Ages to come God will manifest the exceeding riches of His grace in His loving kindness toward us in Christ Jesus?

We do not propose at this time to burden our readers with a dintribe of what we propose to do, or what we purpose to accomplish. Suffice to say that we will endeavor to get out a newspaper commensorate with the interests of a thriving and prosperous city, and in our efforts along this line we solicit the support of the people of Thief River Falls and of Pennington County and vicinity.

In politics The News will continue to be Independent Republican, and will endeavor to support the policies and principles of that party.

"Bob" Dunn in his Princeton Union says that both Roosevelt and Taft are impossible, and suggests Justice Hughes. But why Hughes? He is not a candidate and probably wouldn't care to get into the game at this late date. If the two candidates mentioned are impossible, why not support the third candidate. LaFolette is Republican, he is a progressive Republican and he has been consistent. He has put Wisconsin on the map and made it one of the best governed states in the Union. And anyway, isn't it time we had a president from the middle west.

Porto Rico's New Wonder.

From far away Porto Rico come reports of a wonderful new discovery that is believed will vastly benefit the people. Ramon T. Marchan, of Barceloneta, writes "Dr. King's New Discovery is doing splendid work here. It cures me about five times of terrible coughs and colds, also my brother of a severe cold in his chest and more than 20 others, who used it on my advice. We hope this great medicine will yet be sold in every drug store in Porto Rico." For throat and lung troubles it has no equal. A trial will convince you of its merit. 50c and $100. Trial bottle free. TO MAKE STEAMSHIPS SAFE

House Passes Bills for Conference and to Equip Transports.

Washington, May 7.—An international maritime conference and the immediate equipment of all United States army transports with lifesaving apparatus were provided for in bills passed unanimously by the house. Both measures were introduced as a result of the Titanic disaster and record time was made in their passage. It is expected equal speed will be made in the senate.

The international conference is to be held in Washington and the president is authorized to open negotiations with all maritime powers to send delegates. It is to consider the broad question of lifesaving, investigate the desirability of having an international patrol fleet in the North Atlantic during the seasons when icebergs abound and the practicability of compelling large liners to have convoys on their trips.

COUNTERFEIT COIN SEIZED

Secret Service Agent Unearthed $11,000 Worth.

St. Paul, May 7.—Counterfeit gold coins having a face value of $1,000 were seized in St. Paul and in Waterville, Minn., by Secret Service Agent Thomas R. McManus. The coins which are an imitation of the Spanish 25-peseta piece, having a money value of $4.78 in our money, were discovered in a local jewelry store, where 200 of them had been plated with gold. The base is brass. The jeweler said W. H. Johnson of Waterville, Minn., was the man who brought the coins to be plated.

Later Agent McManus seized more than 2,005 of the coins in the possession of Johnson at Waterville.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Nine Minnesotans have been named as a committee of co-operation for the Chicago convention of the National Education association, July 6 to 12. They are C. G. Schultz, state superintendent of public instruction, St. Paul, state director and chairman; George F. James, dean of the school of education, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; Theda Gildemeister, director of training, state normal schools, Winona; Conrad G. Selvig, superintendent of state school of agriculture, Crookston; Robert E. Denfeld, superintendent of schools, Duluth; George B. Aiton, inspector of high schools, Minneapolis; J. M. Guise, principal of John A. Johnson high school, St. Paul.

The first case in Carlton county to be tried under the new law awarding judgment against a saloonkeeper for damages sustained by a minor while intoxicated from liquor sold him by the saloonkeeper, was tried in district court at Carlton and damages of $500 awarded to Julius Dobrowski of Cloquet. The latter's son, Conrad Dobrowski, seventeen years old, had his leg crushed while attempting to board a moving ore train and amputation was necessary. The boy was intoxicated at the time and had purchased his liquor from Andrew Parpala, a saloonkeeper on Dunlap Island.

Frank F. Ellsworth of Mankato has filed with the secretary of state for the Republican nomination for congress, Second district. Mr. Ellsworth is the early bird in the Second district congressional fight this year, as he was two years ago, when he secured the nomination but was defeated at the general election by Congressman W. S. Hammond.

Michael Skones, a retired farmer, celebrated his 101st birthday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hojen, near Redwood Falls. Mr. Skones is hale and hearty. He reads well without the aid of glasses and is active around his daughter's farm. He has not spent a cent for medical services for more than fifty years.

The broadest boosting and advertising scheme ever attempted in the Red River valley of Minnesota was launched at a meeting at Warren when representative business men and farmers of Marshall, Roseau, Kittson and Pennington counties united to encourage immigration into that section.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Myrl, the six-year-old daughter of Byrle Bogan of Duluth, died as a result of burns. She and her brother, aged nine years, were playing in the kitchen when the girl's clothing caught fire from a gas range. She ran from the house screaming and her brother ran after her and tried hard to extinguish the flames. By the time assistance arrived the girl was terribly burned.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Pletan, who live in the immediate vicinity of Wendell, Otter Tail county, was playing about the yard when he fell into a tank used for the watering of stock. Although he was found in a few minutes life was extinct, all efforts to revive him proving futile.

Gilbert Gross, one of Owatanna's eldest and most prominent citizens, was run down and instantly killed by a large automobile truck, owned by a local nursery company. He was one of the most prominent members of the Grand Army in that section of the state.

Using a stationary chain attached to the iron cot, Charles Nelson, forty-five years old, a prisoner from Kanabec county, strangled himself in the county jail in St. Cloud, death resulting before the authorities reached his cell.

Julius Domonkas, who went to Winona a month ago from St. Paul with Butler Bros., contractors, to engage in work on the new Catholic seminary building, was instantly killed under a concrete mixer.

Gus Palma, twenty-six years old, a miner at the Utica iron property on the Mesabi range, fell down the shaft and was instantly killed. No one witnessed the accident.

Mrs. Opwick, wife of a farmer of Dverdrup township, Otter Tail county, was fatally burned when her clothing caught fire from a lamp.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

John Megins, a pioneer resident of Duluth and a wealthy man, is dead at Los Angeles from heart failure. He was fifty-seven years old. Mr. Megins owned some valuable mining fees and business property in Duluth and was widely known in the Lake Superior region.

Joseph O. Gadory, aged seventy-nine years, is dead at Duluth. He was born in Barthier, province of Quebec, and reached St. Paul in 1853. For the last twenty-three years he had resided in Duluth, where he conducted a small store.

Gus Carlson, a farmer living two miles south of Lyle, fell dead while working on the road near his farm. He was apparently in the best of health. He was fifty-five years of age.

Robert Watson, pension attorney and widely known in G. A. R. circles, is dead at Minneapolis after an illness of two weeks. Mr. Watson was seventy-four years old.

OFFERS TO SELL LIGHT PLANT

Edison Electric Company Makes Proposition to Duluth.

The Edison Electric company, which furnishes electric light for Duluth, offers to sell its plant to the city. It is proposed by the electric company that a board of appraisers be selected to fix the price. The Edison Electric company will select one man, the city will select another, and the third man will be selected by the two appraisers already named. At the last municipal election the people voted to buy the present electric plant, or to build a new one. The proposition of the electric company has been sent to the common council and probably will be accepted.

HILLS MAY MINE IRON ORE

Expect to Do Business on Minnesota Range Before Long.

President Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern, D. M. Philbin, superintendent of the Great Northern ore properties, and A. M. Chisholm of Duluth made a tour of the iron range and looked over the Great Northern ore properties.

"We expect to be in the mining business on the range ourselves before long," Mr. Hill said. This is interpreted as meaning that with the cancellation of the lease on Hill mines with the steel corporation next year the Great Northern will go into the ore handling and ore marketing business.

PRESIDENT TAFT IS REPRIMANDED

Censured by Methodist Conference at Minneapolis.

A resolution declaring that President Taft, Secretary Wilson and Secretary Knox "have forfeited all claims on the future franchise of the Christian and sober manhood of the nation" by "aiding the beverage liquor traffic by their persistent endorsement" of the International Brewers' congress in Chicago last October "in the face of the most earnest protest" of the Methodist church, was adopted by the quadrennial world's conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in the Minneapolis Auditorium.

Bishop John W. Hamilton had hardly called the session to order before the big gathering was thrown into tumult by the resolution offered by Rev. James W. Anderson of the Missouri conference attacking "those in authority." The debate did not go into the merits of the attack, but was concerned solely with an attempt to have it referred to the committee on temperance and prohibition for "full and mature deliberation." However, by a vote of 544 to 241, a substitute motion prevailed that a vote be taken immediately and the reprimand of the executives of the federal government stood.

SIX FIREMEN ARE INJURED

Church Roof Falls During Blaze at Minneapolis.

Six firemen were injured, two of them seriously, and the lives of scores of others endangered in a fire that badly wrecked the First Unitarian church at Minneapolis, entailing a loss estimated at $20,000.

The accident occurred to the firemen after the fire was practically extinguished, when part of the roof fell in, smothering the fire fighters who were standing on the balcony floor inside the church. A frantic search for the missing firemen was at once commenced, which did not cease until all had been accounted for.

DEPORT RANGE ANARCHIST

He Threatened to Blow Up Buildings and Prominent Persons.

Karl J. Peterson of Biwabik has been deported from the United States on the charge of being an anarchist. He was taken to Minneapolis, from where he was forwarded to New York and thence to Sweden. He has been in America two years.

The people in the mining town became frightened at Peterson's threats to blow up buildings and persons of prominence and made complaint against him. He made no defense.

METHODISTS IN CONFERENCE

Opening Session at Minneapolis Largely Attended.

It was a wonderful picture, the opening of the twenty-sixth general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in the Minneapolis Auditorium.

Nearly 3,000 men and women from all countries, climes and nations stood on their feet and joined in the singing of that famous old hymn, "Coronation."

Mistaken for a Burglar.

Charles W. Thompson, a prominent druggist of Minneapolis, hearing shots near his home decided to investigate and he is in a serious condition as the result of two bullet wounds received from a rifle in the hands of Joseph Bushway, who told the police he had been helping Patrolman Johnson drive away robbers who had tried to enter the grocery store of Johnson & Anderson.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

SUIT IS FILED AT ST. PAUL

Government Begins Action to Dissolve the International Harvester Company.

Suit against the International Harvester company, better known as the harvester trust, under the Sherman anti-trust law was begun in the United States district court at St. Paul.

The bill in equity asking that the harvester trust be declared a combination in restraint of trade and that it be ordered to dissolve was filed by J. M. Dickey, assistant United States district attorney.

Besides the International Harvester company, twenty-four other companies and individuals are named as defendants, including the International Flax Twine company of St. Paul. It was the presence of this concern in Minnesota that gave the basis for filing the suit in this jurisdiction.

After filing the bill in St. Paul Mr. Dickey went to Minneapolis, where he filed a petition with Judge C. A. Willard of the United States district court asking that subpoenas be issued for all nonresident defendants, returnable in St. Paul May 6.

Names of Defendants.

The defendants, outside the International Harvester company, residents of Illinois or New York, follow:

The International Harvester company of America; International Flax Twine company; Wisconsin Steel company, which owns extensive mines in Northern Minnesota; Wisconsin Lumber company; Illinois Northern Railway company; Chicago, West Pullman and Southern Railway company; Cyrus H. McCormick, Charles Deering, James Deering, John J. Glessner, William H. Jones, Harold F. McCormick, Richard F. Howe, Edgar A. Bancroft, George F. Baker, William J. Louderback, Norman B. Ream, Charles Steele, John A. Chapman, Elbert H. Gary, Thomas D. Jones, John P. Wilson, William L. Saunders and George W. Perkins.

The government charges the Harvester company with being a combination in restraint of trade, monopolizing or attempting to monopolize the manufacture and sale of harvesting machinery.

SPENT MONEY IN HIGH LIFE

Minneapolis Bank Clerk Admits Misappropriating Funds.

While relatives in Europe waited months for remittances they were told had been mailed from America the money was being spent in Minneapolis cafes and for automobile and launch rides. Jens Schanche, former former exchange teller for the Northwestern National bank, arrested on a charge of embezzlement, told the story in his cell at Central police station. He admitted leading a gay life for a year with money that was supposed to go to poor persons in foreign lands.

In municipal court he waived examination after telling Judge E. A. Montgomery that he intended to plead guilty in the district court. He is held in $800 bail.

Schanche is a native of Norway. He was with the bank five years, was well educated and was trusted.

LIGHTNING KILLS WORKMAN

Drives Pipe Through the Roof of His Mouth.

One man killed by a bolt of lightning which drove a pipe he was smoking through the roof of his mouth and telephone and telegraph lines put out of commission are some of the results of an electrical storm which struck St. Paul. A heavy rainfall accompanied the storm.

Joseph Zwinger, thirty-six years old, a car repairer employed at the Swift & Co. plant at South St. Paul, was instantly killed while on his way home from work by a bolt of lightning which struck his pipe, forced the stem of the pipe back through the roof of his mouth, then passed down his chest and right arm and out through the dinner pail which he was carrying in his right hand.

OLDEST MILL CITY MAN DIES

William Daly, 102 Years, Had Lived There Since 1857.

William Daly, believed to have been the oldest man in Minneapolis, died at the home of his son in that city after having nearly reached the age of 102 years.

Mr. Daly was born in Ireland May 10, 1810, and came to America in 1841, settling in Hennepin county in 1857.

Minnesota State Bank Closed.

State Bank Examiner Chase has closed the State Bank of Commerce at Winnebago. The alleged loaning of too much money and loans based on poor paper caused the examiner's action. The bank's accounts may be readjusted within a few days, permitting the doors to be opened again.

KEY OF KNOWLEDGE LOST BY PHARISEES

Modern Application of Jesus' Words by Pastor Russell.

"Woe Unto You, Doctors of Divinity; Ye Have Taken Away the Key of Knowledge; Ye Entered Not In Yourselves, and Them That Were Entering Ye Hindered."

PASTOR RUSSELL

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 5.—The Academy of Music was crowded today to hear Pastor Russell's discourse on "The Lost Key of Knowledge." Taking his text from Luke xi, 52, he said:—

In the New Testament the word lawyer has a very different meaning from our general usage. It applied to those religious teachers of the Jews who made special professions of sanctity of heart and earnest desire to know God's will, as expressed in the Mosaic Law, and to teach the same to the people. The corresponding class of today are designated Doctors of Divinity. Our text, therefore, with this correction, reads, "Woe unto you, Doctors of Divinity, for ye have taken away the Key of Knowledge; ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering ye hindered." When the common people heard Jesus gladly they inquired, "Have any of the Scribes and Pharisees believed on Him? Have the Doctors of the Law endorsed Him?"

The Key of Knowledge Buried.

In our text Jesus charged the Jewish Doctors of Divinity with the responsibility of having taken away the Key of Knowledge, refusing to use it themselves to enter into the great appreciation of the blessings then due, and hiding it from the common people, who trusted them so implicitly. We charge that the same thing is true today. Not only were the Jewish people typical of spiritual Israel, and their Age typical of this Age, and their Harvest typical of the Harvest or closing time of this Age, but additionally, now as then, "God's people perish for lack of knowledge."—Hosea iv, 6.

It is this matter of misleading the people, deceiving them, that constituted the basis of Jesus' charge against the Doctors of Divinity of old, and we believe that His judgment is very similar today respecting the Doctors of Divinity of Christendom—"Ye have taken away (ye have hidden) the Key of Knowledge; ye have not entered in yourselves, and them that were entering ye hindered."

Necessity For Knowledge.

Knowledge of God, the Bible declares, is indispensable for the attainment of the great prize of the High Calling. Thus Jesus said, "This is life eternal, that they may know Thee, the only True God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent." (John xvii, 3.) We are not to understand this to signify that anyone who has merely been made acquainted with the fact that there is one Creator, and that Jesus is His Son, is on account of this knowledge to be granted everlasting life.

Our Lord's words do not refer to a knowledge about God, but to a knowledge or personal acquaintance with God and His Son. And such an intimate acquaintance is not obtained merely by an introduction, but by companionship; it signifies an intimacy of acquaintanceship, a familiarity.

Thus Jesus prayed for us, His followers, "Sanctify them through Thy Truth, Thy Word is Truth." Any who neglect the Divine Word will fail of the sanctifying power and thus fail of the acquaintanceship with God which alone guarantees everlasting life.

To those who have come under the sanctifying influence of His Word our Lord says today, as He said to His Jewish followers eighteen centuries ago, "To you it is given to know the Mystery of the Kingdom of God, but to all outside these things are spoken in parables and dark sayings, that hearing they might not understand, and seeing they might not perceive." The outsiders—the Doctors of Divinity—are not permitted the Key of Knowledge. "Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in Thy sight."—Matthew xi, 25, 26.

What Constitutes the Key?

The Key of Knowledge consists of the faithful study of God's Word, with an honest purpose to know the things that are freely given unto us of God. This implies a consecration of heart, for none others would really desire that they might do the Divine will. And this implies also a faith in our Lord's promise that "he that doeth the will of My Father shall know of the doctrine." (John vii, 17.) It is this consecrated, conscientious Bible study that is lacking today—that is being discouraged today by the great teachers and Doctors of Divinity.

Everything calculated to help Bible study, to get rid of the darkness of the creeds and superstitions of the past, is opposed—but not openly. But, oh, what weeping of disappointment, and what a chagrin and gnashing of teeth will come shortly to the "false shepherds," to the Key-hiding Doctors of Divinity, when they find that with all their endeavors to bolster up shams and superstitions in which they themselves do not believe, the entire fabric of Churchianity will collapse, as the Scriptures predict!

AN ILLINOIS INQUIRY.

A reader of these notes who lives near Edinburg, Ill., not far from Springfield writes stating that he lives on a sixty acre farm especially well suited for a dairy farm and makes inquiry as to the wisdom of going into the dairy business. He states that he knows practically nothing of the dairy business, wants to know how many cows a sixty acre farm would support, whether it would be better to sell milk or cream and what would be a reasonable estimate of the amount of milk a cow would give per day during the year and what per cent of it would be cream. While it would be impossible in the limits of such an article as this to give a novice in the dairy business as full directions as he desires, nevertheless a few suggestions may be made that will prove helpful.

A suggestion which our correspondent makes in his letter is excellent—namely, visiting and inspecting for himself some of the most successful dairy farms in the section in which he lives. Here he can make inquiries as to a hundred and one details knowledge of which would be helpful to him if he is going into the dairy business, while the visual impressions he will take away with him from a shipshape dairy farm will be a decided advantage to him. Were we in our correspondent's place we would secure ten or a dozen tested grade cows of the breed which seems to be most numerous in the section in which he lives. He might handle more, but this would do for a start. These cows will cost all the way from $50 to $25 apiece, depending upon their ability to deliver the goods. And in this connection it is well to remember that it is far better in the long run to pay $100 for a cow that the other fellow would rather keep than $40 or $50 for one that he is quite willing to sell.

The "reasonableness" of an estimate as to how much milk a cow would give would depend quite largely upon the amount paid for her and also upon the feed and care given her. A cow that gives 5,000 pounds of 5 per cent milk in a year will produce 250 pounds of butter fat, approximately equal to 312 pounds of butter, worth at an average of 30 cents per pound, $93. Subtracting cost of feed, about $38, leaves a net return of $55 per year. A Holstein to give the same return would have to produce not far from 9,000 pounds of milk containing 3 per cent of butter fat. While she would give more milk, her feed bill would also be larger. If one is willing to pay the price he can reasonably expect as good results as these or better. While the writer is not acquainted with the local conditions, it would be his offhand judgment that selling the cream would be the better proposition, for, while he might not get any more for it than he would for the whole milk, he would have the skimmilk left on the farm for his hogs, calves and chickens, which would be natural byproducts of his dairy operations. If there is not already a silo on our friend's farm he should have one or two, depending upon the number of cows he will ultimately keep. If he does not have them already he should subscribe for a couple of good dairy papers and by reading them carefully and making inquiries of his neighbors who are most successful in the dairy business he will gather information which will be most helpful to him. If he can so arrange it it would give him a good return on the money invested if he would take a short course in dairying at the state agricultural college.

A COSTLY FIASCO.

If some of the would be statesmen that are representing or misrepresenting us down at Washington would get their hands off the political wires long enough to pass a law which will provide for the rigid federal inspection of all imported nursery stock at port of entry and the immediate destruction of all consignments found diseased or infested with the eggs or nests of destructive insects they would confer an inestimable benefit upon the vast horticultural interests of the country. Secretary Wilson is authority for the statement that the United States is practically the only civilized country having horticultural interests of any importance which does not require rigid inspection of imported nursery stock. For lack of the protection which such laws would have given our orchards are infested with various imported scale insects, while the brown tailed moth is another pest which has been imported into the country regularly through lack of federal inspection laws and which is doing untold damage to orchards and shade trees in eastern states. It may not be impertinent to inquire how long this fiasco that Secretary Wilson refers to is going to continue.

$2,500 A YEAR NET.

An Iowa farmer who bought a quarter section farm five years ago at $80 an acre has in the meantime kept an accurate account of all receipts and expenditures. He finds that besides keeping his family in comfortable circumstances he saved $2,500 a year in cash. He figures that there has been an average increase in the value of his land per year of $5 per acre, which, added to his net revenue, means that his income from the place has been net $3,300 yearly. Quite likely this is a good deal better than owners of 160 acre farms will average, but it shows what can be done. It would be interesting to know how many husky boys this farmer had helping him with the farm operations.

FIGHTING PEAR BLIGHT.

Every orchardist living in territory which has been or is likely to be visited by pear blight should be on the lookout with keen eyes now for holdover cases. As the weather begins to warm up and the sap starts flowing these infected spots in which the blight germs have lived through the winter will begin to discharge through the bark a slimy ooze that is a whitish transparent color at first, but quickly takes on a brownish color on exposure to the air. It is very important that the orchard should be looked over most carefully for these sources of infection, for bees and other insects visiting them feed on the sweet ooze and infect through contact with their smeared feet and mandibles the blossoms and tender shoots on other trees in the vicinity. For the reason mentioned it is imperative that such holdover cases should be cut out well beyond the area of infection and both the cut and the knife used be disinfected with a 1,000 to 1 solution of corrosive sublimate (deadly poison). A close watch should also be kept of the trees during and just after blossom time, for a vast majority of blight cases come through an infection of the blossoms. If blossom clusters begin to wither and turn brown they should be cut out and the cut disinfected at once before the infection spreads to the twig and limb. Anything which induces vigorous wood growth will aggravate an attack of blight. This means that any pruning except that positively necessary should be put off till midsummer, while no manures should be spread. If one has neighbors that are not aware of the blight they should be warned of the danger of blight infection and their cooperation secured, for a campaign on one ranch is rendered largely useless if cases are allowed to work on adjoining tracts.

There is a whole lot of truck that seems to pass muster for religion that comes way short of commending itself to either humanity or good sense. The kind we have specially in mind is likely shown in the case of a fellow who prayed long and hard Sunday morning, but before sundown gouged a neighbor out of $25 on a misrepresentation in a horse trade. Another is all too often shown in the status of the woman who pretends to be religious, yet nurses so deep seated a grudge against her neighbor that she won't treat her with courtesy or ladylikeness in public places. This is base currency and when the great day for cashing in comes will be heavily discounted.

THE REAL TROUBLE.

Many a soil is supposed to be lacking in fertilizing elements when, if the truth were known, this is not so much what ails it as lack of proper drainage. Plant life, and particularly those ordinarily raised for commercial purposes, simply will not thrive in poorly drained soil. Should the land be drained and still fail to produce the trouble may be due to sourness, which can easily be overcome by harrowing in from a ton to a ton and a half per acre of ground burnt lime or ground limestone (the former will be the more quickly available) per acre. Constant cropping is bound to impoverish the soil, and it is more than likely that along with being poorly drained or sour the soil needs fertilizers and will respond generously if they are applied.

The brood sow should not only be warmly housed, but should be given a ration largely nitrogenous—muscle forming, rather than fat forming. Besides this, she should have an abundance of pure water and room enough so she can take needed exercise. In a large measure these same conditions hold of both the ewe and cow that are carrying young.

Purely as a business proposition, to say nothing of the humane aspect of it, a heating tank is a good investment and will pay good returns on the money put into it, as it is a self evident fact that when the fuel of an animal's body must be taxed to warm up the ice cold water which it has to drink just so much is taken from its flesh or milk producing powers.

ASK A SQUARE DEAL.

The members of the National Dairy union are to be commended for the stand they have taken on the oleomargarine question—insisting merely on the point that oleomargarine should not be colored in imitation of butter and sold so as to deceive buyers of it into thinking that it is butter. This is merely good sense and common honesty. If the poor man wants to buy oleomargarine let him do so, but he ought not to be deceived into paying butter prices for it on the supposition that it came originally from a dairy barn and not from the carcasses of steers in the feed lot.

Have you found the Beer with the flavor you like?

Generally speaking, beer is beer. That is to say, there is a similarity in all brands, inasmuch as they are all brewed from barley, malt and hops.

However, there is a great difference in flavor between some brands and others. Strictly speaking, no two taste exactly alike. Each has its individual character.

Drink White Seal Beer

There is something very distinctive about this brew and somehow it appeals to everybody. It has a tingle tone all of its own.

Some beers savor too much of the bitter, or are too harsh, or strong. White Seal Beer is mild. It is smooth and velvety and there is keen enjoyment in its snap and sparkle.

GENTLE REPROOF MOST SUCCESSFUL

How St. Peter Was Punished For Denying His Lord.

Some Mistaken Methods Called to Attention Regarding Evangelistic Work. Undershepherds Admonished to Feed the Flock of God.

PASTOR RUSSELL

"Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me more than these?"—John xxi, 15-17.

The context shows that these words were addressed by the Redeemer to St. Peter on the occasion of His third manifestation to His disciples after His resurrection. This was presumably three or four weeks after the Master's resurrection from the dead.

During all those thirty days the mental attitude of all the Apostles and the other disciples can be better imagined than described. They were perplexed; they had had evidences of the Master's resurrection; they had had the Scriptures called to their attention which proved that this was necessary and that God had previously so arranged. They had hoped for further conferences with Jesus and that He would tell them definitely what to do.

Instead, left to themselves, they were thoroughly disheartened. They had left all to follow Him, to tell the people that He was the long promised Messiah, and that He would soon set up His Kingdom, which would bring blessings to Israel, and, through Israel, to all the families of the earth, in harmony with the Abrahamic Covenant. Now apparently all these hopes were dashed.

They Toiled All Night.

Their first night was a discouraging one—they caught nothing. In the morning they beheld a stranger on the shore. The stranger suggested casting the net on the other side of the boat. And although the suggestion seemed foolish, having been so unsuccessful, yet they did so, and immediately the net was filled with fishes! It did not require long for them to learn the lesson. They knew instinctively that the unknown stranger was their Master.

All interest had just centered in the fishing business, but now boats, fish and nets all lost their value in the estimation of these fishermen! Here was their risen Lord, for whose third appearance they had been waiting now nearly three weeks! Fearing that the Master would disappear before he could get to Him, St. Peter plunged into the sea and swam ashore. To his surprise the stranger already had fish, and had them cooked, and all were invited to join in the breakfast on the shore of Galilee.

The stranger had not the clothing by which they had known their Lord, neither did He have the marks of the nails in His hands and feet, that they might thus identify Him. This was a different manifestation. They knew Him as did those with whom He walked to Emmaus who recognized Him in the blessing of the bread, and not by His features or clothing or wounds. They recognized that none other than He could perform such a miracle.

"Lovest Thou Me More?"

The stranger addressed St. Peter particularly, saying, "Lovest thou Me more than these?"—these boats and nets? St. Peter answered, "Lord, Thou knowest that I affectionately love Thee." He used a word expressing fondness of love. Jesus replied, "Feed my lambs."

Then came the question a second time, "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me?" A great pressure was felt by St. Peter. Why did the Master so particularly question his love? St. Peter answered, "Lord, Thou knowest that I affectionately love Thee." Jesus this time replied, "Tend My sheep." For the third time Jesus said to Peter, "Simon, son of Jonas, dost thou affectionately love Me?" Here Jesus used the same word that St. Peter had used, as though He questioned the affection and depth of St. Peter's love. Ah! the third time must have sent the memory of Peter back to the scene in Pilate's Judgment Hall, when he denied his Master the third time. And now Jesus for the third time had asked him respecting his love, and whether it was really a love of affection! St. Peter's choking reply was, "Lord, Thou knowest all things! Thou knowest that I affectionately love Thee!" The Lord's reply was, "Feed My sheep."

Our Mistaken Methods.

Have not Christians in general overlooked this important lesson, namely, that the chief work of the ministers and under-shepherds of the Lord's flock during this Age is to "feed the flock?" Is it not true that comparatively little feeding is being done? On the contrary, the thought usually received by new converts is, Now you are saved, go, evangelize, and bring others to Christ—especially bring money, for with plenty of it we can convert the world.

The advice to St. Peter should be heeded. The "lambs" should be fed until they become "sheep." The sheep should be tended, cared for, guided, instructed; and the sheep should also be fed with the stronger "meat" than that which the lambs could appropriate.

CATCHING UP WITH COL. ROOSEVELT

Taft Trying to Have Supreme Court Decision Recalled.

CHIEF JUSTICE WITH HIM

Mimeograph Case Gives Special Point to Columbus Speech—Administration Wants Congress to Overthrow Court's Action.

On February 21 Colonel Roosevelt delivered before the constitutional convention of Ohio an oration on "A Charter of Democracy," in which he denounced the doctrine of the infallibility of the courts as a grave danger menacing American institutions, and advocated a simplified method for the recall of court decisions by the people. At once he was assailed by the representatives of Big Business and of Monopoly as an advocate of virtual anarchy and a living threat against the safety of property.

Of course, at the time he was speaking more particularly of state courts, but in less than three weeks—on March 11, to be exact—the Supreme Court of the United States handed down a decision, coupled with the dissent of three members, including that of the chief justice, vindicating Colonel Roosevelt's attitude in every particular. The Supreme Court caught up with Roosevelt. And the severe comments drawn upon himself from the advocates of special privilege ought now, in all justice, to be passed on to the Supreme Court and especially to Chief Justice White. For if ever a human being voiced a demand for the recall of a decision of the courts, Chief Justice White did so in his dissenting opinion.

The Case In Point.

The case was that of Sidney Henry et al vs. the A. B. Dick company. The Dick company owned the patent on a rotary mimeograph. It sold one of the machines to Miss Christina B. Skou, of New York, under a stipulation that the ink, stencil paper and other supplies used with the invention must be bought from the Dick company. The Henry company sold Miss Skou ink for the mimeograph that was not Dick ink, and the Dick company sued the Henry company and Miss Skou for infringement of the patent on the mimeograph. On March 11, with only seven members of the United States Supreme Court sitting, four of them, constituting a majority, decided the case and held that when the Henry company sold the non-Dick ink to Miss Skou and she used it, this constituted an infringement of the patent.

In a dissenting opinion, in which he was joined by Justices Hughes and Lamar, Chief Justice White denounced this extraordinary opinion in the most biting language. Stating that the patent did not cover the ink in any way, he demanded that the legislative department of the government amend the law so as to make it impossible for the precedent established by the decision to be maintained; and then he cited some of the weird and ridiculous lengths to which this decision, if it were maintained, would reasonably lead.

Views of Chief Justice.

"Under this decision it is now the law," declared the chief justice, "that when a patentee sells an engine, "that has a right to bring under the patent laws all coal or electrical energy used to work the machine, or even the lubricants employed in its operation. Take a patented carpenter's plane. The power now exists to confine the carpenter buying it to the use of lumber sawed from trees grown on the land of a particular person or sawed in a particular mill. The owner of a patented cooking device can now hold the buyer to use it in connection with no other food supply than that sold by the holder of the patent. The purchaser of a patented window frame may now be compelled to use no material in his house not bought from the holder of the patent on the frame. It is now established that by putting on a sewing machine, in addition to the notice of patent required by law, a notice called a license restriction, the right is acquired as against the whole world to control the sale of all the materials used in the operation of the machine by the person who has bought it. These illustrations are not imaginary.

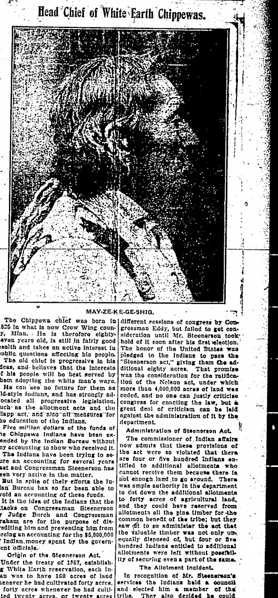
"The ruling now made is in effect that the patentee has the power by contract to extend his patent rights so as to bring within the claims of his patent things which are not embraced therein, thus virtually legislating by causing the patent laws to cover subjects to which they could not reach, the result being to multiply monopolies at the will of an interested party."

The decision caused a laugh of derision throughout the national capital. The advocates of the doctrine of the infallibility of the courts were overcome with chagrin, while the supporters of Colonel Roosevelt inquired with sarcastic emphasis whether the people at the polls, so frequently denounced as a "mob" by the advocates of special privilege, could ever do anything worse.

Applying the Recall.

In the meantime, the attorney general and other administration opponents of Colonel Roosevelt fluttered about in flabbergasted haste to find some speedy way to recall the opinion; for if sustained this opinion will

Head Chief of White Earth Chippewas.



MAY-ZE-KE-GE-SHIG.

The Chippewa chief was born in 1825 in what is now Crow Wing county, Minn. He is therefore eighty-seven years old, is still in fairly good health and takes an active interest in public questions affecting his people.

The old chief is progressive in his ideas, and believes that the interests of his people will be best served by them adopting the white man's ways.

He can see no future for them as old-style Indians, and has strongly advocated all progressive legislation, such as the allotment acts and the Clapp act, and also all measures for the education of the Indians.

Five million dollars of the funds of the Chippewa Indians have been expended by the Indian Bureau without any accounting to show who received it.

The Indians have been trying to secure an accounting for several years past and Congressman Steenerson has been very active in the matter.

But in spite of their efforts the Indian Bureau has so far been able to avoid an accounting of these funds.

It is the idea of the Indians that the attacks on Congressman Steenerson by Judge Burch and Congressman Graham are for the purpose of discrediting him and preventing him from forcing an accounting for the $5,000,000 of Indian money spent by the government officials.

Origin of the Steenerson Act.

Under the treaty of 1867, establishing White Earth reservation, each Indian was to have 160 acres of land whenever he had cultivated forty acres, or forty acres whenever he had cultivated twenty acres, or twenty acres whenever he had cultivated ten acres. This is what is called the cultivation clause, and only about 200 Indians ever secured their full 160 acres under this clause. The Nelson act of Jan. 14, 1889, provided for allotments of only eighty acres each, but that law was not to take effect until approved by two-thirds of the male adult Indians of each tribe or band. When the commissioners, Senator Rice, Bishop Marty and Mr. Whiting, held the council with the White Earth Indians they refused to agree to the law, under which it was proposed to cede 4,000,000 acres of land in Northern Minnesota to the government, unless they were promised the 160 acres mentioned in the treaty of 1867. They promised, and thereupon, in consideration thereof, the Indians signed the agreement, and the Nelson act went into effect. The land was ceded to the United States in trust to be disposed of; the agricultural land to homesteaders at $1.25 per acre, and the timber land to the highest bidder. When the secretary of the interior proceeded to allot the land to the Indians of this reservation under the law he issued instructions and directed that each Indian should only have eighty acres. The White Earth Indians went to Washington and made a protest, and invoked the promises made by the representatives of the government. The secretary of the interior and the commissioner of Indian affairs asked the commissioners, Senator Rice, Bishop Marty and Mr. Whiting, if they had promised 160 acres to each, and they wrote back and said that they had so promised, and referred to the printed council proceedings, and said further that they thought they had the right to so promise and waive the cultivation clause of the treaty of '67. The secretary then, in 1892, wrote a letter to the senate committee on Indian affairs requesting that a law be passed authorizing him to carry out the promises of 160 acres of land made to the Indians, and Senator Dawes of Massachusetts, then chairman of the senate committee on Indian affairs, introduced and secured the passage through the senate of a bill which is exactly the same proposition as was afterwards passed and which is now known as the "Steenerson act" of 1904. The Dawes bill failed of consideration in the house. It was again introduced in the senate in 1897, and on motion of Senator Nelson was again passed, but it again failed of consideration in the house. Later on it was three times introduced in the house in three different sessions of congress by Congressman Eddy, but failed to get consideration until Mr. Steenerson reintroduced it soon after his first election. The house of the United States was pledged to the Indians to pass the "Steenerson act," giving them the [illegible] acres. That promise was the consideration for the ratification of the Nelson act, under which more than 4,000,000 acres of land were ceded. [illegible] can justly criticise congress for enacting the law, but a great deal of criticism can be justly [illegible] against the administration of the law by the department.

Administration of Steenerson Act.

The commissioner of Indian affairs now admits that these provisions of the act were so violated that there are four or five hundred Indians entitled to additional allotments who cannot receive them because there is not enough land to go around. There was ample authority in the department to cut down the additional allotments to forty acres of agricultural land, and they could have reserved from allotments all the pine timber for the common benefit of the tribe; but they saw fit to so administer the act that the valuable timber was not only unequally disposed of, but four or five hundred Indians entitled to additional allotments were left without possibility of securing even a part of the same.

The Allotment Incident.

In recognition of Mr. Steenerson's services the Indians held a council and elected him a member of the tribe. They also decided he could have an allotment on the reservation, and the old chief wanted to give him his own allotment. Mr. Steenerson refused at the time, in the presence and within the hearing of thousands who had gathered to witness the ceremonies, but later he was visited by a delegation of Indians who explained that a refusal to accept the gift would be regarded, according to Indian usages, as an insult to the tribe, and he consented to sign an application on the condition that if anything came of it he would return the value of it to the tribe by establishing a hospital, or in some similar way. The Indian council proceedings proposing the enrollment of Mr. Steenerson were certified by the Indian agent to the secretary of the interior and he held that the White Earth band alone could not authorize the enrollment, but that it required the favorable action of all the Chippewa bands of Minnesota, and as soon as Mr. Steenerson was notified of this he requested that his application for allotment be withdrawn and nothing more was done with it. The facts in regard to this episode were extensively published in the newspapers throughout the district at the time and were referred to in Mr. Steenerson's official biography. Mr. Steenerson has been elected to congress three times since and the whole matter was forgotten by nearly everyone until now resurrected for political purposes. This is all there is to the allotment matter. The newspaper reports of the Graham investigation have sought to create a wrong impression by insinuation and inference, so that many good people got the idea that Congressman Steenerson received an allotment and sold it for $12,000, and it is proper that they should be set right on that point, for the insinuation is utterly unfounded.

Of course Mr. Steenerson's political opponents will question his sincerity in stating what he expected to do with the allotment if he got it.

That is politics.

But Mr. Steenerson has a record of thirty years of honorable dealings with the people of Northwestern Minnesota that will not be forgotten; dealings that will stand the test. Thirty years during which he has fought for the laborer, for the farmer, and the small business man, as against the more powerful railroad and other corporations; and he has fought for the rights of the Indians against the bureaucrats at Washington, who are eating up the Indians' funds, in the same way that he fought for the lumberjack and the laborer as an attorney.

It costs $53,000,000 to buy the butter consumed in New York in a single year and considerably more than $10,000,000 to pay the cheese bill.

The kind of a neighbor one has depends quite largely on the kind of a neighbor one is himself. Kindness and sociability develop similar traits in others.

A chicken killing cat belongs in about the same category as the egg sucking dog. Both are knotty propositions, and about the only thing that will cure them is a dose of chloroform.

Raising pure bred live stock and poultry costs but a trifle more than raising scrubs and is at the same time much more satisfactory and profitable if proper care is taken of the better stuff.

Cornstalks possess very little fertilizing value, yet if cut up by a sharp disk and plowed under they add considerable humus to the soil, an element, by the way, in which it is usually lacking.

Progressive people have of late not only been throwing worn out machinery on the scrap heap and getting serviceable machinery in its stead, but have also been smashing and putting on the junk pile a good many political machines.

Those desiring an up to date as well as accurate map of North America may secure the same by sending 20 cents to the geological survey, Washington. This map is 28 by 42 inches and is especially adapted for the home and school.

The amount of coal mined in the United States in 1910 exceeded by 10,000,000 tons the total tonnage that had been mined up to the close of the year 1871, according to figures which have been gathered by the United States geological survey.

They have a rather unique method of determining the valuation of land for taxation purposes in New Zealand. The owner may put his own valuation on his land, but if the assessors feel it is too low they can add 20 per cent to the value of it, and the government may then buy it at that price.

The good book gives the injunction, "As much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." The writer wonders whether the limit of human endurance here implied may not have referred to instances in which the neighbor lets his hens range wantonly over a newly seeded flower or vegetable garden.

A corn ration will put on fat just as fast in summer as in winter. For this reason the flock of laying hens should be fed sparingly of corn and should be made to dig and scratch for the small grain they get. Another excellent way to give them exercise is to spade up a patch of the hen yard inclosure every few days and give them a chance to dig for worms.

The writer is this season going to try a plan for keeping the ants from running up and down the trunks of his apple trees, where they make it their business to change the pasture places of their dairy cows, the green aphids. This will be moistening sawdust with kerosene and packing some around the trunk at the surface of the ground. This, coupled with spraying the trees with a solution of black leaf, will serve to make life somewhat miserable for the louse pests.

When one gets the fever to move to a newer country—and most live folks have this spell at some time in their lives—it is a good idea to rent rather than sell the old home farm, go to the new location and spend a year. In this interval one can get posted on the freaks of the weather and other drawbacks and if dissatisfied can return and begin life over again in the old home. If one does not buy in the new country he can consider the jaunt as a well earned vacation.

While the groundhog is considered by some more of a friend of the farmer and gardener than a pest, now and then one may take up its headquarters where it is not wanted, and it is desirable to get rid of it. If such is the case it may be done in the following manner. Be sure the offender is in his burrow, then fill up all but one entrance and into that insert a good sized piece of absorbent cotton on which have been poured a couple of teaspoonfuls of carbon bisulphide, which is both poisonous and inflammable. After putting in the dope plug up this outlet and the groundhog will be done for shortly.

The treating of the oats used for seed with formalin solution will mean an increase in yield of from ten to twenty bushels per acre, this, of course, provided the disinfected seed is put on land that does not contain the smut spores from a diseased crop of a previous year.

In most states the law governing the cutting of the roadside weeds places the responsibility for the job on the township trustees. In some others the trustees are required to cut them, provided the abutting property owner does not do it by a date specified in the weed law.

Platinum, a metal twice as valuable as gold, has been discovered near Mountain Park, in southwestern Oklahoma, in an ore which assays $50 worth of the metal per ton. Practically all the platinum used in this country at present comes from the Ural mountains in Russia.

Figures compiled by Chief Forester Graves for 1911 place the number of predatory animals killed in the western states during last year at 7,971, including 6,487 coyotes, 213 bears, 172 wolves, 870 mountain lions, 72 lynxes and 2 wolverenes. New Mexico furnished most of the wolves, Oregon the larger number of bears and Arizona the mountain lions.

Early vegetables and fruit from southern markets are both scarcer and higher priced than usual on the northern markets this year as a direct result of the flooding of thousands of acres of the fertile river bottom lands in southern states bordering the Mississippi. However, the fellows who were not swamped with high water are reaping a rich harvest.

There really isn't much use trying to impress the benefits of dairying upon the farmer who is content to start operations with a thirty-five dollar scrub bull selected from a bunch of canners in the stockyards. He isn't really converted, but should have more stiff talk on the hell fire and brimstone punishment which inevitably follows a soil robbing system of agriculture.

A lady friend who has a pair of canaries has been much interested in watching the nesting operations of the pair. Four eggs were laid, and just now four downy little birds occupy the nest. The old birds select seed from the dish of a given kind, and this is the only food the little fellows receive. Bread and milk and other man made rations receive no attention whatever.

Unless one has lawn cuttings for the flock of hens that are shut up during the spring and summer months some other provision should be made for a supply of green stuff. A patch may be put in mellow condition and sowed to rye or lettuce. One of the best methods for securing this supply is to sow some rape, preferably in a patch into which the chickens can be turned after it gets a good start. The advantage of this crop is that it will furnish green food until winter sets in.

A California reader writes making inquiry for literature on the subject of the scientific raising of corn and wheat under dry farming conditions. Not having an index of such literature at hand, the writer would suggest that his correspondent write stating his needs to the state experiment station at Berkeley and also to the department of agriculture at Washington. From both sources bulletins can be secured which will take up in a thorough and satisfactory manner the points our friend makes inquiries about.

The California experiment station has found the application of melted asphaltum to the lower trunks of peach trees a very effective method of ridding them of borers. Some trees that were badly infected were given two coats of the asphaltum early in the spring with an ordinary brush, and later inspection showed that the treatment disposed of 95 per cent of the borers, smothering those that were in the trees and keeping out those that would have gained an entrance. The asphaltum did not injure the trees in any way; neither did it interfere with their growth.

The idea of storing water in natural basins for irrigation purposes by building retaining dams is centuries old and is being put into practice in hundreds of places throughout the arid and semi-arid west. The impounding of a stream flow for the purpose of regulating the amount of water used for power purposes is not so new, but has much to commend it. Figures which have been gathered by the geological survey show the need of adopting this plan in the case of a number of eastern basins, where power plants are not only crippled by flood waters in time of freshets, but handicapped for lack of power in seasons of drought.

A dope for killing chicken lice that is highly recommended by poultry experts who have tried it is made as follows: To a mixture of three parts of gasoline and one part of carbolic acid add and stir in thoroughly all the plaster of paris it will moisten. Take the hen by the feet in one hand and with the other work the powder thoroughly into the fluffy feathers close to the body. This treatment should be repeated at the end of six or seven days. The sitting hens should be given a treatment before the eggs are put under them and again at the end of the first and second weeks. The roosters should be treated along with other members of the flock.

THE RAG DOLL TESTER.

If one has to test seed corn on short notice and does not have a box tester on hand, the "rag doll" tester is a very convenient one to use and inexpensive as well. In testing corn by this method first get a good quality of sheeting or cotton flannel of light weight, the amount required depending upon the amount of corn to be tested. This should be cut in strips about nine inches wide. Tack these to a board, stretching slightly, and draw a line with a soft pencil lengthwise through the middle of the strip. At intervals of about three inches make cross lines, numbering the spaces where the kernels are to be placed in some regular order. After numbering moisten the cloth. Then take six kernels from ear No. 1, two each from near the tip, the center and the butt and from both sides of the ear, and put them on square No. 1, germ side up, and so on. The strips of cloth used can be cut of a length to test from a dozen to fifty ears, as one desires. While the ears may be kept in rotation, as given number in a row, the writer has found a very convenient marker to be a small piece of cardboard or pasteboard bearing the number and stuck to the ear by an eightpenny nail run into the pith at the butt. When the kernels are all in place a little wisp of hay or straw should be caught in the end for a core and the cloth carefully rolled up. To provide for this the marking for the spaces should not come closer than five or six inches to the ends of the strips. When rolled up cords should be tied around the ends of the "rag doll." When kernels from all ears to be tested have been secured and the cloths rolled up they should be soaked in tepid water from eighteen to twenty-four hours. This should then be placed in a box covered with a couple of inches of earth or sawdust and kept moist and warm for about six days, at the end of which time the test should be ready to read. The "rag doll" tester has an advantage over the heavy box tester in that it can be moved easily to places where it can be kept warm and does not take up so much room. It also gives quicker germination than the box tester.

SOIL AND FRUIT.

A common mistake in the selection of a site for the apple orchard tract, large or small, is that of choosing a soil that is too rich; that will cause abundant growth of wood, but mighty little fruit. In the valley in which the writer's ranch is located is an orchard of mature apple trees, as pretty a sight from the standpoint of foliage as one could ask to see, which has lately been felled because it did not deliver the goods. The tract is fat, rich and well watered. Within gunshot of this tract is a block of winter Nelis pear trees of the same age that for several years past have grossed their owner close to a thousand dollars per acre. Never was more emphatically demonstrated the fact that soil can be too rich for apples, but not for pears. Within a mile of these unproductive apple trees, on thinner and lighter granitic soils, the apple trees bear prolifically to the point of breaking down.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

That trend in education which is coming to lay greater stress upon those branches that have to do with the home—domestic science—and with the farm—manual training, agricultural and horticultural—has much to commend it, as it is clear that these branches have a far more important and vital bearing on the everyday life of the people than do languages and some other branches. In many schools today located in rural communities attention is being especially directed to a study of agriculture and horticulture, and the results are often manifest in an improved condition of the school grounds, while many of the lessons taught are being worked out on the farms of the community.

THE WORTH OF RIGHT HABITS.

Perhaps there is no single factor in the training of the boy or girl, aside from the fundamental traits of obedience and honesty that will have more to do with their success in life than the habit of doing well and thoroughly the task that is set for them. It is very easy for the child to get into a slouchy and disorderly way of doing things, and when this is observed the parents should do everything possible to correct it, for unless it is righted it will crop out in school as well as in business pursuits, and in housework later on. It takes time and pains to aid the child in the forming of right habits of work, but the effort if persisted in is well worth while.

THE POTATO CANKER.

The potato canker, a fungous disease that is akin to the potato scab disease, which has been known in England since 1901, has made its appearance in Newfoundland, and it seems reasonably certain that, except for most rigid precautions, this worst of potato pests will shortly gain a foothold in the United States. The canker causes the potatoes it infests to become a mass of warts, losing both their shape and value for either seed or eating purposes. A characteristic that makes it most difficult to combat is that the spores of the canker, once introduced into a field, will remain there for years and not disappear under crop rotation, as is true of the potato scab.

PLUMMER

From the Plummer Pioneer.

Iver Anker, of Danville, N. D., has been visiting his parents in this vicinity for the past week.

G. Halverson returned the latter part of last week from the Twin Cities, where he has been ordering his spring and summer goods.

Dr. Robt. Clark came up from the Twin Cities last Friday to spend the day here on business. He left in the evening for Crookston and from there intended to go to Thief River Falls, where he will engage in the practice of medicine.

Messrs. J. A. Duffy, A. P. Toupin and Samuel Gibeau came over from Red Lake Falls Monday to attend a directors meeting of the First State Bank and to look after other matters in connection with that institution in which the former two gentlemen are interested. They left in the afternoon for Oklee on a like mission and where Messrs. Duffy and Toupin are likewise interested in one of the banks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hermanson of Thief River, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Hermanson.

C. A. Kolberg, of Hawkins, Minn, who had the contract for the ditch north of town last year was in town the first of the week on business.

Tons of dead fish have been found at Maple Lake, and a crew of men have been engaged for some time cartering them away in big loads. The fish suffocated during the winter months because of the thickness of the ice making the ventilation of their winter quarters impossible.

...School Notes...

It is well known in school affairs that the students can accomplish nearly twice as much during the last few months of the school as during a like period at the beginning of the year. It is, therefore, incumbent on parents to see that their children attend school clear to the last day of the term.

Every arithmetic class has five minutes of rapid drill work every day in addition to the ordinary text book exercises. Some children have become so proficient in rapid and exact addition and other simple operations that an adult cannot compete with them. Their speed and accuracy are startling when one considers their age.

Jens Grothe is the only poetical member of the Senior class and the muses constrained him or inspired him to compose or manufacture, the School Notes cannot determine which—the following class song, which will be sung by the class of 1912 at their class day exercises:

This day marks the close of our high school career,
Of a life we have lived not in vain:
And we earnestly hope the four years we have spent,
Will their impress on us long remain.

For we patiently worked our lessons to learn,
And we studied and struggled along,
Till the goal is in sight and the prize has been won,
And our tasks have been turned to a song.

But it pains and it grieves us to say that farewell,
To classmates and comrades so dear;
And we mournfully linger before we extend
The hand with a sigh and a tear.
For together we've toiled throughout these four years,
With ardor and zeal did we try,
And we know that the high school we ne'er shall forget,
As long as there's light in our eye.

Farewell, then, O schoolmates, and teachers as well,
And to you we our thanks wish to voice
For the help that you gave, and encouragement too,
That in studies we all might rejoice.
And now that we thrust out, shall face the cold world,
Our part we must cheerfully bear,
And we ardently pray that our days here at school,
May profit us greatly out there.

The Washington and Lincoln school garden will be located on the corner west of the Lincoln building; the Knox, on the vacant lots north of the Ahlmen residence on the east side; and the Central school is unable to secure even a vacant lot in the north end of town for garden purposes. The owner of the lots which appear available at present time all claim that they intend erecting houses on them or they will sell them at an early date to some one who will do so. The Central may have to take part of the Knox grounds. If anyone in the north part of town has a lot which might be used, information to that effect would be welcomed at the office in the Lincoln.

being held in the man's hand, as it was immediatly underneath the right one. This might be suicide, or the gun might have been placed there by design. No money found except a dime and two nickles.

NO MARKS OF IDENTIFICATION.

Other than described above there was nothing by which to identify the man and the body had probably lain where it was found for something over two years. Coroner decided that as no identification could be had, that no inquest was necessary, and ordered the bones taken up and prepared for burial by the undertaker.

Speculation is rife as to whether this ghastly find is that of a murdered man or a suicide. The finding of the revolver and the location of the bullet hole in the skull point to suicide—the vicinity to murder. The coroner states that the condition of the skeleton would indicate that death had occurred some two years ago. At that time it will be remembered that disreputable houses were being conducted just north of where the remains were found, and it is possible that the man was killed in a drunken orgie at one of these houses, and taken to this clump of trees, and the revolver and cartridges placed beside the body as a blind.

NO ONE MISSING.

There has been no disappearance of any citizen of Thief River, and this leads to the belief that the dead man was a stranger. Probably a lumberjack, who had drifted into town early in the spring and who had squandered his winter's wages at the saloons in town and in the red light district.

Joe Goulet, a young man of about 18, who two years ago this spring, was living with his uncle on the Tindolph property, reports having seen a large man, evidently a woodsman, with reddish hair and beard, frequenting the vicinity for a few days in March, after which he disappeared. Nothing has been seen or heard of this man since that time, and the remains are undoubtedly those of the red headed stranger.

Up to the time of going to press no one could be found who recalled the man described by Goulet, and he even, had not heard his name.

Look Here! Norwegians.

A meeting will be held at the Auditorium May 22nd 8 p. m., in behalf of "Mindegaven" to Norway's one-hundred anniversary.

Adelsten Berge, well known for his lectures, singing, and harp playing, in company with his daughter Ruth Berge, an accomplished musician, vocal and instrumental, will entertain on that occation. Complete program will be published next week.

It is self evident, that every Norwegian will take pride in honoring Mother Norway on her one hundred anniversary, and consequently every Norwegian of city and vicinity are expected to be present at this meeting.

"Hon" tog os i fanget den gang vi var smaa,
Og gav os sin sang med billeder paa,
Vi laeste saa oiet blev stort og vandt,
Da smilte den "Gamle" og nikked blot.

It is a mighty good plan to build a nice comfortable home on the farmstead in place of the little shack that has sheltered the family for generations, but it is an easy matter to overdo the business and get the house too big, so that instead of being a real comfort and convenience it may easily prove a bugbear and white elephant. An institution of this kind is costly to maintain if one has a financial backset, while if one wants to sell such a house would be a drawback rather than an advantage.

The alfalfa leaf spot, a fungous disease that is doing considerable damage to this valuable crop in some sections, may be reduced, according to advice given by the Kansas experiment station, by frequent cutting and as complete removal of the infected leaves from the field as possible. In case a field is badly infested the recommendation is made of burning the field over after making a cutting and allowing it to dry thoroughly. This means the loss of one cutting, but the subsequent crops will be enough larger to more than make up the difference.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS
OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON
VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1912 NUMBER 20

LA FOLLETTE

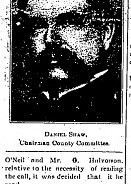
Wisconsin Senator Carries County Convention Monday By a Vote of 2 to 1.

DELEGATION INSTRUCTED

G. Halvorson Elected Chairman Over Daniel Shaw By a Large Majority.

The progressive wing of the Republican party of Pennington County had things all its own way Monday when the county convention was called to order at the court house. Prior to the convening of the delegates the LaFollette faction caucussed in the office of Superintendent of Schools Mosteu and a definite plan of action was decided upon, and when the convention was called to order the slate went through without a hitch.

Daniel Shaw, as chairman of the County Committee, called the convention to order at 11 o'clock, and after a little pleasantry being indulged in between Representative O'Neil and Mr. G. Halvorson, relative to the necessity of reading the call, it was decided that it be read.



DANIEL SHAW,
Chairman County Committee.

After the reading of the call, H. C. Rowberg nominated Mr. Shaw for temporary chairman, and T. P. Hamre presented the name of G. Halvorson. A ballot being taken it was found that Mr. Halvorson had received 28 votes and Mr. Shaw 14, and on motion of Mr. O'Neil Mr. Halvorson was declared the temporary chairman.

The chairman, after taking his seat and thanking the convention for the honor conferred, advised the delegates that the next business in order was the election of a temporary secretary. The names of Lewis Lonson and Dr. H. G. Hieber were in turn presented and a vote being taken it was found that Lonson was the choice by about 6 to 1. This concluding the election of officers, D. P. O'Neil moved that the chair appoint a committee of five on credentials, five on resolutions and five on permanent organization. The motion was seconded and carried, and the chairman announced that a recess of ten minutes would be taken in which to allow him time to appoint the committees. During the recess there were calls for a speech from O'Neill and that gentlemen, although of a most modest and retiring nature, was at last prevailed upon, and addressed the convention in his usual happy manner, and judging from the rounds of applause which followed we take it that the citizens of Pennington are pretty well satisfied with the man who first had the honor of representing them in the state legislature.

After the recess the chair announced the appointment of the following committees:

Resolutions—E. A. Mostau, Deer Park; P. W. Wright, Kratka, Andrew Trovaton, City; P. T. Satre; Rocksbury; and T. P. Hamre, city.

Credentials—D. P. O'Neil, City; E. L. Quist, City; Ed Singer, Kratka; Charles Svenilsgaard, Clover Leaf, and H. C. Rowberg, City.

Permanent Organization—R. J. McKercher, St. Hilaire; Bernhard Knudson, City; C. M. Wilson, City; Daniel Shaw, City, and Anton Peterson, Wyandotte.

After the appointment of the above committees the convention took a recess until 1:30, in order to allow the delegates time for dinner and the various committees time to complete their work.

DR H. G. HIEBER,
Secretary County Committee.

Upon reconvening at the appointed hour Mr. O'Neil, from the committee on credentials reported the following as the representation of the county:

Bray	2
Black River	2
Clover Leaf	2
Deer Park	2
Goodridge	2
Highlanding	3
Hickory	2
Kratka	3
Mayfield	2

Village of St. Hilaire	3
Wyandotte	2
City of Rhief River Falls:
First Ward	6
Second Ward	7
Third Ward	4
Fourth Ward	7
Total number of delegates	79

Mr. O'Neil also reported that the committee had examined the credentials of the various delegations, and from same had found the following entitled to seats:

St. Hilaire—O. H. Olson, Dr. C Swanson and R. J. McKercher.

Kratka—Ed Singer, P. H. Wright and Joe Kilen.

Smiley—W. E. Wood, Sam Hanson, Casper Weiner and M. J. Theigen.

Roxbury—Ed Aubol, A. Miller, F T. Sather and H. Koop.

Wyandotte—Anton Peterson, and L. P. Brandrud.

Deer Park—E A. Mostue and Ed Rustau.

City of Thief River Falls.

1st Ward—Nels Larson, Gay Halverson, Andrew Trovaten, Bernard Knudtson, T. P. Hamre and E. L. Quist.

2nd Ward—Ed Krohn, H. C. Rowberg, A. H. Akre, S. Swenson, Homer Mussey, A. C. McMillan and Robert McGinfi.

3rd Ward—Lewis Lonson, D. B. Bakke, Lewis Hanson and Lars Bakke.

4th Ward—C. L. Bakken, D. P. O'Neill, C. M. Wilson, O. E. Berge,

START SAWING SOON

Thief River Falls Lumber Company To Start up Its Local Mill In Ten Days.

LOGROLLERS LEAVE LAST WEEK

Crew of Over 100 River Drivers Now Operating on River Between Here and the Big Lake.

C. J. and D. N. Winton of Minneapolis were in the city for a few hous last week for the purpose of ascertaining the prospects of getting the logs down, which were hung up last year. It is the opinion of these gentlemen that the logs can be driven on the present stage of water; and they gave out the statement that the mill would undoubtely start operations within the next ten days or two weeks.

A crew of over 100 drivers are now at work at the outlet, and at intermediate points, and the tow boat has also started operations on Red Lake. There are approximately 17,000,000 feet of logs between the outlet and Neptune P. O., and if these can be gotten through, together with other logs being driven on streams on the other side of the lake, and which will be towed across, a full season's run or the mill is assured.

Here's hoping that a sufficient stage of water may prevail to enable the company to float every stick of timber on the river and adjacent territory, and thus enable them to recoup on serious losses sustained last season by reason of the hanging up of the drives.

If the mill operates to its full capacity it means the employment in Thief River of from 200 to 250 addition men during the summer season, with a payroll of from $12,000 to $16,000 per month.

FORMER RESIDENTS INJURED.

Mrs. J. G. Ballard of Minneapolis and Mother Severely Injured In Accident.

Last Friday morning Mrs. Mary P. Adams of Minneapolis was killed in a carriage accident at the intersection of Lyndale and Hennepin avenues, and her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Ballard, who formerly resided here, suffered a fractured jaw and painful bruises. The two ladies with the coachman left the family residence for down town, and at the top of Lowry hill the carriage pole broke, permitting the carriage to push the horses down the incline at a rapid rate until it collided with the curb, throwing the occupants to the ground. Mrs. Adams was rushed to the hospital as rapidly as possible and heroic efforts made to save her life, but all to no avail, as she expired shortly after reaching there. Mrs. Adams was 84 years of age and for the past several years had made her home with her daughter.

Residents of Thief River will well remember Mrs. Ballard, who formerly resided here, her husband being employed by the lumber company

Hospital Committees Attention.

All Hospital Committees will meet this evening, May the 16th, in the Commercial Club rooms at the Auditorium.

This is an important meeting and all of the members of the various committees are urged to be present.

Miss Gosta Satre, a trained nurse of the City Hospital, Minneapolis, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Frank Satre, of the town of Rocksbury.

ROOSEVELT WINS IN DISTRICT

Carries Every County With the Exception of Pennington, Clearwater, Kitson and Norman--- Vote 118 to 36.

SEN. A. L. HANSON DELEGATE AT LARGE

Frank Lycan of Bemidji, and C. S. Stevens of Warren, Elected as District Delegates---A. G. Anderson of Fergus Falls Presided Over Meeting.

TWO KILLED.

Two Young Ladies Killed and Two Others and Chaffeur Dangerously Injured.

Miss Lulu Teidt of Argyle and Miss Ruth Misner of Euclid meet tragic end at Argyle Saturday afternoon, when freight train hits an auto and Miss Vesta Misner, Beatrice Bain and the auto driver, Victor Teidt, are seriously injured. The driver was attracted by a passing team and the approach of the freight was not noticed. The engine struck the front end of the machine, hurling the occupants into the air. Miss Teidt was killed instantly and Miss Misner lived but two hours. The other two girls were seriously injured, but will recover. The driver was the least injured of any of the occupants.

MRS. McCARTY DIES.

Popular Young Matron Passes Away After Short Illness.

Last Thursday at noon, in her home in this city, occured the death of Mrs. J. J. McCarty, after an illness of but short duration, death resulting from an affection of the liver. About a month ago Mrs. McCarty gave birth to a child, and the disease which caused her death was doubtless superinduced by the confinement incident to the birth.

Camilla C. McCarty was the oldest daughter of Mrs. R. B. Doherty, editress of the Adams Budget, and was born on August 11, 1888, at Langdon, N. D. About two years ago she came to this city and for a time was pianist and singer in the Lyceum Theatre later going to Crookston to accept a like position at that place. On May 31, 1911, she was married to Jerry J. McCarty at Adams, N. D., the present home of her mother. Mr. and Mrs. McCarty moved to this city shortly after their marriage and have resided here since that time. Mrs. McCarty is survived by her mother, a sister, a brother, her husband and the infant child.

Mrs. McCarty was well known in this city and Crookston, and in both cities she leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss.

The remains were prepared for burial by Halvorson Bros., undertakers, and were taken last Friday afternoon to Michigan City, N. D., where the funeral services will be held.

The News, on behalf of the many sorrowing friends and relatives, extends sympathy.

Pennington has been distinctively honored during the past week. Last Monday the first county convention was held at the court house, and yesterday the Ninth Congressional District convention was held at the Auditorium. The delegates began to arrive Tuesday, Roseau being the first to put in an appearance. During the afternoon and evening other delegates arrived, and by nine o'clock the lobby of the Evelyn was crowded, and presented the appearance of the old Merchants hotel in St. Paul on the eve of a political battle. During the evening the Antlers club rooms were thrown open to the delegates, and their entertainment was provided for by a committee headed by Mayor Lars Backe. The genial mayor was on deck all the evening, and was right in his glory.

At 11:30 yesterday morning the convention was called to order by John Peterson of Crookston, chairman of the District Committee. The name of A. G. Anderson of Fergus Falls was proposed for temporary chairman, and that of Fred Dennis of Detroit for temporary secretary. No other nomination was made for chairman, and Mr. Anderson was elected unanimously. The name of Roger J. Bell of Roseau was proposed for Secretary, but that gentleman withdrew in favor of Mr. Dennis, who was then elected, Mr. Bell being later appointed assistant secretary by the chair.

HON. D. P. O'NEIL

On motion of J. H. Grass of Ottertail the chairman appointed the following committee on credentials: J. H. Grass, Ottertail; E. C. Yetter, Kitson; Theo. Beaulieu, Becker; D. W. Meeker, Clay; and O. K. Berget, Polk.

R. H. Batty of Becker county moved that each county make a selection of three members from its delegation, one of each to act on a committee on resolutions, one on a committee on nominations, and one on a congressional committee. This motion was carried and the counties, after a short recess announced the following selections:

Roseau—G. H. Mattson, resolutions; Martin Widsten, nominations; S. T. Holdahl, congressional committee.

Becker—R. H. Batty, resolutions; T. K. Torgerson, nominations; G. J. Norby, congressional.

Pennington—G. Halverson, resolutions; D. P. O'Neil, nominations, W. Michelet, congressional.

Polk—Chas. Loring, resolutions, W. A. Marin, nominations, Guy Aubol, congressional.

Beltrami—J. J. Opsahl, resolutions; A. P. White, nominations; A. R. Erickson, congressional.

Kitson—W. L. Peterson, resolutions; Roy C. DeFrance, nomination; E. C. Yetter, congressional.

Wilkin—Howard Smith, resolutions; C. Y Arslin, nominations, Edwin Mattson, congressional.

Red Lake—J. A. Duffy, resolutions; Mr. Kankel, nominations; Mr. Watson, congressional.

Clay—A. L. Charest, resolutions; Geo. L. Fuller, nominations, Chas. S. Marden, congressional.

Ottertail—Dr. A. B. Cole, resolution; Wm. Wright, nominotions; A. G. Anderson, congressional.

Marshall—C. S. Stevens, resolution; G. S. Wattam, nominations; A. F. Listing, congressional, Mahnomen—A. L. Thompson; resolutions; A. J. Anderson; nominations; C. O. Riste, congressional.

Norman—Victor Olson, resolution; D. C. Jones, nominations; Louis Garden, congressional.

Clearwater—Oscar T. Stenvick, resolutions; Oscar Barness; nominations; Erick Erickson, congressional.

A committee on permanent organization consisting of Dr. W. D. Leach of Becker, J. J. Opsahl of Beltrami, and Dr. G. S. Wattam of Marshall was appointed by the chair, and after a short deliberation announced as the their recommendation that the temporary organization be made permanent. This recomendation was put in the form of a motion and was carried unanimously.

At this point the committee on credentials announced that it was was ready to report, and reported that they found the credetials of all the counties in proper form and the number of delegates entitled to seats as specified in the call, a total of 154, with 78 necessary to choice. Motion to adopt the report was carried.

J. J. Opsahl of Bemidji received recognition from the chair and moved that the convention go on record as favoring the candidacy of Senator A. L. Hanson of Ada as a delegate at large to the national

It costs $53,000,000 to buy the butter consumed in New York in a single year and considerably more than $10,000,000 to pay the cheese bill.

The kind of a neighbor one has depends quite largely on the kind of a neighbor one is himself. Kindness and sociability develop similar traits in others.

A chicken killing cat belongs in about the same category as the egg sucking dog. Both are knotty propositions, and about the only thing that will cure them is a dose of chloroform.

Raising pure bred live stock and poultry costs but a trifle more than raising scrubs and is at the same time much more satisfactory and profitable if proper care is taken of the better stuff.

Cornstalks possess very little fertilizing value, yet if cut up by a sharp disk and plowed under they add considerable humus to the soil, an element, by the way, in which it is usually lacking.

Progressive people have of late not only been throwing worn out machinery on the scrap heap and getting serviceable machinery in its stead, but have also been smashing and putting on the junk pile a good many political machines.

Those desiring an up to date as well as accurate map of North America may secure the same by sending 20 cents to the geological survey, Washington. This map is 28 by [illegible] inches and is especially adapted for the home and school.

The amount of coal mined in the United States in 1910 exceeded by 10,000,000 tons the total tonnage that had been mined up to the close of the year 1871, according to figures which have been gathered by the United States geological survey.

They have a rather unique method of determining the valuation of land for taxation purposes in New Zealand. The owner may put his own valuation on his land, but if the assessors feel it is too low they can add 20 per cent to the value of it, and the government may then buy it at that price.

The good book gives the injunction, "As much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." The writer wonders whether the limit of human endurance here implied may not have referred to instances in which the neighbor lets his hens range wantonly over a newly seeded flower or vegetable garden.

A corn ration will put on fat just as fast in summer as in winter. For this reason the flock of laying hens should be fed sparingly of corn and should be made to dig and scratch for the small grain they get. Another excellent way to give them exercise is to spade up a patch of the hen yard inclosure every few days and give them a chance to dig for worms.

The writer is this season going to try a plan for keeping the ants from running up and down the trunks of his apple trees, where they make it their business to change the pasture places of their dairy cows, the green aphids. This will be moistening sawdust with kerosene and packing some around the trunk at the surface of the ground. This, coupled with spraying the trees with a solution of black leaf, will serve to make life somewhat miserable for the louse pests.

When one gets the fever to move to a newer country—and most live folks have this spell at some time in their lives—it is a good idea to rent rather than sell the old home farm, go to the new location and spend a year. In this interval one can get posted on the freaks of the weather and other drawbacks and if dissatisfied can return and begin life over again in the old home. If one does not buy in the new country he can consider the jaunt as a well earned vacation.

While the groundhog is considered by some more of a friend of the farmer and gardener than a pest, now and then one may take up its headquarters where it is not wanted, and it is desirable to get rid of it. If such is the case it may be done in the following manner. Be sure the offender is in his burrow, then fill up all but one entrance and into that insert a good sized piece of absorbent cotton on which have been poured a couple of teaspoonfuls of carbon bisulphide, which is both poisonous and inflammable. After putting in the dope plug up this outlet and the groundhog will be done for shortly.

The treating of the oats used for seed with formalin solution will mean an increase in yield of from ten to twenty bushels per acre, this, of course, provided the disinfected seed is put on land that does not contain the smut spores from a diseased crop of a previous year.

In most states the law governing the cutting of the roadside weeds places the responsibility for the job on the township trustees. In some others the trustees are required to cut them, provided the abutting property owner does not do it by a date specified in the weed law.

Platinum, a metal twice as valuable as gold, has been discovered near Mountain Park, in southwestern Oklahoma, in an ore which assays $56 worth of the metal per ton. Practically all the platinum used in this country at present comes from the Ural mountains in Russia.

Figures compiled by Chief Forester Graves for 1911 place the number of predatory animals killed in the western states during last year at 7,971, including 6,487 coyotes, 213 bears, 172 wolves, 870 mountain lions, 72 lynxes and 2 wolverenes. New Mexico furnished most of the wolves, Oregon the larger number of bears and Arizona the mountain lions.

Early vegetables and fruit from southern markets are both scarcer and higher priced than usual on the northern markets this year as a direct result of the flooding of thousands of acres of the fertile river bottom lands in southern states bordering the Mississippi. However, the fellows who were not swamped with high water are reaping a rich harvest.

There really isn't much use trying to impress the benefits of dairying upon the farmer who is content to start operations with a thirty-five dollar scrub bull selected from a bunch of canners in the stockyards. He isn't really converted, but should have more stiff talk on the hell fire and brimstone punishment which inevitably follows a soil robbing system of agriculture.

A lady friend who has a pair of canaries has been much interested in watching the nesting operations of the pair. Four eggs were laid, and just now four downy little birds occupy the nest. The old birds select seed from the dish of a given kind, and this is the only food the little fellows receive. Bread and milk and other man made rations receive no attention whatever.

Unless one has lawn cuttings for the flock of hens that are shut up during the spring and summer months some other provision should be made for a supply of green stuff. A patch may be put in mellow condition and sowed to rye or lettuce. One of the best methods for securing this supply is to sow some rape, preferably in a patch into which the chickens can be turned after it gets a good start. The advantage of this crop is that it will furnish green food until winter sets in.

A California reader writes making inquiry for literature on the subject of the scientific raising of corn and wheat under dry farming conditions. Not having an index of such literature at hand, the writer would suggest that his correspondent write stating his needs to the state experiment station at Berkeley and also to the department of agriculture at Washington. From both sources bulletins can be secured which will take up in a thorough and satisfactory manner the points our friend makes inquiries about.

The California experiment station has found the application of melted asphaltum to the lower trunks of peach trees a very effective method of ridding them of borers. Some trees that were badly infected were given two coats of the asphaltum early in the spring with an ordinary brush, and later inspection showed that the treatment disposed of 95 per cent of the borers, smothering those that were in the trees and keeping out those that would have gained an entrance. The asphaltum did not injure the trees in any way; neither did it interfere with their growth.

The idea of storing water in natural basins for irrigation purposes by building retaining dams is centuries old and is being put into practice in hundreds of places throughout the arid and semiarid west. The impounding of a stream flow for the purpose of regulating the amount of water used for power purposes is not so new, but has much to commend it. Figures which have been gathered by the geological survey show the need of adopting this plan in the case of a number of eastern basins, where power plants are not only crippled by flood waters in time of freshets, but handicapped for lack of power in seasons of drought.

A dope for killing chicken lice that is highly recommended by poultry experts who have tried it is made as follows: To a mixture of three parts of gasoline and one part of carbolic acid add and stir in thoroughly all the plaster of paris it will moisten. Take the hen by the feet in one hand and with the other work the powder thoroughly into the fluffy feathers close to the body. This treatment should be repeated at the end of six or seven days. The sitting hens should be given a treatment before the eggs are put under them and again at the end of the first and second weeks. The roosters should be treated along with other members of the flock.

THE RAG DOLL TESTER.

If one lets to test seed corn on short notice and does not have a box tester on hand, the "rag doll" tester is a very convenient one to use and inexpensive as well. In testing corn by this method first get a good quality of sheeting or cotton flannel of light weight, the amount required depending upon the amount of corn to be tested. This should be cut in strips about nine inches wide. Tack these to a board, stretching slightly, and draw a line with a soft pencil lengthwise through the middle of the strip. At intervals of about three inches make cross lines, numbering the spaces where the kernels are to be placed in some regular order. After numbering moisten the cloth. Then take six kernels from ear No. 1, two each from near the tip, the center and the butt and from both sides of the ear, and put them on square No. 1, germ side up, and so on. The strips of cloth used can be cut of a length to test from a dozen to fifty ears, as one desires. While the ears may be kept in rotation, as given number in a row, the writer has found a very convenient marker to be a small piece of cardboard or pasteboard bearing the number and stuck to the ear by an eightpenny nail run into the pith at the butt. When the kernels are all in place a little wisp of hay or straw should be caught in the end for a core and the cloth carefully rolled up. To provide for this the marking for the spaces should not come closer than five or six inches to the ends of the strips. When rolled up cords should be tied around the ends of the "rag doll." When kernels from all ears to be tested have been secured and the cloths rolled up they should be soaked in tepid water from eighteen to twenty-four hours. This should then be placed in a box covered with a couple of inches of earth or sawdust and kept moist and warm for about six days, at the end of which time the test should be ready to read. The "rag doll" tester has an advantage over the heavy box tester in that it can be moved easily to places where it can be kept warm and does not take up so much room. It also gives quicker germination than the box tester.

SOIL AND FRUIT.

A common mistake in the selection of a site for the apple orchard tract, large or small, is that of choosing a soil that is too rich; that will cause abundant growth of wood, but mighty little fruit. In the valley in which the writer's ranch is located is an orchard of mature apple trees, as pretty a sight from the standpoint of foliage as one could ask to see, which has lately been felled because it did not deliver the goods. The tract is fat, rich and well watered. Within gunshot of this tract is a block of winter Nelis pear trees of the same age that for several years past have grossed their owner close to a thousand dollars per acre. Never was more emphatically demonstrated the fact that soil can be too rich for apples, but not for pears. Within a mile of these unproductive apple trees, on thinner and lighter granitic soils, the apple trees bear prolifically to the point of breaking down.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

That trend in education which is coming to lay greater stress upon those branches that have to do with the home—domestic science—and with the farm—manual training, agricultural and horticultural—has much to commend it, as it is clear that these branches have a far more important and vital bearing on the everyday life of the people than do languages and some other branches. In many schools today located in rural communities attention is being especially directed to a study of agriculture and horticulture, and the results are often manifest in an improved condition of the school grounds, while many of the lessons taught are being worked out on the farms of the community.

THE WORTH OF RIGHT HABITS.

Perhaps there is no single factor in the training of the boy or girl aside from the fundamental traits of obedience and honesty that will have more to do with their success in life than the habit of doing well and thoroughly the task that is set for them. It is very easy for the child to get into a slouchy and disorderly way of doing things, and when this is observed the parents should do everything possible to correct it, for unless it is righted it will crop out in school as well as in business pursuits, and in housework later on. It takes time and pains to aid the child in the forming of right habits of work, but the effort if persisted in is well worth while.

THE POTATO CANKER.

The potato canker, a fungous disease that is akin to the potato scab disease, which has been known in England since 1901, has made its appearance in Newfoundland, and it seems reasonably certain that, except for most rigid precautions, this worst of potato pests will shortly gain a foothold in the United States. The canker causes the potatoes it infests to become a mass of warts, losing both their shape and value for either seed or eating purposes. A characteristic that makes it most difficult to combat is that the spores of the canker, once introduced into a field, will remain there for years and not disappear under crop rotation, as is true of the potato scab.

PLUMMER

From the Plummer Pioneer.

Iver Anker, of Danville, N. D., has been visiting his parents in this vicinity for the past week.

G. Halverson returned the latter part of last week from the Twin Cities, where he has been ordering his spring and summer goods.

Dr. Robt. Clark came up from the Twin Cities last Friday to spend the day here on business. He left in the evening for Crookston, and from there intended to go to Thief River Falls, where he will engage in the practice of medicine.

Messrs. J. A. Duffy, A. P. Toupin and Samuel Gibeau came over from Red Lake Falls Monday to attend a directors meeting of the First State Bank and to look after other matters in connection with that institution in which the former two gentlemen are interested. They left in the afternoon for Oklee on a like mission and where Messrs. Duffy and Toupin are likewise interested in one of the banks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hermanson of Thief River, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Hermanson.

C. A. Kolberg, of Hawkins, Minn, who had the contract for the ditch north of town last year was in town the first of the week on business.

Tons of dead fish have been found at Maple Lake, and a crew of men have been engaged for some time cartering them away in big loads. The fish suffocated during the winter months because of the thickness of the ice making the ventilation of their winter quarters impossible.

...School Notes...

It is well known in school affairs that the students can accomplish nearly twice as much during the last few months of the school as during a like period at the beginning of the year. It is, therefore, incumbent on parents to see that their children attend school clear to the last day of the term.

Every arithmetic class has five minutes of rapid drill work every day in addition to the ordinary text book exercises. Some children have become so proficient in rapid and exact addition and other simple operations that an adult cannot compete with them. Their speed and accuracy are startling when one considers their age.

Jens Grothe is the only poetical member of the Senior class and the muses constrained him or inspired him to compose or manufacture; the School Notes cannot determine which—the following class song, which will be sung by the class of 1912 at their class day exercises:

This day marks the close of our high school career,
Of a life we have lived not in vain:
And we earnestly hope the four years we have spent,
Will their impress on us long remain.

For we patiently worked our lessons to learn,
And we studied and struggled along,
Till the goal is in sight and the prize has been won,
And our tasks have been turned to a song.

But it pains and it grieves us to say that farewell,
To classmates and comrades so dear;
And we mournfully linger before we extend
The hand with a sigh and a tear.

For together we've toiled throughout these four years,
With ardor and zeal did we try,
And we know that the high school we ne'er shall forget,
As long as there's light in our eye.

Farewell, then, O schoolmates, and teachers as well,
And to you we our thanks wish to voice
For the help that you gave, and encouragement too,
That in studies we all might rejoice.

And now that we thrust out, shall face the cold world,
Our part we must cheerfully bear,
And we ardently pray that our days here at school,
May profit us greatly out there.

The Washington and Lincoln school garden will be located on the corner west of the Lincoln building; the Knox, on the vacant lots north of the Ahlmen residence on the east side; and the Central school is unable to secure even a vacant lot in the north end of town for garden purposes. The owner of the lots which appear available at present time all claim that they intend erecting houses on them or they will sell them at an early date to some one who will do so. The Central may have to take part of the Knox grounds. If anyone in the north part of town has a lot which might be used, information to that effect would be welcomed at the office in the Lincoln.

MURDER OR SUICIDE?

NO MARKS OF IDENTIFICATION.

Other than described above there was nothing by which to identify the man and the body had probably lain where it was found for something over two years. Coroner decided that as no identification could be had, that no inquest was necessary, and ordered the bones taken up and prepared for burial by the undertaker.

Speculation is rife as to whether this ghastly find is that of a murdered man or a suicide. The finding of the revolver and the location of the bullet hole in the skull point to suicide—the vicinity to murder. The coroner states that the condition of the skeleton would indicate that death had occurred some two years ago At that time it will be remembered that disreputable houses were being conducted just north of where the remains were found, and it is possible that the man was killed in a drunken orgie at one of these houses, and taken to this clump of trees, and the revolver and cartridges placed beside the body as a blind.

NO ONE MISSING.

There has been no disappearance of any citizen of Thief River, and this leads to the belief that the dead man was a stranger. Probably a lumberjack, who had drifted into town early in the spring and who had squandered his winter's wages at the saloons in town and in the red light district.

Joe Goulet, a young man of about 18, who two years ago this spring, was living with his uncle on the Tindolph property, reports having seen a large man, evidently a woodsman, with reddish hair and beard, frequenting the vicinity for a few days in March, after which he disappeared. Nothing has been seen or heard of this man since that time, and the remains are undoubtedly those of the red headed stranger.

Up to the time of going to press no one could be found who recalled the man described by Goulet, and he even, had not heard his name.

Look Here! Norwegians.

A meeting will be held at the Auditorium May 22nd 8 p. m., in behalf of "Mindegaven" to Norway's one-hundred anniversary.

Adelsten Berge, well known for his lectures, singing, and harp playing, in company with his daughter Ruth Berge, an accomplished musician, vocal and instrumental, will entertain on that occation. Complete program will be published next week.

It is self evident, that every Norwegian will take pride in honoring Mother Norway on her one hundred anniversary, and consequently every Norwegian of city and vicinity are expected to be present at this meeting.

"Hon" tog os i fanget den gang vi var smaa,
Og gav os sin saga med billeder paa,
Vi laeste saa oiet blev stort og vaadt,
Da smilte den "Gamle" og nikked blot.

It is a mighty good plan to build a nice comfortable home on the farmstead in place of the little shack that has sheltered the family for generations, but it is an easy matter to overdo the business and get the house too big, so that instead of being a real comfort and convenience it may easily prove a bugbear and white elephant. An institution of this kind is costly to maintain if one has a financial backset, while if one wants to sell such a house would be a drawback rather than an advantage.

The alfalfa leaf spot, a fungous disease that is doing considerable damage to this valuable crop in some sections, may be reduced, according to advice given by the Kansas experiment station, by frequent cutting and as complete removal of the infected leaves from the field as possible. In case a field is badly infested the recommendation is made of burning the field over after making a cutting and allowing it to dry thoroughly. This means the loss of one cutting, but the subsequent crops will be enough larger to more than make up the difference.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON
VOL XXIX THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1912 NUMBER 20

LA FOLLETTE

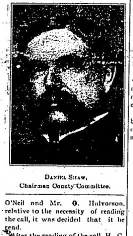
Wisconsin Senator Carries County Convention Monday By a Vote of 2 to 1.

DELEGATION INSTRUCTED

G. Halvorson Elected Chairman Over Daniel Shaw By a Large Majority.

The progressive wing of the Republican party of Pennington County had things all its own way Monday when the county convention was called to order at the court house. Prior to the convening of the delegates the LaFollette faction caucussed in the office of Superintendent of Schools Mosteu and a definite plan of action was decided upon, and when the convention was called to order the slate went through without a hitch.

Daniel Shaw, as chairman of the County Committee, called the convention to order at 11 o'clock, and after a little pleasantry being indulged in between Representative O'Neil and Mr. G. Halvorson, relative to the necessity of reading the call, it was decided that it be read.



DANIEL SHAW,
Chairman County Committee.

After the reading of the call, H. C. Rowberg nominated Mr. Shaw for temporary chairman, and T. P. Hamre presented the name of G. Halvorson. A ballot being taken it was found that Mr. Halvorson had received 28 votes and Mr. Shaw 14, and on motion of Mr. O'Neil Mr. Halvorson was declared the temporary chairman.

The chairman, after taking his seat and thanking the convention for the honor conferred, advised the delegates that the next business in order was the election of a temporary secretary. The names of Lewis Lonson and Dr. H. G. Hieber were in turn presented and a vote being taken it was found that Lonson was the choice by about 6 to 1. This concluding the election of officers, D. P. O'Neil moved that the chair appoint a committee of five on credentials, five on resolutions and five on permanent organization. The motion was seconded and carried, and the chairman announced that a recess of ten minutes would be taken in which to allow him time to appoint the committees. During the recess there were calls for a speech from O'Neill and that gentlemen, although of a most modest and retiring nature, was at last prevailed upon, and addressed the convention in his usual happy manner, and judging from the rounds of applause which followed we take it that the citizens of Pennington are pretty well satisfied with the man who first had the honor of representing them in the state legislature.

After the recess the chair announced the appointment of the following committees:

Resolutions—E. A. Mostau, Deer Park; P. W. Wright, Kratka, Andrew Trovaton, City; P. T. Satre; Rocksbury; and T. P. Hamre, city.

Credentials—D. P. O'Neil, City; E. L. Quist, City; Ed Singer, Kratka; Charles Svendsgaard, Clover Leaf, and H. C. Rowberg, City.

Permanent Organization—R. J. McKercher, St. Hilaire; Bernhard Knudson, City; C. M. Wilson, City; Daniel Shaw, City, and Anton Peterson, Wyandotte.

After the appointment of the above committees the convention took a recess until 1:30, in order to allow the delegates time for dinner and the various committees time to complete their work.

DR H. G. HIEBER,
Secretary County Committee.

Upon reconvening at the appointed hour Mr. O'Neil, from the committee on credentials reported the following as the representation of the county:

Bray	2
Black River	2
Clover Leaf	2
Deer Park	2
Goodridge	2
Highlanding	3

START SAWING SOON

Thief River Falls Lumber Company To Start up Its Local Mill In Ten Days.

LOGROLLERS LEAVE LAST WEEK

Crew of Over 100 River Drivers Now Operating on River Between Here and the Big Lake.

C. J. and D. N. Winton of Minneapolis were in the city for a few hous last week for the purpose of ascertaining the prospects of getting the logs down, which were hung up last year. It is the opinion of these gentlemen that the logs can be driven on the present stage of water; and they gave out the statement that the mill would undoubtely start operations within the next ten days or two weeks.

A crew of over 100 drivers are now at work at the outlet, and at intermediate points, and the tow boat has also started operations on Red Lake. There are approximately 17,000,000 feet of logs between the outlet and Neptune P. O., and if these can be gotten through, together with other logs being driven on streams on the other side of the lake, and which will be towed across, a full season's run or the mill is assured.

Here's hoping that a sufficient stage of water may prevail to enable the company to float every stick of timber on the river and adjacent territory, and thus enable them to recoup on serious losses sustained last season by reason of the hanging up of the drives.

If the mill operates to its full capacity it means the employment in Thief River of from 200 to 250 addition men during the summer season, with a payroll of from $12,000 to $15,000 per month.

FORMER RESIDENTS INJURED.

Mrs. J. G. Ballard of Minneapolis and Mother Severely Injured in Accident.

Last Friday morning Mrs. Mary P. Adams of Minneapolis was killed in a carriage accident at the intersection of Lyndale and Hennepin avenues and her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Ballard, who formerly resided here, suffered a fractured jaw and painful bruises. The two ladies with the coachman left the family residence for down town, and at the top of Lowry hill the carriage pole broke, permitting the carriage to push the horses down the incline at a rapid rate until it collided with the curb, throwing the occupants to the ground. Mrs. Adams was rushed to the hospital as rapidly as possible and heroic efforts made to save her life, but all to no avail, as she expired shortly after reaching there. Mrs. Adams was 84 years of age and for the past several years had made her home with her daughter.

Residents of Thief River will well remember Mrs. Ballard, who formerly resided here, her husband being employed by the lumber company.

Hospital Committees Attention.

All Hospital Committees will meet this evening, May the 16th, in the Commercial Club rooms at the Auditorium.

This is an important meeting and all of the members of the various committees are urged to be present.

Miss Gusta Satre, a trained nurse of the City Hospital, Minneapolis, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Frank Satre, of the town of Rocksbury.

ROOSEVELT WINS IN DISTRICT

Carries Every County With the Exception of Pennington, Clearwater, Kitson and Norman--- Vote 118 to 36.

SEN. A. L. HANSON DELEGATE AT LARGE

Frank Lycan of Bemidji, and C. S. Stevens of Warren, Elected as District Delegates---A. G. Anderson of Fergus Falls Presided Over Meeting.

TWO KILLED.

Two Young Ladies Killed and Two Others and Chaffeur Dangerously Injured.

Miss Lulu Teidt of Argyle and Miss Ruth Misner of Euclid meet tragic end at Argyle Saturday afternoon, when freight train hits an auto and Miss Vesta Misner, Beatrice Bain and the auto driver, Victor Teidt, are seriously injured. The driver was attracted by a passing team and the approach of the freight was not noticed. The engine struck the front end of the machine, hurling the occupants into the air. Miss Teidt was killed instantly and Miss Misner lived but two hours. The other two girls were seriously injured, but will recover The driver was the least injured of any of the occupants.

MRS. McCARTY DIES.

Popular Young Matron Passes Away After Short Illness.

Last Thursday at noon, in her home in this city, occured the death of Mrs. J. J. McCarty, after an illness of but short duration, death resulting from an affection of the liver. About a month ago Mrs. McCarty gave birth to a child, and the disease which caused her death was doubtless superinduced by the confinement incident to the birth.

Camilla C. McCarty was the oldest daughter of Mrs. R. B. Doherty, editress of the Adams Budget, and was born on August 11, 1888, at Langdon, N. D. About two years ago she came to this city and for a time was pianist and singer in the Lyceum Theatre later going to Crookston to accept a like position at that place. On May 31, 1911, she was married to Jerry L. McCarty at Adams, N. D., the present home of her mother. Mr. and Mrs. McCarty moved to this city shortly after their marriage and have resided here since that time. Mrs. McCarty is survived by her mother, a sister, a brother, her husband and the infant child.

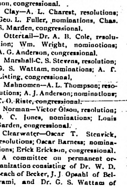
Mrs. McCarty was well known in this city and Crookston, in both cities she leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss.

The remains were prepared for burial by Halvorson Bros., undertakers, and were taken last Friday afternoon to Michigan City, N. D., where the funeral services will be held.

The News, on behalf of the many sorrowing friends and relatives, extends sympathy.

Pennington has been distinctively honored during the past week. Last Monday the first county convention was held at the court house, and yesterday the Ninth Congressional District convention was held at the Auditorium. The delegates began to arrive Tuesday, Roseau being the first to put in an appearance. During the afternoon and evening other delegates arrived, and by nine o'clock the lobby of the Evelyn was crowded, and presented the appearance of the old Merchants hotel in St. Paul on the eve of a political battle. During the evening the Antlers club rooms were thrown open to the delegates, and their entertainment was provided for by a committee headed by Mayor Lars Backe. The genial mayor was on deck all the evening, and was right in his glory.

At 11:30 yesterday morning the convention was called to order by John Peterson of Crookston, chairman of the District Committee. The name of A. G. Anderson of Fergus Falls was proposed for temporary chairman, and that of Fred Dennis of Detroit for temporary secretary. No other nomination was made for chairman, and Mr. Anderson was elected unanimously. The name of Roger J. Bell of Roseau was proposed for Secretary, but that gentleman withdrew in favor of Mr. Dennis, who was then elected, Mr. Bell being later appointed assistant secretary by the chair.



HON. D. P. O'NEIL

On motion of J. H. Grass of Ottertail the chairman appointed the following committee on credentials: J. H. Grass, Ottertail; E. C. Yetter, Kitson; Theo. Beaulieu, Becker; D. W. Meeker, Clay; and O. K. Berget, Polk.

R. H. Batty of Becker county moved that each county make a selection of three members from its delegation, one of each to act on a committee on resolutions, one on a committee on nominations, and one on a congressional committee. This motion was carried and the counties, after a short recess announced the following selections:

Roseau—G. H. Mattson, resolutions; Martin Widsten, nominations; S. T. Holdahl, congressional committee.

Becker—R. H. Batty, resolutions; T. K. Torgerson, nominations; G. J. Norby, congressional.

Pennington—G. Halverson, resolutions; D. P. O'Neil, nominations, W. Michelet, congressional.

Polk—Chas. Loring, resolutions, W. A. Marin, nominations, Guy Aubol, congressional.

Baltrami—J. J. Opsahl, resolutions; A. P. White, nominations; A. R. Erickson, congressional.

Wilkin—Howard Smith, resolutions; C. Y. Avalin, nominations, Edwin Mattson, congressional.

Red Lake—J. A. Duffy, resolutions; Mr. Kankel, nominations; Mr. Watson, congressional.

Clay—A. L. Charest, resolutions; Geo. L. Fuller, nominations, Chas. S. Marden, congressional.

Ottertail—Dr. A. B. Cole, resolution; Wm. Wright, nominotions; A. G. Anderson, congressional.

Marshall—C. S. Stevens, resolution; G. S. Wattam, nominations; A. F. Listing, congressional,

Mahnomen—A. L. Thompson; resolutions; A. J. Anderson; nominations; C. O. Riste, congressional.

Norman—Victor Olson, resolution; D. C. Jones, nominations; Louis Garden, congressional.

Clearwater—Oscar T. Stenvick, resolutions; Oscar Barness; nominations; Erick Erickson, congressional.

A committee on permanent organization consisting of Dr. W. D. Leach of Becker, J. J. Opsahl of Beltrami, and Dr. G. S. Wattam of Marshall was appointed by the chair, and after a short deliberation announced as the their recommendation that the temporary organization be made permanent. This recomendation was put in the form of a motion and was carried unanimously.

At this point the committee on credentials announced that it was was ready to report, and reported that they found the credetials of all the counties in proper form and the number of delegates entitled to seats as specified in the call, a total of 154, with 78 necessary to choice. Motion to adopt the report was carried.

J. J. Opsahl of Bemidji received recognition from the chair and moved that the convention go on record as favoring the candidacy of Senator A. L. Hanson of Ada as a delegate at large to the national

SOME SCOTCH RECIPES

FAVORITE DISHES IN THE LAND OF THE THISTLE.

Broths and Soups Seem to Be Especially Favored—For Stewed Oxtail—Just How to Brander a Steak.

The following recipes come from a Scotch housewife who says they are favorites in the land of the thistle, her own family having used them for many years. Scotch housewives take special pride in the preparation of wholesome broths and soups, one of the famous ones being "cockie leekie." Any fowl, touch (tender), youthful or middle aged, may be used, but if one does not possess a fowl, beef may take its place, though the dish will not be so delicate in flavor. For four quarts of soup use two or three pounds of meat, eight or nine large leeks and pepper and salt to taste. Wash the leeks thoroughly and if they are old scald them for a few minutes in boiling water. Take off the roots and part of the heads and cut them into pieces of about an inch in length. Put the meat and half of the leeks into the pot, and allow these to simmer gently for about half an hour; add the remaining leeks and boil them for three or even four hours. Skim carefully and season to taste with salt and pepper.

For stewed oxtail cut the tail at the joints, discarding one or two pieces at the extreme points. Put them into a stewpan with just enough water to cover them. When the water begins to boil, remove the scum on top and add a sliced onion and two carrots. After covering let the meat simmer gently for two and a half hours. Melt an ounce of butter in a little pan, stir in gently half an ounce of flour and some of the strained liquid from the meat. Allow this to boil for five or ten minutes. Add a tablespoonful of catsup and a little lemon juice. After browning it slightly pour the sauce over the tails, which should be arranged with the vegetables on a dish. Serve at once.

To broil, or in Scotch parlance, to "brander," a steak in Scotch style, have the "brander," or gridiron, very hot and the fire clear and bright. A little salt sprinkled over the fire will keep down the flame. When the brander is hot rub it all over with a piece of suet. This prevents the steak from sticking. Cut the skin that lies along the edge of the steak in several places and flatten slightly with a rolling pin. Lay it on the gridiron and turn it every half minute with steak tongs. With a double gridiron it is of course unnecessary to use the tongs, but in shifting the meat about while on the gridiron steak tongs are useful, and not as familiar as they should be among American housewives who too often use a fork for the purpose. A fork should never be put into the meat while it is cooking. Have ready a very hot dish and when the steak has been turned for ten minutes lift it up and slip it on the hot dish. Put on a cover and set it into a Dutch oven. Let it stand for ten minutes. Lacking a Dutch oven, the American housewife will have to content herself with her up-to-date gas range. The steak is then lifted on to the hot gridiron and turned for five minutes more. Serve on a hot platter after spreading lightly with butter. Americans, as they like their steaks rare, will select a very thick steak if they desire to cook it in Scotch style.

Butter and Cheese.

Good butter has no strong odor. It is of an even, golden yellow and has a fine grain; if slick it has not been properly handled. It should never be marbled in appearance. If there is too great proportion of moisture present the butter breaks easily. In this case the purchaser pays for the water. Cheese should be of good color, depending on the variety, and of fine grain. The cheese with large air cells is usually not of the best quality; if the fat separates from the body of the cheese rapidly it usually indicates the addition of foreign fat.

Potato Balls.

Take equal parts of cold boiled potatoes and raw ones. Peel and grate the raw and squeeze out through cloth; now grate the boiled potatoes and mix with the raw; add salt, flour enough to form in balls; have ready little squares of bread, browned in butter; take two heaping tablespoons of potatoes and put two or three squares of bread in center; now form in balls with hands; drop in boiling salted water and boil fifteen minutes. Good with any kind of gravy and meat.

Salade D'Anchois.

Fillet the required quantity of anchovies, cut each fillet into two, lengthwise, and arrange in lattice fashion on small glass dishes, garnish with quarters or slices of hard-cooked eggs and capers, pour over a little olive oil, sprinkle with chopped chives or parsley and serve.

Young Cook's Guide.

A good rule for a young housekeeper in cooking vegetables is that all vegetables that grow above the ground should be put on to cook in boiling water; all that grow below the ground except new potatoes, in cold water.

To Serve With Pancakes.

Lemon juice and powdered sugar are delicious with feathery wheat pancakes. It is said that the Kaiser is especially attached to this dish.

FISH FOR THE TABLE

ITS PROPER SELECTION, COOKING AND SERVING.

Almost Innumerable Are the Ways in Which They May Be Prepared—Either Broiled or Planked They Are Delicious.

In 1851 Miss Beecher wrote: "In selecting fish take those that are firm and thick, having stiff fins, thick scales, the gills bright red and the eyes prominent and full. When fish are long out of water they grow soft, and fins bend easily, the scales are dull and soft, the gills grow dark and the eyes sink and shrink away. They should be dressed as soon as caught, sprinkled with salt and cooked the same day."

At Saturday's remarkable market was heard: "Fish at five cents a pound is surely a remarkable blessing without any disguise, but how do you cook fish?"

Well, they can be fried, broiled, baked with stuffing, crimped, flaked and in balls, and souffles and creamed and an occasional chowder.

One thing the cookery books direct you to do is, "To put the fish into as much or more water as will cover them." We never drown ours, for too much water is bad. If you want to boil the fish a little more water than will half cover is sufficient. Keep the lid of the saucepan well down and simmer gently, it eats much richer and has a finer flavor than the book way, which soddens it and takes away the fine firmness we prize.

"And how shall I tell when it is done?" was the next query. When the filet, or thick part next to the backbone, can be easily drawn away from the bone with a knife.

Steamed fish is firmer and finer than fish baked or boiled. The making of filets and the baking of fish requires more care in the cookery and richer ingredients that is usually given to fish cookery in the home, and the excellence of these dishes depends upon the sauces after all.

One fish dish we think well of is made with mushrooms and sweet peppers, a quantity of melted butter and some lemon juice. The fish may be broiled or planked and then garnished; the long chili peppers are more sightly than the large sweet peppers. Cold fish flaked and mixed with salad dressing and trimmed with capers and served on a bed of crisp lettuce always pleases. For seasoning, lemon juice is always popular, and vinegar, either tarragon or the ordinary sort, is acceptable.

"Salt is the stuff that spoiled the fish when you did not put any on," so salt the fish when starting it to cook and serve celery salt and paprika with it at the table.—Henrietta D. Grauel.

Danger in Watercress.

The tempting bunches of fresh green watercress that are now found in market are never more welcome than at this season, but great care should be taken to wash them thoroughly; the brook from which they came may have been infested with typhoid germs, says a writer. Experts tell us that much typhoid fever comes from vegetables that have been improperly fertilized or from plants watered by polluted streams. Wherever possible vegetables should be boiled, but in the case of lettuce or watercress this is usually impossible. The only thing one can do if one does not want to give up eating them is to wash them thoroughly in several waters. One can even make the first water a soapy one without leaving any disagreeable taste.

Plain Rugs.

Plain rugs made of carpet filling—Wilton, Wilton velvet or Axminster—are very attractive for bedrooms, says the Ladies' Home Journal, and ready-made rugs of these same kinds of carpet can be found in good oriental designs and colorings. "Art Woolen" rugs are also especially suitable, are very inexpensive and come in good plain tones or with a plain center and a two-toned figured border. Then, too, in a simple room nothing is more charming than the old-fashioned woven or braided rag rugs, which may be bought or made to order in any coloring.

Making Nut Muffins.

Two cupfuls of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful of milk, half a cupful of chopped nut meats, two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter and half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then add the beaten yolks of eggs, butter and milk. Beat well, add the vanilla extract and the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Divide into buttered and floured gem pans, bake in a hot oven for 20 minutes.

To Save Soap.

Save all your small scraps of toilet soap. When you have a handful place in a small salt sack and tie up. Use this in place of cake of soap when bathing. It is delightful to rub the body with and will not slip out of the children's hands.

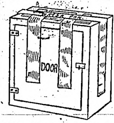
Mending an Umbrella.

To mend an umbrella, moisten a piece of black courtplaster and stick it on the inside over the hole. It will not be so noticeable as a darn, and although the plaster may have to be renewed after the umbrella has been out in a hard rain, it is easily done.

KEEPING FOOD WITHOUT ICE

Refrigerator That Will Do the Work May Be Operated for Comparatively Little.

To keep butter and milk cool take a box 12 inches deep, 24 inches long and 24 inches wide, make a door secured by two hinges and a hasp, tack two or three thicknesses of burlap on the outside, making allowance for the door; after setting the box on end set on the top a deep vessel filled with water and in the basin put strips of burlap or woolen goods about three inches in width and of sufficient length to reach well down the sides of the box. Secure the strips to the bottom of the basin by a weight; shelves may be placed in the box. Set outside the house where the winds can pass over the box. The cooling resulting from the rapid evaporation of the water reduces the temperature within the box. The hotter it is outside and the harder the winds blow, the cooler it will be inside the box, as long as the pan is kept full of water.



PROPER PLACING OF PIANO

Decided Difference in Tone Will Be Found if Simple Precautions Are Preserved.

The proper placing of an upright piano in a room of moderate size is to turn it at right angles to the side wall, leaving room between the keyboard and the opposite wall for the player. Then stand a table, if possible an old-fashioned mahogany one with folding leaf which can be turned up against the back of the piano. There must, of course, be some drapery to cover the unpolished back of the piano. A piece of good-looking tapestry, brocaded silk, embroidered crepe, or even of cretonne, draped loosely over the top and back, but not laid in set folds, would be suitable. On the table stand a plant, a bit of pottery, a brass candlestick or possibly a lamp.

From a musical standpoint the piano is placed in the best position, for the notes are free instead of muffled.

Paper or Tint?

The choice between papered and tinted walls is largely a matter of personal taste, according to the Ladies' Home Journal. A plain tint in a good color is always in good taste, but there are, of course, more varied effects to be had from paper. Two-toned papers in inconspicuous figures or stripes, or merely a mottled surface giving the appearance of the texture of material, are charming. Then there are imitations of grass cloths, burlaps, etc., all giving the general effect of a plain wall with the added decorative value which texture can supply.

Prune Jelly.

Half a box of gelatin, half pound prunes, one cup sugar, juice of half a lemon, water. Soak the gelatine in a little cold water. Cook the prunes until soft in rather more water than will cover them; then take out the prunes, and to the liquid add the gelatin, sugar, juice of lemon and hot water enough to make one quart of liquid; let it come to a boil, after which strain. Remove the stones of the prunes, cut fruit into pieces, put it into the liquid, and heat, after which put into a mold. To be eaten with whipped cream.—Mary J. Hall.

Egg Paste.

The white of a raw egg is the most satisfactory of pastes. Papers used for covering down jam will hold securely and be quite air-tight if brushed over on the inside with white of egg. White of egg is also useful for mending glass or china ornaments, but, of course, it will not stand water. Still, it is not always necessary that a cement should do this, and white of egg has the merit of being quite imperceptible when dry.

Canker Remedy.

Take of burnt alum one teaspoonful the same of burnt borax, put in a dish or bowl with one teacupful of white sugar, the same of boiling water; grate ½ nutmeg into this and let cool; bottle and shake before using. Dose—give one teaspoonful three times daily.

Tape for Hems.

The use of tape for hems for children's yokes where they are closed makes a very neat finish, as there are no bulging double edges, and it makes the yoke stronger where the hooks and eyes or buttons are attached.

Bacon Curls and Corn Fritters.

Cut breakfast bacon in very thin slices and remove rind. Place in a hot pan and during the cooking shape in curls, using a knife and fork for this. Drain on white paper.

FOOD VALUE OF HONEY HIGH

Peculiarly Valuable as an Addition to the Dietary of the Younger Generation.

Honey is a valuable adjunct to the housekeeper's dietary and is a valuable concentrated food for children, being more easily digested than cane or beet sugar. Recipes for various uses to which it may be put are given to the Ladies' World.

Lemon Honey Pie.—Line a pie dish with short pastry and fill with lemons, pared free from the white, tough skin. Cut the lemons as thin as a wafer and reject all seeds, or it will be bitter. Place between every layer of lemon clover honey, using one cupful of strained honey; cover with pastry rolled thin; slashing the top crust to allow the steam to escape. Bake in a moderate oven until the pastry is brown.

Honey Cream Filling.—Mix one-half a cupful each of granulated sugar and clover honey with two tablespoonfuls of clear water; then cook until the syrup will just spin a thin thread when dropped from a spoon. Remove immediately and turn in a fine stream on the stiffly beaten white of an egg, beating until the mixture is cold, when it will be ready to use.

EASY WAY OF TESTING EGGS

How Condition May Be Told to a Certainty Before They Are Handled.

This method of testing eggs, which was used by our grandmothers, may not have been handed down to all the Housekeeper readers, so I "pass it on" from out of my experience. Fill a glass two-thirds full of water and place the egg in it. A fresh egg will lie flat on the bottom of the glass, but if it is several weeks old the large end will rise somewhat. If the egg stands vertical in the glass it is about three months old, and if it floats you may be sure it is unfit for use. The older the egg the more evaporation has taken place in it, consequently the larger the empty space in the end of the shell. This makes the egg lighter and causes it to rise higher in the water.—The Housekeeper.

Polish Salad.

One pound of cold new potatoes, four ounces of smoked salmon, six anchovy fillets, one ounce of cooked ham, three gherkins, celery, half a head of lettuce, mayonnaise, chopped herbs, two hard-cooked eggs, salt, paprika or red pepper, and stoned olives. Peel the potatoes, and slice them rather thinly, cut the salmon into thin slices, trim, wash and drain the lettuce. Cut these, together with the anchovy fillets, ham, gherkins and celery, into coarse julienne strips. Mix them all with mayonnaise, to which some chopped herbs have been added, season with salt and paprika or red pepper, and dress neatly in a salad bowl. Serve the salad surrounded by a border of hard-cooked eggs and garnish with the stoned olives.

Hints on Cooking Game.

Badly shot birds should not be left hung long. Clean as soon as brought in. Let them soak over night or a few hours at least in strong salt water, as this takes the wild taste out. Snipes, and woodcock should never be drawn. Tie the birds with string instead of using skewers, for the latter make holes by which the juices escape, making the meat taste dry. Tie a slice of fat bacon over the breast of each bird, otherwise it will become dry and shriveled. All game is alike better slightly underdone. This is especially true with ducks.

Orange Pie.

Beat together the yolks of four eggs and eight tablespoonfuls of sugar, grate the skins of two oranges and with the juice and two-thirds of a tumbler of milk add to the eggs and sugar; bake for half an hour in an undercrust; for the frosting beat the whites of four eggs to a firm paste with four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, and as soon as the pie is done take from the oven and pour the frosting over the top, returning it again to the oven to be baked to a delicate brown.

Oyster Soup.

Pour one quart of boiling water into a skillet; then one quart of good rich milk; stir in one teacup of rolled cracker crumbs, seasoned with pepper and salt to taste. When all come to a boil, add one quart of good fresh oysters; stir well so as to keep from scorching; then add a piece of good sweet butter, about the size of an egg; let it boil up once; then remove from fire immediately; dish up and send to table.

Curry of Rice.

Try this as a change from hash: Grind all cold meat scraps as for hash. Cook the rice, and a few minutes before meal time make some rich gravy from meat stock, or else some white sauce. Heat the ground meat in this, seasoning with salt, pepper and sage or savory. Pile the meat in a mound in the center of the platter, and surround by the rice. This is pronounced delicious, and is relished by all.

WIDE TIRES A HELP

IMMENSE BENEFIT IN KEEPING HIGHWAYS IN GOOD CONDITION.

Two-Ton Load on Wagon With 1¾ Inch Tires Will Do More Damage in Cutting Up Road Than Twice the Load on Three Inch Tire.

By HOWARD H. GROSS.

The question of good roads throughout the country is of tremendous importance, and the people are everywhere clamoring for them. The great majority seem to be wandering around in a maze of uncertainty as to what to do.

The solution involves many factors. Local conditions are subject to a wide variation both as to soil, road material, amount of traffic, etc., hence no rule can be laid down that will apply in all cases. The subject must be given intelligent treatment by a capable engineer, familiar with the surroundings.

There is, however one thing that can be done that will be of immense benefit to the roads of all times, whether earth, stone or gravel, and that is wider tires upon the wagons. Untold millions of dollars of damage to highways is done every year by heavy loads upon narrow tire farm wagons. These are often from one and a half inches to one and three-quarters wide, seldom more than two and a quarter. A two-ton load on a wagon with one and three-quarters inch tires will do more damage in cutting up a road than twice the load upon a three inch tire. If we could have uniform, concerted action in any community, whereby three to three and a half inch tires would be put upon every farm wagon, it would mean much better highways than we now have. The narrow tires mean deep ruts, and if the rule is a narrow tire upon wagons, the man who goes out upon these highways with a wide tire is badly handicapped. Hence, if any good is to come from the wide tire movement, it should be generally adhered to. It is a truthful statement that wide tires make roads and narrow tires destroy them.

An equitable basis would be to license all vehicles doing business upon the public highways, grading the license fee according to the width of the tire, and letting the amount of money paid in be used to maintain the roads. This is just and no one, who is willing to tote fair can object to it. In grading the license fee it should be in such a manner that it will be to the interest of the owner to substitute a wide tire for his narrow one.

When this is suggested, it will be at once said that it is impractical, and that it cannot be done. It is surprising how many objections can be found against the doing of anything that a person does not want to do. The writer has witnessed two campaigns where the question of narrow and wide tires has been thrashed out and every objection made and answered.

The first was during the World's Fair in Chicago. In the grounds were temporary roadways, designed to last only during the fair season. These were made of gravel or crushed stone about three or four inches deep. The fair authorities discovered that if the exhibits were hauled in and out on these roads it would destroy them, because of the narrow tires that prevailed upon the wagons of the truck and express companies. The authorities established a rule that no narrow tire wagons could come on the grounds. There was a great howl by the transportation companies, but the fair authorities stood firm, and the teaming companies met the conditions by substituting a wide for a narrow tire upon the same wheel. They simply took off say a two and a half inch tire and put on one three and a half inches or four inches upon the same wheel and the same felloe. This served the purpose.

About three years ago the city of Chicago passed an ordinance providing for wide tires upon vehicles using the streets for traffic. A tremendous howl was made by all teaming interests and they brought in the wagon makers to state that the changing of these wheels meant an expenditure of millions upon millions of dollars, and it would take several years in order to have the change made. Large manufacturers of wagons said the wagon stock was gotten out for the narrow tire wagons, and it would take at least two years before any general change could be made. At that time the writer took a hand in the campaign with others, and published in the Chicago papers illustrations of how this change could be made (see cut herewith). The city council stood firm, the ordinance was passed and the users of narrow tires were arrested and fined. In a very short time wide tires began to appear upon the streets, and now the use is general and the solution has been mainly as indicated, namely, substituting wide tires for narrow ones upon the same wheels. Any local blacksmith or wagon maker can make the change indicated and the expense ought to range between $8.00 and $12.00 for a wagon. The illustration is so simple that anyone can follow it.

The question is, how shall this be brought about? The writer would suggest a state law licensing all the vehicles, the same as the automobile is now licensed, and let it apply upon everything that goes upon the road, graduating it with a view of making the vehicles that do the most damage pay the largest tax.

Without giving an entire schedule the following will illustrate what the writer has in mind:

That after a given date no vehicle shall be used upon the highways unless it carries a license.

On a two horse farm wagon with a tire of 1¾ inches or less the annual license fee to be $7.50 a year.

Over 1¾ inches and under 2¼ inches, $4.50 a year.

Over 2¼ inches and under 3 inches $3.00 per year.

Three inches or over, $1.00 per year.

The money collected to be credited to the road district and be used for road repair work.

There is another advantage to be gained by this method over and above the preservation of the highways; that is, the same wagon is more useful on the farm or on the fields for doing ordinary farm work. The hauling over hay fields and grain fields with narrow tired wagons does considerable damage. Hauling out manure, and in a variety of farm work wide tire wagons are advisable. Many farmers keep wagons with wide tires for this specific purpose. Why not have all vehicles carry a wide, sensible tire that will improve conditions rather than make them worse?

$5.35

The above figure illustrates the amount per year the White Earth Indians get as annuities. This is somewhere near the average for the last ten-year period previous to this year. The annuities this year are in excess of nine dollars, the Indian Bureau having managed to increase it, no doubt, on account of the present agitation of White Earth matters.

This is all the mixed-bloods get. Some of the full-bloods get the rations when the agent thinks they are in need.

The mixed-bloods are self-supporting, absolutely, and have been for many years, and the $5.35 per year is merely an incident. It does not help them much, and the loss of it would not make any difference in their style of living. Most of the full-bloods also support themselves by hunting and fishing, and the $5.35 annuity has usually come in handy to buy some cheap clothes.

So that the theory which prevails that the government supports the Indians is clearly a mistake.

Instead of that the Indians support a horde of officeholders saddled on them by the government.

On the White Earth reservation there are ninety-one government employes drawing salaries at the present time, in the regular establishment and eighteen in the Burch corps. These figures may not be absolutely correct, but are near enough. Many of these are necessary, and many are not. For instance there is a superintendent of a saw mill that has not turned a wheel for three years drawing $125 per month; there is a "farmer" who has not been known to work for months, drawing $100 per month, etc.

Besides the regular force the Burch corps has been on the reservation for three years, headed by Judge Burch, who draws $5,000 per year, and contains among others Judge Burch's nephew, Arthur M. Seckel, who draws $290 per month for doing abstract work that competent help could be secured for at $75 per month. Even the judge's adopted son, a boy of fourteen or fifteen, has managed to connect with the government payroll at $75 per month.

There were NINE MILLION DOLLARS in the Chippewa Indian funds.

AT THE PRESENT TIME THERE IS LESS THAN $4,000,000.

The difference of $5,000,000 represents what has been spent "for the relief and civilization of the Indians."

And right here is the big issue in the fight about White Earth reservation affairs.

No itemized statement of who this money has been paid to has so far been obtained from the Indian Bureau.

Congressman Steenerson has for several years tried to obtain such a statement, but has so far been unable to get it.

The Indian Bureau evidently has serious objections to giving out such a statement. Can it be that this alleged investigation of the Indian Bureau, by confusing the issue, is designed to protect it from the necessity of having to make such a statement?

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE FIVE MILLION DOLLARS?

No amount of wielding of the slush bucket by the government lawyers; no amount of sensational trembling for his country by the chairman of the committee; no amount of effort to discredit Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson by the administration at Washington will be satisfactory as an answer to this question the Indians are asking, and the answer to which they have a right to know.

There is a feeling among the Indians that any of their money that goes into the government treasury will never come out again except in the form of salary checks to white officials. This feeling is justified by bitter experience, and is back of the unanimous demand for such legislation as the allotment acts, the Clapp act, and the present demand for the distribution of the tribal funds.

The Clapp act was not a perfect law. It had a serious defect in that it did not provide for an official roll of mixed-bloods and full-bloods before the restrictions were removed. But it was what the Indians wanted, and had the Indian Bureau kept liquor off the reservation, as the law provides they should do, and for which they are paid big salaries, it would have been a success.

As it is many of the mixed-bloods have spent the money they got for their lands. Others have it or its equivalent in property and some have greatly increased their share. Those who have spent their share have gone to work and are making a living just as they did before. None of them are starving and few of them are doing any complaining. Many of them have braced up and are taking a new start, having learned the value of having money by the loss of it.

After the removal of restrictions and the inrush of land buyers and speculators, and the total abandonment of all restraint upon the liquor traffic, such scandal resulted that the interior department called on the department of justice to furnish government lawyers to straighten out the complicated land frauds in court. Judge M. C. Burch, who had just been displaced as division chief, was given this Indian litigation, as he says as his "last case," and he at once proceeded to so plan things as to make it last for the balance of his natural life. He invented a new definition of "mixed-blood," contrary to the established rule, so as to make it include only persons who had more white than Indian blood. This enabled him to bring several hundred suits which no one had dreamed of before, until he has now instituted more than 1,200 suits in equity, involving as many eighty acre tracts of land. It is true that only one question is involved in all, and that is: Who is a mixed-blood, within the meaning of the act? This litigation and threatened litigation unsettled all titles, stopped all improvement and development, to the detriment of all the people, including the Indians, stopped payment of taxes, and threatened to close the public schools. Congressman Steenerson was appealed to and he introduced bills for remedial legislation. One of these provided for a commission to make authentic rolls of mixed-bloods and full-bloods separately, and was intended to equitably and justly dispose of the apparently endless litigation. But here Mr. Steenerson ran against a snag in the shape of a lot of hungry government attorneys and their assistants whose occupation would be gone if the 1,200 suits were disposed of. Their chief very shrewdly went before the committee to investigate the interior department and asked for an investigation of his own client, the interior department, and when he got it, after revamping the old scandals growing out of the administration of the Nelson and Morris and other acts for the disposal of Indian timber, proceeded to lay all the blame for mismanagement of Indian property to the law and to congress. In this way it was sought to not only discredit Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson, but to defeat the proposed remedial legislation, which—threatened to cut short the salaries of these hungry lawyers and their dependents.

But Mr. Steenerson, by reason of his independence and fearlessness, had incurred hostility in still higher quarters. By his opposition to administration measures, notably Canadian reciprocity, he had put himself beyond the pale of executive favor, and no doubt these men who are now doing the dirty work were given a free hand in the attempt to destroy the political reputations of Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson.

This is the real animus of the whole matter, but the people will understand that this hostility is but an incident of the fight their representative has made in their behalf, and will rally to his support more strongly than ever.

Tribal Funds.

At the present rate it will be only a question of a few years anyway, until the tribal funds of the White Earth Indians will be all spent by the Indian Bureau. The best that could happen to them would be a division of the funds, after enough is set aside to care for the old and the infirm. Then let the capable ones take their place among the ordinary citizens of the republic. The tribal relations are of no value to them, and a sum so insignificant as $5.35 per year is of little value.

And the most peculiar feature of the Graham investigation was the reports sent out of the discovery of disease and destitution among the full-bloods, in view of the fact that the government has 109 employes on the reservation looking after the welfare of the Indians—one for each ten full-bloods. Among these are five doctors. If this little army of Indian protectors could not discover disease and destitution after spending years in the work, could it be reasonably expected that Congressman Steenerson could know of it?

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

If a fellow finds it bred in his bones to give scrub care to the animals about him they would better be scrubs than pure breds.

Eggs for hatching will give better results if saved from hens that are two or three years old, provided they are vigorous and healthy.

Galveston, Tex., has exported to foreign countries since last September 3,200,000 bales of cotton, or more than the output for the entire season of 1910 and 1911.

How many of the bright boys and girls who read these notes have ever inspected an ear of corn closely enough to tell whether the germ side of the kernels faces toward the tip or butt of the ear?

Sunshine is one of the cheapest as well as most effective germ killers known and should be made use of along this line far more than it is in the home, in the dairy barn and in the poultry house.

The stuff that grows in one's garden may taste just as good if grown in crooked as in straight rows, but the crooked rows are kind of hard on the eyes of the folks who pass the garden patch and look it over.

Cream for churning whether in summer or winter should have a temperature of 62 degrees F. If much colder than this the cream will come slowly, while if warmer the butter will come with a mushy and greasy texture.

A tempting price for corn which causes the grower to sell it in the raw state rather than feed it to his hogs or cattle brings him in ready money. It is true, but it constitutes petit larceny against the soil that he ought not to be guilty of.

A stack of weeds can often be killed in a hurry in a field of corn that is from six to ten inches high by using a tooth harrow, and slight damage will be done to the corn provided the dragging is done during the afternoon, when the sun shines warm.

While the United States is remarkably rich in most minerals, it is very low in the scale when it comes to the production of tin. The total value of the output for 1910 was $23,477. The importations for the same period reached the large total of $33,913,255.

A firm, hard collar that fits is invariably better as well as easier on the horse's shoulder than the ill fitting contraption that has to be padded. Especially is this true in warm weather, when a pad makes the shoulders sweat a good deal and the skin becomes sensitive and tender.

It is a pretty good idea to rake the straw or hay which has been used as covering for the strawberry bed between the rows of plants instead of removing it from the bed entirely. Left between the rows it serves as a mulch and also gives a clean place to walk, besides keeping a good many of the berries out of the dirt.

The ideal orchard, that which is most thrifty and in the long run will yield most profitably, is the one that starts with thrifty and vigorous trees that are kept growing vigorously from the time they are set in the ground. Once let young trees get seriously stunted, either through lack of tillage or spraying, and it is impossible for them to develop into what they would otherwise have been.

It is a mighty good plan to build a nice comfortable home on the farmstead in place of the little shack that has sheltered the family for generations, but it is an easy matter to overdo the business and get the house too big, so that instead of being a real comfort and convenience it may easily prove a bugbear and white elephant. An institution of this kind is costly to maintain if one has a financial backset, while if one wants to sell such a house it would be a drawback rather than an advantage.

The alfalfa leaf spot, a fungous disease that is doing considerable damage to this valuable crop in some sections, may be reduced, according to advice given by the Kansas experiment station, by frequent cutting and as complete removal of the infected leaves from the field as possible. In case a field is badly infested the recommendation is made of burning the field over after making a cutting and allowing it to dry thoroughly. This means the loss of one cutting, but the subsequent crops will be enough larger to more than make up the difference.

The treating of the oats used for seed with formalin solution will mean an increase in yield of from ten to twenty bushels per acre, this, of course, provided the disinfected seed is put on land that does not contain the smut spores from a diseased crop of a previous year.

In most states the law governing the cutting of the roadside weeds places the responsibility for the job on the township trustees. In some others the trustees are required to cut them, provided the abutting property owner does not do it by a date specified in the weed law.

Platinum, a metal twice as valuable as gold, has been discovered near Mountain Park, in southwestern Oklahoma, in an ore which assays $56 worth of the metal per ton. Practically all the platinum used in this country at present comes from the Ural mountains in Russia.

Figures compiled by Chief Forester Graves for 1911 place the number of predatory animals killed in the western states during last year at 7,971, including 6,487 coyotes, 213 bears, 172 wolves, 870 mountain lions, 72 lynxes and 2 wolverenes. New Mexico furnished most of the wolves, Oregon the larger number of bears and Arizona the mountain lions.

Early vegetables and fruit from southern markets are both scarcer and higher priced than usual on the northern markets this year as a direct result of the flooding of thousands of acres of the fertile river bottom lands in southern states bordering the Mississippi. However, the fellows who were not swamped with high water are reaping a rich harvest.

There really isn't much use trying to impress the benefits of dairying upon the farmer who is content to start operations with a thirty-five dollar scrub bull selected from a bunch of canners in the stockyards. He isn't really converted, but should have more stiff talk on the hell fire and brimstone punishment which inevitably follows a soil robbing system of agriculture.

A lady friend who has a pair of canaries has been much interested in watching the nesting operations of the pair. Four eggs were laid, and just now four downy little birds occupy the nest. The old birds select seed from the dish of a given kind, and this is the only food the little fellows receive. Bread and milk and other man made rations receive no attention whatever.

Unless one has lawn cuttings for the flock of hens that are shut up during the spring and summer months some other provision should be made for a supply of green stuff. A patch may be put in mellow condition and sowed to rye or lettuce. One of the best methods for securing this supply is to sow some rape, preferably in a patch into which the chickens can be turned after it gets a good start. The advantage of this crop is that it will furnish green food until winter sets in.

A California reader writes making inquiry for literature on the subject of the scientific raising of corn and wheat under dry farming conditions. Not having an index of such literature at hand, the writer would suggest that his correspondent write stating his needs to the state experiment station at Berkeley and also to the department of agriculture at Washington. From both sources bulletins can be secured which will take up in a thorough and satisfactory manner the points our friend makes inquiries about.

The California experiment station has found the application of melted asphaltum to the lower trunks of peach trees a very effective method of ridding them of borers. Some trees that were badly infected were given two coats of the asphaltum early in the spring with an ordinary brush, and later inspection showed that the treatment disposed of 95 per cent of the borers, smothering those that were in the trees and keeping out those that would have gained an entrance. The asphaltum did not injure the trees in any way; neither did it interfere with their growth.

The idea of storing water in natural basins for irrigation purposes by building retaining dams is centuries old and is being put into practice in hundreds of places throughout the arid and semi-arid west. The impounding of a stream flow for the purpose of regulating the amount of water used for power purposes is not so new, but has much to commend it. Figures which have been gathered by the geological survey show the need of adopting this plan in the case of a number of eastern basins, where power plants are not only crippled by flood waters in time of freshets, but handicapped for lack of power in seasons of drought.

A dope for killing chicken lice that is highly recommended by poultry experts who have tried it is made as follows: To a mixture of three parts of gasoline and one part of carbolic acid add and stir in thoroughly all the plaster of paris it will moisten. Take the hen by the feet in one hand and with the other work the powder thoroughly into the fluffy feathers close to the body. This treatment should be repeated at the end of six or seven days. The sitting hens should be given a treatment before the eggs are put under them and again at the end of the first and second weeks. The roosters should be treated along with other members of the flock.

Press dispatches indicate that Roosevelt has carried the entire state and that the state convention will send a solid delegation to the Chicago convention for the colonel. This must indeed be a sad blow to the state machine, which has been working tooth and nail for Taft. Although Governer Eberhart denies very veciferously that he has been lending his aid or counsel to either candidate, he cannot very well get away from the fact that all of his henchmen, including Ed Smith, chairman of the state central committee, have been working their heads off in the interest of the president.

St. Paul voters are to be congratulated on their action Tuesday last week. They not only re-elected Herb Keller mayor, but by a decisive vote of 5 to 1 adopted the commission form of government. The Saintly City has been in the past probably the worst governed large city in the northwest, having been dominated by what is known as the O'Connor-Murphy ring, and this action in returning Keller and adopting the commission government shows that the people of the Capitol City have at last awakened to the situation.

Senator B. E. Sundberg of Kennedy is quoted in the Hallock enterprise as follows: "you can depend on it, if Taft is nominated, I vote the Democratic ticket." This is an indication of the sentiment throughout this entire section, and delegates to the State convention tomorrow will do well to carefully canvas the situation before going on record.

SAYINGS OF SCRIBES.

What the Country Press Has to Say Anent the Recent Sale of the News.

Marcus C. Cutter of St. Paul has purchased the Thief River Falls News and will no doubt put new life into it.—Ada Herald.

Marcus C. Cutter, purchasing agent of the State Board of Control and also a practical printer, recently purchased the Thief River Falls News from Mrs. J. W. Eastman, taking possession the first of this week. Mr. Cutter will be welcomed into their midst by the north country fraternity.-Fosston Thirteen Towns.

Marcus C. Cutter has purchased the Thief River Falls News from Mrs. John Eastman. Mr. Cutter is an old newspaper man but has not been in the harness for the past ten years. The fraternity will extend him the glad hand of fellowship upon his return to newspaper work. —Roseau Times.

The Thief River Falls News was sold this week to Marcus C. Cutter, of St. Paul, who will arrive with his family at Thief River next Monday, May 6th, when he will personally have charge of the paper. Mr. Cutter is a practical printer, but has been Purchasing Agent of the state board of control for the past ten years, which position he resigns to take up newspaper work in Thief River Falls —Crookston Times.

Mr. M. C. Cutter, formerly purchasing agent for the State Board of Control, arrived in the city Monday and took active charge of the News, which he purchased recently from Mrs. Eastman. Mr Cutter was accompanied by his wife, daughter and brother, E. B. Cutter. They have secured a house for the present on the east side and will make their future home here. Mr. Cutter is a practical printer and has had a great deal of experience in newspaper work. He is a valuable acquisition to newspaperdom in Thief River Falls and we heartily welcome him.—Thief River Press.

The Thief River Falls News has been sold to Marcus C. Cutter, of St Paul, who this week steps into the editorial harness. Mr. Cutter just recently resigned from his position as purchasing agent for the board of control to again enter the field of journalism after having been engaged in other vocations for a number of years.—Plummer Pioneer

AN "APPEAL TO REASON."

The News Recently Changed Hands—Desires to Present a Few Facts to Subscribers.

It costs money to issue a weekly newspaper. The News is being issued for the nominal sum of $1.00 per year—and the terms of this subscription are strictly in advance. As a matter of fact it actually costs the publisher more than this amount to get out a paper for 52 consecutive weeks, and were it not for advertising, legal printing and other work, the paper would be run at an actual loss. Besides getting out a paper each week for barley what it costs to issue same, the publisher gives during the year from $1,000 to $1,200 in free advertising for the benefit of the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this, and therefore the local papers are doing more for less pay than any other medium. For this reason you should patronize your paper, not as a charity, but as an investment. In such patronage you should also comply with the terms of the paper, which in the matter of subscriptions, are cash in advance. One of the reasons for placing the rate at the present price we understand was the idea of getting subscribers to pay for their paper in advance, and the present publisher believes this is reasonable, and also believes that all of our subscribers will look at the matter in the same reasonable way. There are many small subscription accounts now due, and we are quite sure that the only reason for this is the fact that patrons have either overlooked the account, or have not had same called to their attention.

We trust that all of our subscribers will take this article in the way it is intended, and not consider it in any way personal. As stated above it is simply for the purpose of calling attention to the fact that many have simply overlooked or neglected their subscription account. We would ask that each subscriber examine the date on the margin of his paper, and if he finds same to be prior to May, 1912, would request that the amount be remitted at the earliest possible date. If subscribers will do this they will confer a great favor on the publisher, and also each and every one will have the personal satisfaction of knowing that he is not in arrears for his local paper.

...School Notes...

Several commencement programs have recently been received from the rural schools. The Newfolden school, which has sent so many clever pupils to the local high school, graduates ten from its eighth grade. Any pupil presenting three state high school board certificates out of the four leading common school subjects will be enrolled in the high school, or a kounty diploma will also make the holder eligible to enter a high school.

Principal Smith of the Crookston high school visited local school people last week. He states that Crookston recently voted bonds to the amount of $150,000 for the erection of a new high school building. They enroll about twenty more high school pupils than does Thief River Falls and their rate of taxation for school purposes is greater than in the in the local district. Thief River with 243 enrolled in high school, employs ten high school teachers; while Crookston, with about 266 high school students, has fourteen teachers.

About one-third of the year's enrollment in the first primary rooms has not made sufficient advancement to warrant promotion. These little children will, however, be advanced to the next grade about the middle of the next school year, if they show more maturity. The other two thirds are stronger and more mature pupils and will have completed the work of the first primary and the first grade by the end of this year and will enter second grade next September.

School Notes recently stated that either a first class commencement speaker, or none at all, would be secured. When Dr. Vincent stated he could not come, inquiry was made of the various lyceum bureaus, with the result that one of the strongest professional lecturers has been obtained to deliver the address. He is Charles Howard Plattenburg and is under the exclusive control of the Chicago Lyceum Bureau. He is costing the graduating class quite a sum of money, but as the public patronized the class play generously, the class is not charging anything to hear this high class man.

The closing exercises of the schools are governed somewhat by the fact that Mr. Plattenberg must speak here on the evening of Thursday, May 30th. Class day exercises will take place at the Auditorium on Wednesday, May 29th; graduation, on Thursday, May 30th; eighth grade graduation, in the Lincoln assembly at 8:30 p. m. on Tuesday, May 28th; and school closes on Friday, May 31st State examinations for the high school and grammar grades will take place all the last week. There will be no school on Thursday, May 30th, that being Memorial day and a legal holiday.

The Lincoln campus is being decorated with shrubbery and hedges and when the walks and fountain are completed, will present a most attractive appearance.

Several members of the high school sewing classes have recently completed neat dresses for themselves. School Notes believes that a high school course in English, literature, history and some science, plus a knowledge of sewing and cooking and household economy, with music and drawing, comes as nearly providing a well balanced secondary education for girls as it is possible to secure in this United States.

Superintendent A. E. Freeman of Grand Rapids, Minn., spent last Friday visiting local teachers and schools. He said the Lincoln building was quite as handsome and much more convenient than some of the $150,000 school palaces on the Iron Range.

History teacher — "Remember, boys, that any little American may some day become President of the United States."

Eighth grade boy—"Not if Teddy is going to keep on running."

An editorial in a recent issue of a Duluth daily, in discussing the tendency of the high schools to educate almost exclusively for college entrance, says, "If the public school will work more for the ninety-and-nine who cannot hope to go to college, and will shape their courses so as to produce skilled farmers, mechanics and housewives as well as lawyers, doctors and failures, it will be better for the pupils, better for the professions, better for the clients and patients, and better for society. This concise view of the educational proposition of today is exactly the plan which the local schools are endeavoring to carry out. They are not neglecting the few who desire to enter college or the learned professions, but they are striving to give the "ninety-and-nine who cannot hope to go to college" something which will fit them immediately for the serious task of making their own way in the world as soon as they leave the grades or high school.

AGED WOMAN MEETS DEATH

Two Others Injured In Runaway at Minneapolis.

Mrs. Walter Adams was killed and her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Ballard, and the Ballard coachman, Nathan Tolan, were seriously hurt at Minneapolis when the Ballard carriage struck a telegraph pole and was wrecked in a runaway. Mrs. Adams, who was eighty-four years old, made her home with her daughter.

Mrs. Ballard and her mother were on their way down town. At the top of Lowry hill the two horses became frightened and bolted. Tolan could not control them and they dashed down the hill. The carriage crashed into a telephone pole and was demolished.

The two women and the driver were hurled to the street. The horses broke away and continued their flight.

HILL EVADES THE QUESTION

Great Northern Chairman Silent on Retirement Rumor.

While passing through Chicago on his way to New York James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern road, again evaded the question relative to his retirement May 15 from active railroad work.

"If there is a statement to be made it will be made in due time," said Mr. Hill. "I haven't another word to say on that subject."

The fact that Mr. Hill will retire on the date mentioned, however, has been confirmed in half a dozen quarters. Speaking of business conditions, Mr. Hill said:

"The Northwest is quiet, but sound. There is no menace, but the people are going slowly. It is too soon to make a forecast regarding agricultural conditions."

NELSON STILL UNDECIDED

Senior Minnesota Senator May or May Not Seek Re-Election.

SENATOR NELSON.

Knute Nelson is still undecided as to whether he will be a candidate to succeed himself in the United States senate. Knute Roe, a member of the Bemidji board of education, received a letter from Senator Nelson in which he said:

"I have not fully decided whether I shall be a candidate or not."

The senator also said he would make no public statement as to his choice between Colonel Roosevelt and President Taft, "believing," he says, "that to be a matter for the people to settle themselves."

IRON ON INDIAN RESERVATION

Geological Experts Discover Ore Within White Earth Lands.

Iron ore within the boundaries of the White Earth Indian reservation has been discovered by geological experts. Last fall, when there was much excitement concerning land titles to allotted Indian lands, experts from the geological survey were detailed to make examinations.

While no official statement has been made, it has been reported that there are veins of ore in the northeast portion of the reservation. It is further asserted that George H. Beaulieu and the Duluth syndicate has title to some of the lands upon which iron ore has been traced in that section.

Mr. Jos. F. Lovin has accepted the agency for Thief River Falls Marble & Granite Monumental Works.—Mahnomen Free Press.

Miss Selia Hance came up from Brooks, Friday evening, where she is teaching school, and spent a few days under the parental roof.

Dr. O. F. Mellby is over from Thief River Falls today to assist at an operation in the hospital here.—Warren Register, May 9th.

Gene Smith, the genial and affable representative of Kuhls & Stock, St. Paul, was calling on the local trade the first of the week, in the interest of "Acquillas".

P. A. Gunders, late of the Public Examiner's office, but now representing a St Paul stationery house, was registered at the Ogahmah Monday.

Eugen Hance, the "Tigers" first baseman went down to St. Hilaire last Saturday where he played with that team against Red Lake Falls Sunday afternoon.

Wm. J. Brown was over from Thief River Falls yesterday, and spent the day here attending to ditch business in the court house.—Warren Register, May 9th.

G. Larson and family, and Christ Strom came up from Thief River Falls yesterday for a short visit at the home of Martin T. Strom.—Holt Northern Light, May 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Halvor Rodegard are the happy parents of a 9 pound baby girl, born to them last Sunday. Halvor is wearing a broad smile and said "she's a dandy."

The Kiewel Brewing Company last week purchased a fine iron gray delivery team from Liveryman Dixon at Warren. Knute Swanson feels very proud of them and says they are certainly "high lifed."

Mrs. C. A. Robbecke accompanied by Dr. Booren went down to Lake Vergas Saturday morning and will get their cottages in shape for summer residence. Mrs. Robbecke will remain at the lake and Dr. Booren will spend a couple of days.

F. Fischer of Winthrop, Minn., has opened a bakery in the Ole Jarneson building on the west side of Main avenue. Mr. Fisher is a practical baker of long experience, and promises the citizens of this city the best and most up to date goods in the culinary line. As shipping facilities here are much better than any of the towns in this section of the state this bakery will undoubtedly cater to the surrounding country and will probably do a rushing business.

The remains of Miss Clare Gravlie were brought to this city from Minneapolis by Mrs. Buringsrude Tuesday evening. The funeral was held in this city Saturday afternoon.

Friday morning the fire department was called out for a small blaze in a shed back of the Carl Froseth residence on Horace ave. The damage done was but very little and no trouble was had in extinguishing the blaze.

Hance Wernedal of Hatter, N. D., was in the city last Saturday looking over farm land and city property. He seemed to be very much pleased with the appearance of Thief River Falls and vicinity.

Mrs. G. W. Booren will leave the latter part of this week for Stillwater, where she will visit for a short time, after which she expects to return to Loon Lake, near Vergas, where the doctor has a summer cottage, and spend the balance of the summer.

Last week the fire apparatus was removed from its former location in the little shed back of the Prichard lumber yard, to the new brick building in the east half of the new power house. The firemen are all well satisfied with the new building.

"Sig" Becken took a trip out to his farm east of this city the latter part of last week to oversee the work which is going on. He has a crew of men busily engaged at turning the sod and expects to have a well improved farm in a short time.

H. Wayne, proprietor of the Bazaar, has just opened a new store at the East end of the bridge, called the Riverside Store, and has a full and complete line of merchandise, which he is prepared to sell at prices that will please.

COMMISSIONER HEDEEN RESIGNS.

Tenders His Resignation on Account of Removing from County—Will Elect Successor Saturday.

Owing to the fact that he will very shortly remove from this county and take up his residence in Douglas county, near Alexandria, County Commissioner Peter Hedeen has tendered his resignation to the county board. Out of necessity the resignation will be accepted, and County Auditor Fasel has notified the various chairmen of the town boards of the Fifth Commissioners District to meet at the court house Saturday at 2 o'clock for the purpose of electing his successor.

The district represented by Mr. Hedeen is composed of the towns of Kratka, Smiley, Wyandotte, Mayfield, Deer Park and Smiley.

Commissioner Hedeen has been a careful and painstaking official and Pennington county is sorry to lose so efficient a commissioner. The NEWS, however, on behalf of the citizens of this county, congratulates Douglas county on the securing of a first class, energetic and loyal citizen.

Entertained at Cards.

Mrs. G. W. Booren gave a very delightful informal card party at her home on the East side last Wednesday afternoon, sixteen ladies being present, "Rum" being the game indulged in. The head prize was carried off by Mrs. Harr Parew, while Mrs. C. R. Stowell was the recipient of the foot prize.

Delicious refreshments were served sonsisting of salads, cake, coffee and "Rum" pudding, and a very pleasant time was had by all.

Any reader of these notes desiring full particulars in regard to making the King or split log drag may secure them by writing the department of agriculture at Washington for farmers' bulletin No. 321, entitled "The Use of the Split Log Drag on Earth Roads."

The shipwreck of the great liner Titanic brings out most forcibly the fact that a good many theories that look all right on paper go to smash when they come in contact with actual things and facts. In the case referred to the nice theory was an unsinkable ship; the cold fact, an iceberg.

It may be that it can be done, but the writer has never seen the yard about the farm home very neat or graced with flower beds where the chickens were found roosting on the railing to the front porch and where the young porkers were scratching their backs on the corner of the milk house.

Cuss words may ease for the time being the feelings of the fellow who utters them, but they have a mighty injurious effect on the nervous system and milk production of a sensitive dairy cow. Whistling, which expresses an entirely different state of mind, has just as different an effect upon the bovine.

The vacant places in an orchard caused by poor stock, injury in cultivation or borers it may be well to fill in with younger trees up to the age of about eight years. After that time the older trees occupy the ground so fully with their root systems that young trees set make very little growth and seldom amount to much when they arrive at a bearing age.

The galvanized hen coop, supposed to be quite an improvement over the apple barrel of our mothers and grandmothers that rested gently on its side, may have some advantages over that primitive contraption, but it also has a drawback or two. It is quite cold around the edges during a cold spell and hotter than blazes when left in the sunshine when the mercury is pulsating around the ninety or hundred mark.

A sample of shelled seed corn that the writer tested the other day showed six dead kernels out of fifteen, or more than 30 per cent. It is just such a showing as this, without the possibility of discarding the ears from which these dead kernels came, that makes the buying of shelled seed corn so risky a proposition. And this makes nothing of the further difficulty of determining whether the seed was grown in Minnesota or Kansas.

Time was when the farmer who used to do a lot of hand work in his corn and potato patches would have had a good laugh at the fellow mounted on a riding corn plow with a canopy over his head to keep off the sun, but not so now. Neither does anybody laugh at the fellow who saves himself by riding on the two wheeled gear attached to the big four horse harrow. People are coming to the opinion that there is no particular merit in squandering physical energy when one can just as well conserve it.

Just because one does not have a lot of money to put into it is no reason why the job of trying to improve the home premises should be abandoned. If the borders and corners are cleared up, the lawn kept nicely mowed and a flower bed or two set out and a few shrubs planted a pretty ordinary front door yard can be transformed. A little time and a real desire to make the place neat and attractive will do wonders. How does your place look as you come on to it off the main road and are the boys and girls living there proud of it or do they think of it as a sort of roosting place?

Provided the farmer himself is a fit companion for his own or some other fellow's boy, there is no place where a town boy can put in the months of the summer vacation to better advantage than on a nearby farm. Not only will he have a means of working off his surplus animal energy, which is often the cause of his getting into all kinds of mischief if he loafs around town, but he learns to do useful work, gets acquainted with the farm animals and machinery, develops his muscles as well as his wits and besides this learns the value of time and money. A scad of boys the writer knows and whom our readers know would be infinitely better off if they spent the coming summer in the manner outlined.

There is a happy mean between a slovenly neglect of the home and its duties by the wife and the other extreme which finds expression in such a devotion to the home duties that she has little or no time for anything else. We have in mind just such a case, and it is putting it mildly to say that this good woman, though deservedly reputed as one of the best housekeepers in her community, is little better than a galley slave when it comes to being tied to her home and its work. While without question she gets much satisfaction out of keeping her home so shipshape, so much energy is required that she has little to spare for other activities that would serve to broaden her interests and make life more worth while. More than this, her stress of work keeps her in a tired and run down condition, which in the end is bound to mean fewer years of life. Now and then she should let the work go hang, rest up and get a bit more enjoyment out of life. She would live better and longer, and the members of her family wouldn't suffer because of it, either.

TRUTH ABOUT DRY FARMING.

It is a trait of human nature, rather than of folks who live in a particular section of the country to paint in glowing terms the advantages and to minimize or say nothing of the disadvantages of the thing or things they may have for sale. Particularly is this true of those selling land, and it holds of boomers who are trying to dispose of farms in the dry country as truly as of those in the south who try to palm off as agricultural land alligator swamps and mosquito and malaria ranches. In the face of this type of misrepresentation it is refreshing to note the following paragraph, which is from the literature published by the state board of immigration of Colorado. The facts set forth are true not only of Colorado, but of practically all of the vast arid and semiarid territory west of the two hundredth meridian:

"Dry land farming is a continual fight against relentless, unfavorable conditions. Success depends upon the man—his courage, his knowledge, his judgment and his persistence. Physical strength of both men and women is a large factor in this struggle. With the best seeds and methods of tillage, there will be some years of total failure and many others of short crops. It is safest to lay plans that will furnish a living with an average of two failures each five years. There have been three consecutive years of no crops, followed by as many years of good crops. Conditions are much more favorable than they were twenty or even ten years ago. There has been no increase in the rainfall, but the methods of storing and holding moisture in the soil are better understood. Today there are dry land plants that will produce crops with limited rainfall, and seeds of these crops that have been selected and bred under arid conditions are the best for use."

A NEW DAIRY QUEEN.

A five-year-old Holstein cow named Banostine Belle De Kol, owned by Dimmick Bros. of Ohio, has lately broken all records for production of butter fat. Her best record for milk for seven days was 672 pounds, which produced 24.69 pounds of butter fat, or the equivalent of thirty pounds of commercial butter. Her milk output for thirty days was 2,828 pounds, which yielded ninety-nine pounds of butter fat, while her milk record for the year was 27,404 pounds, which tested 3.86 and yielded 1,058 pounds of butter fat, which would make 1,323 pounds of butter. This, as will be seen, is an average of over three and one-half pounds per day for 365 days. Banostine Belle De Kol's ration consisted of ensilage and alfalfa, roots, dried beet pulp, green corn, green clover and other green food available and a grain ration consisting largely of bran and oats that varied from nine to twenty-five pounds per day, depending upon the amount of milk produced.

THE ROSE BED.

It is doubtful if any flowers that can be grown surpass the rose family in variety of color or fragrance. While the rose garden may contain many other varieties, it is not complete without the following: Teas—Maman Cochet, Perle des Jardin, Marechal Niel; hybrid teas—Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Killarney and Caroline Testout; hybrid perpetuals—American Beauty, Frau Karl Druschki, the white American Beauty. The plants for starting the bed should be got from a reliable florist, should be set in a bed of mixed clay and loam, well fertilized; should be watered frequently and kept free from slugs, lice and mildew, road dust being good for the first, tobacco tea for the second and powdered sulphur for the third pest. They also should be kept well hoed and free from grass and weeds.

A LATE TEST ADVISABLE.

How seed corn that shows a nearly perfect germination test the latter part of January may be dead when tested in April is nicely shown in an incident related to the writer by a friend the other day. The batch of corn referred to showed a test of 98 per cent the latter part of January. Up to that time it had been dry, being stored in a vacant house. Early in February a warm wet spell ensued, followed by severe cold. In this interval the seed ears gathered dampness. In April, without further testing, this seed was sold as guaranteed to grow on the basis of the January test. But it didn't grow, and the farmer who sold it in good faith had a peck of trouble on his hands. The incident makes plain why corn should be tested just before it is planted to make assurance doubly sure.

HARROWING GROWING GRAIN.

A dry belt farmer of whom we read the other day increased his yield of wheat nine bushels per acre last year by giving the patch two harrowings after two light rains for the purpose of making a dust mulch and conserving the limited amount of moisture there was in the soil. The farmer in the humid sections may often increase his yield of small grain almost as much by doing the same thing following heavy rains that pack the earth so that it forms a crust under succeeding dry weather. If the dragging is done in the afternoon of bright days the treatment may be given after the grain is eight or ten inches high without doing it much injury. The dragging breaks the crust and allows the soil to "breathe."

ROYALLY WELCOMED IN INDIA

Duke and Duchess of Sodermanland Visit Various Parts of the Country. Norwegian Railroad a Monument to Engineering Skill—King of Denmark to Personally Receive Gift of Park From Danish-American Committee.

SWEDEN.

The Duke and Duchess of Sodermanland, who during the greater part of March have been traveling in various parts of India, were during the latter part of March the guests of the governor-general and his wife at Bombay. There they enjoyed a good rest after their extensive journey through India, where they visited not less than nine cities in the space of one month. At Bombay they visited all the places of interest, such as the "Silent Tower" and the grotto temple "Elefanta." Wherever they journeyed they were very hospitably received and have in nearly all instances been entertained by the officials of the British government. At a recent charity entertainment that was given in Bombay the box which was occupied by the duke and duchess was decorated in the Swedish colors and when they entered and left the theater Swedish national airs were rendered. Through their entire trip through India it is a singular thing that Swedish butter has been served on their table. The direct reason for this is that one of the owners of India's greatest and most prosperous dairy is a Swede by the name of Edward Keventor, whose dairy industry at Aligarh is one of the greatest institutions of its kind in all India. So popular has Swedish butter become in this vast empire that it is in constant demand and he has succeeded in expanding his business to such proportions during the past ten years that he is now a millionaire several times over. On March 23 the duke and duchess arrived at Ceylon and later departed for Nice and Naples, where at the latter city they were the guests of the king and queen of Italy. They have now returned to Stockholm, where they were received with open arms after their long journey in India and the Southern European countries. The duke and duchess are very popular in Stockholm and there was a large crowd at the Central station to greet them on their return.

The sister of the Swedish crown princess has fine artistic talent and recently she has been exhibiting her productions in London, where her works of art have commanded a great deal of attention from the public as well as from competent art critics. The young artist referred to is the Princess Patricia, who is at present with her parents, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the former being governor general of Canada. One of the paintings that she is exhibiting is a scenery view from Ottawa, Canada, where the natural scenery is said to resemble that of Sweden in a very high degree. It was for this reason, says the sister of Princess Patricia, who is the crown princess of Sweden, that the former chose this particular line of landscape painting. Princess Patricia has been in Sweden and has traveled extensively in the northern section of the country and has on more than one occasion expressed her preference for Swedish scenes and Swedish art. It is understood that it is Princess Patricia's desire to soon make another journey to the northern section of Sweden where she can find the motifs that she loves to portray. Her Canadian painting which is now on exhibition in London will soon make its appearance in New York art museums, where it is sure to find many admirers.

According to the French journal Matin (Paris) Dr. Svante Arrhenius, the scientist, has developed a mighty interesting theory in the field of electricity, which will certainly cause a great deal of persistent inquiry in the future on the part of investigating electricians, inventors and scientists. The French journal relates that Dr. Arrhenius contends that while the limit for electrical investigations so far as nature is concerned are far from exhausted there is no reason why there should not also be a field for electric investigation so far as the physical body of human beings is concerned. The journal states further that Dr. Arrhenius relates an electrical experiment which was made with school children of Stockholm not long ago, which brought forth the result that by means of the injection of electricity into the human system the minds of the subjects quickened considerably and that it proved, at least for the time being, that such scholars were brighter and more conceptive than the ordinary scholars. Anyway Dr. Arrhenius has offered something decidedly new in the field of electric inventions and the Matin devotes much space to the efforts of Dr. Arrhenius to call the attention of the world's scientists to this branch of electrical progress.

NORWAY.

In the northern part of Norway there is a stretch of railroad of about twenty-four miles which in engineering skill and cost of construction rivals anything in the world. It has 184 tunnels and crosses twenty-four bridges. Three of these are built in masonry, one having a span of 150 feet, with eight seventy-foot spans. The dynamite used in excavating ran up to 1,900,000 pounds. The line cost $15,600,000. It runs through a wilder stretch of country than any other European railroad, where the winter lasts nine months and where snowfall is exceedingly heavy and the rain storms terrific. These tunnels and bridges are among the many subjects which are now being shown by means of moving pictures in the larger cities of the United States and England and seldom fail to enthuse the audience.

A tall mountain, says one of the recent dispatches from Christiania, near the South pole, the tallest, and in the words of Roald Amundsen, the most beautiful in the South pole range, is to bear the name of an American woman. It is known as Mount Ruth Gade, and the woman honored is Mrs. Ruth Gade, whose husband, John A. Gade, is an architect at present in the city of New York. When he was last in New York city Amundsen was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gade, from whom he received a substantial contribution for his expedition to the South pole. "When I come very close to the pole," he said on departing, "I shall look around for something very beautiful and name it for Mrs. Gade." Mr. Gade not long ago received a personal letter from Amundsen stating that he had carried out his promise.

In the sudden death of Rev. N. J. Ellestad, vice president of the United Norwegian church of America, that body has lost a veritable tower of strength. There were probably few men who were more generally loved in that synod than was he. Tall of stature, stately in appearance, irenic in disposition, forceful and illuminating as a speaker, he could move large bodies as few men could. When storms arose and the waves of controversy rose high, he possessed the happy faculty of saying the right word at the right time, and thus piloted the synod over many a dangerous sea. He was a born missionary, and for nine years superintended the work of missions in the United church. The loss sustained by the sudden removal of this inspiring personality is most deeply felt.

Rev. Dr. Klaveness, a pastor in the state church of Norway, has attracted considerable attention on account of an article which he wrote and which he published in one of the periodicals of Christiania some time ago. For some time he has been an advocate of the so called modern theology, but now declares that he can do it no longer. This theology, says Dr. Klaveness, undermines the authority of the Bible and faith in miracles, which are inseparably united with faith in a living God. It is not the right thing to confess the "holy faith," says Klaveness, to the congregation on Sunday in the church and on Monday attack the same in a lecture. He claims that such a mode of procedure would destroy not only the moral confidence in the ministry among believers, but also among the free thinkers.

DENMARK.

The king of Denmark has promised to be present at the Copenhagen city hall Aug. 3 to receive on behalf of Denmark from the Danish-American committee the national park which has been purchased in Jutland at the instance of the committee of which Dr. Henius is president. This park embraces some 300 acres of typical, picturesque Jutland moorland. Under modern developments this open moor country is fast disappearing, so the purchase was particularly timely. A cantata, specially written and composed for this occasion, will be sung and Dr. Henius will deliver an address. Dr. Henius is well known in Chicago, where he is one of the leading Danes on the West Side, and has taken a great deal of interest in Danish-American culture in general in this country. On the evening of Aug. 3 at Copenhagen the corporation of Copenhagen will entertain the distinguished American visitors and there will be a grand fete. The members of the committee will afterwards proceed to Rabild, the name of the park, where on Aug. 5 the festivities will be continued and the crown prince of Denmark will participate.

From Copenhagen comes a dispatch denying the truth of the report that the Danish West Indies are to be sold to the United States. This rumor has been current for some time, but the Politiken, a leading daily paper of Copenhagen, denies this. It is stated furthermore that a political faction in Denmark desired that the islands be sold to the United States, inasmuch as they did not bring Denmark any [illegible]. Yet since it was decided to [illegible] Thomas harbor there has been a decided change of sentiment in Denmark and the popular belief now is that the government will under no circumstances surrender its right and sovereignty over the West Indies. On the other hand there are reports to the effect that Danish syndicates are planning extensive industrial projects on the islands.

COMMISSIONERS' PROCEEDINGS

Thief River Falls, Minn.
May 2nd., 1912.

On the call of the County Auditor, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 230 of the Laws of of 1905, and Acts amendatory thereof, the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington Co met in special session at the Office of the County Auditor, at 1:00 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of hearing and considering the Petition of Elick Halvorson and others for the establishment of a public drainage ditch, and for the purpose of considering such further business as may legally come before said Board.

Meeting called to order by the Chairman at 1:00 o'clock P. M.

Members present, Aubol, Shaw, Wold, Hedeen, Larson.

Members absent, None.

Minutes of the meetings of Jan. 2nd., Feb. 9th., March 28th. and 29th., were read and duly approved as read.

The petition of Elick Halvorson and others for a county ditch in the County of Pennington was presented to the Board and read, and the Board being satisfied that all the conditions of Chapter 230 of the Laws of 1905, and Acts amendatory thereof, has been complied with, on motion made by Commissioner Shaw, seconded by Commissioner Wold, and carried unanimously, the following resolution appointing an engineer to survey the route of said proposed ditch was passed.

RESOLUTION APPOINTING ENGINEER IN DITCH PROCEEDINGS.

In the Matter of the Petition of Elick Halverson and Others for Locating and Constructing County Ditch No. 58 in the County of Pennington State of Minnesota.

State of Minnesota } ss
County of Pennington }

WHEREAS, A petition bearing date the 4th day of March 1912, signed by Elick Halvorson and others praying for the establishment of a certain Drainage Ditch in said County, designated and numbered by the County Auditor as County Ditch No. 58, the route of which is more fully described in said petition and a proper bond accompanying the same have been filed with the County Auditor of said County, as by law required.

AND, WHEREAS, It appears by satisfactory proof to the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, that due notice of the pendency of said petition, and the time and place at which the same would be heard, has been given as required by law:

NOW, THEREFORE, We, the Board of County Commissioners of said County, at a Special session held this day, do hereby appoint C. H. Martz as a competent and experienced engineer to make an accurate survey of the line of said Drainage Ditch from its source to its outlet, as provided and specified by Chapter 230 of the General Laws of 1905, and after completing his duties as such engineer to make and file his report with County Auditor of said County, on or before the 20th day of May 1912.

Dated May 2nd. 1912

By the Board.

Ed. A. Aubol,
Chairman Board County Commissioners of Pennington County.
(Auditors Seal)
Attest:
A. H Fasel,
County Auditor.

On motion carried unanimously the following order appointing Viewers for County Ditch No. 58 was made.

ORDER APPOINTING VIEWERS.

In the Matter of the Petition of Elick Halvorson and others for County Ditch No 58 in the County of Pennington State of Minnesota.

State of Minnesota } ss
County of Pennington }

WHEREAS, A petion bearing date the 4th day of March A. D. 1912, signed by Elick Halverson and others praying for the establishment of a ditch in said County, designated and numbered by the County Auditor as County Ditch No. 58, the route of which is fully described in said petition, together with a proper bond accompaning the same, has been filed with the County Auditor of said County; and said County Auditor has given due notice of the pendency of said petition, and the said notice has been published and served as by law required; and hearing had on said petition pursuant to said notice; and the said County Board of said County have heretofore duly appointed a competent engineer, to wit: C. H. Martz to make a survey of said ditch.

NOW THEREFORE, We the County Board of said County at a Special session held this day, do hereby appoint John O. Swanson, of Wylie, Minn. and K. O Gigstad and G. K. Haavi three resident freeholders of said County, who are not interested in the construction of said proposed work, and not of kin to any of the parties known to be interested therein, to be viewers of said proposed work and of the route thereof. The said viewers shall first take an oath to faithfully perform their duties as such viewers, and thereafter, having received a certified copy of the petition for said ditch and of the order appointing them such viewers and of the order of the County Auditor of said County designating the time and place of the first meeting of said viewers, shall meet at the time and place specified, in the order of the County Auditor aforesaid and shall proceed to view said proposed work, and the land damaged or benefited thereby; and, having completed said view and examination of said work, shall make and file their report thereof with said County Auditor of said County within thirty days from the date of their first meeting. In said report they shall in tabular form give the names of the owners of each tract of land to be benefited or damaged by said proposed work, the description of each tract of land so benefited or damaged (said names of owners to be the same as appear on the County tax duplicates of said County, and the description to be given in legal form), and the total number of acres in each of said tracts, the estimated number of acres in each tract of land, to be benefited or damaged (as the case may be), the number of acres added to any tract by the total or partial drainage of any meandered lake, or the change of any water course and the location and value of such added land; the damage, if any, to riparian rights pertaining to any tract, and the amount that each tract of land will be benefited or damaged by the construction of said work. In case said ditch drains, either in whole or in part, any public or corporate road or railroad, or benefits any such road so that the roadbed or traveled track of any such road will be made better by the construction of said ditch, said viewers shall estimate the benefits arising therefrom to said road, roadbeds or railroads, and report said benefits, together with the names of roads and other particulars necessary to identify the corporations, private or public, to be benefited thereby, and amounts of benefits to each; they shall report as part of such tabular statement the damages awarded to each municipal or other corporation for injury to any road or roadbed, and from the necessary construction and maintenance of any bridge, culverts or other works rendered necessary by the establishment of such ditch, stating the same separately. They shall also report the total estimated benefits in respect to said ditch entire, and branches thereof, if any, and also whether or not, in their opinion, the estimated expense of construction of said ditch including the damages assessed therefor, is greater than the utility of said proposed ditch; and whether or not said proposed ditch is impracticable for any reason, and if so, stating the reason why it should not be constructed. In making said view and survey of said proposed work and their report thereon, the said viewers shall proceed according to Chapter 230 of the General Laws of 1905.

In the matter of the petition of W. E. Wood and others for the formation of a new common school district, the Board having heard all the persons interested, and the evidence and arguments for and against the granting of said petition, and duly considered the same, did by motion unanimously carried, make the following order.

ORDER OF FORMATION OF NEW SCHOOL DISTRICT.

The petition of W. E. Wood and others, for the formation of a new Common School District out of the territory therein described, came on to be heard by the County Board of Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the Office of the County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls in said county, on Thursday the 2nd day of May 1912, at 2:00 o'clock P. M.; and said Board having at said time and place heard all persons interested and the evidence and arguments for and against the granting of said petition, and duly considered the same, finds as follows:

First—That said petition was presented to this Board on the 28th day of March 1912; was signed and acknowledged by a majority of the freeholders qualified to vote for school officers residing in the territory therein described; and was duly approved by the County Superintendent of Schools of said county.

Second—That notice of said hearing on said petition was duly given by the publication of the order of this Board for said hearing in the newspaper known as Thief River Falls News published and printed in said county, for two weeks prior to said day of hearing, and by the posting of copies of said order in three of the most public places in the territory described in said petition for at least ten days before said day of hearing; and by the service of said order by mail upon the clerks of each existing school district affected as being in whole or in part with in the territory described in said petition, to wit: the Clerk of School District No. 51 at least ten days before said day of hearing.

Third—That it is expedient and proper that the territory hereinafter described be formed into a new Common School District for the reasons following, to wit: That said District as now constituted is too irregular and for that reason it is impossible to locate the school house in a central place convenient to all school children in said district and that one third of said school children are now compelled to travel two miles to reach the school house as now located, and for that reason it has become necessary to maintain two schools in said district.

Fourth—That the present existing school district in said county that will be affected by the formation of said new school district out of the territory hereinafter described are as follows, to wit: School District No. 51, from which the following territory will be detached and taken the NW¼ Sec. 23, all of Sec. 22; N½ of Sec. 27; Lots 4-5-6 and E½ of NW¼ and the NW¼ of the NW¼, the NE¼ and N½ of the SE¼ of Sec 28; all of Sec. 21; Lot 5 and N½ of the NW¼ of Sec. 20; that part of Lot 6 lying in the NE¼ of the SW¼ of Sec. 20; the SE¼ of Sec. 17; the SW¼ of Sec. 16; the E½ of Sec. 16, Lots 4-5 and 8 and SE¼ of SW¼ of Sec 10; Lot 2 and S½ of NW¼ and NW¼ of NW¼ and Lot 3, and SW¼, the SW¼ of SE¼ and Lots 6 and 7 of Sec. 15; Lots 5 6-7 in Sec. 14; the SE¼ of SE¼ of Sec. 28; all in the Township of Smiley in said County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, in which territory 27 children of school age live.

Fifth—That the number of persons residing in the terriiory hereinafter described and formed into a new school district is eighty-eight.

WHEREFORE IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be, and the same hereby is granted; and that the territory consisting of those tracts of land in said County of Pennington, described as follows, to wit: The nw¼ of Sec. 23; all of Sec. 22; n½ of Sec. 27; Lots 4, 5 and 6 and the e½ of nw¼, and the nw¼ of nw¼, the ne¼, and the n½ of the se¼ of Sec. 28; all of Sec. 21; Lot 5 and the n½ of nw¼ of Sec. 20; that part of Lot 6 lying and being in the ne¼ of the sw¼ of Sec. 20; the se¼ of Sec. 17; the sw¼ of Sec; the e½ of Sec. 16; Lots 4, 5 and 8 and the se¼ of sw¼ of Sec. 10; Lot 2 and the s½ of the nw¼, and the nw¼ of nw¼ and Lot 3, and the sw¼; the sw¼ of the se¼ and Lots 6 and 7 in Sec. 15; Lots 5, 6 and 7 in Sec. 14; the se¼ of se¼ of Sec. 28, all in the Township of Smiley, in said County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, be, and the same hereby is, formed and constituted into a new Common School District, and named and designated Common School District No. 4 of the County of Pennington State of Minnesota; and that the title to all school houses and schoolhouse sites within the said territory, be and the same hereby are, vested in the said Common School District No. 4 hereby formed and constituted.

Be it further ordered, That said New Common School District No. 4 shall pay to said School District No. 51 the sum of $300 00 in orders on School District No. 4, for and in consideration that said School District No. 4 retain the school house located in the territory now constituting said New School District No. 4.

It is further ordered, That on and after this date, all moneys arising from Tax collections and all other sources, and due or payable to School District No. 51 as originally constituted, shall be distributed and paid to said respective Districts Numbered 4 and 51 in proportion to the assessed valuation of the said respective Districts.

It is further ordered, That said School District No. 51 shall assume and pay all outstanding warrants or orders against said District.

Dated May 2nd 1912.

In the matter of the petition of H. Bjornson to be set off from school district No. 44 to school district No. 66, the said Board having heard all parties interested in said matter, and duly considered the same, did by a moiton duly carried make the following order.

ORDER SETTING OFF FREEHOLDER FROM ONE SCHOOL DISTRICT TO ANOTHER.

THE PETITION OF H. Bjornson praying that he, together with certain lands described in said petition, to be set off from School District No 44 to School District No. 66 in the County of Pennington State of Minnesota, came on to be heard by this Board at the office of the County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls in said county, on the 2nd day of May 1912, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and said Board having heard all parties interested in said matter, and duly considered the same, finds as follows:

First—That said petition was duly approved by the County Superintendent of Schools of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Second—That notice of hearing on said petition has been duly given by the publishing, posting and serving of the order of hearing of this Board on said petition, as by law required.

Third—That said petitioner is the owner of certain lands now situated in School District No. 44 in said County, described as follows, to wit:—

The s½ of the nw¼, and lots 3 and 4 of section 3, township 153, range 41 w, containing 155 72 acres; also the sw¼ of section 3, township 153, range 41 w, containing 160 acres, which lands adjoin (1) School District No 66 in said County.

Fourth—That this Board finds the following valid reasons for setting off said petitioner from said School District No. 44 to said School District No 66, to wit:

That the distance from my residence to the school house in district No. 44 is more than 2¼ miles, but to the school house in district No. 66 it is a little over 1½ miles; the road is therefore more than ½ mile shorter from my residence to the school house in said district No. 66 than it is to the school house in said district No. 44, and at the same time better and in a more passable condition all the time.

WHEREFORE IT IS ORDERED, that the said petitioner H. Bjornson together with said land owned by him be, and he hereby is, set off and detached from said School District No. 44 and attached to and made a part of said School District No. 66; and that all of the lands herein described be, and hereby are, made a part of said School District last above named. In the matter of the petition of Ole Stromme to be set off from School district No. 51, to school district No. 221, the said Board having heard all parties interested in said matter, and duly considered the same, did by a motion duly carried make the following order.

ORDER SETTING OFF FREEHOLDER FROM ONE SCHOOL DISTRICT TO ANOTHER.

THE PETITION OF Ole Stromme praying that he, together with certain lands described in said petition, to be set off from School District No. 51, to school District No. 221 in the County of Pennington State of Minnesota, came on to be heard by this Board at the office of the County Auditor in the city of Thief River Falls in said county, on the 2nd day of May 1912, at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon, and said Board having heard all parties interested in said matter, and duly considered the same, finds as follows:

First—That said petition was duly approved by the County Superintendent of schools of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Second—That notice of hearing on said petition has been duly given by the publishing, posting and serving of the order of hearing of this Board on said petition, as by law required.

Third—That said petitioner is the owner of certain lands now situated in School District No. 51 in said County, Described as follows, to wit:

The se¼ of section twenty-eight (28), township one hundred fifty-three (153) range forty-two (42), which lands adjoin School District No. 221 in said County.

Fourth—That this Board finds the following valid reasons for setting off said petitioner from said School No. 51 to said School District No. 221, to wit:

That he is over three miles distant from the school house in said District No. 51, to which he now belongs, and that the school house in said district No. 221 is only one mile and a half distant from the home of your petitioner, and that it would for this reason be more convenient for your petitioner to belong to said District No. 221, and that the roads leading to the school in district No. 221 are in good condition, whereas the roads leading to school house in to district No. 51 are in poor condition and almost impassible.

WHEREFORE IT IS ORDERED, that the said petitioner Ole Stromme together with said land owned by him be, and he hereby is, set off and detached from said School District No. 51 and attached to and made a part of said School District No. 221; and that all of the lands herein described be, and hereby are, made a part of said School District last above named. In the matter of the petition of Carl Dolemo and others for the formation of a new common school district, the following order was made.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR FORMATION OF NEW COMMON OR INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT.

WHEREAS, a petition was, on the 2nd day of May 1912, presented to the County Board of Pennington County, Minnesota, purporting to be signed by a majority of the free holders qualified to vote for school officers residing in the territory hereinafter described, and approved by the Superintendent of Schools of said county, praying that a new common School District be formed out of that certain territory in said county composed of those tracts of land described as follows, to wit: All of Sections one (1) two (2) three (3) ten (10) eleven (11) twelve (12) thirteen (13) fourteen (14) and fifteen (15) in township one hundred fifty-three (153) range thirty-nine (39) west of the 5th principal Meridain for the reasons following, to wit:

The settling of the territory and the need of a school house more easily accessable, and stating that the number of persons who reside in said territory is 50 or more; the names of all children of school age who reside in said territory and the present existing school districts in which each of said children lives; and that said territory lies within the boundaries of the following School Districts in said county, to wit: School District No 59 in which 55 of said children live:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, that said petition be heard at a meeting of this Board to be held at the office of the County Auditor in the city of Thief River Falls in said county, on Tuesday the 4th day of June 1912, at 1:00 o'clock p. m., at which time and place this Board will hear all persons interested, and their evidence and arguments, for and against the granting of said petition.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that notice of said hearing be given by the publication of this order for two consecutive weeks prior to said hearing in the Eleven Towns; by the posting of copies thereof in three of the most public places in each of the above named school districts affected thereby, at least ten days before said day of hearing; and by the mailing of copies thereof to the clerk of each of the above named districts affected thereby at least ten days before said day of hearing; according to law.

Mr. McKercher from the committee on organization then moved that the temporary organization be made perment, and this motion was carried without a dissenting vote.

At this point County Auditor Trovaton touched off a few firecrackers, pin wheels and small roman candles by moving that a committee of three be appointed to canvas the convention for the purpose of ascertaining the temper of the delegates and their choice of candidates to be voted for at the district and state conventions. After some little flurry this matter was adjusted amicably by Mr. Trovaton withdrawing his motion, and leaving the matter to the convention after the resolutions committee had reported.

E. A. Mosten, from the committee on resolutions, here started the real fireworks, and for a time it looked as though the heretofore smooth running machine might be thrown out of kilter. When Mr. Mosten threw over the lever from the low gear to the high speed by the introduction of the resplutions, it looked for a time that the machine might not respond, but it finally pulled out of the rut, and regained its lost motion, and the resolution was passed as originally read, although it was necessary to take it up paragraph by paragraph. W. G. Hunt of Highlanding moved the adoption of the resolution as read, but Daniel Shaw objected to the second paragraph; contending that it was poor politics to send an instructed delegation, and claiming that this paragraph tied the hands of the delegates. After some debate it was decided to take up the various paragraphs separately, and after several amendments being offered to the objectionable section, and all being voted down, the resolution as originally presented was carried. Mr. Backe first moved to amend by striking out the words "Robert M. LaFollette," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "any progressive." The LaFollette element, however, would not stand for the change and this amendment was voted down. O. L. Bakken then moved that the name of Roosevelt be inserted in the resolution as the second choice of the convention, but this one met the fate of its predecessor, and was thrown on the scrap heap. The chairman put the motion for the adoption of the original paragraph; which was carried, and the succeeding paragraphs were carried without further friction. The resolution follows:

The Committee on Resolutions have the honor to report as follows:

The Republican of Pennington County, in Convention assembled, resolves as follows: That we are heartily in favor of the success of the Republican party, fully realizing that in the past it has been the party of progress, and we fully agree that the many reforms that our country stand in need of to-day, can be best realized through the party which has served us so well in the past.

If the success of the party is to continue, we are fully of the opinion that the so called, progressive element must prevail in the party councils and progressive men with progressive ideas must lead this year. To this end we favor the nomination for president of Robert M. LaFollette, and in case he can not be nominated then of some other man of honor and action who will favor reforms and principles such as are now advocated by Senator Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin and others.

For over forty years the farmers of the Northwest and of Minnesota in particular have consistently been in favor of the principles of a protective tariff. They accepted as a fact that protection would build up a home market for the products of the farm and that ultimately the farmer would come to his just reward.

The reciprocity pact having failed of adoption by the Canadian Government, we demand that said treaty be repealed as proposed by the bill recently introduced by our Hon Rep. Halvor Steenerson.

The firm stands taken by our United States Senators, Honorable Knute Nelson and Honorable Moses E. Clapp and by our Representative in Congress, Honorable Halvor Steenerson in their fight against the Canadian Reciprocity Pact meets with our heartiest commendation, and we respectfully ask that they continue the good fight, that in the end the trust protected manufacturer receive no more protection than does the American farmer.

We are heartily in favor of the principle of initiative, reforandum and recall as applied to laws and public offices, under reasonable safeguards.

Be it further resolved that this convention express its deep regret for the death of our late chairman of the County Central Committee, Mr John W. Eastman. Always a loyal Republican and active in the councils of the party, his removal was a distinct loss and we take this means of extending our sympathy to his surviving wife and relatives.

We extend our sincere thanks to Wilhelm Michelet, Daniel Shaw and others who made the successful effort to get the Pennington county delegation the number of delegates they were entitled to in the district and state convention and securing the holding of the district convention at our county seat, Thief River Falls.

Respectfully submitted
by the committee,
E. A. Mostue,
Chairman.

On motion of Dr. Swanson, the report of the committee on credentials was adopted unanimously.

The convention then named the following delegates to the State convention:

T. P. Hamre,	J. M. Bishop,
Andrew Trovotan,	C. L. Dobner,
O. H. Olson,	O. L. Bakken,
S. Singer,	W. J Brown,
M. C. Cutter,	E. A. Mosten.

The following were named as delegates to the District convention:

P. O. Sorlum,	Frank Satre,
R J. McKercher;	Dr. C. Swanson,
Ed. Singer,	D. P. O'Neill,
Robert McGinn,	Wilhelm Michelet,
E. A. Mosten,	T. P. Hamre.

A committee consisting of D. P. O'Neil, Robert McGinn and T. P. Hamre was appointed to cooperate with the Commercial Club in entertaining delegates and out of town visitors at the district convention.

After some debate as to the necessity of electing alternates to the district convention, it finally being decided that none were necessary, the convention adjourned.

convention, and made a motion that his name be presented as the choice of the Ninth District at the state convention at Minneapolis tomorrow. As in the case of all other motions up to this time, this was carried without any opposition.

On motion a recess was taken until 1.30, to give the various committees an opportunity to complete their reports.

Afternoon Session.

Immediately upon the reconvering of the delegates the chairman announced that the convention was ready to hear the reports of its committees, and the same were presented and all were adopted unaminously and without debate with the exception of the report of the committee on resolutions.

The committee on nominations, Oscar Barness, Chairman and D. C. Jones, secretary, presented the names of Charles S. Stevens of Warren and Frank Lycan of Bemidji as district delegates to the Chicago convention, with Ed Mattson of Wilkin and Dr. Leach of Detroit as substitutes. The committee also formally presented the name of Senator A. L. Hanson of Ada for delegate at large and A. R. Charest as alternate. W. A. Marin of Crookston was endorsed as presidential elector.

The Congressional Committee reported that it had elected Guy A. Aubol of Crookston as chairman of the district Congressional Committee and Wilhelm Michelet of Thief River as secretary.

While the convention was waiting for the resolutions committee calls were made for speeches, those responding being Senator A. L. Hanson, Frank Lycan, Dr. G. S Wattum, Theo. Beaulieu, Daniel O'Neil, Mr. Huntoon, Ed. Mattson and others. None of the speakers made any extended remarks except Theo. Beaulieu, who is known as the silver tongued orator of the Chippewas. Mr. Beaulieu is an orator of ability, and his remarks were interrupted on several occasions by bursts of applause. He took occasion to laud the Republican party and to counsel harmony, and particularly lauded the records of Senator Clapp and Congressman Steenerson.

At this juncture the committee on resolutions announced its readiness to report, and the report caused the first flurry of the session. The resolutions were quite brief, consisting in the main of a re-iteration of the doctrines of the Republican party, as promulgated by the Progressives and as endorsed by Roosevelt; an endorsement of Congressman Steenerson, and winding up by instructing the delegates for Roosevelt.

LaFollette representatives of the committee presented an amendment, striking out the Roosevelt instructions and inserting instruction for the Wisconsin man, explaining that the amendment was simply for the purpose of allowing the LaFollette delegates a chance to go on record for their choice. The amendment was voted down by a vote of 118 to 36, the only counties voting for same being Clearwater, Kittson, Norman and Pennington.

G. Halvorson, chairman of the Pennington delegation then endeavored to get in an amendment for LaFollette for second choice, but the chair ruled this out of order and the original resolutions were adopted. After their adoption and after some debate, John H. Grass of Fergus Falls, a Roosevelt man, made a plea for an endorsement or an expression from the convention for LaFollette for second choice and the plea was granted, and a resolution was passed by a unanimous vote favoring the Senator of our neighboring state as second choice.

After a rising vote being taken thanking the citizens of Thief River for the manner of the entertainment of the visitors and the magnificent Auditorium provided for the delegates, an adjournment was had and three cheers given for Roosevelt and three for LaFollette.

Quick Returns.

Last Wednesday evening just as The News was going to press Mrs. G. T. Almen telephoned the loss of a valuable string of gold beads and requested the insertion of an ad, offering a reward for their return. The News was issued Thursday morning, and before evening the beads had been returned to the owner by two little girls who had found them, and learned of the owner through this paper. This is an illustration of the fact that advertising in The News brings quick results. This string of beads was not only valuable, but was a gift, and its loss would have meant much to Mrs. Almen.

Honor Local Man.

Governor Eberhart this week notified Daniel Shaw of his appointment on a committee to superintend and supervise the Minnesota exhibit at the next land show at Minneapolis. H. J. Maxfield, state emigration commissioner, is chairman of the committee, and the balance of the committee is composed of such men as Frederick Weyerhauser, A. C. Wedge, T. B. Walker and others. It is a distinctive honor for Thief River Falls to be represented on this committee, and a better selection could not have been made than Mr. Shaw.

Ole Geving, of Highlanding, was a caller at the News office last Wednesday, calling for the purpose of paying his respects, and also another year's subscription in advance.

O. L. Bakken has leased his tailor shop on Second street for the time being and is going to take a much needed rest. Mr. Bakken called last week and subscribed for The News in order that he might keep informed on local happenings.

HOSPITAL ASSURED

Enthusiastic Meeting Tuesday Evening --Dig Up.

THIS MEANS YOU

Don't Let the Interest Flag, but Get Busy.

WHOOP HER UP ! !

$4,000 Simoleons Up Now and More in Sight.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held at the Auditorium Tuesday evening for the purpose of further discussing hospital matters. Over 100 were present, and five loyal physicians of this city subscribed $4,000 toward the fund. This is a magnificent contribution on the part of the medics, and is a testimonial of their loyalty and fidelity. The only thing that now remains is for some of the enterprising business men to come across in a like manner and the ball will be started in good shape and we will have a hospital under way here in a short time that will be a credit to the city.

Oh, You Business Man ! !

Don't let the professional men get ahead of you, but get into the game with liberal contributions. We need the hospital, and we should have it, and you are the boys that can make it a positive proposition. This means a lasting and substantial monument to your generosity and liberality, and also means dollars to you. What helps the town, helps you, and certainly a magnificent hospital building will be of untold benefit to the city. Let the slogan be, "Everybody's Doin' It," and let's have that hospital building completed before the bumper crop that is now assured is harvested.

BOOSTS THIEF RIVER.

Norman County Editor at District Convention, Hands Us a Boquet.

Louis C. Garden, editor of the Gary Graphic, visits Thief River Falls for the first time last week and has the following to say about our thriving city in his editorial columns:

"Ye editor was among those from this county who attended the District Republican county convention at Thief River Falls last Wednesday. This was our first visit to that prosperous and thriving city and we must say that while it is comparatively a new place which needs many improvements, it was all that we expected of it. We visited among other places, the stores and these we can say were some magnificent institutions considering the size of the city, which goes to show that it is prosperous place. We also called on the newspaper men and had a long visit with the editor of the News. The editor is a new man in that city, coming there from Minneapolis only a short time ago, but he showed good judgment in locating in a prosperous city in the prosperous northern Minnesota. We can not help but mention their gigantic and elaborate auditorium. It is one of the finest structures of its kind in the state and would be high compliment to a city many times the size of Thief River Falls."

INDIAN INVASION.

White Earth Indians Win Opening Game of the Season by a score of 11 to 10.

The base ball season officially opened last Sunday and the locals under the leadership of Manager Hess, sallied forth and skirmished with the White Earth Indians.

Approximately five hundred enthusiastic fans turned out in support of the Thief River Falls team, and were not disappointed by the exhibition presented, despite the score.

Sunday was not an ideal day, a cold north west wind blowing continually across the diamond, was responsible for much of the loose handling of the ball. The "Indians" have the makings of a fast team, a little more practice in the fielding department will put them well in the running. Much satisfaction was expressed regarding the attendance. If the following games receive the support that last last Sundays game enjoyed, Thief River Falls will be assured of a place on the base ball map.

CONVENTION AT INTERNATIONAL.

June 20th and 21st 1912-Date set for meeting of Northern Minnesota Development Association.

The next convention of the Northern Minnesota Development Association will be held at International Falls, Minnesota, on the above mentioned dates.

The primary object of the association will be, of course, "boosting" for the northern part of the state. Incidently the citizens of International Falls are planning a program of entertainment for the delegates and their ladies that speaks well for the interest they have taken in helping the association attain its ends.

ELWELL LAW VALID

Supreme Court Last Week Overrules the Lower Court in Road Case.

WORK TO START HERE AT ONCE.

Twenty-five Mile Stretch East of Thief River Falls First to Be Improved.

On May seventeenth the Supreme Court of Minnesota rendered its decision in the injunction proceedings in the case of Fred H. Murray against State Treasurer, W. J. Smith.

This decision is of special interest to citizens of Pennington County, inasmuch as the test case was the direct result of this county's attempt to avail itself of the benefits of the Elwell law.

The law provides in effect that the county shall issue certificates of indebtedness for the work done, payable from one to ten years after the completion of the work. The cost of the construction will be derived as follows: The state to pay one half, the county one fourth, and the property benefited, one fourth.

It was regarding the legality of this last decision that the court was called upon to decide, as it was contended that this provision was in conflict with that part of the state constitution prohibiting state loans for public internal improvements.

The court decided that it was not, in the following language.

"The value of good roads is better understood," says the court, in holding that the decision in Spear against Flygare, twelve years ago, does not apply to this case." The farmer now has his automobile, his traction engines, and his telephone. He has all the facilities for reaching the best markets at the right time except the good road. We think it can fairly be said that the establishment and maintenance of a rural highway that gives the owner of land easy and convenient access to his markets changes the value of his land and constitutes a special benefit, different in character from the public or general benefit."

In all probability, Pennington County will profit by the court's decision in the immediate future. highway engineer, Geo. W. Cooley is credited with having said that within thirty or sixty days work would commence on the proposed twenty five mile road from Thief River Falls easterly.

AUTO CLUBS JOY RIDE

Crookston and Thief River Falls Auto Clubs Participate in First Run Yesterday.

TAKE DINNER AT THE AUDITORIUM

Pathfinder Car of Crookston Laid Out Route Last Friday—Business and Pleasure.

Last Friday morning bright and early Dr. G. A. Morley left Crookston in his pathfinder car to lay out the route, which was followed by the Crookston Auto Club in its run to Red Lake Falls, St. Hilliare, Thief River and Warren yesterday. The route followed by the pathfinder covered a distance of 113 4 miles and included four stops of one hour each.

Yesterday the Crookston club left that city at 6 o'clock a. m. and proceeded to Red Lake Falls, and thence to St. Hilliare and Thief River. Dinner was provided at the Auditorium by the Ladies of the Maccabees, after which the club, accompanied by members of the Auto Club of this city left for Warren, where supper was had, the Crookston club continuing on home and the locals returning to this city in the evening.

The trips of these auto clubs not only provides a means of relaxation and pleasure for the business men of the two cities, but also affords them an excellent opportunity of seeing the adjoining country and of becoming familiar with the roads between the several cities.

The following members from this city participated in the run, being accompanied by invited guests:

C. L. Dobner, E. M. F. Car; guests, ~~Mrs. J. W. Eastman, Mrs.~~ Daniel Shaw, Mrs. M. C. Cutter, and Miss Hazel Cutter.

F. J Stebbins—E. M. F. Car—Guests, C. R. Stowell, Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. Stebbins and Miss Goldie Stebbins.

Perl W. Mabey, Ford Car—Guests, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Zeh, and Mrs. Mabey.

Edward Korstad, Ford Car—Guests Oscar Sponheim, Dr. Crandall and Arnold Bjkerkhoel.

Dr. Mellby, Abbott Detroit Car—Guests, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Muzzy, and Auditor Lundgren of Warren.

John McKinney and Will Prichard in the former's car.

Pike Planted.

H. A. Gibbs of the State game and fish commission, situated at Detroit Minn., arrived in the city last Saturday with seventeen cans of wall eyed pike, which were "planted" at the junction of the Thief and Red Lake River.

In the absence of Game Warden Cook, Deputy Sheriff P. Midderigh assisted at the ceremony of emptying them into the river.

It will be some little time before the sportsmen of the community will reap any benefit from the game and fish commissions act, as the pike are but three days old. In time however, we may hope to have as an abundant supply of "wall eyes" as previously existed.

Goes Through Bridge.

Harry and Phil Hawkins unloaded a twenty ton Advance steam traction engine last Tuesday intending to take it to their farm near Carmel. Thursday afternoon the engine was "steamed up" and the start made. Progress thru the city was unretarded until the small wagon bridge on Dewey Ave. North, near the round house, was reached. There the heavy load proved too much for so frail a structure and as the rear wheels came upon the bridge the planking gave way, and the big engine crashed through the little bridge.

There were three persons on the machine at the time of the crash, none of whom sustained severe injuries other than bruised feet and shins. Saturday the large engine was leveled up and pulled out by an International Gasoline Traction engine, apparently uninjured by its plunge.

The damage to the bridge, in all probabilities, will be made good by the owners of the engine as the state law requires the owners or operators of traction engines to lay extra planking over bridges and culverts before attempting to cross them.

Delightful Card Party.

Mrs. J. W. Eastman entertained a few friends at cards Monday evening, Norwegian whist was the game selected for the entertainment of the majority of the guests, but Emil Zeh and Dr. Penney, who were detained until late in the evening had to be provided with some amusement and were allowed to open a little seven-up game in the corner--no stakes. First Prize for gentlemen was won by G. T. Almen, and Mrs. Melgaard carried off the honors of the ladies. Dr. Penney, having put it all over his apponent in the two handed game was given a consolation prize.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Melgaard, Mr. and Mrs. Mabey, Mr. and Mrs. Stebbins, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Zeh, Mr. and Mrs. Almen, Dr. and Mrs. Penney, Mr. and Mrs. Cutter, Mr. Stowell and Mr. Dobner.

Refreshments were served later in the evening and a very delightful time was had by all.

....School Notes....

Thursday of next week is Memorial Day and a legal holiday. Appropriate exercises will be held in the various rooms on Wednesday afternoon.

The manual training exhibit was removed from the Oen Mercantile windows last Friday. It attracted no little attention, and many doubted that the pupils had really made some of the articles. If the doubters would but visit the manual training building and the other industrial rooms, they would learn that the children are fast acquiring skill with their hands as well as receiving mental training. The schools are grateful to Mr. Oen for the use of the show windows.

The Washington school garden, which had been cleared and plowed and partly seeded, was sold by the owners last Saturday and a house will be erected thereon. The purchaser will reimburse the school for the expense of the work done, but the school is now without any garden. It is almost impossible to secure suitable tracts in a convenient location, and but one garden now remains to the children and that on the east side. The gardens are not to be confused with the farm tracts, of which the school has two.

The public is requested to refrain from using that portion of the Lincoln campus within the new hedge as a public highway. It is sown to grass and must be properly cared for, if a lawn is to be developed from it. The prevalent village habit of "cutting across" neighbors' lawns, yards, lots and boulevards, regardless of ownership or damage done to the tender grass, ought to cease in a town the size of Thief River Falls.

The freshmen domestic science girls entertained the board of education and the members' wives at six o'clock dinner at the Lincoln last Thursday afternoon. Every article was prepared by the young ladies and the guests were easily convinced of the skill of the youthful cooks. Aside from the knowledge necessary in the preparation of the dishes for such an event, the training gained in serving the same is of no small value to any housekeeper.

The state examinations for the seventh, eighth and high school begin on Friday of this week and close Wednesday of next. Some of the examinations begin at 8 A. M. All will be written and the results will effect the yearly standing of all the students. The official program is posted on the Lincoln bulletin board and is too lengthy for publication.

Rev. F. J. Seltz of the German Lutheran church will preach the baccalaureate sermon at the Auditorium next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend and all the churches of the city are respectfully requested to be present on this occasion. This annual sermon is rotated among the churches which desire to care for it.

Several visitors to the republican convention last week visited the schools. They expressed surprise at the size of the enrollment and completeness of the equipment.

The graduating class in the high school has appropriated $90 to purchase a class memorial and secure a commencement speaker. The memorial will be some suitable figure for the Lincoln fountain.

T. P. Hornseth has placed a mud turtle in the fountain. It is constantly surrounded by a crowd of interested spectators.

The program for graduation is as follows: Rev. F. J. Seltz will preach the annual sermon at the Auditorium next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock; on Tuesday evening at the Lincoln assembly, the eighth grade graduation exercises will take place; on Wednesday evening at the Auditorium, the senior class day exercises will be presented; on Thursday evening at the same place, Charles Howard Plattenburg will deliver the commencement address and the 1912 class graduation exercises proper will occur; the alumni banquet is advertised for the evening of Monday, June 3rd, at the Evelyn.

All exercises connected with graduation are free to the public. The only reservations made consist of holding a sufficient number of seats near the front for the relatives of the 8th grade and high school graduates at the Lincoln and the Auditorium.

Charles Howard Plattenburg, commencement speaker, will deliver an address entitled "Pygmies Today, Giants Tomorrow." He has been secured by the senior class at much expense, and the press reports are rather extravagant in their enthusiastic praise of his eloquence, wit and effectiveness as a platform orator and entertainer. If these reports are trustworthy, and they probably are, the commencement audience will be treated to an experience which rarely occurs in Thief River Falls.

GET BUSY FARM BOYS

Opportunity For Some Pennington County Boy to Attend State Fair Free.

CAMP ON STATE FAIR GROUND

See Some Member of Local Committee at Once, as the Time is Short.

If you are a boy between the ages of 16 and 19 that lives on a farm and desires to visit the greatest state fair in the Northwest, read this;

The State Fair Board has realized more than ever before, that the Minnesota State Fair is an institution for the educational benefit of the farming population of this state; that it must have the co-operation and support of the people that live on the farms. The reason that the Minnesota State fair has grown to such great national prominence is because the State Fair Board has conducted an interesting exhibit and the people throughout the state have recognized it as such.

This year the Board has offered a special inducement to boys of Minnesota in the nature of a Farm Boy's Encampment.

The Farm Boys Encampment is a plan whereby one boy in each county in the state will be given the opportunity to visit the state fair for the entire week, at the expense of the state. The object of this offer is to stimulate a greater interest in the State Fair by spreading throughout the state its real worth, through these farm boys.

The selection will be based on applications made and on the merits of an essay which each applicant is asked to contribute, on the subject: "Our Home Farm," according to the following outline:

(a) Describe the Farm.

(b) Why I desire to remain there:

(c) What changes may be made in the present system of carrying on this farm to insure better financial returns.

(d) What can be done to make life more enjoyable.

The committee in Pennington county that will read and mark the essays consists of County Superintendent of Schools E. A. Mostue Thief River Falls; Ed. A. Aubol, St Hilaire, and D. P. O'Neil, Thief River Falls.

All compositions should be in the hands of the local committees on or before the 1st day of July.

A first, second and third choice will be made, so in case the winner can not attend the fair, the first alternate may be selected, and the second alternate to be selected in case both winners and the first alternate are not able to go.

The management have the plan throughly outlined, everything will be done in order that the boys may get the most possible from their visit. A small amount of work will be required each day such as ushering at the grand stand, messenger service for officers and assisting in the judges ring.

Now boys, get busy. Write to one of the members of the local committee for the necessary blanks on which to make application.

It will be worth the time spent for a chance to be the guest of the State of Minnesota.

(Bankrupt Petition for Discharge)

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota

In the matter of Ljot Sigurdson, (formerly known as Ljot S. Langhel,) Bankrupt. } IN BANKRUPTCY. No. 159

To the Honorable Page Morris, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota.

Ljot Sigurdson, (formerly known as Ljot S. Langhel,) of Highlanding in the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, in said District, respectfully represents that on the 15th day of December last past, he was duly adjudged bankrupt under the Acts of Congress relating to Bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said Acts and of the order of the Court touching his bankruptcy.

WHEREFORE he prays that he may be decreed by the Court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate under said Bankrupt Acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 21st day of March A. D. 1912.
Ljot Sigurdson, Bankrupt.

(Order for Notice Thereon)

SWEDEN.

Harald Sorensen-Ringi, the well known and talented sculptor, is dead. He attained an age of only forty years and although only a young man had gained an enviable reputation both at home and abroad as a sculptor. Sorensen-Ringi was born in Sundsvall in 1872. He studied at first under the famous Per Hasselberg and was also for a time the pupil of Christian Ericksson in Vermland. Among his most prominent pieces of art is the statue of Gustavus Adolphus in Sundsvall, which was erected and unveiled in that city last year. His statuettes in the cathedral of Upsala and in St. John's church at Malmo are fine pieces of sculptural art, which have occasioned much favorable comment from competent art critics.

Swedish and Norwegian are to be taught at the summer school at the University of Minnesota this year. These languages, says a contemporary writer, are accepted now as entrance requirements, and may be studied in the college and graduate schools of the university. Either language may be substituted for German as a requirement for the doctorate in philosophy and science. If Minnesota recognizes the cultural standing of the Scandinavian languages why should not other universities do as much?

Queen Victoria of Sweden spent the winter at Capri, Italy. An English newspaper gives her credit for being "a democratic lady in her manners." When she is out walking she is in the habit of talking to the children along the road and giving them sweetmeats. Once a little girl mustered courage enough to ask her how it feels to be a queen. The answer was, that it would take a long time to get accustomed to all the trouble.

The crown prince of Sweden has commenced to study statecraft in a practical way and intends to make himself thoroughly acquainted in his own country, over which he hopes to rule some future day. He recently began work in the office of the state department and is busy making himself acquainted with all the details of the office. After this he will enter the office of one of the other departments.

The Social Democrats of Stockholm contemplate starting a bank of their own. The plan has already met with a great deal of encouragement from members of the party in the city and they are also receiving aid and encouragement from other cities in the country. The aim is to start with a capital of at least 2,000,000 crowns. The chief purport of the bank would be to handle the funds of the various workingmen's unions and societies.

The cathedral church in Karlstad is to be extensively repaired and improved. Part of it is to be rebuilt with additions. A new heating plant and electric lights are to be installed. An electric motor is to be used for pumping the organ, which is to be one of the largest in that section of the country. Improvements to the amount of 80,000 crowns are planned.

The Swedish government, through the English and American legations in Stockholm, have tendered their condolences to the American and British governments on account of the recent Titanic disaster. The riksdag, in special session assembled, also expressed its condolences.

There were the usual May 1 celebrations in Stockholm and other cities of Sweden. A number of labor unions held parades in Stockholm, but the festivities this year were not as animated as they have been in previous years.

King Gustaf departed from Nice April 21 and made the journey to Karlsruhe in an automobile. He later paid a visit to Berlin, returning to Stockholm about May 1.

According to the latest reports of the bureau of statistics the actual population of Stockholm is 346,599. The increase during the year of 1911 was 2,767.

NORWAY.

A telegram from Christiania dated May 8 says: "Mrs. Laurits S. Swenson of Minneapolis, Minn., wife of the United States minister to Norway, died here yesterday." Mrs. Swenson, who was Miss Ingeborg Idegaard of Norseland, Minn., was married to Mr. Swenson in 1887. They lived at Albert Lea until Mr. Swenson was appointed minister to Denmark. They lived in Copenhagen eight years. Upon their return they located in Minneapolis, Mr. Swenson assisting in organizing the Union State bank, of which he became vice president. In 1910 he was appointed minister to Switzerland. Mr. Swenson last June was transferred from Switzerland to Norway.

On March 27, 1887, the first regular preaching service was held in the University of Christiania, Norway, by Bishop Essondrop. Since then they have been regularly held, have grown in favor and have now become a permanent institution at the university. In these years they have been productive of much good and a real blessing in many respects to students and members of the faculty. The man who suggested the idea of holding these services was Professor P. Waage.

The Ministerial Association of Christiania has discussed during the last three months the matter of religious text books in the public schools in that city. A committee was appointed by the school board to consider the matter. It recommended that all religious text books be excluded except the catechism. The association, however, has strongly recommended that religious instruction may continue to be given with the use of text books.

Balthazar Scniller, the author, and Johan Haarklou, the composer, have produced an opera entitled, "Tyrfing," the setting for which is taken from the saga regarding Tyrfing Heltesverdet, who was killed by the dwarfs. The opera contains three acts and competent critics claim that it will be a great attraction for Norwegian audiences. The opera will soon be rendered for the first time in Christiania at the National theater.

The Norwegian Social Democratic convention was very largely attended, but was far from being a harmonious meeting. The leader of the meeting, also the chairman, Rev. Erichsen, was compelled to resign owing to his views on the language question. The liquor question also came up for consideration and a resolution for absolute prohibition for the entire country was passed by a vote of 180 to 109.

At the close of the year of 1911 Norway had a population of 2,411,694, as against 2,390,402 one year previously. The excess by births during the year was 30,186 and 12,478 persons emigrated.

The Socialists of the country have opened a press bureau in Stavanger. O. S. C. Petersen, formerly associate editor of the Arbeidet in Bergen, will be in charge.

DENMARK.

The absence of sufficient lifeboats on the Titanic has been very severely criticised in Copenhagen. It is said that Denmark and Norway are the only countries in the world where enough lifeboats for every person on board a vessel, is required by law. Immediately after the Scandinavian-American liner Norge went down with 567 souls, after the ship had struck a sunken rock northwest of Scotland June 28, 1904, a law was passed and put in force so quickly that a liner already on its way to America was stopped by the Norwegian authorities and compelled to take on so many additional lifeboats that the promenade decks were blocked.

The military monoplane which the department of war produced as a means of educating military aviators has been destroyed. An officer of the navy fell from a height of 100 feet. The machine was wrecked, but the aviator was not hurt, though the machine fell on top of him. This, however, resulted in the destruction of the monoplane by order of the government, thus preventing more people from getting killed in this manner.

According to a law passed on July 30, 1909, no spirituous liquors will be allowed to be shipped to Iceland. The edict against liquor is supposed to last for three years. In view of this fact, and to get a large enough supply to last them for three years, whisky, wine and beer have been imported to Iceland during the year of 1911 in large quantities, enough to supply all the demand for three years and over.

A new political party has been started in Iceland, the purport of which shall be to put an end to the present agitation against the home government, Denmark. The new party wants to give Iceland a governor and three premiers, of which one should be located in Denmark and be a member of the Danish cabinet. The new party is reported to have grown in strength at a rapid rate.

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Pickard of North Carolina. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases; stops the itch instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

The state of Minnesota, through Lyndon A. Smith, attorney general, has appealed from the decision of Judge H. R. Brill of the Ramsey county district court ordering that the Fergus Falls Ski club need not pay to the secretary of state the statutory fee for filing articles of incorporation. Judge Brill holds that it was not the intention of the legislature to exact fees for incorporations without capital stock. Mr. Smith is of the opinion that this leaves the question so open that any corporation, no matter for what purpose organized, can escape the filing fee simply by leaving the amount of the capital stock out of the articles.

Dr. T. Clark, one of the world's foremost trachoma experts, has reached White Earth reservation. Dr. Clark has been detailed by the United States Marine hospital service of Washington to make a thorough investigation of the reported prevalence of trachoma among the Indians of the Minnesota reservation.

Duluth is to have a penal farm, where drunks and short term prisoners may be kept instead of in the county jail. The plan involves trying to reform the delinquents. When their terms expire they will be given steady employment, if possible, and will be assisted in other ways to reform.

The Du Pont powder works at Wilpin, near Hibbing, has been given orders to increase the output of black powder 40 per cent. The plant has been turning out about 650 barrels of powder a day and with the increased manufacture the output will be over 1,000 barrels.

Flood gates at Leech and Pokegama and other basins on the upper Mississippi river are closed and water running into them is being stored in reserve for the summer months to aid in navigation and in getting logs to the mills.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

As a result of stepping on a rusty nail on the farm of William Watson, near Utica, Winona county, Charles Breen, seventeen years old, died of lockjaw. The nail pierced the shoe and tore into the side of the boy's foot. Breen came from New York a year ago to live on the Watson farm in the hope of recovering his health.

Fire losses in Minnesota for April, 1912, aggregated little more than half the total for April, 1911, in spite of an increase of fifteen in the number of fires for the month, according to a report of State Fire Marshal C. E. Keller. The total loss in the state for the month just ended was $195,493, against $372,615 in April of last year, a net decrease of $177,122.

Dr. Fred T. Woodward of Minneapolis was awarded a verdict of $3,000 against Rev. J. T. Dow, former pastor of the Grand Avenue Church of Christ in the Mill City. The plaintiff had sued for $25,000 for the alleged alienation of Mrs. Woodward's affections by the clergyman.

Struck a terrific blow in the abdomen by a sweep of a patent stump puller with which he was working upon his farm in Houston county, Andrew Denstad, a prominent Southern Minnesota farmer, died just a day after the accident. He was sixty-one years old.

Imprisoned by caving sand in a tunnel which he had dug with his own hands, Alfred Barnard, nine years old, was smothered to death at Minneapolis.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Mrs. Charles H. Clarke, a resident of Minneapolis for sixty years, is dead. She was seventy-seven years of age. Mrs. Clarke was born in Philadelphia in 1835. When she was seventeen years old, in 1852, she reached what is now Minneapolis with her father. She had made her home in the Mill City ever since.

Otto O. Tollefson, forty-eight years old, organizer and incorporator of the Northwestern Fire and Marine Insurance company, is dead at Minneapolis. Mr. Tollefson was president of the institution until a short time ago, and was instrumental in bringing the business to Minneapolis from Grand Forks, N. D., seven years ago.

Dennis O'Shea, a resident of Nicollet county for more than fifty years, is dead at his home near Fort Ridgely. He was born in Ireland eighty years ago. He served in the army during the Civil war and was one of the defenders of Fort Ridgely against the attacks of the Indians in 1862, displaying great bravery.

Charles Rice, a traveling salesman living at Hamline, died suddenly of heart failure while driving an automobile into Cannon Falls. Mrs. Rice was with him and noticed that he had lost control of the machine, which ran into a telephone pole. The automobile was going slowly.

Jeffrey R. Fanning, sixty-nine years old, resident of St. Paul since 1864, is dead. Mr. Fanning served as a member of the legislature of 1874 and also served in many of the township and county offices of Dakota county.

John Bateman is dead at Spring Valley, aged ninety-six years. He was born in Pulaski county, Va., and located near Spring Valley in 1856.

DEMOCRATIC STATE AND COUNTY CONVENTION CALL

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Democratic State Central Committee at a meeting regularly held in the City of St. Paul, on March 19, 1912, a Democratic delegate State Convention is hereby called to meet in the city of Duluth, Minnesota, on Thursday, June 6th, 1912 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, for the purpose of naming eighteen district delegates and six delegates at large, and eighteen district alternate delegates and six alternate delegates at large to attend the National Democratic Convention to be held in Baltimore, Maryland, June 25th, 1912.

All voters of Minnesota without regard to past political affiliations, who now believe in the policies, are cordially invited to assist in the selection of delegates to this convention.

Each county is entitled to two delegates at large in the said state convention, and an additional delegate for each 125 votes or major fraction thereof cast within that county for Hon. William J. Bryan as the Democratic presidential candidate in 1908.

In accordance with above apportionment, Pennington County will be entitled to two delegates at large, and six additional delegates to the said Democratic State Convention.

These delegates, with alternates, shall be selected at the Democratic County Convention for Pennington County to be held in the Odd Fellows building in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, Wednesday, May 29, 1912 at 2:00 P. M.

The several voting precincts of Pennington County are entitled to the following representation at the State Democratic County Convention.

Total number of delegates	66

These delegates shall be selected at Primaries held at the regular polling place in each voting precinct in Pennington County, on Saturday, May 25th, 1912, between the hours of 6:00 and 8:00 o'clock P. M.

By order of the County Central Committee of Pennington County, Minnesota.

W. B. Fuller,
Chairman.
N. W. Tarrant,
Secretary.

It is requested that an earnest effort be made in the several precincts of Pennington County, to send a full delegation to this Democratic County Convention, as matters of importance relative to the coming fall elections are to be discussed.

It is also further requested that each and every voter in Pennington County, who favors democratic principles, and hopes for the election of democratic candidates on City, State and National tickets at the coming elections, should communicate as soon as possible with either the Secretary or chairman.

W. B. FULLER,
Chairman.
N. W. TARRANT,
Secretary.

American Aviating Girl.

The aviating girl is quite an established feature of American life. She has superseded the old-fashioned matinee girl, but is very much more impassioned. Her one dream is that she may, at some time or another, be dashed to death with her begoggled idol. If you want to find her when next you attend an aviation meeting in America, do not look for her on the lawn or in the grand stand. You will not even find her in the clubhouse. Cross over to the hangars—that is the place for the aviating girl. Beautifully dressed, she will sit for hour after hour on an old box, or a log of wood, or an upturned bucket, just near the doorway of the hangar. You may stare at her, photograph her, do what you will—she will not move. The spirit of martyrdom is as strong within her is in the Indian fakir. By and by, later in the day, it is faintly possible that "he" may let her creep on to the machine and go for a ride. That is why she is waiting, waiting, waiting.

250,000 PUDDINGS FURNISHED

London Manufacturer Made That Many to Meet the Demands of the Christmas Spirit.

The manufacture of plum pudding in England is mainly confined to London and is carried on by all the principal bakeries, delicatessen and other establishments. The industry was greatly boomed by the Boer war.

In the opening days of that struggle the Yuletide season increased the natural solicitude for the fathers and sons and husbands in far away Africa, and the plum pudding was requisitioned in large quantities to express the feeling at home and carry at least a spark of Christmas cheer to enliven the soldiers' camp.

Thousands of pounds of plum pudding were sent out, but the demand was far in excess of the supply, a fact which gave greater urgency to the demand and by concentrating general interest in the pudding added immensely to its popularity, and especially as the soldier called loudly for more. The result is that today the bulk of plum pudding consumed in the United Kingdom is supplied by public purveyors and hundreds of thousands of pounds are shipped abroad. Manufacturers begin active operations as soon as the new crops of raisins, currants and other required fruits appear in September. All the constituents of plum pudding, which do not include plums, are prepared and manipulated by elaborate and expensive machinery. Currants are washed and stems removed, raisins are stoned, nuts are shelled and ground, oranges and lemons are peeled, the peel candied and cut up, eggs are beaten and all other ingredients prepared by machinery.

Exclusive of milk and rum the ingredients used by a single manufacturer in supplying plum pudding to meet the demands of the Christmas season of 1910 aggregated 630,140 pounds, the number of puddings furnished aggregating 250,000. There are three or four London manufacturers, says Daily Consular and Trade Reports, each of whose output perhaps equaled that described, and there are quite a large number of smaller establishments in which plum pudding was supplied for home and foreign consumption.

The pudding is put up in packages weighing one to five pounds each and securely packed to insure preservation and safe transportation. Properly prepared and packed the plum pudding of England, with ordinary care on the part of the housewife, will retain its virtues for a year or more.

Notice of Petition for Rural Highway

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. Office of County Auditor Thief River Falls, Minn.
County of Pennington }

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That a petition has been filed in my office for the establishment and laying out of the public rural highway described in the copy of said petition hereto attached; that said petition will be considered and heard by and before the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County at the office of the County Auditor in the City of Thief River Falls in said County and State on the 12th day of June 1912, at 1:00 o'clock p. m.; and that a true copy of said petition is as follows, to wit:

TO THE HONORABLE Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County:

The undersigned petitioners represent and state:

That they are each owners of land which will be liable to be affected by or assessed for the establishment of a public rural highway a general description of which is as follows, to wit: Commencing at a point twenty feet west of the south east corner of Section Twenty-seven (27) Township 154, Range 40, in the Town of Goodridge in the County of Pennington State of Minnesota; thence running substantially along the following route, to wit: due west on the section line between sections twenty-seven and thirty-four, twenty-eight and thirty-three, twenty-nine and thirty-two, and sections thirty and thirty one of aforesaid town and range, thence continuing due west on the section line between sections twenty-five and thirty-six, twenty-six and thirty-five, twenty-seven and thirty four, twenty-eight and thirty-three, and sections twenty-nine and thirty-two, and thirty and thirty-one in township 154, range 41; thence continuing due west on the section line between sections twenty-five and thirty-six, twenty-six and thirty-five, twenty-seven and thirty-four, twenty-eight and thirty-three, twenty-nine and thirty-two and thirty and thirty-one in township 154 range 42, thence continuing due west and parallel with and on the section line between sections twenty-five and thirty-six, and twenty-six and thirty-five, and continuing along the section line between sections twenty-seven and thirty-four a distance of twenty-eight hundred and fifty feet in the Town of North in the County of Pennington State of Minnesota, and terminating at said point.

That the said establishment and construction of said highway will be of public benefit and utility and is necessary for the reasons following, to wit: said highway will intersect numerous graded highways along county and judicial ditches and connects with graded highways in eastern Marshall and northwestern Beltrami Counties, and on account of the large amount of heavy traffic there over the said highway leading into Thief River Falls, Minn., the nearest railroad market for Northeastern Pennington, eastern Marshall and northwestern Beltrami Counties.

That your petitioners have caused to be attached hereto copies of the general plan and estimates of the cost of said establishment and construction of said highway, other copies of said plan and estimates to be filed in the office of the County Auditor of the county of Pennington in said State, and copies of said plan and estimates to be furnished to the State Highway Commission, before this petition was signed and circulated for signatures.

Wherefore your petitioners pray that said rural highway be established according to law.

Tells His Hearers Plainly Just Where He Stands.

Some of His Recent Utterances in Reply to the Attack by Mr. Taft on the Man Who Made Him President —Political, Social and Industrial Conditions as "T. R." Sees Them.

"Mr. Taft has announced that I am trying to stir up class hatred and excite discontent. I ask you to look for yourselves.

"I ask you to see if you can find anywhere in that speech any appeal to class hatred, except hatred of the class of crooks—political and financial alike. See if you can find any stirring up of discontent in it excepting of discontent with trickery, with political chicanery, with cheating, with oppression."

"I have preached abhorrence of Mr. Lorimer and of all that for which Mr. Lorimer stands, and of the kind of crooked politics and crooked finance which, in combination, are responsible for the production of Mr. Lorimer. But as regards most, even of the bosses whom I oppose, I have not preached hatred of them. I do not hate them; I merely wish them to retire to private life and quit misgoverning us.

"Mr. Taft says that I preach class hatred and excite discontent. Does Mr. Taft regard me as stirring up class hatred because I ask for a law in New York to prevent women from being worked for excessive hours in factories?

"Does Mr. Taft regard me as stirring up class hatred because I stand for a workmen's compensation act? Does he regard me as stirring up class hatred because I demand that the state and the nation co-operate to make the conditions of life and labor better for wageworkers; because I demand that state and nation co-operate to help the farmer?

"I am advocating action which will be the most effective kind of antidote to class hatred; whereas, if Mr. Taft's policy of flabby indecision and helpless acquiescence in the wrongdoing of the crooked boss and the crooked financier is permitted to continue, there will really grow up class hatred in this country. There will grow up a very uncomfortable and very ugly feeling of discontent with political, social and industrial conditions."

"If it is any comfort to Mr. Taft to call Messrs. Lorimer, Cox, Penrose, Guggenheim, Calhoun, Gallinger and the rest patriotic leaders, instead of bosses, let him do so; but I earnestly hope that the plain people will vote against that particular type of patriotic leader."

"If you don't rule yourselves, be sure someone else will rule you. The boss will do it."

"I believe in a protective tariff, but I want to see the benefits get past the office into the pay envelopes. It is all right to have a reasonable share stop in the office, but not too much. I would like to see a national bureau whose business it would be to see that where protection is given to any industry, the wage-earners get a reasonable share."

"Law and order is but a means to justice, and unless it tends toward justice, law and order must come first, justice second."

"Every standpatter loves a progressive who is dead."

"We want to apply Lincoln's principles to labor problems."

"I am against any attempt to revive the reciprocity treaty, and I will be against any similar treaty that improperly sacrifices the interests of our farmers and fishermen."

"This is a line-up between the plain people and the great moneyed interests. We have against us the solid Republican machine, the money power and every newspaper that could be subsidized. There is no one with us but the plain people."

"Everything on the level and treat everyone on the square!"

"The man who incites the laboring man to overstep the law is the laboring man's enemy. Every other question must be held in abeyance until law and order are restored; then justice must be obtained. The country cannot permanently succeed unless more than a mere living wage is granted."

"The permanent prosperity of our country can only be assured by orderly liberty under the law. A man is an enemy who incites the workers to disorder. But we cannot succeed in this country unless the wage-earners are paid more than a living wage."

"If I could give advice to employers, I would tell them to grant increases before a strike rather than afterward. Social and industrial leaders should make it evident they do justice because it is right and not because of injustice."

"Mr. Taft said the next time that a demagogue insults the platform—I am the demagogue, he thought I was the demagogue—and tells you that he puts the man above the dollar, ask him what he means. Mr. Taft did not know that I was quoting Abraham Lincoln. It was a letter which Lincoln wrote in 1859 to a committee of Boston people here, and Lincoln was the demagogue on the platform."

"The other day Mr. Taft said that he mistrusted the impulsive judgment of the people. Well, if I have to choose I'll choose the impulsive judgment of the people every time rather than the deliberate judgment of the professional politicians."

"Now, it is just the same way with the people, as a whole. I don't say for a moment that we won't sometimes make mistakes. Sometimes we will. But in the long run and on the whole the American people will make fewer mistakes in governing themselves. And that is why I wish to see us give the people a real and not merely nominal control of their political fortunes."

A CAUSE WORTH WHILE.

By Theodore Roosevelt.

We fight to make this country a better place to live in for those who have been harshly treated by fate; and if we succeed, it will also be a better place to live in for those who have much. None of us can really prosper permanently if masses of our fellows are debased and degraded, if masses of men and women are ground down and forced to lead starved and sordid lives, so that their souls are crippled like their bodies and the fine edge of their every feeling blunted.

When I plead the cause of the crippled brakeman on a railroad, of the overworked girl in a factory, of the stunted child toiling at inhuman labor, of all who work excessively or in unhealthy surroundings, of the family dwelling in the squalor of a noisome tenement, of the wornout farmer in regions where the farms are worn out also; when I protest against the unfair profits of unscrupulous and conscienceless men or against the greedy exploitation of the helpless by the beneficiaries of privilege, I am not only fighting for the weak, I am fighting also for the strong.

The sons of all of us will pay in the future if we of the present do not do justice to the present. If the fathers cause others to eat bitter bread, the teeth of their own sons shall be set on edge. Our cause of justice for all is in the interest of all. Surely there never was a more noble cause; surely there never was a cause in which it was better worth while to spend and be spent.

The Massachusetts Primary.

"Yesterday's struggle in Massachusetts ended in very much of a drawn battle. The result will be nearly an equal division of the state's thirty-six delegates between Taft and Roosevelt. On the preference vote, pure and simple, Taft has a clear plurality over Roosevelt of about 4,000 votes. Owing to a confusion about the form of the ballot, however, which led to large numbers of Taft votes for delegates-at-large being invalidated as having been cast for nine delegates when only eight should have been marked on the ballot, it appears that Roosevelt gets all eight. He does it obviously by a mistake and a technicality. One might expect that such a hater of technicalities as he is would at once announce that he did not desire to win by such means, and would say that, the preference vote having fairly been given for Taft, the delegates should be his also. In fact, the news from Oyster Bay is that he has done so in the handsomest way.

"Describing the outcome of the contest in Massachusetts as a drawn battle is yet to describe it as a serious setback for President Taft. It is not so severe a blow to his prestige as that dealt in Illinois and Pennsylvania, but it is sufficiently damaging. That he could win only half of the chief Republican state in New England, and that only after a tremendous fight, shows how weak is his hold upon the affection and confidence of his party, how widespread is the belief that he cannot be re-elected even if he is nominated, and also how much hard work is before his managers if they are to compass his nomination."—New York Evening Post.

Known Before.

I was a man of straw; but I have been a man of straw long enough; every man who has blood in his body, and who has been misrepresented as I have been, is forced to fight.—From a speech of the President to Massachusetts voters.

The president is late in discovering a fact which a great many persons discovered to their surprise and regret some time ago. He has finally found out one reason why they are endeavoring to put into the white house somebody who has proved conclusively that there is no straw in his make-up.—Baltimore News.

Mr. Taft gets along pretty well in states where the people don't have a fair chance to vote.—Toledo (O.) Blade.

"Senator Penrose acts as though he didn't know what hit him. Yet he probably has a suspicion that it was a big stick," says the Cleveland Leader. Yes, and Senator Crane can guess how he happened to fall with such a fierce bump, in the Massachusetts primaries.

Senator Cullom has a very simple explanation of his defeat. He says: "I voted for Lorimer."

WHERE ROOSEVELT STANDS IN FIGHT

He Is the Leader in Your Cause, Not His Own.

Against the Bosses and Their Machine—For the Genuine Rule of the People—For Human Rights and An Equal Chance for Every Man—Where Are You?

"THE LEADER FOR THE TIME BEING, WHOEVER HE MAY BE, IS BUT AN INSTRUMENT, TO BE USED UNTIL BROKEN AND THEN TO BE CAST ASIDE; AND IF HE IS WORTH HIS SALT HE WILL CARE NO MORE WHEN HE IS BROKEN THAN A SOLDIER CARES WHEN HE IS SENT WHERE HIS LIFE IS FORFEIT IN ORDER THAT THE VICTORY MAY BE WON."
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

He is the leader in your cause, not his own.

He stands for the rule of the people. Do you?

He stands for his seven years' record as president against every crooked interest and every crooked political boss. Do you?

He stands for rigidly enforcing the pure food laws he enacted—not for driving out of office those who, like Dr. Wiley, would enforce them. Do you?

He stands for driving out of public life those who "have ruled and legislated and decided as if in some way they had a first mortgage on the United States, while the rights of the people are merely an unsecured debt." Do you?

He stands for party organization, but against the worn-out political convention in which the voice of the party boss is the only voice heard. Do you?

He stands for virile, human, helpful laws for bettering the condition of men, women and children, and safeguarding their interests against every other interest. Do you?

He stands for laws that protect the workingman's health and that compensate him for injuries. Do you?

He stands for an equal chance for every man's voice in the party and in the government. Do you?

He stands for a return of the glorious days of victory and achievements for the Republican party—the return of Republican governors, senators, congressmen and local officers swept from power since 1908. Do you?

Who but Theodore Roosevelt can regain the magnificent Republican majorities throughout the land during his seven years at Washington now turned to minority in almost every state?

Who but Theodore Roosevelt can thrill the Republican party with hope of success, with strong purpose to do the things the people want, with determination that the evils of "privilege" and "selfish interests" shall be swept out of public office?

Your active support is vital to the cause of honesty in politics.

Roosevelt's friends in this contest are volunteers, they have no machine. Every man is on duty because he wants the Republican party to win and to have a Republican candidate with courage and conscience—one who inspires and commands the faith of the people.

Will you stand with Roosevelt?

ROOSEVELT'S WORK IN OFFICE

List of Most Important Achievements During His Term as Nation's Chief Executive.

In the three years that have elapsed since Roosevelt became a private citizen the memory of his administration has naturally become somewhat blurred. It may be worth while to give a brief summary of the important achievements of his seven years as President. The first three years, it must be borne in mind, were devoted avowedly to carrying out the McKinley policies with the McKinley cabinet. Most of the events cited in the chronicle that follows were compressed within the four years that followed the overwhelming indorsement of Roosevelt at the polls in 1904:

General Industrial Policies.

Settlement of anthracite coal strike of 1902 by presidential intervention.

National employers' liability act.

Safety appliance act.

Pure food and drug act.

Federal meat inspection and packing house inspection act.

Organization of department of commerce and labor.

Abolishing of rebating and establishing of control of railroads by interstate commerce commission.

National Defense.

Navy made adequate.

Militia co-ordinated with regular army.

Law Enforcement.

Northern Securities prosecution, which ended movement to center control of railroads and industries in the hands of a few men through the device of the "holding corporation."

Beginning of prosecution of Standard Oil company and tobacco trust, with the object of preventing the monopolistic evils of great corporations.

Numerous prosecutions for rebating, for thefts of public domain and for grafting in the postoffice department.

Conservation of Natural Resources.

The whole conservation policy developed.

Forest reserves extended.

Reclamation of arid lands provided for.

Vetoes of measures to give away water power rights.

Panama Canal.

Interminable negotiations broken off, Colombia notified it could no longer obstruct a great world improvement and canal construction begun.

Work so efficiently organized under war department that it will be finished ahead of time.

Insular Dependencies.

Civil government established in the Philippines.

Intervention in Cuba, with order re-established.

Finances of Santo Domingo reorganized.

Foreign Relations.

Treaty of Portsmouth negotiated under President Roosevelt's invitation.

Many arbitration treaties negotiated.

Secretary Root sent on a tour of South America, resulting in greatly improving relations with South American republics.

Canadian fisheries dispute sent to The Hague tribunal.

Battle ship fleet sent around the world, increasing American prestige and insuring better protection for American citizens abroad.

Consular service reorganized under the merit system.

Conference of Governors.

More efficient relations between states promoted by conference of governors called by President Roosevelt.

Gospel of the Square Deal.

The general spirit of the administration so emphasized the need of attacking every form of special privilege that the work of public spirited men in city and state governments everywhere was made easier.

This summary shows why the venerable Senator Cullom of Illinois wrote out of the fullness of experience in his book on "Fifty Years of Public Service:" "Mr. Roosevelt accomplished more in his term than any of his predecessors; more laws were enacted, laws of more general benefit to the people; but above all his administration enforced all laws on the statute books as they had never been enforced before." * * * Colonel Roosevelt has proven over and over again, in every position he has ever occupied, from police commissioner of New York to the presidency itself, that he is a marvelous man, a man of great resources, great intellect, great energy and courage, and a man of the highest degree of integrity. He will go down in the history of this country as the most remarkable man of his day."—Kansas City Star.

ROCKEFELLER FOR TAFT.

Standard Oil Magnate's Interview Illumines President's Claim to be a Progressive.

In a recent speech at Philadelphia, President Taft declared himself to be a Progressive. Colonel Roosevelt, in commenting upon that speech, has pointed out that there are no better judges of what is a real Progressive than the men who are now supporting Mr. Taft for renomination.

"Four years ago," said Colonel Roosevelt, "the Progressives supported Mr. Taft for President, and he was opposed by such representatives of special privileges as Mr. Penrose of Pennsylvania, Mr. Aldrich of Rhode Island and Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire; as Messrs. Lorimer, Cannon and McKinley of Illinois; and he was opposed by practically all the men of the stamp of Messrs. Guggenheim and Evans of Colorado, and Mr. Patrick Calhoun of San Francisco. These men were not Progressives then, and they do not pretend to be Progressives now. But, unlike the President, they know who is a Progressive and who is not. Their judgment in the matter is good. After three and a half years of association with and knowledge of the President, these and their fellows are now the President's chief supporters; and they and the men who feel and act as they do in business and in politics give him the great bulk of his strength. The President says he is a Progressive. These men know him well and have studied his actions for three years, and they regard him as being precisely the kind of Progressive whom they approve."

This gives special point to an interview given by John D. Rockefeller at his offices at 26 Broadway, New York, on October 30, 1908, just a few days before the election at which Mr. Taft was chosen to the Presidency.

Mr. Rockefeller declared that he intended to support Mr. Taft because, as he said, "I find the balance of fairness and temperament entirely on his side. The election of Mr. Taft will, I believe, make for law and order and stability of business. He is not a man, I judge, to adventure with rash experiments or to impede a return of prosperity, by advocating measures subversive of industrial progress.

"It cannot be said that the present administration (President Roosevelt's) has in any way favored the special interests to which my life has been devoted."

Mr. Rockefeller had not been at the offices of the Standard Oil Company for several years when he gave this interview, but he regarded his declaration for Mr. Taft as of such importance that he went to the office for the special purpose of giving the interview. No one has ever accused Mr. Rockefeller of being a Progressive.

"Whenever I hear a man talk about a third presidential term as a 'menace to American institutions,'" says the Alfalfa Sage, "I ask him confidentially what is his real objection to Roosevelt."

NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN.

HON. I. A. CASWELL.

The National Committeeman selected at the convention in Minneapolis last Thursday is I. A. Caswell of Anoka, clerk of the Supreme Court. Mr. Caswell came through with flying colors, and although severely criticised and maligned by some of the opposition, he is now at the top, and must be recognized as the leader of the party in this state. The Minneapolis Tribune pays him the following compliment:

"I. A. Caswell, head of the Roosevelt movement in Minnesota, looms out of the fight as a managerial politician. The new leader first attained statewide prominence as candidate for the elective position of clerk of the supreme court which he won against George F. Dix. The supreme court clerk is a quiet, self contained man, popular with his friends and with plenty of scrappiness in his make up. In the past the chief claim against him has been that he 'kept books' in politics and was too prone to remember his political enemies as well as his political friends, instead of devoting his memory to the latter. In the last campaign he appears to have overcome this difficulty. He is entitled to credit in a large amount for the successful handling of the Roosevelt campaign and his friends are extending it.

A GOOD PROGRAM

The Duluth Herald publishes the following as what the next legislation should enact:—

1. Increase the railroad gross earnings tax, or put railroad property on the ad valorem system of taxation, as Wisconsin has wisely done.

2. Provide a fair legislative reapportionment.

3. Submit a constitutional amendment making reapportionment mandatory at least every ten years as most other states have done.

3. Submit to the people constitutional amendments providing for the initiative, the referendum and the recall.

5. Submit a constitutional amendment removing the restriction of sex in the use of the ballot.

6. Extend the primary election law to state officers.

7. Amend the primary election law to provide for initiating candidacies before the primaries by petition, leaving the lists still open to those who wish to file on their own initiative.

8. Provide a good presidential preference primary law.

9. Provide an effective corrupt practices act.

10. Put all state departments having to do with public resources and the development and settlement of the state under one effective organization, abolishing all unnecessary boards and offices in the interest of economy and efficiency.

11. Enact a civilized employers' liability law, doing away with the infamous fellow servant and assumption of risk doctrines and modifying the contributory negligence rule.

12. Enact a fair and effective automatic workingmen's compensation law.

13 Ratify the Federal income tax amendment.

14 Provide for a state soil survey.

15 Provide for a thorough survey and cataloging of state lands and other resources.

16 Provide a state civil service law.

17 Create a commission to study out a plan for a "short ballot" state government, centering responsibility as closely as possible in the hands of a few elective officers, and giving the public a balance to the centralizing of power involved through the recall for state officers.

18 Provide for the state regulation of all public utilities after the Wisconsin plan.

19 Make the railroad and warehouse commission appointive instead of elective.

20 Enact a practical measure regulating railroad traffic so as to stop the present railroad policy of diverting all possible growth to a single congested center of population and to give the several communities of the state the right to thrive as their local resources and advantages of position permit, unthrottled by railroad discrimination in favor of large centers. Let natural conditions, not railroad whim, direct the trend of development.

21 If the one-mill road tax amendment is adopted, as it doubtless will be at the November election, increase the road tax from the present rate of a quarter of a mill to one mill.

22 Wise and businesslike liberality toward the problem of tuberculosis control.

The above is a good program and if members can be selected who will devote their time to some of the laws as suggested above, even though but one half or one quarter of the foregoing paragraphs are placed upon the statutes, the session of 1913 will have more to its credit than many of its predecessors.

In a wedding announcement in last week's Journal-Press, the description of the bride's apparel contained the following. "The bride wore a dress of changeable silk and wreath of horses and a bridal veil." The costume as far as the dress and veil are concerned is entirely proper, but regarding the wreath, Alvah, would'nt a wreath of that kind be more appropriate for a groom?

PRESS PARAGRAPHS.

"Ye Editors" of Minnesota Comment on The News.

The Thief River Falls News comes out under a new management, M. C. Cutter of St. Paul, who recently bought the paper being in charge.—Itasca County Independent.

Mr. M. C. Cutter, formerly purchasing agent for the state board of control, has bought the Thief River Falls News, which he has taken charge of. Mr. Cutter is a practical printer, who has had considerale experience as a newspaper man, and his coming into this section of the state is welcomed.—Roseau Region.

Marcus C. Cutter, for several years purchasing agent of the state board of control, has purchased the Thief River Falls News of Mrs. John W. Eastman. The News is one of the leading papers in northwestern Minnesota, and Thief River Falls is one of the most prosperous and progressive cities in the state. Mr. Cutter is a practical printer, is a man of exceptional ability, and the Journal-Press wishes him the full measure of success. Mrs. Eastman successfully published the News for over a year, following the death of her husband.—Journal-Press, St. Cloud, Minn. May 3.

The Thief River Falls News has been sold by Mrs. Eastman to Marcus C. Cutter, of St. Paul, who is to take immediate charge. Mr. Cutter is a practical printer, and for ten years has been connected with the state board of control.—Record Detroit, Minn. May 10 1912.

The Thief River Falls News was sold this week to Marcus C. Cutter of St. Paul. He has been a member of the state board of control for the past ten years, which position he resigns to take up newspaper work in Thief River Falls. Mr. Cutter will again become a galley slave.—Free Press, Mankato, Minn. May 7.

The Thief River Falls News was sold this week to Marcus C. Cutter, of St. Paul; who will arrive with his family at Thief River, May 6th, when he will personally have charge of the paper. Mr. Cutter is a practical printer, but has been a member of the state board of control for the past ten years, which position he resigns to take up newspaper work in Thief River Falls.—News Tribune, Duluth, Minn. May 5.

Mrs. Eastman has sold the Thief River Falls News to Marcus C. Cutter of St. Paul. Mr. Cutter resigned from membership of the state board of control to take up the newspaper work again, after ten years in other lines of business.—Spectator, St. Hilaire Minn. May 4.

The Thief River Falls News is now in new hands. Severrl weeks ago Mrs. John W. Eastman sold the publishing business to M. C. Cutter, possession to be given the first of May. Mr. Cutter has been purchasing agent for the state board of control and resigned his position since the purchas of the Thief River Falls newspaper.—Journal, Fergus Falls, Minn. May 4.

The first number of the Thief River Falls News, under the editorship of its new owner, Marcus C. Cutter, was issued today. The News was published by John W. Eastman, a brother of Alvah Eastman of St. Cloud, until the fall of 1909, when Mr. Eastman died. Since then Mrs Eastman has edited the paper. Mr. Cutter comes here from Minneapolis.—News, Minneapolis, Minn. May 11.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Clarence H. Vennor, who in 1906 brought suit in the Ramsey county court to compel the Great Northern road to restore to its stockholders $34,000,000 which he alleged that corporation had used for the acquisition of properties embraced by the Lake Superior company and Great Northern Ore Lands company, won a victory when the state supreme court sustained the order of the lower court overruling the demurrer of the defendants. The decision means that the case is back where it was before the defendants stopped it by the demurrer, and that there is nothing to prevent the pushing of the case in the lower court.

Leo Tisenbaum, six years old, went to the Minneapolis city hospital and insisted that physicians remove sufficient skin from his little body to cover the burns which had kept his sister Fannie, aged seven, confined to the hospital ten weeks. The little fellow's request was complied with and after the transfer of cuticle the physicians said that the sister's chances of ultimate recovery had been greatly increased.

Twin City marble, mosaic and tarazzo workers are on strike and refuse to go to work again until a uniform working and wage condition is arranged with the employers. Sixty men are working for five companies in the Twin Cities, it is said, and one of the conditions which they want made uniform is for travel pay and board on outside jobs.

Secretaries of the farmers' and grain dealers' associations of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois, representing 2,000 country grain elevators and probably 150,000 farmers, met in Minneapolis and perfected an organization to influence federal legislation affecting the grain trade.

David McKowen of Minneiska, Winona county, a professional wolf hunter, in three weeks has collected $124 from the auditor of that county as bounty. He also hunts in Wabasha county. Within the last month he has killed a total of forty-three wolves.

The largest sculptured Chinese jade in the world, weighing 640 pounds, antedating the Christian era by several hundred years and for centuries the property of Chinese emperors, has been placed on view at the Walker art gallery in Minneapolis.

A successful sale of state land was conducted at International Falls by Theodore Nelson, sales manager of the state land department, when 4,254 acres were sold at an average price of $5.80 an acre. A few pieces sold as high as $25 per acre.

A suit for $50,000 damages for breach of promise to marry was brought in the Ramsey county district court by Miss Caroline P. Vallee, against Freeman P. Strong, a well known capitalist and club man of St. Paul.

A. J. Daley, an attorney of Luverne, has filed for the Republican nomination for congressman from the Second district to succeed W. S. Hammond. He will oppose Frank Ellsworth of Mankato.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Thomas P. Hewitt, eighty-four years old, who was furloughed from West Point military academy by General George B. McClellan sixty-four years ago, but who never returned and was technically still a student at the academy, is dead at Guthrie, Okla. Hewitt was a pioneer in both Minnesota and Oklahoma, voting in the constitutional elections of both states.

Michael J. Shelley, known as the lumberjack financier, is dead at Minneapolis at the age of fifty-four years Mr. Shelley was a well known character, and figured in the city's early history. As a boy he adopted the calling of a lumberjack, and in the course of time made a modest fortune from the pine land which he purchased.

Mrs. Frank J. Mackay, fifty-four years of age, wife of Frank J. Mackay, one of the most prominent real estate owners in Minneapolis, is dead at Leamington, Eng., the family residence. Mrs. Mackey was Florence Ida Day, daughter of John W. Day, a pioneer lumberman and prominent citizen of Minneapolis, who died several years ago.

Mrs. Barbara Vann Iennhuysze, ninety-nine years old, who had been an inmate of the home of the Little Sisters of the Poor at Minneapolis for more than fifteen years, is dead.

Colonel Louis Henri Ayme, formerly a Minneapolis man, several times in the United States consular service, is dead at Lisbon, Portugal, where he was consul general.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

With his wife ill in bed at home, his own health failing and his resources swept away, Willis M. Rich of Minneapolis went to St. Paul and ended his life in the Merchants hotel. His body was found in a room and a revolver lay beside it. He had shot himself through the head.

Charles Meyers, a street sweeper, died at the St. Paul city hospital following an accident in which he was thrown to the pavement by a horse. The man's skull was fractured by his fall and he never recovered consciousness.

GOVERNOR ISSUES THE CALL

Extra Session of Minnesota Legislature June 4.

Refusing suggestions of a compromise that would head off an extra session Governor Eberhart issued a proclamation calling the Thirty-seventh legislature in extraordinary session June 4. The proclamation, which is brief, confines the purpose of the session to the enactment of a statewide direct primary law applicable to all state officers, with an effective corrupt practice act and a reapportionment law.

Prior to making the call for an extra session Governor Eberhart issued a statement in part as follows

"I shall call the legislature to meet in extra session on June 4 next. This will give the legislature ample time to pass a primary law before the date fixed for the state convention. If necessary the state central committee can meet and rescind the call for the convention, so as to leave the legislature unembarrassed.

"So far as my candidacy for governor is concerned I will be glad to submit it to the direct action of the people."

WASHOUT CAUSE OF WRECK

Crack Train on the Milwaukee Road Goes Into Ditch.

The first section of train No. 1 on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, known as the Pioneer limited, was wrecked near Homer, eight miles east of Winona.

Two sleepers, a baggage and buffet car went into the ditch and were partially submerged in the Mississippi river. The track runs parallel to the river at this point.

The wreck was caused by heavy rains which washed out the roadbed and let the train slide from the track.

The second section of the train came around the wreck on the double track and took the passengers and what remained on the track of the first section to Winona.

That there was no loss of life is due to the fact that the train had had warnings to watch for washouts and was running slowly at the time of the accident.

OF STATEWIDE IMPORTANCE

Elwell Road Law Upheld by State Supreme Court.

Holding that the Elwell road law, enacted by the last legislature, is valid and constitutional, the state supreme court decided for the defendants in the case brought by Fred H. Murray of White Bear lake against Walter H. Smith, state treasurer, and others, to prevent the construction of the proposed state highway at White Bear lake.

Under the provisions of the Elwell law half the cost of a road shall be borne by the state, one-fourth by the benefited district and one-fourth by the county in which the road lies.

The court's ruling on the Murray case is of statewide importance, as the construction of many other highways is awaiting the decision with regard to that proposed for White Bear lake.

CALL MAY BE RESCINDED

Move on Foot to Postpone Minnesota Convention.

The call for a convention to nominate candidates for state offices July 2 will probably be rescinded by the Republican state central committee, pending action by the legislature when it meets in special session June 4 to consider the enactment of a primary law. E. E. Smith, chairman of the committee, said he will call a meeting as soon as he can get in touch with a few more members.

"I do not know what action the state central committee will take," said Mr. Smith, "but I see only one way out of it and that is to rescind the call and wait and see what action the legislature takes on the primary question."

COMMISSION PLAN IS LEGAL

Declared Valid by Supreme Court of Minnesota.

Commission plan of government for cities, as it has been applied in Mankato and as it will be effective in St. Paul, is declared valid and constitutional in a decision handed down by the state supreme court.

The opinion is sweeping in its endorsement of the commission form of government and the charter of the city of Mankato.

SAYS MURDERER CONFESSED

Woman's Slayer Alleged to Have Asserted Robbery Was Motive.

Tony Schiter, the Hungarian in jail at Little Falls for the murder of Mrs. F. J. Page, confessed to the sheriff, it is alleged. Schiter said he met the woman in the road, seized her and cut her throat, according to the alleged confession. He was after money which he thought she carried.

Drowned When Sailboat Upsets.

Harold Martinson, thirteen-year-old son of Nels Martinson, station agent at Wayzata, Hennepin county, was drowned and Uril Martinson, twelve years old, son of Detective Oscar Martinson of Minneapolis, narrowly escaped with his life in the upsetting of a sailboat on the east shore of Wayzata bay, Lake Minnetonka.

Chokes to Death on Steak.

Ole N. Nelson, a farmer of the town of Girard, Otter Tail county, choked to death on a piece of beefsteak The steak became wedged in his throat.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Two persons are known to have been drowned and forty or more were injured when the adjustable end of a temporary passenger gang plank at the Colman dock at Seattle dropped, precipitating sixty passengers into the water as they were preparing to board the sound steamer Flyer for Tacoma.

Hundreds of persons are fleeing before the flood in the country just north of New Orleans on the opposite side of the Mississippi river. The break that came in the west levee is widening and a great fertile territory will be added to Louisiana's thousands of inundated acres.

Five lives known to be lost, two men missing and property damage of several hundred thousand dollars are the results of several forest fires which swept over the northwestern part of Washington state.

Peter Pederson, living twelve miles northwest of Presho, S. D., his wife and five children, the latter all under nine years of age, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home.

Fire in the upper business district of Houston, Tex., caused a loss approximating $1,000,000. The fire spread rapidly from a large six-story building.

The town of Melville, La., threatened since the present flood began, was inundated when the levee on the west bank of the Atachafalaya river broke.

CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

The Clayton bill limiting the powers of federal courts in issuing injunctions was passed by the house by a vote of 244 to 31 and was supported by all the progressive Republicans. Every Democrat present voted for it and the result was announced to the accompaniment of a remarkable demonstration. The legislation is regarded as one of the most advanced steps yet taken in the interests of organized labor.

The house adopted, 237 to 39, a joint resolution to permit the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. It already had passed the senate and now goes to the states for ratification. All that remains to be done is the formal signing of the instrument and the issuance of a proclamation to the states to signify their wishes on the proposed change.

The senate finance committee has authorized a favorable report on the Lodge substitute for the house free sugar bill and an unfavorable report on the so called house excise income tax bill, which proposed a tax on incomes in excess of $5,000 a year.

The house committee on expenditures in the agricultural department postponed indefinitely action on the Nelson resolution to investigate the meat inspection service.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

The prohibitive ban on dancing, theater going, card playing and such other amusements, and the penalty provided for participation in them will remain in the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal church. The general conference at Minneapolis adopted the majority report recommending the retention of the ban by a vote of 446 to 369.

The house of representatives of the Massachusetts legislature by unanimous vote adopted the Bristow amendment to the federal constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators.

BOOST FOR COUNTY

Judicious Plans for Advertisins Pennington County Favorably Considered By Commercial Club.

A plan which will result advantageously to Pennington County in general and to the farmers within the county in particular, has been perfected by Thief River Falls Commercial Club. The club for some time has been negotiating with E. A. Schilling representative of the Farmers Weekly Dispatch for a full page write up setting forth the exact conditions as they prevail in this county. Pennington County, has not had the advantage in becoming so widely known throughout the state as her sister counties. Being the youngest county of the state, her exact location in many cases is not known. With as large a distribution as that of the Farmers Weekly Dispatch, one can not fail to see the good that will result from letting over one hundred thousand northern farmers know of our superior soil, climate, crops, etc.

The result may not be immediate or sponteanous, but the ultimate effect can not help but be for the general good of the county.

The plan which the Commercial club has adopted will meet with the hearty approval and co-operation of the entire community.

U. C. T. PLAY BALL.

Crookston and Thief River Falls Cross Bats on Local Diamond Saturday.

Last Saturday afternoon the ball tossers of the Crookston U. C. T. walloped the representatives of the local aggregation in a very one sided game. Hess pitched for the locals and was touched up for twelve safe bingles, while but eight were secured off Erickson. The twelve hits, together with several passes and some errors netted the Crookston drummers 16 runs, while the local knights of the grip secured but 7 during the eight rounds which were played.

The game was devoid of features with the exception of the three-sacker by Des Parois in the first and the double by the locals in the third.

Score by innings is as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	9
Crookston	4	0	0	3	6	0	3	0
T. R. Falls	0	3	1	0	0	2	1	0

Notice for Bids.

DRUMMERS INSTALL

Thief River Falls Council Number 521 Officially Launched Last Friday Evening.

Large Crowd Attend Banquet at Evelyn at Conclusion of Ceremonies.

Last Friday May 17 proved a busy day in the history of local U. C. T. men. In the afternoon the Grand Council met in the Masonic Hall preparing the work for the evening ceremony.

Members of the Grand Council in session were Frank Gravell, district deputy of Duluth, T. M. Dresser, Grand Secretary, W. W. Fegan, Grand Junior Councilor, of Grand Forks and Deputy Grand Councilor Sorlie of Grand Forks.

The first meeting of the local coucil was held the same evening. A large and enthusiastic gathering of visitors from Duluth, Crookston and Bemidji were in attendance to assist the local brethren along the right road. Twenty-one new members were initiated and seven members, residents of Thief River Falls, but belonging to other councils, transfered to the new lodge.

This makes a list of twenty-eight active members for a starter, with several prospective members whose applications are now on file.

At the conclusion of the initiation, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Senior Councilor, Christ Storholm; Junior Councilor, A. Anderson, Past Councilor, F. H. Herrick; Secty. and Treasurer, E. B. Bakke; Conductor, Ole Nesseth; Chaplin W. B. Fuller; Page, W. W. Watson; Sentinal, F. C. Niclai; Executive Committee; L. G. Larson, G. M. Robison and Oscar Williams.

Every second Tuesday of the month was decided upon for regular meeting.

At the banquet which was later served at the Evelyn, Charley Hickcock of Crookston acted as toastmaster, calling upon twenty five members of the fraternity for short speeches.

The responses were concise, to the point, and beginning with optomistic predictions concerning the future of the order.

With such men as were represented at last Friday's gathering no doubt can be entertained as to the success of the local Council. To-day the lodge is only slightly behind those of the Crookston and Bemidji in numbers, equal to any in the state for progressiveness and push. The spirit of local pride is shown by the fact that the boys named their lodge after the town in which it was situated; a compliment which the citizens of Thief River Falls will appreciate.

Orpheum Bill Popular.

Last Monday's appearance of Nault & Simmons Orpheum attraction, was greeted at the Auditorium by a crowded house. An exceptionally good bill was rendered, the "Correspondence School College Yell" song and dance being especially worthy of mention.

The management has succeeded in establishing a reputation for a clean entertaining bill, and undoubtedly the following program will compare favorably with the past performances.

Porto Rico's New Wonder.

From far away Porto-Rico come reports of a wonderful new discovery that is believed will vastly benefit the people. Ramon T. Marchan, of Barceloneta, writes "Dr. King's New Discovery is doing splendid work here. It cures me about five times of terrible coughs and colds, also my brother of a severe cold in his chest and more than 20 others, who used it on my advice. We hope this great medicine will yet be sold in every drug store in Porto Rico." For throat and lung troubles it has no equal. A trial will convince you of its merit. 50c and $100. Trial bottle free. HELPS FARM VALUES

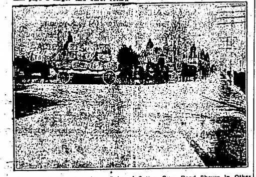
GOOD ROADS INCREASE SELLING VALUE OF RURAL PROPERTY.

LARGE AND SURE RETURNS

Improvement of Highways Is Not Matter of Expense, but an Investment—With Good Roads the Farm Will Produce Greater Revenue.

By HOWARD H. GROSS.

There is one very important factor that people are apt to overlook, and that is, the influence of good roads on the value of farm property. There is no fact that is better established or of which there is more abundant proof than that a good hard road leading from the farm to the market will increase the selling value of the farm far more than the amount of taxes required to be paid by the farmer to build the road. Hence when the matter is analyzed, it will be found that the building of good roads is not a matter of expense, but an investment that pays a larger and surer return than anything else one can name.



Two Horses Drawing Eleven Bales of Cotton Over Road Shown in Other Picture, After Improvement.

This is a road splendid constructed built by a county bond issue. Before the roads were built there was little or no sale for farms, afterwards they were in demand at an advance of from 20 to 50 per cent., all on account of the good roads.

A progressive farmer will expend money on building good fences, tile his land, erect wind mills, barns, sheds, covers for his machinery, plant trees, and do many things to make his farm more attractive, more useful and more valuable. When a man has spent several hundred dollars on some of these improvements he figures his farm is worth more than the amount expended over what it was before. He is willing to expend money inside of his boundary fences, but when asked to go out beyond this to the public highway he is apt to feel that the amount of money spent is an expense that yields him no direct return. In fact, in no community, so far as the writer can ascertain, after a world wide study extending over 20 years, was the building of hard roads begun without the strongest opposition from those who were really to receive the largest benefit. Dire predictions were made that the property would be confiscated by the taxation, that the building of the roads would ruin the tax payer. But every community that has had the experience of building hard roads, using them and paying for them, has continued to build more and more from year to year. They found that while it called for the expenditure of money to meet the bills that it lightened their burdens in many other ways, that it made life better worth living, that there was more social life in the community, the children were better satisfied to stay upon the farm, and they could go to market any day in the year they liked, and thus take advantage of the market instead of the market taking advantage of them.

Two Mules Drawing One Bale of Cotton Over Bad Road at Jackson, Tenn.

This shows the conditions down in the cotton belt, where at times the roads are almost impassable. The team and driver are in harmony with the road. Ought any one expect thrift in such surroundings? The next cut shows the same road a mile nearer town, after it has been improved.

It is within the experience of millions of farmers that they had grain or live stock on hand ready to sell; the price was right, but the roads were so bad they could not reach the market. A few weeks later when the roads improved, perhaps there was a drop in the market.

The secretary of agriculture (and there is no higher authority) says that good roads, usable every day in the year, so the farmers can take advantage of market conditions, are worth two or three cents on every bushel of grain, and ten to thirty cents a hundred on cattle and hogs. Hence, with good roads the farm will produce a larger revenue, it is a more desirable place to live and it is worth more money.

If one were to go out to buy a farm, and when he alighted at the railway station, was met by the real estate agent, who told him he had two farms practically alike, one four miles east on a good macadam road, and the other four miles west, on a dirt road, the chances are ten to one that the buyer would prefer the farm upon the good road and willingly pay more money to get it. One of the first things the owner would say if he cared to sell, would be that he could go to town any day in the year and haul a good load, while a farmer eight miles west of him at times would not be able to turn a wheel.

One county in Kentucky spent over $200,000 upon the highways. The record is that former values nearly doubled. The same is true of Texas. It is also true of Indiana, and true wherever good roads are built. Distance is measured by the time it takes to go from place to place. Ask how far it is to a given point, and you are told it is about five minutes' walk, or to another inquiry, "it takes an hour by rail." Distance is measured by the clock's tick, and not by the yard stick.

A hard-headed German farmer at Sheboygan, in a very graphic and comprehensive way, told of the value of good roads as it appeared to him.

He said: "My farm is ten miles from market. If it was only five miles from market it would be worth $15 an acre more. I cannot move my farm in, but if we can build a good road to my farm I can come in the ten miles with my produce easier than I could come in five miles with bad roads. Therefore to build a good road moves my farm in half way to town."

The writer has traveled in many states and foreign countries and studied the road problem. In every locality where good roads have been built the people are enthusiastic; they say they do not see how they ever could have gotten along so many years without them, for they have better schools, more social advantages, that the people live better, dress better, and the people in town are strongly attracted to rural life; that where there was an opportunity to sell a farm once with the bad roads, there were several opportunities with the good ones.

If any state or community will take up the building of good roads upon the right basis, and spread the payments over a series of years, they will find it is the best investment they could possibly make. More than one-half the states now are assisting the townships to build good roads, by paying anywhere from one-third to three fourths the cost. To aid road building the state of New York issued $50,000,000 of bonds, and will spend $5,000,000 per year for ten years upon the highways, assisting the counties and the states in permanently improving the main thoroughfares. This is a step in the right direction. Scores of states are doing the same thing in a somewhat smaller way. In some states the counties are taking up the proposition, voting county bonds for this purpose. Wayne county, Michigan, last fall voted a bond issue of $2,000,000, to be spent upon the highways of Wayne county. The state will also help, and the result will be 250 to 300 miles of first class highways, covering the county with Detroit as a center. By spreading the payment over 20 years it is found the increase in taxation is so small as not to be noticeable. On an average 80 acre farm it will be something like $1.30 a year.

Roads well built are permanent, given a moderate amount of attention and expense for maintenance.

There is no reason why the present generation should carry the whole burden, and the future should be relieved therefrom.

The plan of building a small piece of road every year by an annual tax, and extending the road a mile or two at a time is unsatisfactory in results, the cost is considerable more than it should be, and it takes a long time to get the roads. If 20 miles were built at one time in a township, there would be strong competition among contractors and the tax payers would find they could get their roads from 10 to 25 per cent. less money, that they would have better built roads and would have them to use at once instead of waiting ten years or more to build them piecemeal, and have the first mile practically worn out before the last one was finished. Of course there would be interest to pay on the bonds, but if the use of the roads is not worth more to the community than the interest on the bonds, it would not pay to build the roads. Money can be borrowed at four or five per cent., and those in a position to form good judgment, will say that first class roads will pay for themselves every five years, or in other words, that their use is worth 20 per cent. of the cost each year.

One sometimes hears a farmer, who is opposed to the building of hard roads, say that he can raise no more grain or get a larger return from the farm by reason of having good roads. Such a one will attempt to sustain his position by stating only part of the whole proposition. Of course it is true that the road has no influence upon the productivity of the farm along which it passes, but it does not follow that the net results are the same, whether the roads are good or bad.

Only a few days ago the writer was down in the corn belt of Illinois and saw four horses hauling a load of corn into town. It was all the horses could do to handle the load, although the country was comparatively level. The mud in the road was nearly a foot deep. No fair minded man will say that a crop can be marketed under such conditions as cheaply as when the roads are good, and a single team can handle the same at twice the speed.

The value of the farm does not depend alone upon what the soil will produce, but upon its accessability to market, the environment and whether the farm is in every way desirable as a place to live. We spend money for pleasure and for comfort, and it is right that we should do so. Probably as a rule too little is spent for this. Whenever good roads have been built, in any community, there has been a sharp advance in the price of land, because the farms are more accessible. The writer has in mind a county in northern Indiana, where about ten years ago a system of 24 miles of hard roads were built, covering the main highways of the township. About $85,000 were spent upon the improvements, the payment spread over ten years. Within a year after the roads were built the farmers were asking and getting $15 to $25 an acre more for their farms than they could have gotten before the roads were built. In some cases the advance was even more. The increase in taxation was hardly felt.

One of the prominent residents of the township, in commenting upon the improvement, said that the building of the roads exerted a powerful influence upon the lives of the people of the township—everybody began to slick up, a new picket fence replaced the old tumble down board fence, the house was painted, walks laid out, and an air of thrift was apparent everywhere. Also following the good roads, a township high school was built, and arrangements made to carry the children to and from school. This was a great relief to the isolation the young people were placed under before the roads were built. The new school became the social center and they found in that township that the building of a system of roads was the best investment they had ever made, and under no circumstances could they be induced to go back to the old way. It is the same story everywhere; in every locality where any community ever began to build good highways, and had the experience of building, using and paying for them, the community was not only satisfied but kept on building more and more roads.

In the last analysis it will be found that the building of highways adds to the value of the farm served by them several times the cost, and this increase in farm values is only one of the many advantages that grow out of splendid highways.

Good roads will effect economies in many ways; they will make life more enjoyable; they mean better schools, more social life and more profit; they mean progress and civilization.

A Selfish Viewpoint.

Champ Clark, the Democratic leader, was discussing, at a Washington banquet, a measure of which he disapproved.

"This measure," he said, "is a sign of narrowness and selfishness. It reminds me of the scholar to whom his teacher said on the first of February:

"'Why was George Washington a great man?'

"'Because,' said the scholar promptly, 'we don't have no school on his birthday.'"

CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

Revolutionary proposals such as have not been grouped in any bill passed by the present session of congress were adopted by the house in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. The bill now proposes: Abolition of the United States commerce court and the restoration to the interstate commerce commission of all railroad regulatory power, subject to appeal only to United States district courts. Creation of a bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, with all the present powers of the so called tariff board, to be under the jurisdiction of the secretary of commerce and labor. Concentration of the distribution of public documents, of which millions annually are sent from Washington, in the government printing office.

Charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court were unfolded before the house committee on judiciary, which is to determine if impeachment proceedings shall be brought against the jurist. How Judge Archbald, in partnership with Edward J. Williams, a Scranton coal dealer, while deliberating as a judge on the lighterage cases to which the Erie railroad was a party, is alleged to have negotiated an option from that railroad for 42,000 tons of culm property to be sold at a $12,000 profit was related to the committee by Williams himself.

The workmen's compensation bill was passed in the senate, 64 to 15, substantially as framed by the employers' liability commission, and amended only to increase its benefits. The measure, sharply fought by some of the Democrats for several days now goes to the house. A number of amendments were offered, but only a few were accepted, and those were with the acquiescence of Senator Sutherland, in charge of the bill.

The house agreed, 173 to 57, to the conference report on the general pension bill providing pensions up to $1 a day for veterans of the Civil and Mexican wars. It now goes to the president for his signature. Many Democrats voted for the bill. Representative Kent of California cast the only Republican vote against it.

The report of the conferees of the two houses of congress on the general pension bill was agreed to by the senate. The bill will necessitate an average increase of appropriations of $22,000,000 a year for the next five years. The greatest increase will occur next year, when it will reach $35,000,000.

A midsummer session of congress, with a two weeks' recess in June during the Democratic and Republican conventions, is unanimously predicted by the leaders of the house. Anywhere from July 15 to Aug. 15 is the possible time for adjournment, the house "bosses" assert.

Tariff bills were laid aside in the senate to permit consideration of the rivers and harbors bill, which was handled by Senator Nelson and passed in record time.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The recently enacted minimum wage act for British miners already has broken down and the country is threatened with another great crisis in the coal trade. As before South Wales is the storm center, the colliery laborers there objecting to the decision of Lord St. Aldwyn, chairman of the local wages board, which gives less than the 5 shillings a day which the men expected to obtain under the new act.

AFTER PROLONGED DEBATE

Methodists Vote to Retain Ban on Amusements.

After a prolonged and heated debate covering two entire sessions the committee on the state of the church at the Methodist Episcopal conference at Minneapolis, by a two to one vote, adopted the minority report of the subcommittee on amusements, declaring for the retention in the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal church paragraph 260, prohibiting dancing, theater going, attending horse races and circuses, games of chance and liquor drinking on penalty of expulsion.

Rail Wreck Fatal to One.

VICTORIOUS CHRIST HEADS PROCESSION

Leads Multitude of Captives From Death's Prison.

At Boston Pastor Russell Pictures the Release of Death's Prisoners and Shows From Scripture That In the Triumphal Procession Four Grades Will Participate.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Boston, Mass., May 19.—Pastor Russell spoke here today in the Boston Theatre. In one of his two discourses he used the following text: "When He ascended up on high, He led a multitude of captives."—Ephesians iv, 8.

This grand expression, respecting the glorious outcome of the Savior's work is quoted by the Apostle Paul from the Psalms (lxviii, 18). The figure thus thrust before our mental eye is that of a great Conqueror whose victory is being heralded. With the Romans we know that it was a custom that generals returning from wars were granted what were termed "Triumphs"—or triumphal processions.

Let us permit our mental eye to feast upon the scene of our text. Jesus, in fulfillment of the Divine Program, had left the heavenly condition and descended to earth, taking a bondman's form or nature in order "that He, by the grace of God, might taste death for every man;" that He might rescue Adam and his race from the death condition—under Divine sentence and under the power of Satan.

Therefore, the Redeemer counted not His life precious to Him, but freely delivered Himself up, and died, "the Just for the unjust," that He might bring mankind back into harmony with God. His humiliation ended in death, but His triumph began when God raised Him from the dead by His own power, and set Him at the right hand of His own Majesty—"far above angels, principalities and powers and every name that is named."

Leading Forth the Captives.

With most conquerors, in olden times, the captives were made slaves. Not so, however, will be the result of Jesus' victory. First of all in the procession are the saints—"the Church of the First-born." Then will come a company, more numerous, but less heroic—"a great multitude," uncrowned, but with "palm branches," not antitypical Priests but antitypical Levites, associates and servants of the Royal Priesthood, the Bride.

Then will follow (Hebrews xi, 38-40) other faithful ones of the past, the Ancient Worthies. The Prophet speaks also of the "rebellious house." The classes previously specified were not rebellious, but gladly and willingly forsook all to do the will of the Father and to attain the liberty of sons of God, as the first-fruits of the triumph of the Lamb.

But during the thousand years of Christ's reign He will lead forth the "rebellious house"—the world of mankind—not all of them, we may be sure, for some, the Scriptures positively declare, will die the Second Death, because, after realizing their deliverance, they will love sin and will therefore be destroyed as enemies of God.

"He Gave Gifts Unto Men."

In this prophetic reference to our Lord's ascension it is declared, not only that He would lead forth a multitude of captives, granting them freedom, liberty, blessings, but also that He would confer gifts.

The Apostle proceeds to explain the matter and tells us what gifts are meant. He says, "And He gave some Apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers." It behooves us to notice that the Apostle does not intimate that Jesus gave to some Methodism, to others Presbyterianism, and to others Roman Catholicism, etc. No, when we held such thoughts it was because we failed to see, first, that there is but the "one Church of the Living God, whose names are written in heaven," and second, that that one Church is not any of the various sects and parties, but includes the saintly in all of these—"For the Lord knoweth them that are His."

Noting carefully the Apostle's argument we perceive that the Master did not give these gifts for the conversion of the world. He does specify, however, what they were for, namely, "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the Body of Christ"—the Church, the Bride. Is it supposable that the Apostle erred in this statement and that the fact is the reverse—that these gifts were provided for the conversion of the world, and that the Apostle thoroughly misunderstand the matter? No! We are to be taught by the Apostles, and may be sure that there is no mistake.

The Lord from time to time has raised up evangelists, pastors and teachers for this glorious service of preparing the "chaste virgin," the Church, to be the Bride in glory, but the Apostolic office, as represented in The Twelve, specially provided by the Father, has continued and needs no replenishment. We still have their instructions as fully as the early Church, "that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto every good work."

MANY DAINTY DISHES

ALL SORTS OF GOOD THINGS TO SELECT FROM.

Hanoverian Steaks as the Principal Material for Dinner—Nut Brown Bread Almost as Good as Cake—Coffee Parfait.

Hanoverian steaks are little hamburg steaks, broiled and well seasoned. Over them is poured at serving time the following sauce: Brown in one tablespoon of butter one-half cup of finely chopped onion and cook five minutes. Add four tomatoes, cut in pieces, or one cup of canned tomato. Season with salt and pepper and add one-half teaspoon of sugar. Cook for ten minutes.

Nut brown bread is a delicious adjunct to the five o'clock tea, and is quite rich enough to be used in place of cake. It slices very thin and may be made into sandwiches with cream cheese. To make it, use two cups of sour milk, one-half cup of molasses in which has been dissolved one large teaspoon of soda; one-half cup of sugar, three cups of whole wheat flour, one teaspoon salt. Mix thoroughly and add one cup of walnut meats cut in small pieces, but not chopped, over which has been sprinkled one teaspoon of sifted flour. Pour into a bread pan and bake in a slow oven for one hour.

Sugared strips are made when making the rhubarb pie for dinner. Roll out the left-over paste, cut in two even pieces, spread one with jam, lay the other strip over, sprinkle with granulated sugar, cut in finger lengths and brown in a hot oven. The sugar will melt and caramelize. These are also nice with afternoon tea.

Coffee Parfait.—Boil one cup of water with one cup of sugar until it will spin a thread. Pour slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, and when cold add one pint of cream, whipped stiff, one-half cup of very strong, black coffee and one-half teaspoon of vanilla. Put in a covered mold, pack in ice and salt and let stand for four hours.

White Nut Cake.—Cream together one-third cup of butter, one cup of sugar. Add one-half cup of sweet milk, two cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder. Beat thoroughly, then add one cup of walnut meats cut in small pieces and dusted with one teaspoon of flour, and at the last fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Bake in a square pan in a slow oven for one hour. Cover with boiled icing and decorate with halves of walnut meats.

Risotto.—Parboil for ten minutes one cup of rice. Drain, blanch with water and let drain again. Put two tablespoons of butter in a frying pan, trim in the rice, add two tablespoons of chopped onion, one cup of thick tomatoes, one and one-half teaspoons of salt, a little paprika and two and one-half cups of water. Cover and let cook slowly until the rice is tender and the water absorbed. Take up on a hot serving dish, sprinkle over one-half cup of grated cheese, stir with fork and serve very hot.

Curried Eggs.—Hard boil three eggs. Make a white sauce of one tablespoon of butter, one of flour and one cup of milk. Stir till thick and smooth, add one-half teaspoon of salt and one-half teaspoon of curry powder. Cut the eggs in eighths and add to the sauce and pour over slices of toast.

How to Clean Oil Lamp Burner.

Cut up some little potatoes in an old kettle with water and put in the lamp burners and let boil with the potatoes all morning or longer if they are very black. This will cook the black off the burners. Then take an old tooth brush, then put in hot soap water before they dried, and a large chicken feather is nice to clean where you cannot use a brush. I have cleaned my lamp burners this way for years. After they are clean they look like new burners. This is an old recipe that I read about twenty years ago in a household paper.—Exchange.

Cream of Asparagus Soup.

For this the canned article may be used. Drain the liquor into a sauce pan and save. Cut off the tips and save these, rub the stocks through a coarse sieve, heat the can liquor in a double boiler with three cups of milk, blend two tablespoonfuls of flour with two tablespoonfuls of cooking oil or butter and pour the heated milk upon it. Return to boiler and cook until smooth and creamy; add the asparagus pulp and heat again, then add the seasoning and the tips.

Crumb Cakes.

For three people: One cup of crumbs (toast bread and grind in meat-chopper), one cup sweet milk, one egg, enough flour to make medium batter, one teaspoon baking powder and salt. Fry as for batter cakes.—Home Department in National Magazine.

Sauce for Bread Pudding.

Cream one-quarter cup of butter and one-half cup of powdered sugar, and beat again until smooth. Flavor with one-half teaspoon of vanilla and pile on a dish roughly. Set away in a cool place if not ready to serve at once.—Alice E. Whitaker.

Kitchen Kink.

A thin coat of potash left on the sink over night once a week will remove the ugly yellow stains that will not yield to kerosene. It should be applied with care as it is poisonous.

PLEA FOR MORE BOILED MEAT

Average Housekeeper Is Inclined to Belittle the Value of This Method of Cooking.

If you scorn boiled beef, either through ignorance of its nutritive value or because the cheaper cuts may be used, here is enlightenment:

One of the most eminent physicians of Carlsbad says boiling is by far the best way to cook meats.

That it is most economical, since no part of its juices are lost, and that flank, a cheap cut, is one of the best pieces for boiling, every good housekeeper knows.

The family with small income or even average income should use boiled meats instead of expensive steaks as one of the first steps toward reducing the cost of living, and it can be done without robbing the table of needed nourishment.

Recipe for Boiled Beef.—Two pounds and a half for small family, or five pounds for medium, should be selected, the beef removed from butcher's paper at once, then wiped. The membrane is then removed, the meat shaped, stuffed, tied and then skewered. Cover with a cloth, place in kettle, cover with boiling water, bring to boiling point and cook just below the boiling point five or six hours until tender. Simmered beef would be a more correct term than boiled beef, but it is ordinarily known as boiled beef.

Season with salt one-half hour before serving. Reserve liquor for making gravies and soups. Boiled beef should have a rich well seasoned gravy served with it.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Stains may be removed from the zinc tops of kitchen tables with vinegar.

Potato balls which are sauted in butter after being boiled are delicious. They should be served with a generous sprinkling of minced parsley.

When making baked or boiled custard the milk to be used should be scalded and set aside to cool. Then make the custard in the ordinary way and it will be perfectly smooth.

If one cupful of vinegar is put with the water in which colored table cloths are washed it will prevent the color from running. Iron when still damp and they will look equal to new.

To make string beans or cabbage tender in cooking them and also to shorten the time required for cooking the latter vegetable add a pinch of baking soda to the water in which they are boiled. This, used judiciously, makes the vegetables as fresh and tender as when they came from the garden.

New Kind of Syrup.

To make syrup that epicures cannot tell from genuine maple syrup, boil a dozen dark corncobs in a gallon of water for two hours; strain the liquid, measure, take twice as much granulated sugar, juice of one-half a lemon or a tablespoon strong vinegar (to keep syrup from turning back to sugar); boil five minutes.

In making the above or plain sugar syrup, it is not necessary to add vinegar or lemon juice if the ingredients are put together when cold and stirred occasionally (not boiled).—Home Department in National Magazine.

Italian Tomatoes.

Remove thin slices from the stem end of six large hot-house or southern tomatoes. Scoop out most of the pulp with a small spoon. Then cook two-thirds of a cupful of macaroni, broken in small pieces, in boiling salted water until soft. Drain off the water and add the tomato pulp, drained of extra juice, and one-half cupful of grated cheese. Season highly with paprika and add salt to taste. Fill the tomato cases with the mixture, sprinkle tops with bread crumbs, add a nut of butter to each and bake half an hour.

Sweet Muffins.

One-half cupful of butter rubbed to a cream. One-half cupful of sugar stirred into the butter. Add two well beaten eggs, stir and mix thoroughly. Add one cupful of sweet milk, three and three-quarters of a cupful of winter wheat flour. Three rounded teaspoonfuls of baking powder should be sifted into the flour after measuring, and the flour and the baking powder sifted together into the muffin mixture. Bake in gem pans about twenty minutes.

Baked Halibut Steaks.

Trim the steaks, lay them on a roasting pan and for two pounds use one cup of cream, one teaspoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of pepper. Dredge the steaks with the flour, add the seasoning and dot with the butter, then pour over the cream and bake fifteen minutes in a quick oven.

Keeps Skillets and Griddles Like New.

Every housewife knows that every iron or steel utensil will become a solid mass of burned grease on the outside and sometimes on the inside. To clean them place them in a hot fire until they are redhot or until white ashes form over them. Remove and when cold wash and you have a new skillet or griddle.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

MINNESOTA FOR ROOSEVELT

Colonel Secures the Entire Delegation of Twenty-four to the Republican National Convention.

HOW DISTRICTS STAND.

County conventions in this state showed beyond a doubt that Colonel Roosevelt will have the entire twenty-four delegates from this state to the national convention at Chicago. The conventions showed Minnesota's anti-Taft sentiment to be stronger than the first returns from the caucuses Saturday night indicated, but La Follette appeared fully as well as he did Saturday night, although he was unable to control any congressional district.

Talk that La Follette might carry the Ninth district and get those two delegates went glimmering when Polk county, which the Taft men threatened to take away from Roosevelt by going over to La Follette, instructed its delegates for the colonel. Kittson county, which gave Roosevelt a majority on the preferential vote, instructed for La Follette.

President Taft has an instructed delegation from only one county, Winona, where former Congressman Tawney was able to control the delegation.

CLOSE MUNICIPAL CONTEST

Herbert P. Keller Again Chosen Mayor of St. Paul.

In the closest municipal election St. Paul has seen in years Herbert P. Keller (Rep.) was re-elected mayor over Otto Bremer (Dem.) by 423 majority. Major W. C. Handy (Rep.) for comptroller defeated D. J. Sullivan (Dem.) by 267. S. A. Farnsworth (Rep.) for treasurer won by 3,000 over Otto Rohland (Dem.). The Republicans control the assembly by five to four and the Democrats have seven of the twelve aldermen. The amendment to the charter providing for the commission plan of government carried by a large majority. The new plan will go into effect in 1914.

TRAIN STRIKES AUTOMOBILE

Two Persons Killed in Railway Crossing Accident.

Two persons were killed almost instantly, a third is dying and the fourth member of a party of autoists is seriously injured as a result of an accident at Argyle, near Warren. The auto and occupants were struck by a Great Northern freight locomotive. The dead are: Miss Lou Tiedt, thirty years old, Argyle, and Miss Anna Meissner, Euclid, Minn.

The autoists were crossing the track half a mile north of the village of Argyle when they collided with the locomotive, which was running at about twenty miles an hour.

FIRST VICTIMS OF SEASON

Four Twin City People Drown in the Mississippi.

Four residents of the Twin Cities were drowned in the Mississippi river in a series of accidents, the two from St. Paul being the first victims there of the open season. The list is as follows:

Alphonse Frey, thirteen years old, St. Paul; Joseph Pahn, forty-five years old, South St. Paul; George Moline, twenty years old, Minneapolis; Frank Lyons, twenty-three years old, Minneapolis.

Bonfire Is Fatal to Child.

A little daughter of Gaspard Lajambe of Plummer was burned to death while burning rubbish in their yard. She had been sent to throw some rubbish on the pile of burning straw. Her dress caught fire. Her mother was badly burned about the hands and arms trying to put out the flames.

Duluth Adopts New Ideas.

Voters at the Duluth election emphatically declared at the polls that they wish to have the initiative, referendum and recall become a part of the city charter. The voting was quite heavy and the vote to incorporate the proposed amendment was carried by a vote of about 4 to 1.

Lightning Fatal to Farmer.

In a heavy thunder storm Martin Christenson, a farmer living southwest of Herman, was struck by lightning while he was near a window in his house. The dwelling was burned to the ground and the man's body was consumed.

Chris. Christenson, a brakeman on the Soo Line and a member of the Thief River ball team, had one of his fingers smashed in a coupling while switching in the local yard Monday morning. The tip of his finger was completely taken off, and he may be unable to do any work for a couple of weeks. Mr. Christenson has been exceptionally unfortunate this winter as he had just recovered from an attack of typhoid fever and was making his first trip when the latter accident befell him. He had the wound treated by Dr. Hanson.

Miss Martha Tanem left Monday evening for her home at Thief River after having completed a successful term of school north of town. A pleasant surprise party was given for Miss Tanem at the Steen home Sunday afternoon, and a very large crowd is reported as having been in attendance. Members of the school district gathered at the home in the forenoon and numbering about forty guests sat down to a sumptious dinner. A large gathering of young people, and intimate friends of Miss Tanem gathered in the afternoon and amusements of various kinds were indulged in to a late hour that evening. Everyone present reports a good time.

Ben Lonson and Henry Froseth came down from Thief River Saturday, the former to direct the band at the concert preceding the dance, and the latter to assist in the band.

MIDDLE RIVER.

From The Pioneer.

The Thief River Falls News came out last week under new management having been purchased from Mrs. Eastman by Marcus C. Cutter. Mr. Cutter is an old newspaper man but has been out of the harness for several years past during which he has been purchasing agent for the State Board of Control. The Pioneer extends the glad hand to him and hopes he may find his lines cast in pleasant places in his new location.

A. C. Kvennes and wife went to Thief River Falls Monday afternoon in Kvennes' automobile expecting to return the same evening. But "the best laid plans aft gang agley." Something went wrong with the works of the machine three miles out from Thief River necessitating telephoning for an auto to come out and haul them into town. They were obliged to spend the night in Thief River and did not reach home until after noon Tuesday. It all goes in the experience of running autos. Kvennes has had exceptionally good luck with his car though, this being the first time he was ever hung up on the road.

Carl Wedmer returned Monday from Thief River Falls with a 3x4 smile on his phiz. Cause why: he is the father of a baby girl to which his wife gave birth in Thief River Falls at the home of his mother.

Miss Katherine Murphy, who is operating a millinery shop at Argyle arrived here Thursday and stayed until Saturday. She came from Thief River Falls where she has been visiting for several days.

Ole Syverron and wife went to Thief River Falls Monday and returned Tuesday.

John Aos and family went to Thief River Falls Tuesday returning yesterday.

Mr. Akre, the Heileman Brewery man, of Thief River Falls, was here Friday.

Knute Nelson went to Thief River Falls Monday returning Tuesday.

when its foundation is undermined, and if the foundation of health—good digestion—is attacked, quick collapse follows. On the first signs of indigestion, Dr. King's New Life Pills should be taken to tone the stomach and regulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Pleasant, easy, safe and only 25 cents at all druggists.

One of the chief attractions in living on the Pacific slope for the lover of flowers is the ease with which the tender varieties of roses can be grown. A Kaiserin Victoria rosebush in a schoolyard not far from the writer's ranch is two and a half inches in diameter at the ground and is so tall that the blossoms in the top have to be plucked from a stepladder In the north central states one thinks he is doing well if he nurses one of these tender roses through the winter by the aid of a hard coal fire and feels rewarded if he gets a blossom or two

For some reason the nature of the grape is such that it seems to thrive best on soil that is thinnest and most unpromising. One of the most prolific yields of wild grapes the writer ever saw was on vines located on the north slope of a railroad embankment consisting of nearly pure sand, coarse gravel and cinders. Just how these vines managed to get the nourishment necessary for growth of leaf and tendril and production of luscious fruit it is hard to make out, but the fact is they did. This scant fare habit of the grape is one that should be kept in mind in the setting of the vineyard.

DANISH PEOPLE ARE SHOCKED

Death of King Fredrik Followed Reports That He Was on Road to Recovery—August Strindberg, Sweden's Foremost Man of Letters, Expires at Stockholm—Norway Fears Dearth of Tourist Traffic Following Titanic Disaster.

DENMARK.

The king of Denmark is dead. He passed away on a street in Hamburg, Germany, whither he arrived last Monday on his return from a trip to the southern part of Europe, where he was convalescing from a serious attack of inflammation of the lungs. Together with the queen and the royal suite he had taken quarters at the Hamburgerhof hotel. King Fredrik was fond of traveling incognito and of taking long strolls by himself. He died unattended and alone from apoplexy after having gone only a short distance from the hotel. He fell unconscious to the pavement and died instantly and not being recognized as a person of so great prominence his body was rushed to the nearest hospital in an automobile. When members of the king's suite became alarmed over his failure to return to the hotel after a reasonable time they called in the proprietor and a search was begun. The searchers found his majesty dead at the hospital and brought his body back to the hotel with them. At the time of his death King Fredrik was dressed in an ordinary business suit and appeared to be a well-to-do tradesman. The passersby ran to assist him, but he was already dead when they reached his side.

The people of Denmark were stunned by the sudden death of their popular king, having been informed only a few days ago that he was getting better. His court physicians were unable to induce him to observe the quiet necessary to his convalescence. King Fredrik was a great admirer of the United States and was a close student of American literature. He was always glad to greet American visitors at the palace. It is said that during the first two years of his reign King Fredrik was not popular, but in latter years, when the people had recognized his work for Danish welfare and prosperity, he became most popular. Christian Fredrik was proclaimed king of Denmark as Fredrik VIII on Jan. 30, 1906, after the death of Christian IX., the aged king, who was dean of the crowned heads of Europe. King Fredrik was noted for his culture and possessed many foreign distinctions. While seldom openly identifying himself with political questions he took an active part in all public movements. He was at one time chancellor of Copenhagen university and head of the Free Masons of Denmark. His interest in the army, of which he was an inspector general, was great and he introduced many reforms which improved the lot of all the soldiers.

+ + +

A telegram dated at Copenhagen May 15 says: "Christian X. was proclaimed king of Denmark from the balcony of the palace at 3 p. m. today in the presence of a large concourse of people, who had gathered in the square in front of the royal residence. The reading of the proclamation was hailed with a loud cheer from the enormous crowd. Throughout the day the church bells of the country had been tolling. At the palace many telegrams of condolence from chiefs of state have arrived, including one from President Taft. The German emperor is expected to attend the funeral ceremony."

The cash returns from the sale of sixty-eight cent corn look inviting, but from the standpoint of welfare of the land seven cent beef and hogs and thirty five cent butter are a whole lot more attractive.
